UNDERGROUND CURRICULA ON CAMPUSES REPORTED

Seoul KYONHYANG SINMUN in Korean 9 Dec 81; page not given

[Summary]The most crucial cause to some students' negation of realities and prejudiced ideologies, lies in some literature and ideological books read among students in their underground "study groups." A total number of such books is estimated at around 600. They are not necessarily all banned books. There are many good books, which contributed greatly to the development of learning. The problem, however, is that even in the case of such good books, their reading method is distorted.

"The underground curricula," which may be considered an ideological source of the recent campus turmoils, have several stages as follows: An initial stage of discarding the pre-conceived sense of value, such as cold war logic; a stage of unveiling the irrationalities of society and the actual status of the weak; a stage of comparing social reforms and revolutions in other countries with our realities; and a stage of eventually seeking ways and means to translate into practice what they learned, under a methodology of historical philosophy, such as materialistic dialectic.

The initial course begins in mid-March, when the college lectures or applications for attending lectures are about to start. From that time, students begin reading literary works like "The Wretched of the Earth," and take interest in the question about "what the masses are." They also read a book like "What is History?" or a collection of commentaries on history by "K."

At the same time, they criticize an anti-intellectual way of thinking about the historical development of the China and Vietnam questions. And they come to believe that such critical awareness is applicable even to Korean realities.

Next, they are given themes like a "mission of intellectuals" and "tasks of the student movement." Then, they are led to form some negative images of Korea's economic and social problems. To this end, they nourish the critical consciousness of realities by reading the criticisms of economics by "L" and "Y." They also promote their "resistance consciousness" by digging up the realities in an indirect way, such as by reading a collection of eassys written by "S" and "H" and poems by "K" and "S" as well as novels by "P" and "C."

Around this time, they go through the "membership training," student service activities in rural areas, and night school and conversation activities. In the second semester of the first year, the freshmen come to delve into the study of modern Korean history, with the sense of belonging to their study groups and the sense of solidarity with the general public. And they study the history of resistance, such as farmers uprisings, land survey projects, rice production increasing plans and student movement under the Japanese rule, and post-Liberation political and economic structures.

Beginning in this semester, freshmen come to read the following works; the collections of commentaries by "P," "C," and "Y" dealing with the realities and tasks of the Korean economy; the collections of theses by "P," "C," and "K" which dealt with the March 1st Independence Movement, the characteristics of capitalism in Korea and a historical review of labor problems; "history of the Communist movement in Korea" by "S," "history of student movement under Japanese rule" by "K," and "agricultural economics" by "K."

There are some other factors responsible for accelerating rigidity in the students' way of thinking. They are the works of some Japanese leftist scholars who pedantically and freely use such terms as "comprador," "fascist," "struggles," and "classes."

The Japanese language gives a clearer idea than English as well as a far more distinct image. About two to three years ago, there arose a boom of Japanese language study in "membership training" courses under the guidance of juniors and seniors. There was also a sales boom for Japanese books. They include works authored by Kohachiro TAKAHASHI, Hisao OTSUKA, Takashi HATA, Masayoshi TANAKA, Shiro NOHARA, KANG Chae-on, AN Pyong-ch'i, and so forth.

"In the intellectual climate of Japan, learning and politics are closely related, and they readily abandon the logical consistency depending on circumstances. To follow such a climate unconditionally will pose a danger of forfeiting the verification and national identity of our learning," said Prof. "S," 44, of the "S" university.

As they move up to the second year, they study the histories of revolutions and social movements in China, Russia, Vietnam, Cuba, Algeria, Latin America, and other third world countries. Through this study, the students reportedly learn, from a leftist leaning position, a law of history development and an eventuality of revolutions.

Then, the students further what they call "theoretical rearmament" by reading numerous works of revolutionaries, thinkers, economists, and scientists, such as LENIN, KAUTSKY, BUKHARIN, MAO Tze-tung, HO Chi Minh, CASTRO, DOUB, SWEEZY, BARRAN, LUCACS, HEGEL, GOLDMAN, ARMIN, and MARCUSE.

The big problem here is that they would pursue only the theories, historical facts, and facts which help to justify their own "position," and throw away all the rest which runs counter to that. For instance, such works include "K's" "History of Russian Revolution," "K's" "History of the Chinese Communist Party," and related data on Communism available at the "A" research center of "K" university.

Professors deplore that "MAO Tze-tung's thoughts" by "K" and "LENIN and Russian Revolution" by "S" and other works on the Communist bloc are read in a farfetched direction.

RADICAL SLOGANS ON CAMPUSES ANALYZED

Seoul KYONHYANG SINMUN in Korean 16 Dec 81 [page not given]

[Summary]"Democratic fellow students! Outcries of the 40 million people make us . . . Starved m. . we shall expose it and denounce . . . And we shall make clear that this is our position for launching our struggles . . ." This is the beginning part of a statement under the title, "Long live, anti-fascist democratic struggles," a leaflet scattered by students in the "S" university early in October.

Unlike in the early 1970's, the students these days employ some radical terms and even startling phrases indiscriminately. A consensus among school authorities is that the current student slogans are too outspoken and provocative. Even in the case of the "Democratic Youth Student League" incident of 1975, their slogans and manifestos had not gone beyond that they were characteristic of "anti-government activities" according to an attorney at law.

A student of the "S" university, who was released from jail toward the end of November, said that he was reprimanded by his senior for involvement in student demonstrations. "Unlike in the past, you are now using some extreme language and disgusting terms, thereby leading rather to the atrophy of the student movement. If you did so during the days of the Yusin system, you might have been all jailed on charges of violating the Anti-Communist Law and the National Security Law."

An "S" university authority says that there are many militant and intimidating slogans. To name only a few, they include such as "Long live anti-fascist struggles for democracy!" "manifesto of struggles by anti-fascist fellow students," "manifesto on liberation of human beings," and "all comrades in the "K" university's anti-fascist struggles for emancipation of the people."

"In the past, the students' manifestos and printed matters had some definite points for dispute. For instance, they used to cry for "removal of the Yusin Constitution," for "lifting the emergency decrees," "opposition to rewriting the Constitution to provide a way toward seeking reelections for three consecutive presidential terms." Or, they had called for "opposition to the normalization talks between Korea and Japan." It must be frankly admitted that depending on circumstances, some of them had some convincing part as well.

The recent ones, however, fail to be concrete and realistic; and therefore, they sound hollow. They put forth ambiguously "establishment of a Socialist economic system."

In most cases, they rule the targets of their criticisms as "comprador clique" and "fascist group." Next, they come to oppose the present power system in definite terms. Almost invariably, they try to analyze the economic aspects for this purpose. As such, their analysis can not but be pointing to "comprador economy' and but cite "serious foreign debt burden" and "widening income gap."

In spite of many difficulties involved, the government has resolutely carried out the retrenching of its own structure. This has aroused absolute sympathy among people from various walks of life. Even on this point, some students have severely criticized it, saying that "it was a means to unify their chain of command."

An official of the Economic Planning Board says, "It is certainly regrettable that students nowadays try hard to avert their eyes from economic realities of the PRC and Cuba as well as the recent IBRD report which termed Korea "a country in which income distribution has been made relatively well, among other newly industrialized nations."

"In the present circumstances, it will be most important that the students do have a little more composure in their thinking and behavior," Prof. "J" of the "S" university says. A democratic country cannot be built overnight by overthrowing the government by force. This has been keenly felt through the April 19th Student Revolution and after the Oct. 26th incident. "A democratic nation with democratic citizens can be built only when members of society are well grounded for that," he added.

BRIEFS

MINORITY PARTIES--The Democratic Justice Party has confirmed floor strategy for this year which will be focused on widening the scope of dialogue with minority parties on the basis of what it has learned from the operation of the national assembly last year. The majority party will also put the Standing Committees into full operation during the year to tackle various law bills and petitions without delay. The party's policy on house operation was endorsed in a joint meeting of the floor leader's team and the chairmen of the standing panels at the party headquarters yesterday. As an initial program to promote Standing Committee activity, all the panels will be called to order in February to handle pending bills, according to floor leader Rep. Yi Chong-chan. Especially, the party will adopt a new pattern in dealing with bills forwarded by the minority parties. Rep. Yi said, "Before the house acts on minority party-proposed bills, we will deliberate them fully in joint meetings among the DJP, minority party, and the government." "This will help widen the dialogue among the parties," he noted. The floor leader also said that the party would encourage its lawmakers to enact laws on their own ideas starting this year. WOMEN ISSUES--The majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP) plans legislation designed to establish an advisory council on women's problems in the government by 1983. The plan is contained in a package aimed at improving women's status and expanding the female role in society. Ministries concerned are now studying the package, it was learned yesterday. The council most likely to be set up in the office of the prime minister will be empowered to oversee policy programs for women. A DJP officer explained that long- and short-term programs will be carried out on a gradual basis to upgrade women's social standing and welfare. The officer said the package includes eliminating various kinds of legal discriminations between men and women. The package also features the expansion of facilities for the health of mothers and children, the establishment of legal counseling centers for women and the removal of discrimination against women. LIFTING POLITICAL BAN--Kwon Chong-tal, secretary-general of the majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP), yesterday ruled out a possibility of lifting the political ban on "political outcasts" in the immediate future. Kwon dampened mounting speculations on the removal of the ban on some of the political outcasts by saying he believes it is still premature to talk about the issue. Hundreds of allegedly corrupt politicians were banned May 17, 1980 from taking part in political activities until June 1988. There have been speculations that some of the political outlaws will be allowed to resume their political activities in the near future in the wake of recent reform measures including the lifting of the curfew. The majority secretary-general said a certain amount of political stability was achieved in the past year but that it is still necessary to further renovate the political milieu. Calling for an "overt raising" of the political fund, he voiced a wish that minority parties would form support groups as soon as possible. [Text] [SK120129 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 12 Jan 82 p 1]

RECRUITMENT DRIVE--The Democratic Justice Party (DJP) has adopted a policy to recruit influential figures in large numbers from all walks of life around January 15, the first anniversary of its founding. The plan is designed not only to realize party politics but to lead the government in developing policies, a high-ranking official of the party said yesterday. He revealed that the party would invite talented officials from various organizations including the government and state-run enterprises for these purposes. To admit more young and able persons into the party, the number of party Central Executive Committee members will be increased to the level of 3,000, 1,000 more than the present 2,000, he said. The official also said that the party would give priority to "working-level" contacts between the party and the government for closer cooperation in the days to come. [Text] [SK100255 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 10 Jan 82 p 1]

GOVERNMENT, DJP TO MEET--The majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP) established a man-to-man working-level consultation system with the government yesterday to streamline cooperation between the two. As a result, the DJP and the government will hold a general working-level consultation meeting every three months to discuss ways of further promoting cooperation. DJP policy coordinators will meet government planning and management officers "as often as possible" to talk about major policy formulation. A DJP officer said party policymakers will take part in the government's policy formulation "from the initial stage" and that the government will provide the party with materials needed to chart policies. Future working-level consultations are to be overseen by chief DJP policy coordinator Pak Hyon-tae and minister of state for political affairs Chong Chong-taek. Chong is concurrently a DJP lawmaker who serves as a pipeline between the government and the DJP. Presiding over the first working-level consultation meeting at the DJP headquarters, the minister said the government and the DJP should increase cooperation through candid exchanges of opinions on policy affairs. Working-level policymakers of the DJP and the government were asked to huddle as often as possible to ensure that major policies will be worked out and executed with full consultation and cooperation, he said. The DJP and the government can reflect people's opinions fully, only when smooth cooperation is ensured between the two, he stressed. This would also be in keeping with the wishes of the DJP, who made the same statement late last year. The strengthening of cooperation between the DJP and the government has been in the limelight since the new cabinet led by acting Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun set sail January 4. REORGANIZATION DISPUTE--The Democratic Korea Party (DKP) is likely to suffer major intra-party trouble for the first time since its founding on January 17, last year because of a strong move among some key post holders calling for mass resignations of ranking officials. Reps Sin Sang-u, secretary general, and Han Yong-su, chief policy maker, have insisted that the major post holders tender resignations en bloc to party President Rep Yu Chi-song to give him a free hand in reorganizing the party hierarchy on the occasion of the first anniversary of its founding. They shared the view in a meeting Friday that the withdrawal of leading party figures was necessary to invigorate the party, which they claimed had been inactive for the past year. They agreed to discuss the issue of tendering resignations in a group shortly after the party observes the first anniversary of its creation on January 16. Meanwhile, party head Rep Yu has said that he does not see any necessity of reorganizing the party hierarchy at the present time. [Text] [SK100215 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 10 Jan 82 p 1]

MINOR PARTIES' MERGER--The merger of the Democratic Socialist Party [DSP] and the New Political Party [NPP], which appeared to [be] making smooth progress, unexpectedly hit a snag owing to opposition from members of both parties outside the parliament and due to the negative attitude taken by NPP member Yi Tae-yop. The merger of the two parties, which the DSP's Paek Chan-ki announced in the afternoon at the office of the DSP's Yi Won-hyong, did not materialize. The very person in whose office the declaration was slated to be made, Yi Won-hyong furiously said: "Who in the world has arranged such a meeting? It is pure nonsense that the NPP should be merged with the DSP." Yi Tae-yop, who was notified at the last minute, strongly opposed merging the NPP into the DSP, saying: "party merger is not a childish game. Unless the DSP revises its socialist line, the NPP cannot agree to merge with the DSP." Despite such events, Ko Chong-hun, president of the DSP, said: "Such reactions were expected. Merging of the two parties will eventually take place by next week," maintaining an optimistic view over the party merger. [Text] [SK090045 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 8 Jan 82 p 2]

UNITY URGED--Rep Yu Chi-song, president of the Democratic Korea Party (DKP), revealed yesterday that he did not intend to reorganize the party hierarchy at the present time, calling for the party members to make efforts for the development of democracy in the nation in total harmony. He said, "The most important thing the party should do at this juncture is to realize unity among partisans without giving the people the impression of a split in the party." "This will help the party to put democratic order on the right track and to stabilize the livelihood of the people in low income brackets," he said. Rep Yu made the remarks during the year's first meeting of the executive council, which took issue with the controversial proposal for the mass resignation of six key post holders. [Text] [SK140109 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 14 Jan 82 p 1]

TENANT FARMING LAW--Seoul, Jan 14 (YONHAP)--The Korean Government is considering revising the current farmland preservation and utilization law, in a bid to allow tenant farming for the convenience of absentee landowners. Agriculture-Fisheries Ministry officials said Thursday that whereas the land reform law, promulgated in 1949, bans tenant farming or farming on leased land or on consignment, the current basic law (constitution), which was amended in 1980, permits farming on leased land or on consignment. Thus the move is designed to revise the law, in accordance with the constitution. A revised bill will be submitted to the national assembly for approval when it opens its annual regular session in September, according to the officials. Meanwhile, official statistics compiled last year through a nationwide survey of 11,300 farm households show that 70.8 percent of the farm households polled were farming on their own land, 22.5 percent on both their own and concurrently leased land, and 6.7 percent were engaged in farming on entirely leased land. CHANGE IN ECONOMIC STRATEGY URGED

[Editorial: "New Economic Expectations"]

[Text] The recent infusion of much-needed fresh blood into our top economic ministries brightens our expectation for the economy. Since the acting prime minister and other newly appointed economic ministers are all seasoned veterans of the business world, we can count on them to steer our economy along a stable growth course through practical ways and means based on their many years of business experience rather than armchair theorizing.

But that alone does not assure us of a smooth sailing for our economy in this difficult year of 1982. The seven-percent economic growth of last year merely brought back our economy to where it was in 1979 because of the following year's minus growth. Furthermore, last year's growth is attributed mostly to the growth of agriculture and export sectors, leaving the domestic market still in doldrums. That explains why most people and business firms feel that our economy has yet to snap out of three long years of slump, despite the official economic statistics pointing to the other way.

True, groundwork has been laid for sustained stable growth as the inflation has been brought under control. But we had to pay a stiff price for it. The reduced real income of the people lowered their purchasing power to the extent that the domestic market remains as depressed as ever. This is not a healthy situation no matter how vigorous our exports might have been.

As long as our economy is heavily dependent on exports, the export drive will have to continue, but building up our export industries at the cost or in neglect of the domestic market is a questionable strategy. Without a broad, solid backing of the domestic market, the export industry, however impressive it may look, is incomplete. Without a healthy domestic market to absorb external shocks, even a mighty export industry is liable to crumble at repeated external assaults in this age of worldwide protectionism and stiffening competition with the newly emerging industrial nations of the Third World.

Developing the domestic market is as important as encouraging export industries, for they complement and reinforce each other. What good is it if export growth brings in no tangible benefit to the people through a higher standard of living?

Stimulating the domestic market, however, runs the risk of rekindling the cinders of inflation. Developing a domestic market and at the same time arresting inflation to a single digit this year, as the new economic ministers' team indicated, will be no mean trick. One aid for maintaining such a delicate balancing act on a tight rope would be a freer market economy.

The idea of switching our growth strategy from the government-directed approach to a private sector-initiated one has been advocated by both the government and business communities for some time, but the switchover has been at a snail's pace. The recent indication of the new economic ministers to phase out the more decisive government control and interference in the private economy is therefore all the more welcome.

The time is ripe to adjust our growth strategy in response to changing conditions.

BUSINESS GROUPS HAIL GOVERNMENT ECONOMIC STEPS

SK150526 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 15 Jan 82 p 3

[Text] The government's announcement yesterday of a partial economic recovery package received a positive reaction from the local business community.

Describing the package as the "brainchild of the best efforts" made by the new economic team, the country's four influential economic forums--the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry (KCCI), the Federation of Korean Industries (FKI), the Korean Traders Association (KTA) and the Korea Federation of Small Businesses (KFSB)--expressed hope that the nation's economy will gain added momentum by taking advantage of the proposed economic measures.

"Although the contents of the package is far from what ailing local business firms had earlier expected from the government, the government had few options to work with in its attempts to deal with the slumping economy without jeopardizing the balance of payments situation and the stabilization of commodity prices," said the FKI.

The FKI, representing a wide spectrum of the country's business interests argued that more comprehensive measures should have been introduced along with the package to encourage capital spending projects, innovation of technology, and productivity boost on a medium- and long-term basis.

In this context, the economic forum recommended the government to slash fiscal spendings, stabilize public utility charges, and seek fair and effective distribution of limited monetary and fiscal funds.

The KCCI, which normally speaks for the business interests of enterprises smaller than those affiliated with the FKI, welcomed the package, describing it as "the only available option" in the current difficult situation facing the nation.

"We can expect much from the package, although the economic measures contained in the package are not a cure-all prescription for the ailing economy," said the KCCI.

The KTA also came out with the positive comment that the package would contribute greatly towards stabilizing the nation's economy while injecting new life into the slumping economy sector by sector.

"We do quite agree with the government's idea of stimulating the overall economy through a housing industry boost but we hope that another set of measures designed to expedite facilities expansion projects in the private sector will be offered by the government in the near future, the KTA said.

The KFSB also issued a statement welcoming the introduction of the pump-priming measure.

The KFSB, representing a wide spectrum of small- and medium-size industries, expressed dissatisfaction on the lack of concrete measures intended for small businesses.

"We do hope that more bold measures aimed at shoring up the shaky balance sheet of financially poor small business firms will be introduced as a follow-up to the package," said the KFSB.

PROSPECTS GLOOMY FOR SHIPBUILDING, OTHER INDUSTRIES

SK100251 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 10 Jan 82 p 7

[Text] The Korean shipbuilding industry is feared to run aground in its sailing for prosperity with the tone of its international markets showing signs of a slump, the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry (KCCI) has forecast.

The global demand for shipbuilding is likely to slow down, and shipbuilding prices have declined, said the chamber in its report on the 1982 business prospects for 10 major industrial lines.

"Other industries are not expected to score any drastic recovery this year, only slightly edging above last year's level in general," the chamber reported.

The chamber foresaw that machinery, electronics, cement reinforcing steel bars and automobiles would be better off to some extent this year.

But the chamber posted a chilly forecast for cement, shipbuilding, petrochemicals and textiles, all of which may face worse conditions this year than last year.

The local cement industries may be tormented with severe management troubles unless the government comes out with a drastic pump-priming policy, according to the private economic forum's prediction.

In particular, petrochemical industries will see the hardest time this year, finding no breakthrough to get out of the stagnation tunnel.

Under these circumstances, the chamber expressed fear that the operation of the Yochon Petrochemical Complex would stop partially.

Local demand declines and rising inventories are likely to combine to harass the petrochemical industry.

But cement reinforcing steel bars, the chamber went on, are poised to score a 19.5 percent increase in production this year thanks to the increases in domestic and foreign demand.

Machinery output is rated to score more than a 20 percent growth, according to the chamber.

The chamber forecast that electronics would chalk up a 32.5 percent increase in production and a 22.6 percent rise in exports.

The production of automobiles is estimated to top 172,000 units this year, up 9.6 percent over the preceding year.

Meanwhile, the chamber forecast that domestic construction turnover would reach the 5,000 billion level, a 25 percent surge over the year-earlier mark.

SOME INDUSTRIES SHOW IMPROVEMENT IN 1982

SK090228 Seoul YONHAP in English 0054 GMT 9 Jan 82

[Text] Seoul, Jan 9 (YONHAP)--Korea's machinery, electronic, steel and automobile industries will perk up slightly this year, but the cement, shipbuilding, petrochemical and textile industries will [not] make progress too much from last year's level.

A Korean Chamber of Commerce and Industry report on business prospects for 1982 released Saturday, said that the electronic industry is expected to record the highest growth rate of 32.5 percent, with its production increasing, from 3.6 billion U.S. dollars last year, to 4.8 billion dollars this year.

Next to electronics was machinery with its expected production growth rate of 24.9 percent, followed by steel (19.5 percent), automobile (9.6 percent) and petrochemical (7.1 percent).

In terms of exports, cement is expected to mark the highest growth rate of 30.5 percent, from 5.5 million metric tons last year to 8.6 million metric tons this year. The production and domestic consumption of cement this year, however, will grow by only 1.5 percent and 0.7 percent, respectively.

Next to cement was automobile, with its expected export growth rate of 29.6 percent, from 27,000 last year to 35,000 this year, followed by machinery (24.9 percent, or from 6.1 billion dollars last year, to 7.7 billion dollars this year), electronic products (22.6 percent, or from 2.4 billion dollars, to 2.9 billion dollars) and iron and steel products (15.7 percent or 4.5 million tons, to 5.2 million tons).

Although electronics will mark moderate growth rates in terms of production and exports, its domestic consumption is unpredictable, according to the KCCI report.

Construction orders in the country are expected to reach five trillion won (roughly 7.2 billion U.S. dollars) this year, up 25 percent from last year's level, due to comprehensive land development projects and preparations for the 1985 Asian Games and the 1988 Olympic Games to be held in Seoul.

EXPORT PROMOTION--Seoul, Jan 9 (YONHAP)--As part of its export promotion strategy, the government is planning to create an inter-ministry consultative body to better coordinate the nation's exports and imports, sources at the Commerce-Industry Ministry said Saturday. In another move, the ministry's plan for export promotion this year calls for increased inter-industry cooperation, to maximize the complementariness of different sectors involved in foreign trade. Under the plan, survey missions are to be sent to developing countries to seek ways of increasing Korean participation in the latter's development programs. It calls for the creation of more overseas branches or representative offices of private corporations and the state-run Korea Trade Promotion Corporation (KOTRA), and a brisk exchange of trade-related information between the government and the private sector. ECONOMIC STABILITY--Seoul, Jan 14 (YONHAP)--Finance Minister Na Ung-pae said Thursday that the maintenance of the current economic stability comes before all the government's economic policy priorities for this year. He said that this year's economic policies will focus on low commodity price hikes, low bank interest rates, the flexible operation of the won-dollar exchange rate on a stable basis, and moderate wage increases. In order to attain these economic policy goals, it is necessary for enterprises and households in general to get rid of their "inflation consciousness," be it in management policies or budgets. Noting that "in the course of achieving high economic growth during the past decade, both enterprises and the people in general have become accustomed to inflation," Na said that the government has waged a diehard fight against this "inflation-soaked" national economy for the past three years, and that this year would be a good chance to straighten out "accumulated problems." BUSINESS WITH ASEAN--Seoul, Jan 13 (YONHAP)--Korean enterprises are being called upon to be careful and prudent in establishing their business footholds in the five member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) because of many restrictions on their apparently positive foreign investment inducement policies. The Federation of Korean Industries (FKI) Wednesday said that although the ASEAN countries welcome foreign investments, they have designnated many areas in which foreign investments are prohibited or restricted, in order to minimize social and economic frictions. Their policies are also geared at averting possible alien influence on their own economies through the gradual nationalization of private enterprises, the FKI said. Therefore, careful feasibility studies are required of Korean enterprises hoping to set up businesses in ASEAN countries. The FKI then recommended technological joint ventures, rather than direct capital investment for Korean companies, saying that nearly half (43 percent) of ASEAN enterprises want technology transfers from foreign countries. In most ASEAN countries, foreign investments in defense industries, the public service sector, press and broadcasting, banking, nuclear power plants, and domestic airline service are totally or partially prohibited, according to the FKI. INDUSTRIAL ECONOMICS--Seoul, Jan 11 (YONHAP)--President Chon Tu-hwan Monday unveiled the Korea Institute for Industrial Economics and Technologies (KIIET) signboard, thus formally inaugurating the new think tank. The ceremony was attended by Commerce-Industry Minister So Sok-chun, KIIET President Pak Song-sang, and other government officials and business leaders. The KIIET, a special-status corporation designed to play a leading role in the country's industrial studies, was established, with President Chon Tu-hwan as the founder, in a merger of the existing Korea International Economic Institute (KIEI) and the Korea Scientific and Technological Information Center (KORSTIC). The KIIET will focus on studying the rational reorganization of industrial structures across the country, and ways of strengthening Korean businesses' international competitiveness in order to enhance the country's future export performance. Other KIIET undertakings will include studies on overseas economics, in connection with foreign capital inducement, the expansion of South Korean business' overseas operations, and the systematic redistribution to domestic enterprises of collected economic and industrial-technological information about foreign countries. The Korean think tank also plans to set up an integrated "data bank" in order to effectively implement its business undertakings, sources at the KIIET said. The institute will be manned by 358 scholars and technologists, including 21 Ph.Ds in economics. KIIET President Pak has served concurrently as president of both KIEI and KORSTIC. PROBLEMS RESULTING FROM CURFEW LIFTING NOTED

[Editorial: "Olympic Citizens"]

[Text] From the very outset of the new year, citizens appear to have failed to conceal their excitement upon the surprise news of the sudden lifting of the long-standing curfew, expanding the scope of routine activities for many of them to 24 hours a day.

Despite the dramatic liberation from the four-hour curfew restrictions beginning at midnight, it is true that most ordinary citizens may prefer to rest at home at night as before without any change in the cycle of their day-to-day lives.

Nevertheless, not a few people may have to stay away from home during the night hours, probably because of their jobs or for some personal reasons.

This means the economic activities of the people will be considerably enlarged with the advent of a no-curfew age.

Most immediately, taxis and buses may have to run on the streets around the clock, attracting clients throughout the night.

Restaurants and other service facilities will also have to open during the night hours for the convenience of citizens whose nightly activities have become as brisk as those of other citizens during the day.

It is considered fortunate that the enlarged life cycle of citizens in the post-curfew days will substantially help invigorate the national economy itself, along with more employment opportunities and expanded economic activities, particularly in the sector of service business.

Since people are quite unfamiliar with trade at night or spending night hours due to the absence of a 24-hour life style for as many as 36 years in the past, many of them will be puzzled, failing to adapt themselves adequately to the new living conditions.

Among other things, we cannot help expressing concern over the lack of service spirit among those running transportation business and restaurants at night, displeasing their clients for one reason or another.

With an excuse of the sleepless operation of business, business people may claim excessive prices of goods and services, for example.

We can accept the increased service rates, including taxi and bus fares during night hours, yet only to a reasonable degree, needless to say.

For this reason, business people working at night are required to enlighten their employees so that they will not annoy citizens attracted to their service facilities of varied kinds.

It is considered necessary for employers to provide special allowances for employees working on the night shift.

We already hear that taxi drivers are reluctant to run their cars at night because of no additional consideration of wages for night hours.

Still, those working at other service setups are failing to obtain special allowances for night work, being unilaterally forced to accept night duties.

All these things should be settled with a reasonable formula, without any further delay, so that business activities at night can be institutionalized as soon as possible, minimizing any inconvenience for citizens.

Business people should remember that their facilities are now fully utilized throughout the day and night and so are expected to gain more profits which must be shared for the good of their working people and clients in any form.

The creation of such a pleasing society at night is a short cut to the cultivation of citizens as a whole in preparation for the forthcoming olympics.

JAPAN URGED TO ACCEPT SEOUL'S LOAN REQUEST

[Editorial: "Breaking the Bottleneck"]

[Text] The preliminary contact between the Seoul and Tokyo governments next week is a welcome forward step toward breaking the deadlock in the bilateral negotiations on the issue of economic cooperation between the two countries. The accord to resume [words indistinct] -level talks came neither too late nor too early. Both [word indistinct] to the deal have had enough time to take counsel with their pillow; neither can afford to procrastinate any longer.

In anticipation of a foreign ministers' conference to take place at the earliest possible date, the preparatory meeting will be held in Seoul for three days between working-level delegations of the Korean and Japanese foreign ministries headed by bureau directors in charge of the regional affairs concerned.

The scope of their activity will be limited to such technical and procedural aspects as setting the date and agenda for the projected foreign ministers' conference probably sometime in March. Nevertheless, the very fact of agreeing to reopen preliminary contacts may well be regarded as reflecting the mutual interest of the two governments in bringing the dispute to a successful conclusion by all means.

There is but little likelihood that the Korean side will accept anything less than the originally requested $6 billion loan. That amount from Japan is considered essential for Korea's Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan that begins this year. Japan is well advised to comply and it can well afford to do so.

Last year Japanese reluctance to respond favorably to the Korean request led their bilateral foreign ministers' conference nowhere, blocking the way for an early Korea-Japan summit to put a seal of political approval. The Japanese took issue with the amoung of the money sought and also its possible use for boosting our defense preparedness.

A recent dispatch from Seoul published in Japan properly observed that the Korean people take for granted the scale and manner of economic cooperation as proposed by their government to Japan. They have good reason to believe that as a responsible and leading economic power friendly to Korea, Japan should be ready to bear its due share.

Japan today stands at the crossroads in its search for a realistic strategy for survival and for a wider acceptance into the international community. The former calls for abandoning its erratic or disguised perception of the need for military viability for peace and security of a nation, a region and the world. The time has come to face the music with fewer excuses.

The latter demands a fresh orientation of the pattern of Japan's relationships with its allies, friends and partners. This is all the more so in its dealing with its closest neighbor and trading partner. It also is related to the varied and unprincipled approaches to countries not friendly to Seoul. A genuine sense of partnership built on a shared burden between Seoul and Tokyo is in order.

No prejudice or preoccupation will be allowed to impede the upcoming Seoul talks of working-level officials. Only open-minded and open-handed political decisions on the part of both governments may cut the Gordian knot. Failure to come to terms will further complicate the already troubled Korea-Japan ties.

SUCCESS OF UPCOMING ROK-JAPAN TALKS DISCUSSED

[Editorial: "New Try for Rapport"]

Spearheading the new round of negotiations will be a contact by working-level officials of the two governments, due to take place in Seoul for three days beginning Thursday. If the preliminary meeting proves to be smooth or at least manages to steer clear of a breakup, the foreign ministers of the two countries are expected to meet possibly in March to pave the way for a summit talk which is hoped to round off the economic issue and also to boost binational relations in other spheres.

It was last September when relations dipped to a low ebb with the futile ending of a multiministerial conference between the two countries--a failure that had been well forecast by the disruption of a foreign ministers' meeting in the preceding month over Korean request for $6 billion in Japanese Government credit over a period of five years.

Since that sorry turn of events, there have been some notable developments in circumstances affecting the stalled negotiations.

One of the tangible changes was an extensive shakeup of the Japanese cabinet in November, which replaced the foreign minister among others in what was hoped to infuse more realistic air into Tokyo's attitude toward Korea. Then only last week, the Korean cabinet also underwent a reshuffle to see a new lineup of its economic portfolios as well as the premiership, but keeping the foreign minister intact.

Another development, subtle yet remarkable, was the deepening of mutual understanding and moves to straighten out approaches to the knotty issue of Japanese loans, which have been reportedly in progress taking advantage of the cooling-off period and also being influenced by changes in the international situation.

Though not necessarily related to the Seoul-Tokyo ties, noteworthy were reports that Japan and the United States agreed last week in a meeting of their security consultative committee to initiate studies on what facilities the former would offer American forces in the event of an emergency on the Korean Peninsula or in other East Asian areas outside Japan.

The agreement deserves international attention, including that of Korea, because it has been pending for the past three years in the U.S.-Japanese consultation--an accord which signals a change in the Japanese perception of their role in regional security.

A bone of contention in the Korea-Japan negotiations has been the nature of justification of the loan request in reference to Korea's security situation--in addition to the amount and methods of providing the credits.

For all that, there can be no dispute that the proposed loans are primarily tied to the Korean economy, more precisely implementation of the nation's Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan that begins this year.

As for other aspects of the issue, it should be a reasonable and understandable stand of a loan recipient to fix the total of credit for its productive and efficient use--more so when it is related to a long-range project like Korea's five-year plan--even of the actual allocation may be made on an annual basis.

Under these broad guidelines, it is sincerely hoped that the forthcoming talks between Korea and Japan can work out a reasonable agreement on the pending issue, which will not only be beneficial to the two nations but also enormously contribute to regional security and peace.

SUPPORT FOR TOKYO-BEIJING ROUTE

SK140220 Seoul YONHAP in English 0159 GMT 14 Jan 82

[Text] Seoul, Jan 14 (YONHAP)--South Korea Wednesday reiterated its support for the simultaneous creation of two direct civil aviation routes linking Tokyo and Beijing over the South and North Korean airspaces, respectively, and suggested that the Tokyo-Beijing flight over the South Korean territory pass through Kangnung, a city on the east coast and Seoul, and reach Beijing via Tianjin or Potou, both in mainland China.

The proposal was made to Assad Kotaite, president of the Council of the International Civil Aviation Organization who was visiting here for consultations with South Korean officials.

The spokesman said that Kotaite promised ICAO's full support for Seoul's position, and said that the organization would continue to consult the South Korean Government on the matter, which, Kotaite said, requires an agreement by all the interested parties, an apparent reference to South and North Korea, Japan and mainland China.

The ICAO has been sounding out the governments of the four countries on their positions regarding the creation of a short-cut commercial flight route between Tokyo and Beijing, which would reduce the current flight time by about 80 minutes.

Current Tokyo-Beijing flights which require four hours and 40 minutes, use a roundabout route south of South Korea's southernmost island of Cheju. The route, set up in 1974, seemed to be the only logical choice, because South Korea has no diplomatic relations with mainland China, and North Korea has no official links with Japan.

North Korea, which initially opposed the creation of two air routes over the Korean peninsula, on the grounds that it would perpetuate the division of the peninsula, reversed its position, and is now said to have agreed, during Kotaite's visit to Pyongyang in November, to creating an air route between Tokyo and Beijing via Pyongyang and Wonsan, a coastal city in eastern North Korea.

The ICAO head will leave here for Tokyo Thursday, to continue his consultations on the issue with Japanese officials.

ENVOY HOPES FOR CLOSER TIES WITH CANADA

SK150105 Seoul YONHAP in English 0042 GMT 15 Jan 82

[Text] Ottawa, Jan 14 (YONHAP)--Korean ambassador to Canada Yi Kyu-hyon Tuesday said he was looking forward to the development of much closer relations between Korea and Canada in the new year, as there is a wealth of goodwill among Canadians toward Korea following Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's visit last September.

Canadians have an immense interest in and respect for Korea, are confident of Korea's political stability, and look to Korea as a model for developing countries, believing that Korea could play a great role in the north-south dialogue, Yi said in an interview.

The north-south dialogue, a forum between the rich, industrialized countries and the poor, Third World nations, is the cause which Trudeau is consistently promoting as one of his major foreign policy objectives.

A ranking external affairs official also said his department was confident of South Korea's ability to maintain the "very strong" political stability which has been restored since the inauguration of President Chon Tu-hwan's government.

Jack Whittleton, director of the department's north Asia and Pacific division, said that Canada was ready, as always, to support Seoul's political position at world forums.

Yi said that a manifestation of the Canadians' goodwill was the increase last year in the Canadian membership in the Korea-Canada parliamentary group from about 70 to more than 100 lawmakers, among the new members is Jean Marchand, speaker of the Senate.

Yi also said that 1982 would see stepped-up high-level exchanges in many fields, including the political arena, adding that Canadian External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan was expected to pay a visit to Seoul sometime this year, to return the visit made by then Foreign Minister Pak Tong-chin to Ottawa in 1979.

EUROPEAN MARKET--The government has decided to increase diplomatic efforts to hit this year's export target of $25 billion. To this end, the trade promotion conference held every three months by each Korean Embassy abroad will be held once every month, informed government sources said yesterday. A special emphasis will be placed on Europe where exports have not been satisfactory last year. The trade promotion conference is being attended not only by the embassy officials concerned but also representatives of trade companies. Policy emphasis will also be given toward increasing indirect trade with East European countries and establishing joint-venture firms there with companies of friendly Western countries. To help achieve the export target, the government plans to dispatch more than 20 trade missions abroad to explore new markets and to expand the existing ones. Cooperation with developing countries will be increased to cope with trade barriers of industrialized countries, the sources added. In parallel with the export promotion, the government will also attempt to solve the economic cooperation issue involving the $6 billion Japanese loan request by Korea at an early date and to introduce soft public loans from international money-lending sources this year. [Text] [SK120133 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 12 Jan 82 p 1]

EXPORT INCREASE--Exports in the first quarter of this year are expected to record a slight upturn of only 8.4 percent over the corresponding period of the previous year or $5 billion. Arrivals of letters of credit (LCS) will drop by 6.4 percent in the same period to $4.5 billion, the Korean Traders Association (KTA) said in a report yesterday. The first quarter's predicted export increase rate of 8.4 percent is much less than 21.6 percent in 1980 and 22.9 percent in 1981.

KTA forecast exports of vessels, containers and electronic products would be brisk, while exports of raw silk, tires, tubes, cement and fertilizer would be sluggish in the first quarter of the year. In the meantime, the prospects for the economics of trading partner countries will remain unchanged in the period as the world economy is expected to recover later than forecast, KTA said. Tariff and non-tariff barriers of the advanced nations are expected to harden reflecting their protectionism in trade, it said. It recommended that the government take such measures as to adjust the exchange rate of local won currency with foreign currencies and to again lower the interest of bank loans in order to promote the competitiveness of Korean products in international markets. ROK, JAPANESE LEADERS MEET--Seoul, Jan 12 (YONHAP)--Business leaders from Korea and Japan will hold an annual joint meeting April 13-14 in Tokyo to discuss bilateral economic cooperation and trade,Korea-Japan Economic Association sources said Tuesday. The coming meeting is expected to touch on a possibility of joint ventures into third countries, notable in the Southeast Asian region, the sources said. The Korean side is certain to call for more Japanese cooperation in rectifying the trade imbalance which has heavily favored Japan. As a concrete step toward this end, Japan will be asked to send more buying missions to Korea, the sources said. The two sides will also discuss the setting up of branches in Japan by Korean retailers. Korea is estimated to have suffered a deficit of about 2.3 billion dollars in its trade with Japan last year. ECONOMIC TIES WITH NIGERIA--Seoul, Jan 13 (YONHAP)--The Korean Trade Promotion Corp. (KOTRA) has recommended that Korean businesses double their efforts in expanding future economic ties with Nigeria, the sixth largest oil producing country in the world. According to a KOTRA report released Wednesday, the African nation has just started its Fourth Five-Year Economic Development Plan and emerged as a new international export market of some 45 billion U.S. dollars per year. The report also said that Nigeria is producing 2.0 to 2.4 million barrels of oil daily, with some 70 percent of the oil revenue going to economic development projects, including railway, steel, refinery and electricity. The KOTRA indicated that Korea could actively participate in Nigeria's economic projects, along with some industrialized countries which have already made inroads into the country. Korean construction companies are also urged to make similar inroads, as the construction boom in the Middle East is apparently beginning to wane. The report cited several sectors ranging from steel mills, fertilizer and electricity, to irrigation and forestry, as promising industrial areas in Nigeria. The KOTRA recommended that the Korean businesses secure sufficient capital, above all, to back up their participation in various projects in Nigeria. FARM PRODUCE IMPORTS--Seoul, Jan 15 (YONHAP)--The Korean Government plans to restrict imports of farm products as part of its efforts to prevent further deterioration of the country's balance of international payments. Agriculture-Fisheries Ministry officials said Friday that their ministry has decided to put a ban on the importation of hot peppers, garlic and onions, beginning this year, in a bid to reduce the one billion-dollar average annual trade deficit in the agriculture sector to 100 million dollars, by 1986. Except for wheat, beans and corn, imports of rice and other staple grains will be totally banned beginning 1986. Self-sufficiency in the production of such staple grains will have to be achieved by then, the officials said. Imports of farm products last year amounted to 2.2 billion dollars. The importation of grains other than rice accounted for more than half (1.2 billion dollars) of the total. Imports of such grains will be limited to 1.3 billion-dollars in 1986, the officials said. 'NODONG SINMUN' MARKS DPRK CONSTITUTION ANNIVERSARY

[Text] Pyongyang, 27 December (KCNA)--The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song published "Socialist Constitution of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea," an immortal classic work, on 27 December 1972, nine years ago.

This day is significantly celebrated as day of the constitution in the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea.

NODONG SINMUN, Minju Choson and other papers here today dedicate editorials to this day.

In an editorial headlined "Let Us More Firmly Consolidate the State-Social System By Thoroughly Implementing the Socialist Constitution," NODONG SINMUN Says: The publication of the socialist constitution by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was an event of weighty significance in the carrying out of our revolutionary cause and in the socio-political life of our people.

Our socialist constitution, an allround embodiment of the immortal chuche idea, fixes by law the great successes registered by our people in the socialist revolution and socialist construction and gives a new definition of all the principles of political, economic and cultural fields in the socialist society.

Completely legalized in it are the will and demand of our people determined not to concede to anyone our socialist system which was chosen by themselves and whose superiority and vitality have been fully proved but to fight more staunchly for the further consolidation and development of the system. It also provides a legal guarantee for modelling the whole of society on the chuche idea by transforming all fields of social life, political, economic and cultural, as required by chuche.

With the institution of the socialist constitution, our people came to have a powerful weapon with which they can consolidate the worker-peasant revolutionary power and state-social system.

Noting that our party set the problem of thoroughly carrying into effect the socialist constitution as an important work for defending the revolution and making a triumphant advance of the cause of chuche and has wisely led the work for its realization, the editorial continues: Over the past 9 years our people under the wise leadership of the party have lived and fought with the norms stipulated in the constitution as a guiding compass, thus achieving great successes in the carrying out of the three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural, and effecting a continued upsurge in socialist construction.

Life clearly shows that the key to giving full play to the superiority of the socialist system and triumphantly accelerating the revolution and construction lies in thoroughly embodying the socialist constitution and all other laws and norms of the state.

The implementation of the socialist constitution is a work for defending and glorifying the revolutionary exploits of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and an important work for modelling the whole of society on the chuche idea, the editorial stresses.

It calls for thoroughly implementing the socialist constitution and all other laws and norms, consolidating and developing still further the state-social system of the DPRK and effecting a new upsurge in the revolution and construction in conformity with the demand of the present developing realities under which our revolution and construction is developing to a new high stage.

Minju Choson carries an editorial headlined "Let Us Brilliantly Accomplish the Revolutionary Cause of Chuche by Throughly Implementing the Socialist Constitution."

'NODONG SINMUN'REVIEWS DPRK SUCCESSES IN 1981

SK302259 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1514 GMT 30 Dec 81

It says: 1981 was a year of victory brilliantly adorning the chronicle of independence.

In the international arena acute confrontation and fierce struggle have continued between the revolutionary forces and counter-revolutionary forces and between the anti-imperialist independent forces and imperialist domination forces. In this course the reactionary forces of imperialism were markedly isolated and weakened and the world political situation has turned more favourable to the people struggling to promote the cause of independence.

The development of the world situation this year has confirmed once again that ours is an era of independence.

This year, too, the chains of domination and subjugation have been broken to pieces in different parts of the globe and a big advance has been made in carrying out the cause of independence of the people.

Belize and Antigua and Barbuda and other countries cast off the yoke of colonial rule of imperialism and greeted in a new morning of freedom and liberation.

One of the precious successes gained this year was that many countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America which have already won national independence and sovereignty smashed the imperialists ceaseless subversive manoeuvres and sabotages in time and kept up their vigorous advance along the road of independence, sovereignty and social progress.

Those peoples who are still under the bondage of imperialism, more resolutely turned out to the just liberation struggle and moved up the day of freedom and liberation with shining combat successes.

The Namibian patrots, firmly taking up arms for the genuine independence of the country from the illegal occupation by the South African racists, mounted fierce attacks on the occupationists from the outset of the year and opened up a favourable phase for the independence of the country by organising and mobilizing broad segments of the popular masses in the struggle.

The Palestine Liberation Organisation dealt a heavy blow at the Israeli aggressors by further expanding and strengthening its political and military forces and valiantly struggling in various forms including the armed sturggle and the struggle was fierce in Western Sahara, too, to restore the lost territory and national sovereignty.

With arms in their hands the resistance fighters and people of El Salvador, Guatemala, Chile and other countries where pro-U.S. fascist dictatorial regimes have been set up, made powerful attacks on the dictators, giving them not a breathing space, and expanded and strengthened their armed organisation and extended the liberated areas.

The nonaligned movement, a mighty force of our time struggling against imperialism and for independence, continued its dynamic advance this year, holding aloft the banner of independence.

The nonaligned foreign ministers conference held in New Delhi in February this year checked and foiled the imperialists manoeuvres to split and disorganize this movement from within and held high the banner of independence and made a great contribution to defending the basic principle of the nonaligned movement and strengthening the unity and cooperation among its member nations.

The symposium of the nonaligned and other developing countries for increasing food and agricultural production held in August in Pyongyang greatly helped the nonaligned and other developing countries solve the problem of food by rapidly developing agriculture and ensure the unity and solidarity of the nonaligned movement.

This year the nonaligned movement held aloft the banner of unity, not division clamoured about by the imperialists, and demonstrated the might and vitality of unity in the international arena as an organised force with a steadfast guiding idea and principle, not "an impotent political assembly."

The nonaligned countries carried out progressive socio-economic reforms to liquidate the imperialists foothold of plunder and consolidate the foundation of the national economy and dealt a telling blow at the imperialists through a powerful common struggle in the international arena for establishing a new international economic order.

All these facts clearly showed that the non-aligned movement is constantly and unswervingly advancing beneath the banner of independence to discharge a noble mission devolved upon it by the times and history.

A desire of the people to live in independence, freed from all manner of domination and subjugation has grown even more ardent in the capitalist countries.

In France and Greece the reactionary regimes which had followed the U.S. imperialist policy of aggression and war, pursuing the antipopular policy for a long time, have given way to the governments of progressive political parties. The results of elections in these countries showed that in the capitalist countries the peoples desire for independence and demand for social progress have already become an irresistible strength and merged into the tide of the times toward independence.

This year the antiwar peace movement in the European capitalist countries, as an important link in the chains of the anti-imperialist sturggle, has grown in scope and strength as never before to create a favourable circumstance for the realization of the peoples cause of independence.

The struggle against war and for peace which flared up synchronising with the criminal plan of the U.S. imperialists to deploy nuclear weapons in this region has swept almost all the European countries and drew the attention of the world, joined in by the broad social strata, political parties and even ruling parties.

All the events and facts this year bespeak that the tide of the era of independence is powerfully flowing under the changing and developing international situation.

THREE-REVOLUTION RED FLAG MOVEMENT PROGRESSES

[Text] Pyongyang, 30 December (KCNA)--The "three-revolution red flag movement" is gaining momentum in Korea.

A great force propelling the revolution and construction in Korea, this movement is a nationwide mass movement for energetically pushing ahead with socialist construction through the vigorous ideological, technical and cultural revolutions.

In the flame of this movement a fundamental change has taken place in our peoples ideological and moral aspects and their way of work and the chuche-orientation, modernization and scientization of the national economy have made brisk headway.

Upholding the lofty idea of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on the three revolutions, the glorious party centre initiated this movement to further develop the three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural, in depth in conformity with the actual demand of our revolution which had entered a new stage of development.

In December, 1975, the Komdok mine in the industrial domain and the Chongsan cooperative farm in the agricultural domain raised the first torch of this movement and called upon the whole country to launch this movement.

The glorious party centre has wisely guided our people to vigorously launch the "three-revolution red flag movement" to bring about a great upsurge in the revolution and construction.

Under the energetic guidance of the party centre hundreds of factories, cooperative farms, organs, enterprises and units have already won the "three-revolution red flag."

In the course of this movement the miners of the 5 April pit of the Komdok mine and the Kumsan pit and 8 February pit of the Pyongyang mine which have won the "three-revolution red flag" actively introduced large-size, modern and high-speed equipment and diverse methods of transport and raised the comprehensive mechanization of mining operations to a high level and increased the mineral output 3-4 times in 2-3 years and almost all the employees became assistant engineers or engineers, embraced in the study-while-working education network.

In particular, the members of the "hero platoon" of excavator No 7 of the Kumsan Pit at the Ryongyang mine fulfilled their yearly assignments in a matter of three months.

The Changjingang power station increased the generating capacity 30 percent and the Songsan and Yongun mines overshot their yearly production targets more than 50 percent through bold operations and revolutionary practice as required by the party centre.

The Chongsan cooperative farm which won the "three-revolution red flag" in January, 1978, fulfilled their grain output plan for 1977, set 20 percent higher than that of the previous year, at 102.8 percent. The per hectare grain yields reached 8,925 kilogrammes in rice at the Mangyongdae cooperative farm and about 10 tons in maize at the Sogok cooperative farm, Sinhung County.

In the course of the vigorous "three-revolution red flag movement," the automation and remote control of production processes have been actively introduced and the production equipment reconditioned to free the working people from the heat-affected and harmful labour and substantially improve their working conditions.

Our industrial production grew 15-17 percent annually in the first three years of the present second-seven year plan (1978-1984) which envisages an average annual growth of 12.1 percent.

With the active promotion of mechanization and chemicalization in agriculture, in 1979 the number of tractors per 100 hectares of cultivated land reached 7 in the plain area and 6 in the intermediate and mountain areas, and application of chemical fertilizers per hectare of paddy and non-paddy fields grew to 1.5 tons and weeding was done by chemical means in 97 percent of the entire rice fields. The per hectare grain output rose to 7.2 tons in rice and 6.3 tons in maize and thus 9 million tons of grain was produced in 1979.

The technical and cultural level of the working people has also risen markedly.

On the Chongsan cooperative farm alone, there are 210 engineers, assistant engineers and specialists and 570 tractor, rice-transplanting machine and rice harvest drivers. This year a farm college was set up at this farm.

Through the vigorous "three-revolution red flag movement" under the wise guidance of the glorious party centre, a radical change has taken place in our peoples ideological and moral aspects and the revolution and construction has developed onto a new, high-stage.

CHUCHE IDEA IS 'GUIDING COMPASS'

SK111035 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1009 GMT 11 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, January 11 (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN January 10 carried an article headlined "Chuche Idea Is Guiding Compass To Be Upheld in the Work of Modeling Whole Society on Chuche Idea" on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the publication of "On Immediate Political and Economic Policies of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and Some International Problems," an immortal classic work of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song (January 10, 1972).

Follows an abridged version of the article:

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the work gives answers as to the essence of the chuche idea and the necessity of establishing chuche, the principle of embodying this idea and so forth, along with the socialist construction in our country and a series of international political problems, and clearly expounds the unshakable stand of our party and the government of the republic to accelerate the revolution and construction with a tight hold on the chuche idea.

The chuche idea is the only guiding idea of our party and the unswerving guiding principle of all its activities.

It is a firm guarantee for the successful accomplishment of the cause of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea to strictly apply the chuche idea in the revolution and construction in compliance with the demand of the new stage of our revolutionary development.

As the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught us, modelling the whole society on the chuche idea means to build the communist society by taking the chuche idea as the unshakable guiding compass and strictly applying it in the revolution and construction. In other words, it means to completely realise the independence of the working masses by making all the members of society communistic men of chuche type and transforming the social life in all its sphere as required by the chuche idea.

The chuche idea is the only guiding principle on which a tight hold must be kept in the work of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea.

Firstly because the chuche idea is the revolutionary world outlook for the party members and working people.

The chuche idea is a world outlook which elucidates opinion, viewpoint and stand towards the world with man in the centre.

The chuche idea is based on the philosophical principle that man is the master of everything and decides everything. Herein lies the main ground to say that it is the most scientific and revolutionary world outlook.

And the chuche idea correctly indicates the destiny of the people and basic ways of shaping it.

The chuche idea is the most scientific and revolutionary world outlook as it is a man-centred world outlook which places man in the centre in all thinking and makes everything serve man.

The chuche idea is the guiding principle which must be tightly upheld in the work of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea also because it is the most scientific and revolutionary doctrine for realizing the independence of the working masses.

The chuche idea is a flawless revolutionary doctrine which sets it as its supreme goal to completely realise the independence of the working masses and indicates the most straight way for attaining it.

It, above all, gives a scientific exposition of the fighting goal of the working masses for independence and ways for its realisation by elucidating from a new angle the essence and lawfulness of the socio-historical movement, the revolutionary movement, with the popular masses as its subject.

On the basis of the philosophical principle of chuche, it propounds the basic principle of socio-historical view that the working masses are the subject of history and the motive power of social development and the basic principle of revolution that the master of revolution and construction is the popular masses and they are also their motive power.

The chuche idea also gives a scientific exposition of the basic principle and ways to be maintained in the struggle for realising the independence of the working masses.

The independent stand and the creative stand are the basic stand and method conforming to the aim and characteristics of the modelling of the whole society on the chuche idea.

The chuche idea also scientifically indicates even the course and basic ways of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea, the struggle for completely realising the independence of the working masses.

The revolutionary doctrine based on the chuche idea expounds that the task for realising the sociopolitical independence of the working masses is fulfilled through a revolution of changing the political and economic systems of the old society and the task of completely freeing them from the fetters of old legacies is carried out through the three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural, thus clearly showing the basic ways of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea.

The validity and invincible vitality of the idea of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on carrying out the program of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea with the chuche idea as the guiding principle have been creditably proved by the practical experiences of our revolution.

The great chuche idea is the ever-victorious revolutionary banner which has made our country shine infinitely as the homeland of chuche rich and powerful and prosperous and lifted our revolution to the lofty height where the complete victory of socialism is visibly near.

GFULA CHAIRMAN URGES CHON'S OUSTER

SK100915 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0837 GMT 10 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, January 10 (KCNA)--Yi Ki-yong, chairman of the Central Committee of the General Federation of Unions of Literature and Arts of Korea, declared that the South Korean writers and artists should more valiantly turn out to the struggle for overthrowing the present military fascist "regime" which calls for "unification in the 2000s" and establishing a democratic government to defend our national culture and realise the cause of reunification.

In his talk issued on January 8 in denunciation of the argument for "unification in the 2000s" brought forward by the "Democratic Justice Party," the private political party of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, Yi Ki-yong said:

The scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan group to leave the national reunification unrealised till the 2000s is a nation-splitting and nation-obliterating, treacherous one aimed to stamp out the desire for reunification in the heart of the nation and artificially create two nations and two states in the 3,000 ri land.

The realities of South Korea in the past two years since the present military fascists seized power, show that as long as they are left intact, nothing national can survive.

Today South Korea has turned into an area of corrupt pollution culture where yankee culture and Japanese culture are prevalent, into a showcase of the most reactionary and decadent culture which is rejected in all countries of the world.

It is indisputably obvious that no matter how vociferously those who try to deal with the reunification question in the 2000s may talk about "dialogue" and "peaceful unification," it is nothing but a lie.

To save our nation in South Korea and realise the cherished desire of the fellow countrymen for reunification, the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique must be removed.

If the Chon Tu-hwan group does not want to meet a more miserable end than that of its predecessors, it must step down as early as possible from the power it has illegally usurped.

Remarkable successes have been announced in chemical industry, resolved to lift production this year 30 per cent above last year, the Namhung Youth General Chemical Works has normalised production on the level envisaged for the last year of the Second Seven-Year Plan (1984) by keeping the equipment in full-capacity operation at all processes. The February 8 Vinalon Complex has brought about a signal innovation in vinalon production by raising the efficiency of the vinalon reeling machines 50 per cent. At the Hungnam Fertilizer Complex, the production quotas for nitrogenous and phosphorous fertilizers have been over-fulfilled entering the new year. The Chongjin Chemical Fibre Mill reported the fulfilment of its commitments for rayon yarn and staple fibre at 105-110 per cent.

Steel production is boosted in the metal industrial domain. The Kangson Steel Works has carried out its daily steel production quotas at an average of 162 per cent in the new year. ECONOMIC PROGRESS IN 1981 REVIEWED

SK150037 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 14 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, January 14 (KCNA)--Nineteen eighty one was a significant year in which the first step of the general march for implementing the decision of the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea was made in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song said:

> "1981 was a year of glorious struggle for carrying into effect the grand programme of socialist construction put forward by our party at its sixth congress."

Last year, in accordance with the basic direction of socialist economic construction, a foundation was further cemented to make a leap forward for fulfilling the Second Seven-Year Plan ahead of schedule and attaining the magnificent ten long-range objectives of socialist economic construction with flying colours.

Along with the work of readjsuting and replenishing the existing establishments, the principle of laying main stress on the construction of hydropower stations which are highly efficient economically and dependable and combining with this the construction of thermal and other power stations by use of various power resources was firmly adhered to in the domain of the power industry, with the result that the power production capacity increased substantially, in particular, the construction of generator No. 13 was completed at the Pukchang thermal power station and many medium and small power stations were built in different parts.

In the mining industry large coal and ore mines were reconstructed and expanded and medium and small coal and ore mines actively developed to lay a solid foundation for sharply boosting coal and ore output. The Anju district coal mining complex, the nation's biggest coal mine, increased the number of large cutting faces and was fully supplied with efficient mining equipment and transport facilities to successfully attain the goal of raising the annual production to 15 million tons within a few years to come. The giant iron ore base of Musan completed the construction of the modern dressing plant No. 2, developed the fifth mining district with rich deposits, thereby laying a reliable base to effect a new upswing in the production of ore.

The Songhung mine readjusted and reinforced its pits as a whole, doubling their production capacity.

A foundation was laid for a new upswing in the metallurgical industry, too.

The Kangson Steel Works carried out at a lightning speed the work of readjusting and replenishing the overall metallurgical equipment including electric hearths and blooming and rolling installations with a bold goal of carrying out the Second Seven-Year Plan in 1982, two years ahead of schedule.

The construction workers and steel makers of the Kim Chaek Iron Works made preparations to radically increase the steel production by carrying out the readjustment and replenishment of the metallurgical equipment including the blast furnaces.

Full preparations were made in the chemical, building-materials and machine-building industries, too, to step up the general march.

The workers of the Hungnam Fertilizer Complex totally replaced the wornout equipment of the sulphuric acid system with highly efficient, automatic equipment completely removing harmful gas. The workers of the February 8 Vinalon Complex achieved successes in reconditioning the old carbide electric hearths into air-tight ones and successfully built the modernly equipped movilon shop with an annual production capacity of 10,000 tons and the production processes of its raw material system.

The Chonnaeri Cement Factory wound up the technical reconstruction of kilns. This opened up a prospect for quadrupling production.

A mass technical innovation drive was vigorously carried on at the machine plants to widely realise the automation, semi-automation and comprehensive mechanisation of the production processes. Thus preparations were made to produce and supply more machines and equipment needed in various domains of the national economy. Besides, 14,000 ton cargo ships "Changsan" and "Chipsan" and the large cargo ship "Oun Chongnyon" were built.

The light industry and fishing industry made a leaping advance. The light industrial factories produced more mass consumption goods and the fishing industry upped the daily fish catch to 20,000, 30,000 and 40,000 tons in the present winter fishing operations.

Under the wise guidance of the great leader and the glorious party centre thorough-going preparations were made last year in all domains of the national economy to bring about a new revolutionary turn this year.

A new production upswing is being effected from the first day of the year in various domains of the national economy which entered into the battle for this year with full preparations.

'KCNA' REPORTS DEVELOPMENTS IN LIGHT INDUSTRY

SK301051 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1014 GMT 30 Dec 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 30 December (KCNA)--New innovations are reported in the production of mass consumption goods in Korea.

At the light industrial factories in Changang Province, the average daily output of consumer goods is 30 percent up on the daily average last month.

The output at the Chonchon Textile Mill over the last 20 days was far more than last months output. At the Kanggye Shoemaking Factory, the daily output is 12 percent more than the dialy average of last month.

A production upsurge has been reported from light industrial factories in other provinces.

The Pyongyang Textile Combine has carried out technical transformation involving remodelling of the dyeing equipment, expansion of drying facilities and introduction of multi-shuttle devices, which has helped double the capacity of the production of high-quality suit materials. It has also chalked up new records in the production of various fabrics by applying rational work methods.

The Pyongyang Childrens Knitwear Mill has devised more than 150 new styles of knitwear and added 40 odd kinds of knitwear of fine quality to the production items.

The local industrial factories in Yangdok County, South Pyongan Province, have already reached the production level envisaged for the last year of the second 7-year plan (1984) and many factories hit their second 7-year plan targets ahead of schedule.

The material and technical foundations of light industry have been rapidly consolidated in recent years in Korea under the policy of the Government of the Republic, the supreme principle of whose state activities is to promote the welfare of the people.

Orlon and Movilon industries have been founded and a number of light industrial factories including a TV set factory, a watch factory and a synthetic leather factory have been constructed.

At the same time, the existing light industrial factories have been largely reconstructed and expanded and consumer goods production bases have been further consolidated in all areas of the country, with county as the unit, to satisfy the local demands.

The light industry of Korea which relies on its own solid raw material base fully satisfies with its production the peoples demands for all kinds of consumer goods from piece goods to high-class articles for cultural use.

During the present 7-year plan period (1978-1984), 800 million metres of textiles and 100 million pairs of shoes will be annually produced, and the output of washing machines and refrigerators, TV sets, watches and other domestic supplies, articles for cultural use, modern furniture and a wide variety of general merchandise will be sharply increased.

A fundamental turn will be effected in quality, too.

'KCNA' REPORTS DEVELOPMENTS IN ANJU COALFIELD

SK051035 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1018 GMT 5 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 5 January (KCNA)--The Anju District Coal Mining Complex which set itself the goal of raising its annual coal production to the 15 million ton mark within the few years to come has increased its coal output more than three times in the last few years.

In this period, the coal production showed an increment of 3.2 times per cutting face and 2.7 times per employee.

Some time ago the Anju District Coal Mining Complex was awarded the title of guard in recognition of the great contribution it had made to the development of the national economy by building the complex into a leading coal production base of our country and constantly boosting the coal production.

Under the wise guidance and benevolent love of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party centre, the coal miners there are actively realizing the modernization of coal cutting operations and laying a solid foundation to effect a great leap in coal production. They have built many cutting faces producing 700,000-1,000,000 tons, not 100,000-150,000 tons as in the past, and upped the monthly coal production at each cutting face to 45,000-100,000 tons.

A tunnelling platoon tunnelled 400-600 metres in a month. Such records are registered in succession.

Such efficient up-to-date tunnelling equipment and machines as combined coal cutters, mechanised stope supports, combined tunnelling machines and long-distance belt conveyer have been introduced on a large scale, with the result that the colliers at cutting faces have become machine operators and leading workers of the pits direct production at the general TV command panel.

The complex has a repair centre which annually produces large quantities of accessories of mining machines and equipment and repairs over 2,000 machines, and each coal mine under the complex has its own reliable power and maintenance base.

The workers of the complex are striving to double coal production in the coming one or two years.

Our country has successfully solved the fundamental problems arising in carrying forward and accomplishing the revolutionary cause of chuche and is powerfully accelerating the modeling of the whole of society of the chuche idea at the head of the era; it has taken new strides in the three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural, under the wise leadership of the great leader and the energetic guidance of the glorious party centre with brilliant intelligence, and it is solidified rock-firm as a great loyal family where the entire people are closely rallied around the great leader and the party centre.

The message notes that last year the South Korean people continued their undaunted struggle for the democratisation of society, boundlessly inspired by the new proposal of national reunification put forward by the great leader and a great many Korean personages overseas have also turned out in the noble cause of realising the proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK], and the movement of international solidarity for the must cause of our people has been strengthened still further.

Last year, the message continues, was a fruitful year, indeed, in which the Chongnyon functionaries and compatriots stepped up more energetically the patriotic work of Chongnyon in step with the grand general march of the people in the homeland, holding aloft the historic report made by you the great leader at the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea and your programmatic teachings on the Chongnyon work.

Greeting the new year 1982, we renew our unshakable will and firm resolution to fulfill our tasks without fail in the noble cause of the independent and peaceful reunification of the country and the prosperity of the socialist homeland by promoting more powerfully the modelling of Chongnyon on the chuche idea and building up its organisations more reliably as loyal ranks which would fight to the end for the final victory of the cause of chuche.

By achieving a new upsurge and greater successes in all domains of the work of Chongnyon, the message says, we will significantly greet the seventieth birthday of you the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song as a grand festival to be recorded forever in our national history and celebrate it most splendidly.

We will wage with redoubled vigor the struggle for realising the proposal to found the DCRK set forth by you the great leader and convening a conference for the promotion of national reunification as a movement of all the compatriots and support and encourage in every way the struggle of the South Korean people against imperialism and fascism and for democracy.

PRO-YONGYANG GROUP IN JAPAN COLLECTS FUNDS

OW300659 Tokyo KYODO in English 0626 GMT 30 Dec 81

[Text] Tokyo, 30 Dec KYODO--A pro-Pyongyang Korean group in Japan has collected yen 1 billion (dollar 4.5 million) worth of funds and gifts for the 70th birthday of North Korean President Kim Il-song next year, according to a Japanese intelligence agency.

The donations were made over a six-month drive by the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan (Chongnyon) for the 15 April birthday of the communist leader, the public security investigation agency said.

An agency official said the campaign demonstrated the Korean group's strong financial foothold in Japan.

But only one sixth of the total 180,000 Korean households in Japan have taken part in the drive, the official quoted a Chongnyon inner report as saying.

Japan has a population of about 665,000 Koreans. Their political affiliation is roughly equally divided between Chongnyon and the pro-Seoul Korean Residents Union in Japan (Mindan).

The official also said while the North Korean group still maintains good relations with the Japan Socialist Party (JSP), it has shown signs of seeking stronger ties with diet (parliament) members of the Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP).

The ruling party is backing the South Korean Government of retired Gen Chon Tu-hwan who is rejected by both North Korea and the No 1 opposition JSP as a "military dictator."

Japan has no diplomatic relations with North Korea.

Chongnyon is also expected to make approach to Japanese business circles to win their cooperation in North Korea's 1978-84 economic development plan, the official added.

KWP REPLIES TO ARAB SOCIALIST BA'TH PARTY

SK110423 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0331 GMT 11 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, January 11 (KCNA)--The Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea sent a letter to the national leadership of the Arab Socialist Ba'th Party in reply to a letter of the latter concerning the scheme of the Israeli aggressors to annex the Golan Heights, a part and parcel of the inviolable territory of Syria, and aggravation of the Middle East situation by them.

The letter said that the brigandish step of the Israeli aggressors to annex the Golan Heights is a most outrageous aggressive act against the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Syrian people and one more challenge to the Syrian and the entire Arab people struggling for a fair and comprehensive solution of the Middle East problem.

It continued: Our party and people bitterly denounce the expansionist desire of the Israeli aggressors to annex the Golan Heights and strongly hold that they should promptly give up this scheme and pull out of the illegally occupied Arab land including the Golan Heights, complying with the just demand of the Syrian and other Arab people and the world peace-loving people.

We believe that the Arab Socialist Ba'th Party and the Syrian people, under the correct leadership of His Excellency President Hafiz al-Asad, will thwart the aggressive moves of the Israeli Zionists and certainly liberate the occupied land.

Our party which regards it as its steadfast foreign policy to actively support the struggle of all peoples of the world against all forms of domination and subjugation and for national independence and the building of a new society, has always stood foursquare behind the Arab people in their struggle for restoring the national rights of the Palestinian people and retaking the occupied Arab land.

Our party and people reassure you that they will actively support the Arab Socialist Ba'th Party and the Syrian people in the future, too, in their struggle against the reckless aggressive manoeuvres of the Israeli expansionists patronised by the U.S.-led imperialists and for the restoration of the occupied land, remaining unswervingly on their side, declared the letter.

KIM CHONG-IL PRAISED TO THE FINNISH

SK041116 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1013 GMT 4 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 4 January (KCNA)--Lasse Tapani Keskinen, chairman of the Finnish Committee for the study of the chuche idea, delivered a report titled "The Chuche Idea is a Great Doctrine Defending the Independence of the Popular Masses" at the Finnish national seminar on "The Chuche Idea is a Great Doctrine Defending Independence" which was held some time ago in the capital of Finland, according to a report.

He remarked that the present era, an era of independence, is represented by the chuche idea and the essential character of this era is the heightening of the position and role of the popular masses in history.

He said: The chuche idea was founded by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the period of the arduous revolutionary struggle of the Korean people under his leadership against Japanese imperialism.

The founding of the chuche idea was not only a great event in the historic struggle of the Korean people but also a magnificent sunrise which marked the opening of the era of independence.

The chuche idea is an integral world outlook and a scientific doctrine.

In a nutshell, the fundamental character of the chuche idea as a world outlook is that it is a man-centered world outlook.

The chuche idea is based on the man-centered philosophical principle that man is the master of everything and decides everything.

This principle gives a correct view on the actual world by elucidating the position and role of man in the world.

The chuche idea, a man-centered world outlook, has its unique superiority in that it regards man as the most valuable being. It fully defends independence.
It defends the independence of an oppressed class and the independence of a country and a nation.

The chuche idea values the creativeness of man and gives full play to it. It nurses the creative capacity for remaking nature and society and gives play to the creativeness of an individual person and a nation. It calls for unity and cooperation among all peoples and nations.

As mentioned above, the chuche idea is an idea heightening the dignity and value of man to the utmost and advocating his human rights and personality, freedom and equality and a world outlook resolutely defending independence and creativeness.

Pointing out that the chuche idea expounds in an allround way the essential criterion of a society where the independence of the popular masses is completely realized and the basic course of the struggle for the realisation of independence, the reporter further said: The chuche idea attaches the greatest importance to man in solving all problems. It is the chuche idea that appraised the present era as an era of independence, defined the history of mankind as a history of the peoples struggle for independence and formulated the revolution as a struggle for realising independence for the first time.

We must not think that the chuche idea came into being smoothly in the history of human thought.

Respected Comrade President Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people and revolutionary fighter, founded the chuche idea in the fields of decisive battles for realising the independence of the people, in the flames of the arduous anti-Japanese reactionary struggle, and has further developed it. This is his greatest contribution to the history of human thought and the history of the struggle for human emancipation. This imperishable exploit opened up the era of independence.

The young non-aligned and other developing countries express keen interest in the chuche idea, which is also highly estimated by the progressive peoples of the developed countries.

The works of the great leader of the Korean people Comrade President Kim Il-song, the founder of the chuche idea, give not only a comprehensive knowledge of the chuche idea but also explain how it has been carried into practice in Korea.

The documents of dear Comrade Kim Chong-il further enrich the knowledge of the chuche idea. He is the successor to the cause of chuche who has perfectly grasped the chuche idea founded by respected Comrade President Kim Il-song.

In order to become an adherent and standard-bearer of the chuche idea defending independence, we should widely disseminate this great idea among the people and strive to apply the principle of chuche in actual life. We bitterly denounce the colonialist policy of the United States occupying one half of Korea.

We fully support the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and its ten-point policy advanced by the Korean people Comrade President Kim Il-song on the three principles of independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity.

No force can block the road ahead of the people advancing along the track of independence under the banner of the chuche idea.

Long live the immortal chuche idea!

Long live respected President Kim Il-song, the founder of the chuche idea!

FINNISH MEETING EXTOLS KIM IL-SONG, KIM CHONG-IL

SK041130 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1046 GMT 4 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 4 January (KCNA)--Personages of various circles made speeches at the Finnish national seminar on "The Chuche Idea is a Great Doctrine Defending Independence" which was held recently in Helsinki, Finland, according to a report.

Saying that the chuche idea inspires the working masses to the revolutionary struggle for an independent and creative life, chife of the Oulu group for the study of the chuche idea Veikko Arstio referred to achievements made in Korea by applying the chuche idea.

This idea teaches that the construction of a country should be carried on by its own efforts and people, not relying on foreign aid, he noted, and stressed: Koreas successes in economic construction including the heavy and light industries and the tempo of her development are the best proof of the might of the chuche idea.

Chief of the group for the study of works of President Kim Il-song at the Tampere University of Finland Hannu Hernesniemi said: Experience of Korea tells that success in the building of a new society depends on the basic stand and method of people participating in it. A right stand and method make it possible to work out a correct line and policy, strategy and tactics.

The chuche idea proves that only an independent and creative people can build a new society. Secretary of the Iuankoski group, Finland, for the study of the chuche idea Lauri Kylonen said: The immortal chuche idea gives the most correct answer to an important question related to the destinies of the country and the nation.

If a country, a nation is to become the master of its destiny and exercise the right of the master, it should have an independent power and hold fast to independence in shaping all policies and implementing them. Only then can it defend the dignity of the people of an independent and sovereign state and certainly achieve national prosperity.

The road of independence is that of self-reliance and dependence on outside forces is the road of living on others. The development of a country and the prosperity of a nation cannot be achieved without the spirit of self-reliance and the effort to be self-reliant.

Chief of the Kuopio group for the study of the chuche idea Annele Rytkonen said: Respected President Comrade Kim Il-song who founded and has developed the immortal chuche idea is a great person who gives the idea of independence to the people fighting to achieve political independence in the present world.

The chuche idea founded by him is brilliantly carried forward by the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, who, on the basis of the chuche idea, has made the Korean people become a mighty and happy people who do not depend on any other people.

Chief of the Vaasa group for the study of the chuche idea Pentti Suksi said: In a very brief span of time the Korean people have splendidly built a national economy pushing aside the debris and achieved civilization and prosperity, thus working a miracle of the 20th century. Human history has never seen an instance in which in such a short period a people have made wonderful successes in the political, economic, cultural and all other fields and turned their country into an iron-walled fortress against the aggression of the imperialists.

All this has been made possible thanks to the chuche idea founded by respected President Kim Il-song.

His exploit lies in defending peace and security in Asia and the world beyond the bounds of a nation and his efforts have no comparison.

We fully support the great peaceful initiatives of respected President Kim Il-song, and particularly, the new proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and the ten-point policy of the unified state put forward at the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

AUSTRIANS CALL KIM CHONG-IL 'BRILLIANT LEADER'

SK071052 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1004 GMT 7 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, January 7 (KCNA)--The Austrian Jurists Union for the Defence of Democracy and Human Rights in South Korea made public a statement on December 22 last year, according to a report.

Noting that a dialog between Christians in the north of Korea and overseas for national reunification was held recently in Vienna under the slogan "Let us achieve great national unity under the banner of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo!" the statement said: We rejoiced at the success of the dialog as at our own.

Pointing out that the South Korean military fascists resorted to every conceivable machination to block the home-visit of Koreans overseas, the statement went on:

In the name of the sacred law and in the name of all the jurists of the world, we sternly condemn the attempt of the South Korean military fascists to put down the movement of the South Korean people for democracy and dampen the desire of the overseas Koreans to visit the homeland as a most wanton violation of human rights and humanitarianism and a grave challenge to the entire Korean people and the world peaceloving people hoping for the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

We Austrian jurists fully support the proposal for founding the DCRK put forward by his excellency President Kim Il-song, the great leader, and voice our firm solidarity with the Korean people in the struggle for realising the proposal to found the DCRK embodying the three principles of independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity, the basic programme for the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

The withdrawal of the U.S. forces from South Korea is one of the basic conditions for the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

The United States must give up the "two Koreas" plot and discontinue its interference in the internal affairs of Korea and respond to the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of KOrea for replacing the armistice agreement with a durable peace agreement.

We are firmly convinced that under the wise guidance of his excellency President Kim Il-song, the great leader, and his excellency dear Kim Chong-il, the brilliant leader, the Korean people will certainly attain the country's reunification by establishing the DCRK by their own efforts.

Long live his excellency President Kim Il-song, the great leader!

Long live his excellency Kim Chong-il, the dear leader!

MALTA LABOUR PARTY'S VICTORY IN ELECTION HAILED

SK210531 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0418 GMT 21 Dec 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 21 December (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN Monday carries a signed article hailing the victory of the Malta Labour Party in the recent parliamentary elections in Malta.

The article titled "Victory of Democratic Forces of Malta" says that the Korean people warmly hail the victory won by the Malta Labour Party in the parliamentary elections.

It further says: The victory of the Malta Labour Party in the elections is one more shining victory achieved by the democratic forces and working masses of Malta in their struggle for the independent development of the country and social progress.

The recent parliamentary elections in Malta were a fierce struggle between the two political parties in this island country--the Labour Party in power and the National Party out of power.

Pointing out that a great progress has been made in Malta since the Labour Party came into power and particularly the government of the Labour Party has pursued a nonaligned policy, maintaining independence and neutrality in external relations, the article goes on: The result of the recent elections clearly proved that the policy of the Labour Party is a just one reflecting the aspiration and desire of the Maltese people and enjoys their firm support.

The victory of the Labour Party in the parliamentary elections in Malta was a heavy blow to the imperialist reactionary forces trying to undermine the anti-imperialist and independent stand of the Labour Party government.

The course of the parliamentary elections in Malta showed once again that the people want to take the road of independence, not domination and subjugation, and their just struggle for independence is advancing.

The Korean and Maltese peoples established and have developed the friendly and cooperative relations in the common struggle against imperialism and for independence. The Korean people express firm support and solidarity for the anti-imperialist and independent stand of the government of the Malta Labour Party and the just struggle of the Maltese people for the independent development of the country.

In the United Nations and other international forums the government and people of Malta actively support the independent policy of our party and the DPRK government for national reunification and the Korean peoples just cause of reunification.

The Korean people believe that the friendly and cooperative relations between the two peoples will further consolidate and develop in the idea of independence, friendship and peace and wish the Maltese people greater success in their struggle for the development and prosperity of the country.

'NODONG SINMUN' HAILS PALESTINIAN STRUGGLE

SK311058 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1031 GMT 31 Dec 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 31 December (KCNA)--Nodong Sinmun today dedicates an article to the 17th anniversary of the start of the armed struggle of the Palestinian people, which says that the Korean people extends militant greetings and firm solidarity to the fraternal Palestinian people.

The author of the article writes: The start of the armed struggle on 1 January, 1965, inspired the Palestinian people with the conviction of the liberation of their homeland and powerfully encouraged them to the struggle for freedom and liberation; it was a hard blow to the imperialists and Israeli zionists.

From the first day of the Israeli zionists occupation and domination of the Palestinian soil, the people of Palestine have courageously struggled to regain their lost land and national dignity.

The Palestine Liberation Organisation, the vanguard unit of the Palestinian people, is leading their struggle to victory, overcoming all obstacles and difficulties.

Today the PLO enjoys support and trust of the people for its contribution to the cause of the Palestinian people.

Externally it has won official recognition of many countries of the world as the only legitimate representative of the Palestinian people and holds its lawful place in the non-aligned movement and various international organisations.

Our people express support and solidarity for the unswerving stand maintained by the PLO and the Palestinian people in the struggle for the liberation and independence of their country and territorial integrity and sincerely rejoice over their achievements.

Our people hold that the Palestine problem should be settled at an early date in conformity with the will and interests of the Palestinian and Arab peoples.

In the future, too, the Korean people will invariably and firmly stand by the side of the Palestinian people struggling for the sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity.

PYONGYANG-BASED RED ARMY MEMBERS ISSUE DOCUMENT

OW280443 Tokyo KYODO in English 0427 GMT 28 Dec 81

[Text] Tokyo, 28 Dec KYODO--Former Japanese Red Army members, who hijacked a Japan Air Lines jet to North Korea in 1970, have issued a publication, calling for the formation of a "democratic coalition government" to replace the administration of the Liberal-Democratic Party, public security authorities said Monday.

"Japan has at present no human dignity, social justice or independence," the radicals said in an announcement of the first issue of the quarterly "Thinking About Japan."

"Who can stand idly by if he loves japan," it added.

The authorities said 130 copies of the 80-page publication were delivered by sea mail to a Tokyo book shop Sunday. It has some color photographs and is priced at yen 500 (dollar 2.27).

The Japanese-language publication is edited by Takamaro Tamiya, 38, leader of the nine Red Army members.

It is designed, the editor went on to say, to seek ways and means to create a new Japan where everybody can be happy.

The literature features a 62-page essay which denounces Japan's ruling circles as "unqualified to speak about patriotism.

"Only the masses and people of the working class can become true patriots," the essay added.

It then called for the establishment of a democratic coalition government by progressive elements of the country on the basis of a self-reliant economy.

The idea is apparently an adoption of North Korean President Kim Il-song's ideology of chuche which means independence or self-reliance.

Security authorities, calling the publication "ideological propaganda," said it was the first such action by the Red Army members living in exile in Pyongyang since the end of the four-day hijacking drama on 3 April 1970.

Security officials said they are concerned that the movement may be related to the recent publication of the English-language monthly "solidarity" by the Japanese Red Army now based in the Middle East.

In meetings with visiting Japanese journalists and labor union leaders, Tamiya and other Red Army commandos admitted they were wrong in carrying out the air piracy.

They said they are ready to return to Japan if they can escape criminal charges.

Japan and North Korea have no diplomatic relations.

GDR RADIO REPORTS TRAVELOGUE ON DPRK

SK110435 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0337 GMT 11 Jan 82

[Text] Pyongyang, January 11 (KCNA)--Radio STIMME DER DDR of the German Democratic Republic recently reported a travelogue titled "Notes of Visit to DPRK, the Land of Morning Calm," according to a report.

The radio began the program with the song "Long Live and Good Health to the Leader" and aired Korean songs such as "We Owe It to the Leader" and "The Leader's Lofty Intention Blossoms Red" in the course of conveying the notes of visit.

Saying that it would introduce the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the land of morning calm, the radio depicted the panoramic view of Pyongyang seen from the Moran Hill.

The radio said: The simple outline of the city built shortly after the war and early in the 1960s is well harmonised with a great many beautiful high-rise buildings and public buildings of architectural value which have been erected of late.

In Pyongyang alone, the U.S. aggressors dropped over 400,000 bombs, the city was razed to the ground. The Pentagon strategists [word indistinct] in those days that the city would not rise up again even in one hundred years.

During the war, the Korean architects worked out a design for the rehabilitation of Pyongyang, which has been carried into practice.

The small houses which were built right after the war for the solution of the urgent housing problem have been pulled down to give place to modern flats.

The February 8 House of Culture constructed in the 1970s represents a splendid harmony of the modern and the traditional architectural style.

Before the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea, a big housing estate has taken shape and a number of huge public buildings came into being in Pyongyang. The Grand People's Study House has made its appearance in the heart of the city and the modernly-equipped Pyongyang Maternity Hospital and the Changgwang health complex have been built.

After giving descriptions of the Chollima Street, the Pyongyang Metro and the Taesongsan Pleasure Park, the radio said:

We visited the place where Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, was born. Not only the home people but also the foreigners visit this significant place.

The radio introduced the reclamation of tideland and cultivation of new land in Korea.

Giving impressions of Panmunjom, the radio said: To be exact, the South Korean soldiers are no more than mercenaries of the United States. It is clear who have held the real power in South Korea till today. Therefore, the essential requisite to the peaceful solution of the Korean question is to clear South Korea of the U.S. imperialists.

The radio introduced beautiful Wonsan and Mt. Kumgang.

UNIFICATION CONSTITUTION PLAN DISCUSSED

[Text] The government will actively promote plans to materialize the new unification formula announced January 22 and consolidated the basis of support at home and abroad for the plan this year.

The formula calls for organizing a consultative conference for national reunification with participants from the south and the north to adopt a constitution for a unified Korea.

Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik, in his policy briefing for President Chon Tu-hwan, said that the government will conduct indepth research for the creation of circumstances favorable for unification, continuously explore unification policies, intensively conduct publicity for unification and do its best for the resumption of suspended inter-Korea talks.

Based on the structural superiority of the Republic of Korea and with the confidence it has in the perspective for unification, Son said, the government will sponsor positive publicity activities to help the people acquire an increased sense of security and realize the need for unification.

Efforts will also be directed toward enlisting widespread support in the international community, he said.

Research activities will be conducted to compare economic, social, cultural and diplomatic capabilities of South and North Korea, Son reported.

He added that the government will be prepared for the possible materialization of the "20 pilot projects" the unification board proposed 1 February. The projects included opening a highway between Seoul and Pyongyang, development of Mt. Kumgang and Mt. Sorak as a site of tourist interest and free trade through Inchon and the North Korean port of Chinnampo.

Other projects Son reported to the president were:

--teaching materials criticizing communism will be published to systematically conduct unification-security education.

--unification-related materials will be supplied in a greater volume to unification research centers established at colleges and universities.

--the unification-security education will be given to a total of 21,900 persons this year, including 2,000 Koreans residing in Japan and the United States.

UNIFICATION MINISTER'S PROPOSAL HAILED

SK260003 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 26 Feb 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Seoul-Pyongyang Talks"]

[Text] The overture for a high-level Seoul-Pyongyang conference made by Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik yesterday is a judicious follow-up on the earlier proposals of President Chon Tu-hwan and the minister himself for rapport between the divided halves and subsequent reunification. At the same time, it is a discreet and constructive response to the latest North Korean move for a "unified political conference."

Son proposed that the south and north meet in a high-level conference in Seoul, Pyongyang or Panmunjom next month to discuss a whole range of matters relevant to achieving a peaceful unification of Korea. The conference would deal with the question of realizing a Seoul-Pyongyang summit to prepare for the proposed consultative conference for national reunification which would draft a constitution for a unified Korea. It would also discuss the Pyongyang-proposed joint political conference with 50 delegates from each side, as well as a number of measures to wind down tensions and promote peaceful exchanges between the two halves.

What is to be particularly noted is the inclusion of the North Korean proposal on the prospective agenda for the proffered talk. And so is President Chon's readiness to take up Pyongyang's "Confederated Republic of Koryo" formula at a south-north summit, which was made clear when he put forth the comprehensive unification blueprint while addressing the national assembly last month.

Pyongyang's latest call, to all appearances, is aimed at sabotaging talks with Seoul. This is apparent in Pyongyang's nomination of 50 people to represent South Korea at the "unified political conference." The 50 names exclude all the responsible government authorities and political leaders with comparable standings, while including some of the discredited dissidents resident abroad and dubious names allegedly representing the bogus "revolutionary party for reunification" which North Korea claims is operating underground in the south.

Together with such preconditions as the repeal of the anti-communist institutions and replacement of the present Seoul government with a "people's democratic regime," as well as the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Korea, Pyongyang's nomination of 50 for the south is an extremely preposterous approach to bilateral talks of any kind, to begin with. However, if we were to counter this absurdity of North Korea in a fit of anger or in any other manner short of patience and prudence, the consequences would be quite threatening to the prospect of any further endeavor for peaceful contact between the two sides.

From this point of view, Minister Son's proposal is timely and consistent with the policy and action plan set for Seoul-Pyongyang rapprochement as a path to unification. The composition of the nine-man Seoul delegation, headed by Minister of State for Security and Diplomacy No Tae-u, is notable in that it cuts across the almost entire fabric of society by including representatives of all parties seated in the national assembly as well as officials of the relevant organizations, both governmental and private, dealing with the unification question.

North Korea should give this proposal serious thought this time so as to wind down the danger of confrontation on this peninsula. Pyongyang's further intransigence would do no good at all not only for the two affected parties of this peninsula but also for its surrounding neighbors, whose relations with one another are rather sensitive to the Korean situation.

INTER-KOREAN AFFAIRS

UNIFICATION PROPOSAL ANALYZED

SK251121 Seoul YONHAP in English 0730 GMT 25 Feb 82

[YONHAP "Analysis"]

[Text] Seoul, Feb 25 (YONHAP)--South Korea's proposal Thursday of high-level inter-Korean talks underscores the determination of the Seoul government to establish genuine dialogue between the two Koreas, and normalize Seoul-Pyongyang relations pending an eventual unification.

The talks proposed by Unification Minister Son Chae-sik appear as a preliminary meeting for the inter-Korean summit conference initially proposed by South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan a year ago.

By embracing North Korea's February 10 counterproposal of a joint meeting of South and North Korea politicians as part of the agenda for the proposed talks, South Korea has demonstrated its willingness to negotiate with the North Koreans not only its own unification formula as well as Pyongyang's.

Breaking its long silence to South Korea's repeated calls for an inter-Korean summit meeting, North Korea on February 10 counterproposed a meeting of politicians of the two Koreas in a fashion unprecedented in history.

The North Korean proposal calls on 50 "politicians" from each side to participate in the talks.

In making the proposal, the North Korean authorities announced a listing of not only their delegates but South Korea's.

As a format of the talks, the North Koreans proposed a round table conference with each participant taking his seat, regardless of his nationality.

The North Korean proposal could by no means be considered an attempt at genuine dialogue, and what they would be seeking through such talks is all too evident.

Meanwhile, South Korea has included not only government officials but a scholar, lawmakers and members of the Advisory Council on Peaceful Unification in its delegation to the high-level inter-Korean talks in an apparent departure from its previous policy. South Korean delegations to inter-Korean conferences in the past mostly consisted of five or seven government officials. The composition of the new nine-member delegation could be seen as an attempt to broaden the basis of representation.

Unlike the North Koreans, the South Korean minister left North Korea to choose its own delegation, which should be headed by a cabinet-level official.

Now it is up to the North Koreans but it would not be easy for them to find an excuse for rejecting it as South Korea has expressed its willingness to discuss Pyongyang's proposal as well as its own unification formula calling for the adoption of a constitution for a unified Korea and the conclusion of a provisional agreement on inter-Korean relations pending the unification.

KOREAN CHRISTIAN FEDERATION SUPPORTS CPRF PROPOSAL

SK011359 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 28 Feb 82

[Talk by spokesman of the Korean Christian Federation issued on 28 February--read by announcer]

[Text] The proposal advanced by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] for convening a 100-man joint conference is having great repercussions among our Christians and among compatriots at home and abroad.

The Korean Christian Federation fully supports the proposal for convening a 100-man joint conference, recognizing that it is a reasonable measure to eliminate the danger of the country's and nation's permanent division and to seek a way for national reunification.

Today, when the division of the nation has continued for 37 years, the reunification of the country has become a most urgent national task, the solution of which can no longer be delayed.

It was an unbearable thing that the country, with a history of 5,000 long years and with a brilliant culture, had to suffer the sorrow of national ruin for 36 years under the DPRK rule of the Japanese imperialists. But the country has been suffering still more from national division for 37 years because of the forcible occupation of South Korea by U.S. imperialist forces. How can we endure this national tragedy any longer?

All Koreans, if they were born and live in this land, will not want to see this deplorable history of division continue and hope that the reunification of the country will be accelerated through negotiations.

The dialogue and negotiations that all the nation wants are only dialogue and negotiations for reunification. The table of this sacred dialogue for reunification can be attended only by those who are sincerely concerned about the future of the nation and who desire the reunification of the country. It cannot be attended by just anyone.

The proposal for convening a joint conference of politicians in the north and the south and abroad, excluding the present South Korean rulers and their groomsmen, reflects this principle and is a most just and realistic one.

The present South Korean rulers are human butchers who brutally murdered numerous compatriots advocating democratization of society and the reunification of the country. They are also the fascist maniacs who wantonly arrested, put in prison and executed democratic personages, including Kim Tae-chung, and conscientious religious figures. That they have no qualifications to approach and sit at the table of negotiation for reunification needs no explanation.

The dialogue among Korean Christians in the north and abroad for the fatherland's reunification held in Vienna, Austria last November exposes and condemns the splittist nature of the Chon Tu-hwan ring even today.

Even before the Vienna dialogue was held, the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique sent notorious anticommunist agents to Vienna and tried to frustrate the dialogue through all sorts of dastartly means. Far from helping those people who could not meet together in the country and had to meet abroad because of the division of the country, the Chon Tu-hwan ring tried to hinder the dialogue. How can we say that they have a national conscience and an interest in national reunification?

Today the Chon Tu-hwan ring is staging a large-scale war commotion codenamed Team Spirit '82 together with the U.S. imperialist aggression forces. Thus, it is trying to heighten tension and to threaten peace in and the peaceful reunification of the country.

The mere fact that these men are clamoring about general elections and pilot projects under the signboard of reunification is an unbearable insult to and mockery of the people who desire reunification.

The only true way for reunification negotiations which can serve the cause of the country's reunification in the present situation is to convene the 100-man joint conference of politicians in the north and the south and abroad, which was proposed by the CPRF.

The South Korean rulers should not hinder the convocation of the 100-man joint conference and should provide all possible conveniences to the South Korean politicians so that they can participate in the conference.

In particular, the South Korean rulers should unconditionally and immediately release all arrested and detained politicians, including Kim Tae-chung, and guarantee their free political activities.

They should know that if they turn away from or refuse this demand of the nation they will leave an indelible stain on history and receive the curse and condemnation of the people generation after generation.

The Korean Christian Federation will spare no sincerity and efforts for the early convocation of the joint conference of politicians in the north and the south and abroad which will make new contributions to accelerating the reunification of the fatherland.

AGRICULTURAL GROUP SUPPORTS CPRF PROPOSAL

Proposal Supported

SK250215 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 24 Feb 82

[Talk issued 24 February by a spokesman for the DPRK Agricultural Committee--read by announcer]

[Text] We, the functionaries in the agriculture sector, along with all fellow countrymen ardently aspiring national reunification, listened with great excitement to the statement issued 10 February by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF]. The CPRF proposal for the convocation of the renowned politicians in the north, south and abroad, excluding those seeking the country's division, is a very reasonable and realistic one, considering today's situation in South Korea. The agricultural committee fully supports the CPRF proposal, holding that it is a good proposal that will help resolve various questions regarding national reunification.

Because of the country's division, the unified development of the north and south in the agriculture sector, not to mention other sectors, has not been achieved. Under the wise leadership of the great leader, we have made sincere efforts to overcome this abnormal situation. As is known, since the inception of the country's division, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, has put forward the most just and reasonable proposals for national reunification and restoration of the nation's unity and solidarity through collaboration and interchanges between the north and south.

During the post-war period, he set forth various proposals in this regard. Reporting at the celebration of the 10th anniversary of the 15 August liberation in August 1955, the great leader advanced a proposal for economic interchanges in all sectors, including the agricultural sector, between the north and south. In August 1960, he made a proposal to enact a north-south confederal system as a transitional step for national reunification. In consideration of the South Korean authorities' inability to accept the north-south confederal system, the great leader proposed we cooperate and aid each other in the economic sector by instituting an economic council comprised of representatives of economic circles in the north and south. These proposals put forward by the great leader evince a noble, patriotic and nation-loving desire to ease the fellow countrymen's pain caused by national division and to expedite reunification.

In accordance with the proposals and plans for national reunification advanced by the respected and beloved leader, the government of the republic has adopted innumerable tangible steps to accomplish collaboration and interchanges between the north and south. The steps include many questions related to the agricultural sector. At the eighth session of the second supreme people's assembly in November 1960, we made a proposal to rapidly develop the backward agricultural sector in South Korea by jointly carrying out grand irrigation work in the valleys of the Han River, the Nam River, the Nakdong River, the Yongsan River, the Kum River and the Ansong-Chon, in hopes of achieving collaboration and interchanges in the agricultural sector between the north and south. Since then, we have advanced a proposal for undertaking irrigation work in South Korea on various occasions. During the period of north-south dialogue, especially at the meeting of the north-south coordinating committee in November 1972, we raised the question of negotiations on agricultural issues between the north and south.

We possess a highly developed agriculture and have rich experiences and technology in rural economic work. To gain this experience and technology, many people from various countries are visiting the republic. Moreover, our agricultural specialists are providing foreign countries technical assistance in agricultural work, including irrigation work. Nevertheless, we who have the same ancestery have not made joint efforts for unified development of agriculture with our fellow countrymen in South Korea. This is very regrettable.

Such a brethren-loving emotion is included in the proposal to accomplish collaboration and interchanges in the agriculture sector between the north and south. Beyond these proposals for collaboration and interchanges, we have put forward a proposal to immediately ship rice, clothing and shoes to several million flood-stricken and drought-stricken victims in South Korea and rice to the farmers suffering a lack of rice in South Korea.

However, none of our proposals has been enacted. This is entirely due to the maneuvers of the South Korean rulers. Rejecting our proposals for no good reason, the South Korean rulers have responded to them with anticommunist confrontation and splittist maneuvers. Experiences show that dealing with those who are seeking division does not help resolve the question of collaboration and interchanges between the north and south, not to mention the country's reunification.

The South Korean rulers have recently babbled about pilot projects and so on by espousing some of the issues we have already presented. This is a trick to fabricate two Koreas by perpetuating the country's division. As for the Chon Tu-hwan clique of traitors, it is a group of heinous cutthroats who have mercilessly massacred the fellow countrymen to achieve a desire for power, bellicose elements who are aggravating tension by staging war exercises--such as team spirit '82--and splittists who have tried to justify the country's division in international society by making proposal for simultaneous north-south entry into the United Nations and cross-recognition. We cannot resolve the reunification question with those seeking two Koreas, rather than a reunified Korea. When the renowned politicians aspiring reunification sit together, excluding the Chon Tu-hwan ring and the sham political parties and organizations acting as the stooges of the Chon Tu-hwan ring, the questions will be resolved. The proposal for the convocation of the 100-man joint conference becomes a reasonable one reflecting today's urgent requests for reunification talks. We demand that the 100-man joint conference, at which the politicians in the north, south and abroad will sit together and negotiate the question of reunification--be convened at the earliest date. To atone for the crimes it committed before the nation, the Chon Tu-hwan clique should not hamper the convocation of the 100-man joint conference but enable the south politicians to participate in the conference without exception. Declaring it has not plan to lift the ban on the former politicians is an open challenge to public opinion urging freedom of political activities at home and abroad. If the Chon Tu-hwan clique continues to prevent the convocation of the 100-man joint conference, imprisoning politicians, including Kim Tae-chung, and suppressing freedom of political activities, they will commit a more grave crime before the nation and history.

We, the agricultural committee, will make every effort on behalf of the convocation of the 100-man joint conference which the agricultural workers and people aspire.

Agricultural Organization Support

SK270529 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 26 Feb 82

[Statement of the spokesman of the Union of the Agricultural Working People of Korea issued on 26 February--read by announcer]

[Text] Today, our agricultural working people are daily raising their voices supporting the new proposal of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] for convening a 100-man joint meeting. Reflecting the unanimous desire of all the Korean agricultural workers, and regarding the proposal for convening a joint meeting of politicians from the north and south and overseas as a practical and rational one to overcome difficulties on the road of reunification and to pave a new way for negotiations for reunification, the Union of the Agricultural Working People of Korea [UAWPK] extends full support for this proposal.

Since the beginning of the division of the country by foreign forces, our UAWPK, regarding building a unified, wealthy and independent nation as its supreme national duty, has made every sincere effort to achieve the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification.

As is well known, a faction or a specific group of persons are not authorized to monopolize the cause of the fatherland's reunification. This task is a pan-national cause which requires that all the fellow countrymen achieve the concord of their desire and join efforts. With various political parties and social organizations in the northern half, our UAWPK has consistently demanded that, in order to solve the question of the country's reunification in accordance with the desire of all the Korean people, and to represent the consensus of all the people, an extensive and authoritative dialogue be held. It has repeatedly proposed this to sectors concerned in South Korea.

Supporting the proposal, adopted at the meeting held to form the democratic front for the reunification of the fatherland, for achieving the country's reunification by establishing a central government through the adoption of a constitution at a supreme legislative body formed after the conduct of a north-south general election and on the condition that U.S. forces be withdrawn from South Korea, our UAWPK proposed to South Korean parties and social organizations the convocation of a consultative meeting of representatives from various political parties and social organizations in North and South Korea and the formation of an election guidance committee in June 1949 when the danger of perpetual national division began to develop because of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges.

Reflecting the trend in which the spirit for peaceful reunification was high in South Korea with the outbreak of the 19 April people's uprising and proceeding from a single desire for ending the division of the country and for achieving reunification we proposed in April 1960 the quick convocation of a joint meeting of various political parties and social organizations in North and South Korea.

In the 1970's we did not stop making efforts to achieve reunification. Resolutely opposing the South Korean authorities' wicked plot to fabricate two Koreas, we patiently proposed the discussion of various issues connected with the reunification question through the rapid convocation of a joint meeting of various political parties and social organizations in North and South Korea.

Proceeding from the single desire to place the north-south dialogue, which was in a state of rupture because of the South Korean authorities, on the right track, in June 1977 we proposed the convocation of a north-south political consultative meeting with the participation of representatives from various political parties and social organizations and those of the people of all walks of life in the north and the south. With various political parties and social organizations in the northern half, in January 1979 we proposed a pan-national conference with the participation of representatives from various political parties and social organizations in the north and south to discuss the matter of expediting the country's peaceful reunification. At such a meeting of political parties and social organizations, we wanted to discuss all issues concerning the country's reunification, such as the alleviation of tension between the north and south, creation of an atmosphere of trust and multilateral collaboration and exchanges. We wanted to jointly seek nation-saving measures.

All of our proposals and efforts were just, meeting the requirements of the situation and the desire of the people. Whenever these proposals were advanced, people at home and abroad supported them. However, these proposals have not been implemented because of the South Korean authorities' obstructionist maneuvers.

The successive South Korean ruling cliques have reacted to our unity proposals by fanning sentiments of enmity and anticommunist confrontation among the people. By stepping up the rackets of military buildup and military provocations, they have challenged our call for reducing military manpower strength and armament and for easing tension.

The South Korean ruling clique has allowed the U.S. imperialist aggressors to indefinitely remain in the country and has completely converted South Korea into the imperialists' nuclear base. In addition, they have ventured without hesitation to conspire a wicked plot to bring nuclear disasters to their fellow countrymen.

The present South Korean rulers are anticommunist war maniacs of the century and splittists who far surpass their predecessors. They have barbarously committed mass slaughter in Kwangju; arrested, imprisoned and executed those figures who demanded democracy and peaceful reunification; dismantled all existing political parties and social organizations in South Korea; fabricated sham political parties and organizations to employ them as tools for their dictatorial rule; and completely violated the freedom of the people and democracy.

While we, after advancing a rational proposal for negotiations on peaceful reunification, are making efforts to implement this proposal, they are staging an unprecedentedly large-scale war exercise called Team Spirit '82 with the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces, thus kicking up rackets to attack us. This act contradicts their recent proposal for reunification and pilot projects. We cannot conduct negotiations on reunification with those who, while talking about reunification in words only, kick up war exercise rackets and run counter to peaceful reunification. It is needless to say that meeting with them will be nonsense.

It is completely right for the CPRF, in its statement, to exclude the present South Korean rulers and sham political parties and social organizations from those qualified to participate in the dialogue for reunification. This is nobody's fault, but the natural outcome of their treacherous, splittist maneuvers. Holding a dialogue with the South Korean rulers who advocate fascism and division constitutes an act degrading all the people who truly long for reunification and a betrayal of the South Korean people who have risen to achieve reunification and save the country.

Just as we have already made clear, the South Korean rulers should force the U.S. forces to withdraw from South Korea, guarantee democracy, abandon a policy of anticommunist confrontation and apologize before the people for their barbarous mass slaughter in Kwangju. Without doing this they will never be able to atone for their crimes no matter how eagerly they try to change their colors and tone.

The South Korean ruling clique should not run amok to insolently sneak into the site of sacred negotiations on reunification. They should not prevent convocation of a 100-man joint meeting. If there is anything for them to do they must find all detained politicians, including Kim Tae-chung, not guilty, release them and provide all conditions to pave the way to convening the 100-man joint meeting.

If the South Korean puppets stubbornly prevent convocation of the 100-man joint meeting and if they continue to work toward division of the people, they will commit more grave crimes before the people and will forever lose all qualifications to participate in negotiations on reunification.

We will exert every effort to help convene the 100-man joint meeting at the earliest possible date so as to end the tragedy of the division of the people and to expedite the cause for the country's reunification.

SOUTH KOREAN POLITICIANS IN NORTH BACK CPRF PROPOSAL

SK280552 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 27 Feb 82

["Text" of 27 February statement by spokesman of consultative council in north for promotion of peaceful reunification--read by announcer]

[Text] We in the north who have, over 3 decades, been on the road to collaboration with communists--a cause for the fatherland's reunification, the utmost task of the nation--are greatly moved in greeting the recent proposal of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] for a joint conference of politicians in the north, south and abroad. Our hearts are full with expectation that we will, in the near future, meet with the conferees and our old acquaintances and colleagues.

The Consultative Council in the North for Promotion of Peaceful Reunification [CCNPPR] warmly supports and welcomes the proposal for a 100-man joint conference, recognizing it as a very just patriotic suggestion reflecting the entire nation's aspirations for ending the tragic division of the country, which has lasted for 37 years, and reunifying the fatherland at an early date.

The joint conference--which, if convened, would discuss reunification proposals, including the one for establishing the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK], and resolve matters regarding north-south collaboration and exchange--is the most realistic and reasonable means for paving a new road of negotiations for reunification in conformity with the prevailing situation.

We in the north--former politicians or parliamentarians of South Korea who, at each period of the developing situation in the north and south of the fatherland, have come in contact with the republic's just proposals for national salvation and reunification and have clearly seen with our own eyes, the successive South Korean rulers' antinational and splittist schemes--know better than anyone else the need for the proposal for a 100-man joint conference.

Since the early days of the country's division, the republic, under the wise leadership of the respected and beloved President Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, has put forth most reasonable proposals for national salvation and reunification one after another. To promote national unity and reunification, the republic has come forward with a number of detailed suggestions, ranging from humanitarian ideas designed to alleviate the sufferings of the families and relatives dispersed in the north and south, to the question of mutual visits by persons concerned and to matters regarding multilateral collaboration and exchanges in political, economic, cultural, military and other areas.

Moreover, the republic has done its best, in taking initiatives and proper steps to carry into action the proposals and suggestions.

However, successive South Korean rulers, at the instigation of the U.S. imperialists, have turned down all of the republic's proposals for reunification and suggestions for negotiations. They went so far as to assassinate Kim Ku, alias Paekpom, and Yo Un-hyong, alias Mongyang, to imprison and/or to kill many patriots and democratic figures, including Cho Pong-am, also known as Chuksan, and youths and students, and ruthlessly suppress the righteous reunification movement of the patriotic people.

Even the dialogues between the north and south in the early and late 1970's and later in 1980, which were arranged with much effort by the government of the republic, broke down because of the South Korean authorities' wrong attitude and antinational acts of betrayal. This we know very well.

The experience eloquently proves that on matters related to the country's reunification we cannot expect any positive response from those who, backed by foreign forces, commit themselves to fascist dictatorship and national division.

As for Chon Tu-hwan in particular, he slaughtered tens of thousands of compatriots in the atrocious Kwangju massacre and suppresses, with bayonets, movements for democratization and peaceful reunification. He is a phenomenal murderer and vicious splittist who, outrageously enough, arrests, imprisons and punishes democratic figures and patriots, including Kim Tae-chung.

It goes without saying that we can gain nothing from those who, dancing to the tune of the two Koreas plot of the U.S. imperialists, are hell-bent on anticommunist rackets aimed at compatriots and conduct, along with the U.S. imperialist aggressors, such a large-scale military exercise as Team Spirit '82, a war exercise for northward invasion. The republic has made it clear and plain many times that unless the incumbent South Korean rulers atone for the crimes they have committed against compatriots, it will not consider them as participants in sacred negotiations for reunification. This is a very just stand which reflects the concensus of the entire nation.

The South Korean rulers, however, are resorting to all available means to take part in the dialogue for reunification, despite the fact that they are simply not entitled to do so. Such senseless behavior on their part only evokes laughter. If they are truly interested in dialogue for reunification, they are advised not to indulge in paying lipservice by merely talking about reunification and dialogue. Instead, as the chairman of the CPRF noted in his 26 January statement, they should, above all else, get the U.S. troops pulled out of South Korea, enforce democracy, give up the anticommunist policy, abandon the two-Koreas plot and apologize to the nation for the atrocious massacre of fellow countrymen. One who truly aspires for the country's reunification should not pursue an anticommunist policy.

History has already confirmed that the differences between the north and south in ideologies, systems, political views and religion cannot constitute factors against negotiations for reunification and collaboration with communists.

In the past, South Korean personages, including Kim Ku and Kim Kyu-sik, under the banner of reunification and national salvation, took part in the famous April north-south joint conference, thus setting good example of collaboration with communists, and personages in the north such as former civil administrator An Chae-hong, former deputy speaker Choi Tong-ho and pastor O Ha-yong carried out, hand in hand with the north's communists, patriotic activities for peaceful reunification.

We appeal to politicians in South Korea and abroad to unite with the north's communists and, as the first step, respond to the CPRF proposal for a 100-man joint conference.

Looking straight at the trend of the times, the South Korean authorities should promptly and unconditionally release all detained politicians, including Kim Tae-chung, and ensure South Korean politicians conditions and conveniences so they may participate in the joint conference.

We in the north will exert our efforts to realize an early convocation of the 100-man joint conference.

'TASS' CITED ON S. KOREA-JAPAN COOPERATION

SK012234 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1503 GMT 1 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 1 Mar (KCNA)--TASS on February 26 published an article by its political news analyst titled "A Dangerous Metamorphosis."

It says: Sakurauchi, Japan's foreign minister, recently speaking in Parliament, made according to the Tokyo newspaper YOMIURI a demonstration of an "active position with regard to the Japanese-South Korean economic cooperation. In explaining the substance of that position, the newspaper quoted, among other things, the minister'swords that Japan "highly appreciated the efforts of South Korea in matters of security, while the deployment of American troops there means a contribution to maintaining the balance of forces on the Korean peninsula."

A question naturally arises as to whether or not this "active position," which expresses itself in a "high appreciation of the efforts of South Korea in matters of security," mean that in Tokyo's attitude to Seoul's insistent requests for billion dollar injections for military preparations there has occurred a volte-face? It will be recalled that already in August of last year Seoul's "representatives" demanded during negotiations with Tokyo to be granted 10 billion dollars "to make up for the expenses" the "regime" in South Korea is allegedly incurring in the name of "protecting Japan and all the free world" from "the threat from the north."

Seoul "representatives" did not feel any constraints in their outspokenness, remembering that back in May of last year the Japanese Prime Minister Suzuki at talks with the U.S. President in Washington committed himself to "undertake still greater efforts to assure security on the Korean Peninsula." However, Tokyo at that time was literally flabbergasted by the size of the "assistance" demanded of it. Besides, Seoul's bid for Japanese loans in the guise of "compensation" for its efforts in the field of "security" caused a no small amount of concern among the Japanese public which regarded the promise given by Suzuki to Reagan as consent to take part in the military Washington-Seoul-Tokyo military axis being knocked together in the Far East.

And at that time Japanese Foreign Minister Sonoda deemed it necessary to state in Parliament that Japan was not in a position to provide South Korea with "assistance" having to do with "safeguarding security." It was stated that such an explanation was clearly necessary to "prevent an evolution of the relations between Japan, the United States and South Korea into a military alliance."

What is this current metamorphosis due to, one may ask? It is clearly not due to the fact that Minister Sonoda was replaced by Minister Sakurauchi. As was recently pointed out by the newspaper ASAHI in connection with the completion in Tokyo of the Japanese-South Korean negotiations at the working level, the insistent demand that Seoul be "helped" to beef up its economy and finances but mainly its military-industrial potential.

In supporting the anti-people Seoul "regime" propped up by U.S. bayonets, and contributing to its militarist preparations, Japan thus contributes to maintaining a dangerous pocket of tensions in the Far East.

COMMENT LINKING OLYMPICS, CHON TERM NOTED

SK011114 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1041 GMT 1 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 1 Mar (KCNA)--SINHAN MINBO, a Korean paper published in the United States, some time ago carried an article by Song Sok-chung, professor at Michigan State University, the United States, denouncing the criminal decision of the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique to induce olympiad into South Korea.

He averred that this manoeuvre of the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a clumsy drama for diverting elsewhere the attention of the people from the strained political situation and gloomy economic prospect.

He continued: According to a well-informed source, the olympiad to be induced by the Chon Tu-hwan clique will cause a deficit of some 2,000 million dollars. Who are they going to bleed white to fill this wide gap?

South Korea is already known to be a land of highest tax rate in the world. And now it is saddled with foreign debts to the tune of 32,500 million dollars.

The rulers will impose all sacrifices upon the people and try to justify them with the slogan "for olympiad!" Just as they commit all outrages with the slogan of "threat of southward invasion," "anti-communism" and so forth. There can be no more heinous utilisation of olympiad for a political purpose than this for seven years henceforth, the dictatorship will be justified "for olympiad!"

The coincidence of the expiration of Chon Tu-hwan's term of office and the opening of the olympic games cannot be dismissed as a casual one, I dare say.

If the Chon Tu-hwan "regime" must be allowed to remain for the sake of the olympic games, we must oppose the Seoul olympiad without hesitation.

We can do without olympiad but cannot live in a land destitute of freedom, under a policy denying democracy. We must frustrate the hideous plot to prolong the Chon Tu-hwan "regime" under the slogan "for olympiad!"

We have lived too long a period, bound hand and foot, blindfolded, and gagged, for anti-communism, for "security," and for "economic growth."

Now we do not want to be put on the altar of olympiad.

We must launch a loud anti-olympic campaign before the olympiad turns into a political curse. There would be nothing disgraceful at all, even if olympiad was cancelled. What is most disgraceful is the stupidity of supporting the Chon Tu-hwan "regime" or extending its days for olympiad.

ELECTION SYSTEM IN SOUTH KOREA DENOUNCED

SK251556 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1516 GMT 25 Feb 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 25 Feb (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today prints a signed article titled "Election in South Korea Is Means of Usurping Power."

Noting that the working people of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea have genuine political rights and liberties and are leading a dignified and worthwhile life under the socialist system the article says:

All the working people including workers and farmers have the right to elect and to be elected as masters of power irrespective of sex, occupation, property status, knowledge and party affiliation and are directly participating in the state management and political affairs of the country and, embraced in political parties and public organisations, are freely engaging themselves in sociopolitical activities.

But in South Korea where power is exclusively seized by such villainous military hooligans as the Chon Tu-hwan clique, the working masses enjoy no political rights or freedom. The South Korean working people are deprived of the most elementary freedom and right to make a political expression, to say nothing of the right to participate in power. They are forced only to submit to the rulers.

The "election" system trumped up by the South Korean puppet clique is nothing but a means of grabbing power and maintaining and consolidating its reactionary ruling system.

The "election" of the puppet president and the "election" to the puppet national assembly held in February and March last year were unheard-of suppressive elections and fraud elections.

The reactionary nature of the "elections" held by the Chon Tu-hwan clique can be seen above all in the fact that they were a mere "government"-sponsored function which took place excluding the popular masses, the real master of power.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique trumped up the "election law" by which an "electoral college" is "elected" first to "elect the president." This prevented the popular masses, the master of power, from directly participating in the "election." This clique also set the age limit of those eligible to the "electoral college" at over 30, thereby excluding young people and students most resolutely opposed to fascism from the "election."

The so-called "electoral college" was composed of exploiters bleeding the toiling people white, military hooligans and political mountebanks following the traitor Chon Tu-hwan's fascist rule and treacherous acts. No one of working people origin was elected to the "electoral college."

The reactionary nature of the "election" farce staged by the Chon Tu-hwan group also finds expression in the fact that it was an exercise of force in the political ruins.

The puppets held the "elections" in the political ruins in the true sense of the term after dissolving all the democratic political parties and organisations, and binding with chains all people calling for democracy.

Under the pretext of "rounding up election law violators" the puppet clique mobilized the repressive forces throughout South Korea to arrest, jail and penalize anyone who opposes its fraudulent elections.

On the very day of the "elections" the puppet army and police were put on an "emergency alert," and the intelligence officials and all the administrative force from the centre to the lowest administrative unit of tong and the neighbourhood unit were mobilized in the suppression of the people.

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan organised the "election control committees" with his servants to rig up from the registration of "candidates" to the ballot casting and counting.

The "elections" held by the South Korean puppet clique are a farce for camouflaging the traitor Chon Tu-hwan's robbery of "power" and legalising the fascist suppressive rule.

As long as the military fascist rule of the Chon Tu-hwan clique is maintained, genuine political rights and democratic liberties including the freedom of election will not be ensured to the South Korean people.

'MINJU CHOSON' INDICATES PROVOCATIONS WILL NOT BE TOLERATED

SK270436 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0414 GMT 27 Feb 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 27 Feb (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON today notes that in bringing huge armed forces into South Korea and its surrounding area and staging the "Team Spirit 82" war exercises the U.S. imperialists try to make them familiarise themselves with the terrain and climate of Korea and hurl them into combat action at the shortest period of time.

In a commentary published in denunciation of the "Team Spirit 82" war exercises of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique, the paper says: In an attempt to veil this ulterior intention the U.S. imperialists advertised the war exercises as one for coping with "threat of southward invasion" and "emergency." The reality, however, shows that what exists in Korea is not "threat of southward invasion" but threat of northward invasion and it is none other than the U.S. imperialists who try to cause an "emergency."

The author of the commentary titled "Reckless Play With Fire Leading to Dangerous Situation" says:

Gathering dark clouds are followed by a rain.

History offers not a few instances in which reckless war exercises caused a total war. There is no assurance that the war exercises being staged by the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique in South Korea will not go over in toto to actual battle against the DPRK.

For peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification and for world peace and security they must stop their adventurous war exercises at once.

We are closely watching their war exercises and will not tolerate any military provocation against us.

The U.S. imperialists must stop encouraging the puppets to war manoeuvres and playing with fire, pursuing the anachronistic policy of "strength," get out of South Korea forthwith, taking along all their aggression forces. If they persistently seek a test of "strength" in disregard of our warning, they will be held wholly responsible for the consequences arising therefrom.

Referring to the Korean question, the communique stressed that both sides reaffirmed solidarity with the Democratic People's Republic of Korea in the struggle to reunify the country peacefully without outside interference and denounced the U.S. imperialists unwarrantable provocations in South Korea. STUDENT STRUGGLE PREVENTION--Pyongyang, 1 Mar (KCNA)--The authorities of the Tonga University in Pusan, on the order of the South Korean puppet clique, disciplined over 760 students some time ago under the groundless pretext of "poor records," according to a report. Three of them were expelled and 366 others "warned." Feeling uneasy with the approach of March and April, known as a season of resistance in South Korea, the Chon Tu-hwan clique of traitors is disciplining a large number of students who go against the grain with it at all colleges and universities of South Korea by applying the fascist "graduates limit system" on the threshold of the new school year. The puppets took disciplinary steps against more than 860 students at the Pusan university, expelling 224 of them. Similar steps were taken at the Choson University in Kwangju and the Cheju University in Cheju Island. In Seoul, progressive students were expelled en masse from the Hanyang, Koryo, Sogang, Konguk and other universities. [Text] [SK011031 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1015 GMT 1 Mar 82]

ASSASSINATION PLOT--Seoul, 1 Mar (YONHAP)--Chairman Chon Kwan-u of the Central Committee for National Unification of Korea (CCNUK) Monday decried North Korea's abortive attempt on South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan's life, and demanded the "immediate repatriation" of the mastermind of the plot to Canada, where he is a resident. The chief culprit, Choe Chung-hwa, has reportedly fled to North Korea to escape the Canadian police probe into the conspiracy. In his statement, the CCNUK chairman said, "We cannot refrain from indignation and surprise at the assassination attempt unravelled by Canadian authorities, the United States and European countries and at the evidence of North Korea's having engineered the conspiracy at a time when efforts for Korean unification are increasing both in Korea and around the world." Calling the conspiracy a "crime against the nation" which upset the aspirations of 60 million people for the unification of the fatherland, Chon demanded that North Korea immediately return Choe culprit to Canada. "If North Korea has no connection with the plot," Chon said, "it should repatriate him to Canada immediately." Chon urged the Pyongyang regime to give up its illusory strategy of communizing the Korean peninsula by overthrowing the South Korean Government. CHON FRONT LINE TOUR--On the morning of 1 March, Chon Tu-hwan visited an army command post located on the western front. While inspecting the unit, now engaged in the military exercise dubbed Team Spirit 82, he babbled about strengthening the combat capability and infused a war fever among the soldiers. This shows that Chon Tu-hwan, while paying lip service to peaceful reunification, is in fact running wild preparing for a war of northward invasion. To achieve peace and peaceful reunification in our country, we must drive out the U.S. imperialist troops and overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan clique, which is frenzied in preparations for war under the pretext of peaceful reunification. S. KOREA TRIP TO NIGERIA--At a meeting with the Nigerian foreign minister at 2000 on 24 February, Foreign Minister No Sin-yong, who is visiting Nigeria, explained Chon Tu-hwan's so-called 22 January proposal and earnestly begged Nigeria's support for his stand in the international arena, including nonaligned meetings. No Sin-yong's Nigerian trip thoroughly shows that his is a splittist mendicant tour. With the so-called 22 January proposal, an antireunification one, strongly denounced by public opinion at home and abroad, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is pretending that it is interested in the nation's reunification by visiting other countries and begging support from them to escape its pitiful situation as an international orphan. The Chon Tu-hwan clique is acting shamelessly and nastily without a sense of honor and pride to mislead public opinion. No matter how frantically the Chon Tu-hwan clique may explain about the so-called 22 January proposal and may beg support by making overseas trip, it can neither conceal its splittist nature nor escape its status as an international orphan. FORMER PRESIDENT URGES DIALOGUE, NOT STRUGGLE

[Interview with former President Yun Po-son by political editor Song Chin-hyok—date not given]

[Excerpts] "Some of the people involved in the movement against the Pak Chong-hui regime together with me in the past frequently call on me and ask why I have recently maintained silence. I struggled against the Liberty Party and the Democratic Republican Party in the past. So, I would struggle even against the present government if it fails to properly govern this country. However, I think that now is the time to have dialogue, not a struggle. We should solve problems through dialogue."

This reporter called at former President Yun Po-son's house one day in late February to hear his opinion on the present political situation.

Question: It has been already a year since the present government was established. Please comment on the recent political situation.

Answer: Now is not the time to topple or provoke the present government. The present government is totally different from that of the Pak Chong-hui regime. Mr Pak Chong-hui never tried to have a dialogue with me while in power for 18 years. Instead, he tried to suppress me or make me a supporter of his regime. Mr Pak Chong-hui tried to maintain his long-term power for the sake of his own interest. As a result, corruption and irregularities were rampant.

However, the people in the present government are trying their best to conduct good politics although there is something yet to be rectified. They want to have dialogue with the citizens. They have opened the door for dialogue.

The situation at home and abroad, too, is very complicated and serious. North Korea is increasing its military strength. The Soviet Union is also increasing its military power in the Far East. As a result, the military balance between the United States and the Soviet Union in this region has changed.

The country's economic situation is also difficult. Considering these situations we should refrain from provoking the present government.

Question: These days some minority party people say that the ruling party is too powerful and the minority parties too weak. What do you think of the present relationship between the ruling and the minority parties?

Answer: The ruling and minority parties should not fight each other like enemies. Struggle is not everything for the minority parties. If the present government is toppled by the struggle of the minority parties, who would take care of the government under the present situation in which the minority parties offer no alternatives? Now is the time for us to have dialogue so that we can solve problems one by one.

Mr Pak Chong-hui had no intent to hold a dialogue with the people. Only dialogue can solve problems. We cannot expect the government to do everything for the people perfectly.

Of course, I see there are problems which the opposition parties should struggle to solve. For instance, there is the present economic problem, the problem of lifting the political ban imposed on former politicians and the problem of releasing those who have been detained for their involvement in the Kwangju case. But these problems should be solved through dialogue.

Question: The ROK and Japanese governments are negotiating $6 billion worth of economic loans from Japan for the security of South Korea. What do you think of Japan?

Answer: It is a tragedy for our nation to have Japan as a neighbor. Japan does not want to see our country reunified. Historically Japan has imposed suffering upon our nation. It has pursued only profits. Pursuit of profits is not the act of politicians but the act of merchants.

Japan should provide economic cooperation to Korea. Japan has enjoyed prosperity due to our security efforts and the nuclear umbrella of the United States. Yet, it is trying to avoid cooperation in the economic sphere. I cannot understand this. In order to maintain peace in the Far East, our country, the United States and Japan must cooperate with each other. But Japan does not want to assume its responsibility for this.

DKP GIVES TOP PRIORITY TO ECONOMY, EDUCATION

SK250132 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 25 Feb 82 p 1

[Text] The Democratic Korea Party (DKP) decided yesterday to give top priority to economic and educational problems in dealing with state affairs during the 110th extraordinary national assembly session to open tomorrow.

The decision came in a general caucus of 82 party lawmakers at the assembly building in which they discussed floor strategy for the special house sitting.

The DKP lawmakers reconfirmed a plan to continue urging the government to lift the measure banning the political activities of former politicians until 1988 during the special assembly meeting.

They also endorsed a policy worked out by the floor leader's office to seek a parliamentary recommendation to President Chon Tu-hwan for a special amnesty for political prisoners.

The first minority party will hold a meeting of its floor strategy council today to hammer out concrete policies for the extra session.

During the caucus, party president Rep. Yu Chi-song stressed that all party lawmakers should exert efforts to make the people regard the party as the sole traditional opposition one by deliberating state affairs in depth during the special session.

Rep. Yi Chong-ki, the floor leader, told the party members that the party was determined to handle economy-related bills first during the session.

"The party will not tackle in haste the party-proposed political bills such as the amendment to the national assembly law and the recommendation for the removal of the eight-year political ostracism," he revealed.

FREQUENT CHANGES IN LAWS CRITICIZED

SK231008 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 22 Feb 82 p 2

[Editorial: "The Number of Laws Revised Twice a Year Reaches 97"]

[Excerpts] The Home Ministry is wavering on its policy concerning the age limit for the civil defense corps. It has decided to raise the age limit, which was lowered last year, from 45 to 50 years. However, the ministry is again reviewing a compromise plan at the request of the Democratic Justice Party.

We are surprised by the contents of material on the revision of laws and regulations revealed by the office of legislation. The number of laws and regulations revised last year reached 988. Of this, laws and regulations revised more than twice numbered 97. In other words, nearly 10 percent of the laws were revised more than twice in a year.

The breakdown of the laws and regulations which were revised more than twice during the last year are: seven laws including the military service law, 59 presidential decrees including the enforcement ordinance of the passport law, and 31 prime minister's decrees and other ministerial decrees. The office of legislation noted that there had been an effort to solve pressing questions first and that frequent revision was due to insufficient analysis of realities and inattentive study of overall problems.

The revision of laws and regulations reflects changes in policies. The frequent changes in policies bring about the people's distrust of the administration. Furthermore, the frequent revision of laws results in undermining the dignity of the law and deterioration in a law-abiding spirit. In any event, frequent revision of laws and changes in policy are not desirable.

It is natural that policies and laws and regulations have to change according to changes in society. However, revisions and changes in policies and laws more than twice a year cannot be justified even by changes in society. It only proves that the process of revising the laws has not been a careful one.

We do not want to see a repetition of the bad habit of frequent changes in policies and laws. We should seriously seek a lesson in the case of 97 laws which were revised more than twice in a year for the future development of state affairs.

DISCORD IN DJP OVER REVISION OF LAWS

SK020828 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 28 Feb 82 p 2

[From the column "News Behind the News"]

[Text] A meeting of DJP national assemblymen on the afternoon of 26 February exposed problems in the party. These problems began to surface with the conclusion of the discussion on measures against the opposition parties' move to amend the National Assembly, press and criminal procedure laws.

Opposing the amendment of the National Assembly Law, Yi Chi-ho, deputy floor leader and chief of the party office of lawmakers, said: The provision in the National Assembly Law which allows national assemblymen to have jobs has the advantage of allowing the assemblymen to develop specialties. While those national assemblymen who were specialists in a certain sector were taking their former jobs after serving out their terms, many of those national assemblymen who had no speciality were jailed on charges of being involved in graft at third-rate coffee shops. After attending the National Assembly session in the morning, the latter would visit a golf course or a wine house in the afternoon. The National Assembly Law should not be amended until the close of the 11th National Assembly.

National assemblyman Yi Yong-hui, who had reviewed the basic press law, said: This law is the best one in the world because it contains a provision for the welfare of journalists. I regret my becoming a national assemblyman following the enactment of this law.

Referring to the provision on the review of arrest warrants in the criminal procedure law, national assemblyman Yi Yong-hun said: I think this law has problems. Members of the National Assembly Judiciary Committee should have been allowed to express their views prior to the adoption of a decision today countering the opposition parties' move to amend this law. Were views expressed today in this connection by individuals or by the party authorities?

This protest appeared to originate in the party executive body's arbitrary instructions to refuse the amendment of the laws in question and in the subjective and insolent remarks by those who opposed the amendments. In any event, this protest is unusual in the history of meetings of DJP national assemblymen. Seeing party executive members blush with anger, party representative Yi Chae-hyong told lawmaker Yi Chi-ho: Some laws which were adopted by the legislative council for national security have been amended. Don't incite opposition party members by saying the National Assembly Law will be revised in 4 years. He then glumly accused the party floor leader, saying: Complaints have been sparked by the convocation of this meeting without preliminary discussion.

Party floor leader Yi Chong-chan impatiently retorted to party representative Yi, saying: We do not mean that we will not revise the laws adopted by the legislative council for national security. Instead, we mean that we will not revise these laws for the time being--until the fifth republic achieves stability. The atmosphere of the meeting became tense for a while. This situation was resolved when national assemblyman Yi Chi-ho said that his reference to 4 years was his personal view and when party secretary general Kwon Chong-tal complained that he was hungry and demanded the conclusion of the meeting on the ground that there was no time for further discussion. The meeting has helped spread rumors that there are many difficulties which the Democratic Justice Party should resolve.

DJP PLANS TO IMPLEMENT 'POLITICS OF SERVICE'

[Text] The ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) decided yesterday to commit itself to realizing "politics of service," achieving national consensus and living up to the spirit of the National Assembly law.

In a floor strategy meeting intended to discuss the operation of a special assembly session starting tomorrow, the DJP also resolved to address itself to heightening the mood of interparty dialogue and discussion.

Emerging from the meeting held at the party headquarters, floor leader Yi Chongchan said emphasis will be given to ensuring substantial debates on issues of national concern.

During the house recess, standing panels will be convened to deliberate bills and other agenda items, and the government will be asked to submit bills throughout the year, he said.

In the past, it was customary for the government to rush a number of bills and motions to the assembly during the regular session starting 20 September.

Yi who concurrently serves as chairman of the assembly steering committee said the assembly will seek to improve the quality of the interpellation session and panel activities.

Lawmakers will be requested to produce alternative proposals rather than merely find fault with the government policies and proposals, he said.

Directors-general of government ministries as well as cabinet members will be urged to testify at a plenary or panel sessions, he noted.

Referring to the achievements of the incumbent assembly created last April, Yi said a new image of parliamentary politics has been created.

A mature partnership is being forged between the executive branch and the assembly, he said.

Major political parties are developing cooperative relationship, launching policy confrontations rather than emotional conflicts, and the assembly will be made to serve the people rather than lord it over them, he said.

The floor strategy meeting, chaired by Yi, was attended by chairmen of 13 Standing Committees.

POLITICAL PRISONERS--Convening a meeting of party members on 23 February at the National Assembly Hall, the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] discussed strategy for the extraordinary session of the National Assembly and agreed to conduct interpellations with priority to economic and educational issues. The DKP meeting also reaffirmed the party strategy to urge the government to grant amnesty to those political prisoners punished in the wake of the 17 May incident and to continue to urge the government to lift the ban imposed on former politicians. Pledging that the DKP will not be in a hurry to deal with such bills as those calling for revision of the National Assembly Laws, basic press law and self-government laws, DKP floor leader Yim Chong-ki said: "However, small bodies formed to deal with political bills will continue their activities." COLLUSION CHARGE--The disciplinary committee of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] has decided to investigate the case of party member Yim Chae-chong who had questioned at a 24 February party meeting whether there were any leaders in the party colluding with those in power. Following the party's presidium session and another meeting of three executive members held this morning, DKP Vice President Yi Tae-ku instructed representative Pak Pyong-il, chairman of the party's disciplinary committee, to investigate the remarks made by representative Yim. Representative Yim was nominated as an interpellator for the plenary session of the 110th National Assembly extraordinary session. However, his appointment was cancelled on the ground that the Democratic Justice Party had appointed Sim Sang-u, who is from the same election district as representative Yim, as an interpellator for the plenary session. The two were both elected from the same districts of Kwangju. Saying that he could not understand why his appointment was cancelled, representative Yim said: "I want to know if there are any leaders in the party who are colluding with those in power." BAN ON POLITICIANS--The 110th extraordinary session of the National Assembly will open tomorrow afternoon. Floor leaders of the Democratic Justice Party [DJP], Democratic Korea Party [DKP] and Korea National Party held a meeting this morning at the National Assembly Hall to discuss the agenda for the extraordinary session, order of questioners in the interpellation and the bills to be dealt with during the session. The opposition parties demanded that a total of 22 bills, including those aimed at revising the effective date of the local self-government system, lifting the ban imposed on former politicians and three other propositions and resolutions, be reviewed by the bodies concerned in the house. The DJP agreed to participate in the discussion of such matters, but made it clear that it will deal with them later. [Excerpt] [SK251224 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 25 Feb 82 p 1]

CIVIL DEFENSE ISSUE--In a 23 February meeting on party-government cooperation, the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] and the Ministry of Home Affairs were again at odds over the issue of improving education for civil defense corps members following the government decision to extend age limits. DJP Secretary General Kwon, saying that the Home Affairs Ministry had earlier consulted with the DJP on a plan to improve the education for the 46-50 age group of the civil defense corps, explained that civil defense corps members younger than 45 are subject to compulsory civil defense education and those over 46 are to receive education materials at their homes. The vice minister of the home affairs, however, after meeting with high-ranking DJP authorities, said: "What plan to improve civil defense education? I have never heard about it. We did not talk about returning back to 45 the age limit for civil defense education in our party-government cooperation meeting held on 19 February." [Excerpt] [SK241104 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 24 Feb 82 p 2]

INTRAPARTY DISCIPLINE--Yu Chi-song, president of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP], said on 27 February: "When hierarchy is upturned and unity is broken, an organization, though full of talented men, is nothing but a rabble." Emphasizing intraparty discipline at a ceremony to confer an appointment certificate on a new DKP vice floor leader and the bureau chiefs of the administration office held at DKP headquarters in Seoul, he urged: "It is expected that the road the opposition party will traverse will be dark. Bearing in mind that this is an unavoidable burden that we should assume for the sake of the country and the nation, please work with patience." Pak Pyong-il, chairman of the DKP disciplinary committee, who had investigated the remarks of DKP lawmaker Yim Chae-chong at the caucus, hinted that this case could be resolved without imposing punishment on him, saying the chairman and the DKP president and vice presidents would not call the disciplinary committee. However, DKP lawmaker Yim, who visited DKP President Yu on the morning of 27 February, said that, even if the party should impose punishment on him, he would not apologize for his controversial remarks. GOVERNMENT AIMS AT EASING PEOPLE'S 'BURDEN' FROM OLYMPICS

[Text] Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun said yesterday that the government would complete all preparations for the '88 Seoul olympics before 1986 and reduce the people's burden to the minimum by making the most use of the existing facilities.

"By doing so, the government will be able to stage the '86 Seoul Asian Games successfully and use them as an opportunity for a final check of the preparations for the following olympiad," he said.

In his report on the overall state affairs to the 110th extra national assembly session which opened yesterday, the prime minister also said that the preparatory work for the olympiad would be focused on making it a pure sports festival in which all nations of the world would participate.

"The government will also concentrate on staging the olympics as a human festival of harmony in which the arts and cultures of all participating countries will be introduced," he said.

The world sports festival will provide a chance to promote national physical culture through the scientific recruitment of athletes and their training, as well as to upgrade sports facilities to the international level, according to him.

"By doing so, we will be able to demonstrate national strength in the olympiad as the host country," he noted.

Briefing the lawmakers on the administration's economic policy programs for 1982, the premier assured them that the government would limit without fail the price hike ratio this year to a single digit.

"For this end, the government will keep the money supply growth ratio at less than 22 percent during the year and implement policies to reduce financial deficits," he said.

A 10-year small and medium businesses promotion plan will be drafted during the early part of the year, he revealed.

Referring to the education system, the premier reiterated that there would be no change in the current college entrance examination and graduation quota formulas.

However, he said that the defects in the systems exposed in the course of their enforcement would be remedied.

ECONOMIC STABILITY--The three major political parties plan to give priority to such issues as stabilization of the economy, reform in educational policies and invigorating politics during the five-day interpellation of the government in the plenary session of the National Assembly, which starts today. The Democratic Justice Party (DJP) has confirmed a policy to lay emphasis on inquiring of the administration about programs for the stabilization of the national economy and methods of national unification. The Democratic Korea Party (DKP) is determined to take issue with political affairs, including the removal of an eight-year political ostracism imposed on former politicians, through their lawmakers' interpellations. As against these floor strategies, the Korea National Party (KNP) will urge the government to remedy the various entrance examination formulas and enforce the local autonomy system from 1983. Majority DJP lawmakers will take the floor to question the government on security affairs, including ways of realizing the new peaceful unification overtures by President Chon Tu-hwan. As for economic problems, the DJP will touch on such matters as methods of promoting exports, reorganizing the industrial structure and fostering small and medium businesses. The first minority DKP legislators will focus on putting vigor into politics, expressing the party's strong will to achieve the goal. [Text] [SK020529 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 2 Mar 82 p 1]

FOREIGN MINISTER'S FRENCH VISIT VIEWED

[Editorial: "Advance in ROK-France Ties"]

[Text] The first meetings our Foreign Minister No Sin-yong had with French Government leaders in Paris went far beyond a mere exchange of courtesies. They served to dispel some misgivings about the Korean policy of the socialist government of President Francois Mitterrand and reaffirm continuing ties of friendship and cooperation between Seoul and Paris.

Minister No visited Paris early this week in the first official visit in France by our foreign minister since the coming of the Mitterrand government. His conversations with his French counterpart Claude Cheysson and External Trade Minister Michel Jobert as well as President Mitterrand yielded much results in the mutual interest of the two countries.

France has been one of the closest European partners of the Republic of Korea. The two enjoyed cordial diplomatic, economic and cultural ties. It has been proven that the socialist orientation of the present French Government did not affect its standing commitment to the cause of the free world and democratic Korea which is its staunchest member.

French Foreign Minister Cheysson is reported to have made it clear that the Paris government fully understands the position of the Republic of Korea and that there is no change in France's stance toward South and North Korea. His remarks suggest a French policy of withholding regular diplomatic relations with Pyongyang in compliance with No's expressed wish that Paris should not recognize North Korea unless East European countries recognize the Seoul Government.

To follow up the existing economic partnership, there remains much room for further cooperation. Expanded participation of France is possible and desirable in such economic projects of Korea as the construction of the Seoul-Pusan express electric railway, subways, and a tidal power plant.

The advanced nuclear technology of France presents ample opportunities for our energy development programs. Korea currently has 10 nuclear power stations, two of which are of French make. More are on the drawing board. France is in a position to bid successfully for selling additional nuclear power plants on favorable conditions.

Besides the commercial and technical exchange and cooperation, the French Government will do well to listen to No's explanation on our efforts toward the peaceful unification of the Korean peninsula, including President Chon's repeated proposals to that end. The political leverage of France in the international community could lend great weight in favor of the case for the Republic of Korea.

We have high regards for the leading status of France in Europe, the Middle East and Africa. These are areas into which Korea is seeking to make its way. Joint endeavors of the two nations in these parts of the world are likely and may prove highly productive. Increased bilateral trade between the two will provide a good stimulus.

The steadfast and growing relations between Seoul and Paris may offer an example of sound diplomatic intercourse Seoul can develop and sustain with governments which embrace an ideology different from that of ours because they have more common cultural values and economic interest to share and endorse. We look forward to broader dialogue and close ties with all who are understanding and ready to work together with us.

NIGERIA SUPPORTS PEACE EFFORTS--Lagos (YONHAP)--Republic of Korean Foreign Minister No Sin-yong and his Nigerian counterpart Ishaya Audu Thursday agreed to expand bilateral cooperation between the two countries. The two, during a meeting in this Nigerian capital, exchanged views on the regional situations on the Korean Peninsula and the African Continent, and expressed satisfaction on the practical cooperation in the economic field. No arrived here earlier in the day on the final leg of his two-week four-nation tour. During the meeting which lasted over one hour, No explained to Audu that Korean President Chon Tu-hwan's January 22 peace proposals for the two Koreas and requested Nigeria's support for Seoul's position on the issue in international forums. Audu endorsed the Seoul government's efforts to resume the inter-Korean dialogue, saying that "the problem should be solved in a peaceful way through dialogues between the authorities involved." Explaining standing issues on the continent to No, including those of Namibia and South Africa, the Nigerian minister expressed gratitude to Korea for its "spiritual and material help toward the African problems." No is scheduled to hold another round of talks with Audu and to pay a courtesy call on Nigerian President Alhaji Shehu Shagari Friday. ASSEMBLY SPEAKER TO ASIA--Seoul, 25 Feb (YONHAP)--South Korea's National Assembly speaker Chung Nae-hyok Thursday said North Korea's attempt to establish diplomatic relations with island nations in the South Pacific have been rejected, citing the recent expulsion of the North Korean mission from Papua New Guinea. Upon arrival at Kimpo International Airport from a three-week tour of Indonesia, Australia, New Zealand and Fiji, Chung told reporters he was assured of "full support" for Korean President Chon Tu-hwan's latest peace proposal by the government and parliamentary leaders of those countries. Chung said North Korean Prime Minister Yi Chong-ok also visited Indonesia while he was in Jakarta. However, Chung said he didn't have an opportunity to meet with Yi. Chung said Yi received a "cold" reception in Indonesia compared with the warm welcome the Indonesian Government extended to him. Chung said Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser agreed with the view that a North Korean presence on the islands would make it difficult to maintain peace in the region. Stressing the importance of diplomacy by lawmakers, the speaker said parliamentary diplomacy in the future should be carried out by numerous groups consisting of small number of lawmakers who are considered experts on certain regions. [Text] [SK251113 Seoul YONHAP in English 1040 GMT 25 Feb 82]

DIPLOMATS MEET--A conference of Korean diplomatic mission chiefs in African and Latin American countries opened in Lagos, Nigeria, yesterday under the chairmanship of Minister of Foreign Affairs No Sin-yong who has just arrived in the African country from Paris, according to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. During the three-day meeting, the 22 diplomats will confer on ways to consolidate cooperative relations with nonaligned countries, publicize President Chon Tu-hwan's unification formula announced on 22 January and study ways to expand economic cooperation with the countries they are accredited to. Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, in an address read by Minister No, called on the mission chiefs to make efforts in earning global support for the unification formula. "Diplomatic mission chiefs are asked to use the venue right of the 1988 summer olympics as a good opportunity to improve relations with the countries where you are working," he remarked. Noting that North Korea is fervently engaging in anti-Seoul maneuvers while stretching out infiltration schemes into nonaligned nations, the premier stressed that positive activities by mission chiefs are required to frustrate North Korean plots. Meanwhile, No met with his Nigerian counterpartAshaya Audu to discuss cooperation between the two countries in the evening. He will call on President Alhaji Shehu Shagari and Minister of National Planning Adenlke Ebun Oyagbola today. 'NODONG SINMUN' MARKS 1 MARCH MOVEMENT ANNIVERSARY

SK010502 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0000 GMT 1 Mar 82

[NODONG SINMUN 1 March editorial: "Let Us Take Nation-Saving Measures by Joining the Efforts of All Patriotic Forces"]

[Text] Today is the 63d anniversary of the 1 March uprising. On 1 March 1919, our people, resisting the Japanese imperialists' barbarous, tyrannical rule and their policy of exterminating the people, rose in a mass struggle throughout the country, including Seoul and Pyongyang.

The 1 March people's uprising was the eruption of the pent-up rancor of our people against the brigandish Japanese imperialists who forced our people to suffer slavery and poverty and against their colonial rule and was a courageous pan-national anti-Japanese struggle to achieve the independence and sovereignty of the country. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Through the 1 March movement, our people demonstrated to the world's people that the Korean people are alive, that they do not want a life of national ruin and that they are resolved to win victory in the struggle to achieve freedom and independence.

By courageously struggling to demand the withdrawal of the aggressors and the independence of the country, defying the bestial tyranny of bayonets by the Japanese imperialist military and police forces armed to the teeth, the uprising masses vigorously demonstrated our people's heroic spirit of rejecting the imperialist aggressors and their indomitable fighting spirit of braving hardships. Through the struggle to achieve the freedom and independence of the fatherland, our people demonstrated at home and abroad their ardent patriotism, unity and self-reliant spirit, severely chastised the aggressors and traitors and dealt great blows at the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule. Because of the absence of the leader's leadership and correct struggle strategy and tactics, however, the uprising was thwarted by the Japanese imperialists' barbarous armed offensive. The 1 March uprising afforded a precious lesson that, to win victory in the struggle to achieve the independence of the masses, we should follow the leadership of a revolutionary party which adopts the revolutionary idea of an outstanding leader as a guideline and possesses a correct struggle program, strategy and tactics.

The desire of our people for freedom and liberation was brilliantly fulfilled when the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation and a legendary hero, taking responsibility for the destiny of the fatherland and the people and taking the lead in the Korean revolution, invented the immortal chuche idea and illuminated the future path of the people with the resplendent ray of this idea. Based on a scientific analysis of the historic lesson of the preceding nationalist movement in our country and of the initial-stage communist movement, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song developed the way toward national liberation, relying on the strength of the masses of the people, set forth a chuche-type revolutionary line and victoriously organized the protracted and grim anti-Japanese armed struggle, thus defeating the brigandish Japanese imperialists and achieving the historic cause for the liberation of the fatherland--the long-cherished desire of the 1 March uprisers and our people.

By leading the revolution and construction to achieve the independence of the working people, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song enacted an epochal change in the northern half of the country following liberation, enhanced the dignity and position of our people to the highest level and ushered in a new era of great national prosperity in the fatherland. With the guidance of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party center, our people are now brilliantly carrying out the cause for imbuing society with the chuche idea. Because of the military occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists, who have crept there, relieving the Japanese imperialists, and because of their policy of aggression, however, the history of national suffering has been repeated in South Korea without fulfilling the ardent desire of the 1 March uprisers.

While remaining in South Korea and clinging to the policy of aggression and war, the U.S. imperialists, who have converted South Korea into a colonial, military base and have brought immeasurable disasters on our people by provoking an aggressive war against the northern half, are maneuvering to fulfill their aggressive wild desire for the whole of Korea by holding on to South Korea forever and using it as a stronghold. To achieve their criminal aim, the U.S. imperialists have converted South Korea into a military stronghold and a nuclear base where armed forces are massed and have committed military provocations and continuously staged adventurous war exercises against our republic.

A large-scale military exercise called Team Spirit 82 and staged by the U.S. imperialists since 13 February with the mobilization of aggressive forces from South Korea, the U.S. mainland, Japan and the Pacific and the puppet armed forces is in fact an experimental and preliminary war designed to start a new war in our country.

While accelerating war preparations in South Korea and repeatedly holding war conferences under the pretext of security consultative meetings and a study of a contingency in the Far East, the U.S. imperialists have strengthened military collusion with Japan and instigated the South Korean puppets to the adventurous road of a new war.

Supported by the U.S. imperialists and joining in their policy for Korea, the Japanese reactionaries have strengthened a plan for a reinvasion of South Korea. The Japanese reactionaries, who have crept into South Korea in a full-fledged manner after signing the criminal South Korea-Japan agreement and have accelerated their maneuvers to politically dominate and economically subjugate South Korea, have brazenly strengthened their military collusion with the Chon Tu-hwan puppets under the signboard of South Korea-Japan Security Incorporation and South Korea-Japan common destiny. Having infiltrated their monopolist capitalists into South Korea under the pretext of economic cooperation, they have grasped and subjugated the lifeline of the South Korea economy, thus deeply extending the tentacles of reinvasion.

Foreign forces policy of aggression against South Korea has been implemented through the use of the minority of the South Korean rulers who cannot represent any of the Korean people. While historically introducing and maintaining in the country the U.S. and Japanese aggressors and sacrificing the interests of the people for foreign forces' aggressive goals, the South Korean rulers have maintained their power, protected by these foreign forces.

Because of the treachery of these forces, which have colluded with foreign forces, the division of the people has continued in our country. In particular, the Chon Tu-hwan ring is the most wicked executor of the U.S. imperialists' colonial policy and the most dirty, treacherous group. The fascist military Chon Tu-hwan clique, which has converted South Korea into a desolate graveyard of democracy through a barbarous military, terrorist rule since its usurpation of power supported by the U.S. imperialists and submerged Kwangju in a sea of blood, has persistently prevented the country's reunification--the people's long-cherished desire--by following the U.S. and Japanese masters' maneuvers for war and division.

The proposal, which traitor Chon Tu-hwan has recently brought up under the cloak of reunification, babbling about a general election and pilot projects, is a product fabricated in accordance with the scenario for the U.S. imperialists' two Koreas policy. As a matter of fact, the plan for a general election brought up by him is an empty theory copied from a political textbook. The plan for the signing of an interim agreement on basic relations between the North and South is one for perpetual division--one designed to fabricate two countries through the imitation of others.

Most of the 20-point pilot projects are very small parts of the proposal which we have already advanced to achieve collaboration and exchanges between the north and south. They have made this proposal to use it as a shield to maintain division under the signboard of reunification.

To conceal his true color as a splittist, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has belatedly clamored about a general election and pilot projects. Because of the aggressive maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the Japanese reactionaries, which have daily become more brazen, and because of the treacherous acts committed by the Chon Tu-hwan ring instigated by them, greater obstacles have been laid of the path of the fatherland's reunification, and the danger of perpetual division has arisen.

The situation urgently demands that our people jointly check and thwart aggression by foreign forces and the South Korean puppets' treacherous acts and quickly take nation-saving measures to accelerate the cause for the country's reunification.

Defining it as the greatest national task to reunify the fatherland and firmly persisting in the principled stance to reunify the fatherland by democratic and peaceful means on the principle of independence since the first day of the country's artificial division, our party, which shoulders the heavy responsibility for the fate of the fatherland and nation, has repeatedly advanced realistic and reasonable reunification proposals at every stage of the situation and has made all possible sincere efforts for their realization.

The reunification proposals advanced by our party include all problems, large and small, ranging from humanitarian problem of alleviating the sufferings of separated families and relatives to the problems of removing the barriers between the north and the south, of achieving manysided collaboration and exchanges between the north and the south, of eliminating the difficulties lying on the road leading national reunification through a wide negotiation between the north and the south and of establishing a unified central government through general elections on democratic principles.

Our party, which has pioneered the road of national reunification, seeking all possible and realistic proposals and ways for promoting the reunification of the country, advanced a new epochal proposal in the early 1980's for reunifying the country by founding a confederal state, leaving the two systems in the north and the south as they are.

The proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK], which enables all Koreans who love the country and the nation to join their efforts in restoring the sovereignty of the country irrespective of the differences in ideology, system, religion and political group, is a most realistic and reasonable one which can solve the reunification question in conformity with the demands of the reality and the situation of the country, the interests of the nation and the cause of peace in Korea and Asia.

Recently, the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] put forward another important proposal for convening a 100-man joint conference of politicians in the north and the south and abroad as a national salvation measure to discuss all possible proposals for reunification, including the proposal for founding the DCRK, and to overcome the difficulties lying on the road of reunification.

The CPRF proposal, reflecting the desire of the nation for reunification and the demand of the times, is an opportune and realistic one and is arousing wide repercussion at home and abroad.

The reunification question cannot be solved with the South Korean rulers seeking division. The relations between the north and the south, too, cannot be improved with them. The South Korean rulers are responding to our sincere efforts to seek ways for the country's peaceful reunification with policies of anticommunism and war for North-South confrontation. Thus, they are trying to lay a barrier between the north and the south.

Even at this moment they are kicking off anticommunist rackets and are staging a large-scale war exercise. Thus they are inspiring war hysteria and heightening tension. Such acts cannot be compatible with the words "peaceful reunification" that they clamor about.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring, with its ugly nature as splittist and butcher of the nation, must stop the shameless act of trying to participate at the dialogue table for reunification. To make dialogue serve reunification, those who seek division should be eliminated and those who aspire for reunification should sit together.

The proposal for convening a 100-man joint conference was put forward, reflecting this demand. When the joint conference is convened and politicians in the north and the south and abroad sit in one place, frankly and openly exchange their views and join efforts to seek measures for national salvation in common, the present difficulties can be overcome and a new situation for reunification can be opened.

The 100-man joint conference should be convened at the earliest possible date. The South Korean rulers should not hinder the politicians from participating in the conference. They should release illegally arrested and detained politicians, guarantee freedom for their political activities and ensure all necessary conditions so that they can participate in the conference.

The South Korean rulers should not continue pursuing division but make the U.S. forces--which are the main obstacle to the reunification of our country--withdraw from South Korea. They should realize the democratization of South Korean society and stop the anticommunism and confrontation rackets.

The U.S. imperialists are the ringleaders hindering our national reunification. The forcible occupation by the U.S. imperialist forces of South Korea and their policy of aggression and war are basic obstacles hindering the reunification of the fatherland, are a basic factor disturbing peace in Korea and are the source of all misfortune and sufferings of the South Korean people.

The U.S. imperialists should immediately halt the policy of aggression and war against our people and should withdraw from South Korea without delay, taking along all aggressive armed forces.

The Japanese reactionaries, too, should give up their delusion of restoring their old position as colonial rulers in South Korea with the support of the U.S. imperialists and using the Chon Tu-hwan ring as guide and should take their hands of reinvasion off South Korea.

Our people's aspiration for national reunification is firm. No splittist forces can frustrate the aspiration of our people for reunification nor can they block our people's efforts to achieve national prosperity by pooling the strength of the north and the south.

We will surely smash the schemes of domestic and foreign splittists against reunification with the united patriotic forces of the compatriots in the north and south and abroad and achieve the historic cause of national reunification under the banner of great national unity.

MEETING MARKS 1 MARCH UPRISING

SK020402 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0348 GMT 2 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 2 Mar (KCNA)--A Pyongyang meeting commemorating the 63d anniversary of the March 1 popular uprising was held at the Moranbong Theatre on March 1.

Placed on the platform of the meeting hall was a portrait of the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song.

The meeting was attended by Comrade Ho Chong-suk, secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and Presidium member of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland, and Chong Sin-hyok, chairman of the Central Committee of the Chondoist Chongu Party, Yo Yon-ku, director of the secretariat of the Central Committee of the DFRF, Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland, Yom Kuk-yol, vice-chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean Social Democratic Party, and other leading personnel of power bodies and working peoples organisations and working people in the city.

Yo Yon-ku, director of the secretariat of the C.C., DFRF, made a report at the meeting.

She noted that the popular uprising which broke out as a nationwide anti-Japanese resistance on March 1, 1919, was a patriotic struggle in which all people, workers and peasants, intellectuals and students, men and women, rose for the independence of the country and the freedom of the nation, irrespective of the differences in ideology and idea, political view and religious belief.

Sixty-three years have passed since the March 1 popular uprising and 37 years since the surrender of Japanese imperialism. But, she said, South Korea is now being reduced to a dual colony of U.S. imperialism and Japanese militarism.

She denounced the never-to-be-condoned treacheries committed by traitor Chon Tu-hwan outdistancing his predecessors by far since he grabbed power at the point of the bayonet with the backing of U.S. imperialism and appeared on the scene as a new fascist dictator.

She continued: In order to take back the lost national sovereignty in South Korea, foreign aggression and interference must be rejected.

The U.S. imperialists must give up the foolish design to keep hold on South Korea forever as their colony and military base and get out of South Korea at once, taking along their troops and nuclear weapons.

The Japanese reactionaries must also discard the foolish ambition to take the position of the second colonial ruler in South Korea and invade the whole of Korea and Asia, availing themselves of the U.S. imperialists policy of aggression, and stop encouraging the military hooligans of South Korea to fascism, war and division any longer.

Pointing out that the joint conference of 100 politicians in the north and south and abroad proposed by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland would be an excellent forum of negotiations for breaking through the present deadlock in the way of reunification and smoothly solving all problems related to the country's reunification, the reporter expressed the hope that the nominated politicians in South Korea and overseas would actively respond to our call.

'NODONG SINMUN' RECALLS KIM GUIDANCE TO COMMUNISTS

SK271043 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1023 GMT 27 Feb 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 27 Feb (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today dedicates an article to the 46th anniversary of the publication of "The Tasks of Communists in the Strengthening and Development of the Anti-Japanese National-Liberation Struggle," a historic report delivered by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the meeting of the military and political cadres of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army which was held in Nanhutou on February 27, 1936.

In an article titled "Classic Document Indicating Road to Great Upsurge of General Korean Revolution" the paper says: In the work the great leader clarified important strategic tasks facing the Korean communists at that time.

Saying that the master of the Korean revolution is Korean communists, he stressed that the important task of Korean communists is to firmly build up the Korean People's Revolutionary Forces and further develop the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle with the mobilization of all forces.

To thoroughly establish chuche and strengthen the internal revolutionary forces in every way posed a pressing question in opposing all brands of opportunism including factionalism and flunkeyism obstructive to the Korean revolution and leading it to a great upsurge on a nation-wide scale in those days.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth a policy and ways for carrying out the strategic tasks facing the Korean communists.

He said that in order to lead the Korean revolution as a whole to a great upsurge the main force of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army must be shifted to the border areas and the armed struggle be extended into the homeland.

He also stressed the need to further expand and develop the anti-Japanese national united front movement.

To this end, he said, there must be an anti-Japanese national united front organisation with a comprehensive and standing structure embracing all mass organisations of various classes and strata and anti-Japanese patriotic forces of all walks of life.

He laid stress on actively stepping up the organizational and ideological preparations for founding a party on a nation-wide scale in order to effect a great upsurge in the Korean revolution as a whole.

Underlining the significance of the work, the article says: the work contributed to more thoroughly establishing chuche in all activities of the Korean communists and people and bringing the Korean revolution as a whole centering around the anti-Japanese armed struggle to a higher stage.

This work is a classic document which, together with many other works published by the great leader in the period of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, made an undying contribution to the development of the anti-Japanese national-liberation struggle of the Korean people and the Korean communist movement, stresses the article.

RURAL THESES ANNIVERSARY NOTED

SK251528 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 25 Feb 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 25 Feb (KCNA)--Papers here today dedicate editorial to the 18th anniversary of the publication of "Theses on the Socialist Rural Question in Our Country" by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

In an editorial captioned "Let Us Make Vigorous Endeavours to Completely Carry Out Tasks Set Forth in the Rural Theses" NODONG SINMUN stresses that the publication of the rural theses by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was an epochal event of momentous significance in the revolutionary struggle of our people for socialist and communist construction and in the development of the revolutionary theory of the working class.

The editorial says: In the theses the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song gave a unique exposition of the character and revolutionary nature of the rural question in socialist society and, on its basis, brightly indicated a straight path to thoroughly carry out the three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural, in the countryside, strengthen the guidance and assistance of the working-class party and state to the countryside in every way, bring the level of guidance and management of agriculture and ownership in this domain up to the advanced level of industry and eliminate the differences between town and country and distinctions between the working class and the peasantry and thus finally solve the rural question.

The publication of the rural theses, the great programme of socialist rural construction in which chuche-oriented principles and ways for the solution of the socialist rural question are consummated, provided a powerful ideological and theoretical weapon in successfully solving the peasant and agricultural questions and dynamically pushing forward the socialist and communist construction and made it possible for our people to accelerate their historic march toward the complete victory of socialism with flying colors.

Pointing out that proud changes have taken place in the socialist rural construction thanks to the tireless efforts of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the tested leadership of the party, the editorial stresses that today our agricultural working people are firmly armed with the chuche idea, the revolutionary idea of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, and closely rallied around the party.

As a result of the vigorous efforts to carry out the major tasks of the rural technical revolution, the comprehensive mechanisation and chemicalisation of our agriculture are nearing completion to bring about a decisive advance in the industrialisation and modernisation of agriculture, the general technical and cultural level of the farmers has markedly risen, the editorial notes, and continues:

Although the serious adverse influence of the cold front is persistent and an agricultural crisis, a food crisis, is sweeping the world, our country advancing under the rays of the rural theses has increased agricultural production every year at a leaping tempo and has achieved self-sufficiency in food with a limited area of cultivated land.

Indeed, the big advance and leap made in the socialist rural construction and agricultural production in the past clearly prove that the rural question can be finally solved and our countryside be converted into a better and more prospering communist paradise only by following the rural theses published by the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the wise guidance of the party.

The editorial calls for making redoubled efforts to completely translate the great rural theses into practice, while consolidating the shining successes already achieved in the course of implementing it under the leadership of the party.

An editorial of MINJU CHOSON is titled "Let Us Effect New Turn in Socialist Rural Construction and Agricultural Production by Thoroughly Implementing the Great Rural Theses."

'NODONG SINMUN' ON INDUSTRIAL GUIDANCE SYSTEM

SK250328 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2230 GMT 23 Feb 82

[NODONG SINMUN 24 February editorial: "Let Us Fully Display the Superiority of the New Industrial Guidance System"]

[Text] Owing to a wise step taken by the party, a new turn is being brought about in industrial guidance and management. Despite its relatively short history, the new industrial guidance system aimed at implementing the Taean work system is fully displaying its vitality. This shows the superiority of the system reflecting the demand of the prevailing situation.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: This year, in accordance with the requirement of the new industrial guidance system, we must enhance the function and role of provincial economic guidance committees and other state economic guidance organizations and improve the working method of the economic guidance functionaries. By so doing, we must bring about a decisive turn in economic guidance work.

Based on deep insight into the situation of our economic development gained through extraordinary wisdom and scientific analysis, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song last year took the epochal step of improving the industrial guidance system for better implementation of the Taean work system.

As a result, provincial economic guidance committees were organized and a unique, new industrial guidance system under which each province exercises jurisdiction over industrial affairs in the province under the unified guidance of the central government was established.

The new industrial guidance system is the most superior industrial guidance system of our own type which allows us to render more realistic economic guidance and correctly mesh the unified guidance of the central government with the creativity of local government and, thus, makes it possible to thoroughly implement the Taean work system.

This is vindicated by the reality in which the new industrial guidance system is being brilliantly applied. It is one of the major requirements of the Taean work system to make economic guidance reach the lower units. In accordance with the new industrial guidance system, competent functionaries who are fully oriented in their work and prepared politically go down to production sites and make themselves fully familiar with the situation to conduct industrial management and work out production plans. As a result, problems are solved swiftly. Better scientific guidance is rendered.

Owing to the new system, the unified and planned guidance of the state is being more properly rendered, and creativity and a sense of responsibility of the economic guidance functionaries more fully displayed. In particular, the sense of responsibility and creativity of the functionaries of provincial economic guidance committees and economic organizations of the party and state are being fully displayed. As a result, hidden potential and reserves of the local areas are being fully mobilized and exploited for the implementation of the state plan.

This is a clear distinction of the superiority of the new industrial guidance system. Meanwhile, party guidance--the political guidance--over the economic work is being intensified, and, in particular, the provincial party committees are vigorously carrying out their economic tasks. Thus, our party's leadership is being more vigorously exercised over socialist economic construction, and new upsurges are being brought about in production and construction.

The superiority of the new industrial guidance system must be fully displayed in the accomplishment of the grand program of the Sixth Party Congress and the acceleration of the 2d 7-Year Plan. Nothing is more important.

Owing to the socialist economic construction of our country vigorously carried out under the wise leadership of the party, our industrial production capacity has grown incomparably, and the level of technology and equipment has been remarkably upgraded.

Only when we fully display the superiority of the new industrial guidance system can our powerful economic foundation be effectively utilized to successfully achieve the 2d 7-Year Plan and the new long-range goals of the party ahead of schedule.

The party organizations and functionaries must turn out in the struggle to display the superiority of the chuche-type industrial guidance system which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song created uniquely in conformity with the changing situation.

What is most important for displaying the superiority of the new industrial guidance system is to uphold the party's leadership to bring about a new turn in economic guidance work and to persistently struggle to this end. Our party is carrying out the plan for the acceleration of our general march through the consolidation of the new industrial guidance system of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the manifestation of its superiority. The guidance functionaries must get acquainted with the party's plans and intent reflected in the industrial guidance system and display a sense of being positive and unconditional.

Thanks to the great trust of our party, the functionaries of provincial economic guidance committees are in charge of the important posts of the revolution. The party's expectation is, indeed, great.

The functionaries of provincial economic guidance committees must be fully aware that only through their work can the party's plan to bring about an epochal turn in economic guidance and management bear fruit. They must carry out their work with a great sense of responsibility and in a creative way.

In particular, they must study party work entrusted to them to work out specific measures to accomplish it and make all efforts to carry out the work by themselves.

Enhancing the function and role of the state economic guidance organizations is an important requirement to display the superiority of the new industrial guidance system established for implementation of the Taean work system.

Today, in application of the new industrial guidance system, provincial economic guidance committees and state economic guidance organizations play an important role. Only when the state economic guidance organizations upgrade their function and role can the superiority of the new economic system be displayed and, in this jubilant year, can a decisive turn be brought about in economic guidance work in response to the call of the party.

The provincial economic guidance committees are state economic organizations functioning at production sites. Therefore, it is more important than anything else to upgrade the role of the provincial economic guidance committees.

As the economic guidance organizations conducting industrial management and production guidance for the plants and enterprises of the provinces, the provincial economic guidance committees must exercise complete supervision over the plants and enterprises, swiftly solve their problems and further intensify production organization and guidance. In particular, they must correctly define the function of the departments and divisions of the committee and see to it that they properly carry out their role and function in accord with the established definition.

The rule of the ministries of the state administration council in application of the new industrial guidance system is also heavy and great. In accord with the requirements of the new industrial guidance system, the ministries of the state administration council must responsibly accomplish their revolutionary mission in order to display the superiority of the system. In this regard, the ministries must render proper technical guidance and meticulously plan and implement cooperative production, supply work and export work. In particular, they must properly support the provincial economic guidance committees in line with the demand of the party and, in cooperation with each province, render effective support for plants and enterprises.

Improvement of the work method of the economic guidance functionaries is one of the key factors for displaying the superiority of the new economic guidance system. Functionaries must meet with the people and mobilize them to solve problems. This is a basic principle of the work method of our party and a demand of the new industrial guidance system which has embodied the revolutionary line of the people. If economic guidance functionaries are unfamiliar with the situation and do not rely on the people, nothing can be accomplished.

One of the important aims of the new industrial guidance system of our party is to have functionaries become fully acquainted with the situation, have them mobilize the creativity of the people in a political way and bring about new upsurges in economic construction by depending on the revolutionary zeal of the people. The economic guidance functionaries must be fully aware of this intent of the party, boldly do away with obsolete work methods and style and make it a habit to visit the plants and enterprises. With bold operations and competent leadership and through efficient political work, they must let their subordinates and people fully understand the intent of the party and mobilize the revolutionary zeal and creativity of the people to brilliantly implement the party's economic policy.

Enhancing the role of the provincial party committees is also an important requirement for displaying the superiority of the new industrial guidance system.

Success of socialist economic construction entirely depends on intensification of the party's guidance.

The role which the provincial party committees should play in application of the new industrial guidance system is incomparably great and important. As the primary master of economic work in the province, the provincial party committees must assume responsibility in carrying out the struggle to implement the party's economic policy and render effective support for accomplishment of the economic work and the state plan entrusted to their province.

At the same time, they must make functionaries and working people fully understand the revolutionary nature, superiority and basic requirements of the new industrial guidance system and, in particular, render proper guidance to the functionaries of the provincial economic guidance committees so they may fully demonstrate their abilities and organizing power at the revolutionary posts entrusted to them by the party.

The new industrial guidance system, which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has uniquely created, helps display the economic might of the country and enables us to more thoroughly implement the great Taean work system. It is a powerful weapon for accelerating socialist economic construction at a rapid pace.

By fully displaying the superiority of the new industrial guidance system, the party organizations and functionaries must further spur the grand march of our people who are advancing with the speed of chollima in waging the speed battle.

ENGINEERING INDUSTRY IN COUNTRY DESCRIBED

SK280445 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1531 GMT 27 Feb 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 27 Feb (KCNA)--The workers and technicians in the domain of the engineering industry of Korea are these days producing quantities of machines needed for grand nature-remaking projects.

The Yongsong Machine Complex is assembling many compressors to be used in the construction of the Taechon power station and the Nampo lock gate and the September 28 Factory is producing many pumps of different types, dump cargo boats and travelling repair cars with combined equipment. The Nakwon machine plant and the August 9 Factory are concentrating efforts on the production of machines and equipment needed for grand nature-remaking projects.

Today Korea's engineering industry produces not only separate machine units and pieces of equipment for various domains of the national economy but also complete sets of equipment for outfitting modern factories.

The proportion of the engineering industry in the country's industrial production rose from 5.1 per cent in 1946 to 33.7 per cent in 1977.

It was a few years ago that the nation's self-sufficiency in machinery rose to 98 per cent.

Korea's engineering industry has all branches from the production of machine tools to the production of electric machines, electronic and automatic equipment and its inner departmental structure is well harmonized and equipped with new technology.

Korea produces such machines as 20 metre large turning lathe, automatic lathe, 6,000-ton press, 4,200 h.p. locomotive, 2,500 h.p. engine, four cubic metre excavator and 300 h.p. bulldozer and various other machines needed in different domains of the national economy.

The engineering industry has now entered the road of comprehensive automation.

During the Second Seven-Year Plan (1978-1984) the annual production of machinery will reach 5 million tons.

ACHIEVEMENTS IN RURAL AREAS PRAISED

SK260145 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1530 GMT 25 Feb 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 25 Feb (KCNA)--Today is the 18th anniversary of the publication of "Theses on the Socialist Rural Question in Our Country" by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

In the theses, the great leader gave comprehensive answers to all problems arising in the final solution of the socialist rural question, such as the problems of thoroughly carrying out the technical, cultural and ideological revolutions in the rural areas, strengthening in every way the working class leadership of the peasantry and the assistance of industry to agriculture and continuously bringing the guidance and management of agriculture closer to the advanced level of enterprise management of industry.

A great change has taken place in the rural areas of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea over the last 18 years under the rays of the rural theses.

As a result of the dynamic progress of the three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural, the ideological and moral traits of the peasants have changed beyond recognition and the material and technical foundations of agriculture grown solid as never before.

Under the rays of the rural theses, irrigation and electrification have already been completed and mechanization and chemicalization are nearing completion in our countryside.

Big and small irrigation networks including the Pyongnam, Kiyang and Ojidon irrigation setups feed all fields from the plain area to tableland.

These irrigation setups not only supply water to their respective areas but also form a big rotating system to supply water with each other.

In recent years, the success in irrigation has been consolidated thanks to the completion of a number of large irrigation projects with the powerful assistance of the heavy industry and the implementation of the five-point policy of nature-remaking and the policy of making revolution in utilising underground water set forth by the Workers Party of Korea.

Solid foundations have been laid in the rural areas of Korea to guarantee a stable farming immune from flood and drought damages under whatever adverse weather conditions.

All the farm villages and houses are supplied with electricity and electric power is widely used in agricultural work. Now the Korean countryside consumes 1,700 million kWh of electricity a year.

Efficient farm machines, chemical fertilizers and agricultural medicines are supplied to the countryside in abundance and a big progress has been made in industrializing and modernizing agriculture.

The number of tractors in the agricultural domain reached 7 per 100 hectares of arable land in the plain area and 6 in the in-between and mountainous areas.

The application of chemical fertilizers per hectare of paddy and non-paddy fields amounted to over 1.5 tons, 0.5 tons more than the target set in the rural theses.

In particular, the most advanced and scientific chuche method of farming created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is fully applied.

As a result, the per unit output has been boosted through the most effective use of land, water, farm machines, chemical fertilizers and other means of agricultural production and abundant and stable crops are reaped year after year despite the influence of the cold front.

The nothern half of Korea which produced 2,160,000 tons of grain at most before liberation produced more than 7 million tons in 1974 and 9 million tons in 1979.

Food problem has long been completely solved in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, which has turned into a country with food enough and to spare from a country short of food.

DKP, KNP DEMAND IMMEDIATE LIFT OF POLITICAL BAN

SK030056 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 3 Mar 82 p 1

[Text] The minority Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and the Korea National Party (KNP) demanded that the government remove immediately the eight-year political ban on former politicians in a plenary session of the National Assembly yesterday.

Rep. Kim Kyon-kyu, chief policy maker of the DKP, and Rep. Yon Sok-min, a vice president of the KNP, claimed in their respective interpellations of the administration that prompt measures to allow politicians of the past to resume their political activities would be necessary to cure what they called old political sores and to achieve national harmony.

Rep. Na Sok-ho, chief policy maker of the majority Democratic Justice Party, inquired of the government about the ways of realizing President Chon Tu-hwan's new unification formula, future relations between the administration and the assembly, and over-all economic affairs.

The three lawmakers from the major political parties questioned the government separately, representing their parties in the session, on a wide range of state policies with all cabinet members, including Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun attending.

Rep. Na asked Prime Minister Yu to make public how the government would put into practice its series of new proposals to North Korea for peaceful unification and to explain the North Korean attitude to the overtures.

Viewing that there were still not a few problems to be corrected in the Japanese attitude toward Korea, the DJP policy maker queried the government about its countermeasures against such a posture in the days ahead.

He also asked the premier about the government plan to reduce foreign loans, and to support private businesses in terms of technical renovation, which would be the only way to survive the sharpest-ever international competition.

Rep. Kim of the DKP asked the government if it was willing to consent to his party's policy to rewrite politics-related laws such as the National Assembly law and election laws, insisting that amendments to these laws would help invigorate national politics.

In this 40-minute interpellation, the DKP chief policy maker argued that without active competitive politics among the parties, political stability could not be achieved, charging the monopoly of political funds by the majority party.

He urged the government to enforce at once the local autonomy system as stipulated in the constitution. He said that a democratic state without practical application of the system was something like skyscraper whose foundation was not solid.

Turning to economic problems, he said that the government was required to restore the people's trust in its economic policies first, asking the premier about its idea of repaying "excessive" foreign debts.

Rep. Yun of the KNP proposed in his interpellation the establishment of a "special committee on politics" in the assembly, which would study factors hampering political development.

He said that efforts should be made to improve the "unreasonable" election laws, the essential condition for free democracy.

DJP STANDS PAT ON POLICY TOWARDS BANNED POLITICIANS

SK050639 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 4 Mar 82 p 2

[From the Column "News Behind News"]

[Text] At the interpellations made by the three major party representatives' on the afternoon of 2 March, the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] cadres generally showed a big-hearted attitude, saying: "Generally speaking, the contents of the interpellations have been satisfactory. The problems raised by the opposition parties turned out just as we had expected."

However, floor leader Yi Chong-chan seemed in an ill humor, saying: "A representative from the Korea National Party asserted that the president should stand aloof from the party affairs and the ruling party should produce prime ministers. I wonder if he advocates adopting a parliamentary cabinet system."

In the meantime, Secretary General Kwon Chong-tal said: "Answers given by the government side were satisfactory. In particular, Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun's answer to the question concerning those whose political activities are restricted was quite adequate." He repeatedly stressed his party's stand on this matter by saying: "Those who brought about political chaos and had left an unfavorable impression of politics on the people should hold themselves responsible for it."

He also said: "We are trying to show people that the DJP is really conducting political affairs in a clean manner so that we can win in the future elections four years hence."

In the meanwhile, the DJP, which volunteered to discontinue publishing its party organ--MINJONGDANGBO--last year because of the atmosphere in the elections, is going to resume publishing it on monthly basis starting this month.

ROK GOVERNMENT STILL OPPOSED TO LIFTING POLITICAL BAN

[Article by Cho Pyung-pil]

[Text] The government has made its stance clear that it is still premature to consider giving clemency to former politicians on the ground that they should be held accountable for past era corrupt politics, feuds, and fostering national incongruity.

Testifying during a National Assembly plenary session, Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun showed a negative reaction to the demands of lawmakers from minority parties (the Democratic Korea Party and the Korea National Party) for immediate lifting of the eight-year political ban on them.

He declared clearly the government's intention not to allow the "political outcasts" to engage in political activities in the near future as early removal of the ban would do considerable damage to the clean politics that has been created as a result of socio-political reforms.

Likewise, the government excluded those who had been convicted of involvement in campus disturbances from the list for the special amnesty it granted to 2,863 convicts on the occasion of the first anniversary of the birth of the fifth republic.

This action appeared to be based on the government's belief that campuses must not be used as the bases for either political instability or social turmoil and that an atmosphere must be guaranteed fully for the pursuit of studies.

Highlighting Tuesday's lenient measure were benefits given to those convicted of martial law violations in the transition period preceding the birth of the fifth republic, and to others involved in the Kim Tae-chung conspiracy of rebellion, the plot to assassinate former President Pak Chong-hui the Kwangju turmoil, and its Pusan-Masan demonstrations in 1979.

Among them are Kim Tae-chung whose life term was commuted to 20 years in prison; former secretary-general to the late President Pak, Kim Kye-won, whose prison term was reduced to 10 years from 20 years; and Ye Chun-ho, a former lawmaker, who was granted special conditional release.

The large-scale presidential clemency, which indicates a strong government intention to consolidate national harmony, was the eighth of its kind the government has granted since the inauguration of President Chon Tu-hwan as the 11th-term president in September, 1980.

On 23 January, last year, President Chon commuted the death sentence of Kim Tae-chung to life imprisonment and 11 co-defendants also saw their terms commuted.

A special pardon attests to the president's belief that complete elimination of the antagonism and strife that characterized the old era is necessary to enhance national unity and harmony, while speedily healing the scars of national chaos that erupted at the beginning of the 1980s, as made public by Culture-Information Minister Yi Kwang-pyo.

Korea's allies, including the United States, and foreign news media commented on the sweeping amnesty, terming it further progress toward the normalization of political life through the realization of national reconciliation. It also shows the confidence of the incumbent government in all fields.

The presidential clemency included a special amnesty (1,419 convicts); special commutations (545); and special conditional releases (15). It also benefitted 238 others for restoration of their civil rights; 514 who have been released on parole; and 132 others set free from juvenile reformatories on probation.

The chief executive has the right to grant amnesty, commutation and restoration of rights in accordance with Article 54 of the Constitution.

SEOUL DAILY WELCOMES GOVERNMENT'S AMNESTY MEASURE

SK040047 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 4 Mar 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Amnesty for Reintegration"]

[Text] The general pardon granted yesterday to a large group of convicts including many former antigovernment dissidents and rioters is a significant step toward national solidarity and rapport with the one-year-old fifth republic forging toward the goal of a liberal and viable welfare state.

In observance of the first anniversary of President Chon taking office, the extensive amnesty affects a total of 2,863 convicts, with varying conditions--release from jail, commutation of sentence or rehabilitation of civil rights. Chief among the pardoned were those involved in the mass disturbances during the troubled months of transition following the death of the late President Pak.

Most of those serving prison terms or under other constraints in connection with the Pusan-Masan demonstrations in 1979, the Sabuk miners protest and the turmoil in Kwangju in 1980 were given relief or respite from their sentences. This show of clemency by the government befits the occasion of the fifth republic's birthday.

In announcing the move the government spokesman said it is ready to continue on the clemency course in the hope of letting the past offenders rehabilitate themselves and join in building a democratic and welfare state. It is deemed both necessary and desirable to afford them a second chance and seek to heal the wounds of the disruptive aftermath of the fourth republic.

The first year of the new government led by President Chon has gone a long way toward cleaning up the administration and laying the groundwork for a second takeoff. The formidable task of restoring social stability, undertaking political reforms and pulling through the economic recession was well accomplished, putting the nation back on the right track to sustained growth and development.

Besides the legal incrimination of subversive dissidents and destructive rioters, a series of nationwide housecleaning operations were carried out to denounce the discredited elements in every sector of our society.

Unfortunately in the course of wholesale personnel sifting and retrenchment some may have suffered unwarranted dismissal or other unfair treatment.

It was made clear that limitations on employment had been removed for those who were retired during the cleanup drive. Now all those accused of ineptitude or irregularity and convicted of more serious criminal charges may take advantage of the latest pardon to work together with their fellow countrymen in rebuilding the nation.

Political integration of the people and common commitment to the rules of the game are basic to the survival and development of a modern state along the line of liberal democracy. Diversity without harmony only means divisiveness. Arbitrary activism devoted to narrow and partisan interest will only break down consensus and conciliation.

Unity and cohesiveness are vital to the existence of any nation exposed to the constant peril of aggression. Security backed by domestic tranquility will not be insured unless we stand firmly united and responsive to one another. The pardon given yesterday prompts rethinking on how we can combine our resources to achieve a stable and dynamic nation in harmony.

ROK DAILY MARKS FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF FIFTH REPUBLIC

[Editorial: "Inaugural Anniversary"]

[Text] A year has elapsed since President Chon Tu-hwan assumed office under the banner of the fifth republic, a period that has witnessed vigorous efforts and conspicuous progress in renewed nation building.

He did hold the presidency for the six preceding months as well, yet it was rather a transitional step in the legitimation process of ushering in the new republic, which highlighted extensive reforms and preparatory work including the adoption of the current constitution.

Thus his inauguration as the 12th-term president a year ago today marked in truer sense the opening of a new chapter in the nation's republican history--all the more so as the occasion served to establish the fifth republic, which promises viable democracy, social welfare and justice as its pronounced goals.

It is worth recalling that President Chon pledged in his inaugural address that he would devote himself to achieving freedom from three "great agonies" of the nation--the threat of war, poverty, and political repression and abuses of power--which he said was a prerequisite to building a modern industrial democracy based on sustained national growth and maturity.

This guideline, along with his vow to materialize a peaceful transfer of power at the end of his seven-year tenure, has indeed played a remarkable role in setting the pace for the development of state affairs and national life as a whole in the initial stage of the "new order."

In order to lessen if not dissipate the fear of war the president has made a series of bold and far-reaching overtures for the resolution of inter-Korean problems and ultimate territorial unification, though North Korea has so far turned a deaf ear.

Efforts to that end--and also for the republic's boosted standing and tangible exchanges in the world community--have been reflected in stepped-up diplomacy which featured President Chon's successful tour through the five member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations and summit talks with the heads of a half dozen other governments.

Noteworthy in this respect is that Seoul has been awarded the rights to host the 1986 Asian games and the Olympics two years later, both gigantic international sports events dedicated to the cause of peace.

On the domestic front, the national economy has steadily edged out of the painful slump of recession, which in 1980 registered a negative growth rate, and moreover has seen a sharp drop in the inflationary trend to the extent that the rise of commodity prices this year is hoped to be limited to less than 10 percent.

Sociopolitical development has also been outstanding. In the political arena which now features a multipartisan system, politics through dialogue and compromise has replaced the past mode of confrontation, notably at the National Assembly, to foster national reconciliation and harmony.

The on-going reform campaign has been vivid with primary emphasis placed on wiping out corruption and other social irregularities as well as on streamlining administrative agencies with the motto of "clean, efficient and less government."

Equally conspicuous and probably more significant were various measures for liberalization, ranging from the removal of the 36-year-old curfew and relaxation of regulations on overseas travel by citizens to the heightened respect for private initiative not only in the business world but also in many other social fields.

Underlining these renovations and improvements is the firm leadership in power, that is committed to the well-being and continued development of the nation in all spheres to bring about an advanced industrial democracy.

The achievements of the past year are indeed remarkable. But then, the nation faces enormous tasks and issues in the path of its progress, encompassing both domestic and international developments, which require unswerving endeavors and pool of wisdom with a forward-looking posture.

At close hand, for instance, is the fifth five-year economic and social development plan which, while promising a "second takeoff" in national life, calls for intricate arrangements for its huge investment.

Stability is paramount in the full spectrum of society, and equally essential is stepped-up evolutionary progress including further sociopolitical development to achieve a higher degree of national harmony.

ROK SEEKS TO REDRESS 'UNREASONABLE' LAWS

[Text] Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun said yesterday the government will ease restrictions and redress "unreasonable" laws and systems impeding the people's ability to make the 1980s "a decade of takeoff and open society."

Explaining the direction of reforms for this year in a plenary National Assembly session, Yu said the government, in the first place, will strive to create a foundation for the autonomy of banks.

Preparations are under way to introduce the zero base system in formulating the national budget next year, and the government will "rationalize" the selection of public charges and the level of public care, he said.

The government will further streamline administrative procedures and overhaul the permit system to better serve the people's interests and convenience, he said.

Moreover, the government, the premier said, will consider rectifying various systems detrimental to national growth and development.

Yu then reiterated that he had no intention of recommending to the president to lift the political ban on former politicians, since a hasty removal may hamper efforts to establish a climate for clean politics.

He observed that the people want to create a new society and not to revive the old era.

The businessman-turned-administrator said it is still much too premature to introduce a local autonomy system, because the nation should first achieve sound economic development.

Touching on the drive to expell the "three major negative psychological elements," he said that efforts will be made to eliminate influence peddling, bribery, hoarding and cornering and other evil practices.

He said emphasis will be laid on reforming the psychological makeup of the people in carrying out the reforms.

Corruption and irrationality will be removed from officialdom by making public servants live up to their charter of ethics and oaths of service, he said.

Four lawmakers took the floor on the second day of the five-day interpellation session.

Rep. Mok Yo-sang of the opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) asked the government if it is willing to abrogate the political renovation law which forbids former politicians to engage in political activities until June 1988.

Mok claimed that clemency should be given to "political outcasts" to enable them to come to the forum of dialogue.

Noting an early implementation of local autonomy is essential to democratic development, the DKP lawmaker demanded local autonomy be introduced to Seoul, Pusan, Taegu and Inchon ahead of other districts at the earliest possible date.

He urged the government to formulate fundamental measures to root out anti-Korea acts in foreign countries, deploring the recently unraveled international plot to assassinate President Chon Tu-hwan.

Rep. Hyon Kyong-tae of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) asked the government how it evaluates reform projects carried out in the past year.

The ruling lawmaker argued that the nation should establish its self-identity and reformulate its values within the framework of the strong confidence and pride in "our history and traditions."

Rep. Pak Chae-uk of the opposition Korea National Party (KNP) called for the government to ascertain the rumors that political outcasts will be soon allowed to resume political activities.

Saying there is no reason to delay the implementation of local autonomy, he demanded the government commit itself to the timing for the implementation.

The KNP lawmaker said it will be desirable to create what he called a public safety committee to ensure the independence of the police.

ROK TO UNIFY CHANNEL FOR GOVERNMENT-PARTIES TIES

[Text] Minister of State for Political Affairs Chong Chong-taek said yesterday that the government would unify the channels for cooperaton with political parties in order to handle efficiently petitions and policy recommendations submitted by lawmakers and parties to the administration.

"By implementing the one-channel system, the government will be able to dispose of civil petitions officially," he told a house panel.

Briefing members of the steering committee on his office's policy programs, Minister Chong said that his office would collect all petitions from the parties and turn them over to the pertinent ministries for action based on the ministries' regulations.

All 13 standing committees of the assembly went into session yesterday for the five-day deliberation of the relevant government offices' affairs.

After hearing briefings from the ministries concerned policy programs for 1982 until today, each panel will make interpellation of the ministries until Friday as well as deliberating law bills.

During the panel meetings, four political bills proposed by the Democratic Korea Party are expected to emerge as major points at issue. They are three revisions bills of the National Assembly, basic law on press and local autonomy laws, and recommendation for the removal of a political ban imposed on former politicians.

Minister of State for National Security and Foreign Affairs No Tae-u told the steering committee that his office would hammer out a seven-year integrated Seoul Olympics plan and detailed yearly projects to stage the world sports festival successfully.

Son Su-ik, chief administrative coordinator at the premier's office, also said that an Olympics liaison office would be set up in the premier's office to control work of each ministry to support the Olympics.

An Mu-hyuk, chairman of the Social Cleanup Committee, said that his body would concentrate on launching a pan-national campaign for the expulsion of three negative attitudes--corruption, disorder and inflation--this year.

ROK PARTIES AGREE ON DISCUSSING CONTROVERSIAL BILLS

[Text] Three major political parties agreed yesterday to deliberate on controversial political bills including amendments to the Natonal Assembly, local autonomy and basic press laws during the current special assembly session.

The political bills have been awaiting assembly action since they were initiated by the opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and Korea National Party (KNP) late last year.

The ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) and the opposition DKP and KNP have long been at loggerheads over the rewriting of controversial laws. The DJP, however, remains unchanged in its position that it is still premature to amend the laws, alleging that there is no evidence of shortcomings.

Emerging from a floor leaders' meeting, DJP floor leader Yi Chong-chan said that debates on the KNP-proposed recommendation for a five-day study week for primary schools will be deferred to the next assembly session, while the new system is being tested in Seoul and Pusan.

Deliberations on amendments to the value added tax, bank and financial institution laws, all submitted by the DKP, will be postponed until after the government has presented its own amendments to the laws, Yi said.

The floor leaders of the three major parties decided to reactivate the once dormant ad hoc panel next week to resume debates on the proposed amendments and a recommendation for the removal of the political ban imposed on former politicians, he said.

Twenty of the 50 outstanding bills and one of the two pending recommendations should be settled during the current 16-day sitting, he revealed.

Among the bills to be handled in the present session are amendments to the civil proceedings and administrative punishment, government organization laws.

The floor leaders also agreed to animate the activities of a select assembly subpanel for redressing laws and orders, he said. The special subcommittee was formed during the last regular assembly session to determine which laws are to be amended.

The DJP floor leader said the assembly will convene its committees after the current session ending 13 March to continue studying pending bills.

AGRICULTURE MINISTER DENIES RICE SCANDAL CHARGES

SK100214 Seoul YONHAP in English 0158 GMT 10 Mar 82

[Text] Seoul, 10 Mar (YONHAP)--South Korean Agriculture-Fisheries Minister Ko Kon Tuesday denied that Korean officials were bribed by U.S. rice growing cooperatives.

He said allegations of illegal rice deals were "groundless" and said the reported rice import price manipulation is a byproduct of hectic competition for rice exports among major American grain dealers.

Ko said that under the rice import contract in question, Korea was to import 200,000 tons of California rice in 1981 at 1980 prices, but the delivery of part of the contracted amount was postponed to 1982. A new contract was signed which made the import price lower than stipulated in the original contract, Ko added.

Answering a shower of questions from lawmakers at the National Assembly Agriculture-Fisheries Committee meeting Tuesday night, Ko said the board of audit and inspection has already conducted a thorough investigation of the bribery allegations and no illegalities were found.

During a heated debate at the committee meeting which lasted from 2 p.m. Tuesday through 2:15 a.m. Wednesday, the opposition Democratic Korea Party proposed organizing a subcommittee to look into the allegations further. All committee members from the ruling Democratic Justice Party opposed the proposal and it was rejected.

Opposition lawmakers also demanded that the planned bidding for the import of 370,000 tons of American rice Wednesday be put off indefinitely.

Ko responded that rice imports from the United States should continue, arguing that international agreements should be respected.

Meanwhile, Kim Chu-ho, director of the office of supply, one of the figures named in the bribery scandal, appeared before the committee meeting in an attempt to clear up the allegations. He said he thought the Connel Company, which had monopolized U.S. rice exports to Korea until 1979, fabricated the scandal to regain its monopoly.

The Connel Company was beaten by Permi in obtaining the contract for the 200,000 tons of rice in question.

ROK OFFICIAL DENIES RICE SCANDAL CHARGES

SK091246 Seoul YONHAP in English 1045 GMT 9 Mar 82

[Text] Seoul, 9 Mar (YONHAP)--Kim Chu-ho, chief executive officer of the Korean government office of supply, denied Tuesday reports that two U.S. export companies bribed Korean officials, including himself, with about six million U.S. dollars, for higher rice export prices.

Earlier in the day, the Associated Press reported the case in a dispatch from San Francisco, quoting an antitrust lawsuit filed in a U.S. federal district court.

Kim told reporters the AP story is "totally groundless," and it is only the result of incrimination brought about by intensified competition among some U.S. rice exporters.

Kim confirmed that South Korea contracted in January 1981 to buy 200,000 tons of medium grain brown Californian rice from Pacific International Rice Mills of San Francisco at 449 dollars per ton but that only 130,000 tons of the rice was brought in last year. He said the U.S. company agreed to replace the remainder with cheaper rice grown in 1981, and deliver the shipment this year.

He also said rice prices submitted at the time of bidding ranged from a maximum of 548 dollars a ton to a low of 487 dollars but that his agency managed to cut the minimum price by 37.10 dollars by signing a deal with the U.S. company to buy the rice in question for 449 dollars a ton.

By the time the contracted rice was to be shipped, the price of rice dropped sharply to 350 dollars a ton on international markets because of good harvests in 1981, Kim added.

Meanwhile, Korea's major opposition Democratic Korea Party Tuesday called for organizing an ad hoc parliamentary committee to look into the alleged scandal. Party spokesman Kim Chin-pae said in a statement that the report on the alleged six million-dollar bribe is a case which "might greatly damage the prestige of the 10 million Korean farmers as well as the Korean government."

"To look into the case, a special investigation committee should immediately be formed in the National Assembly," Kim added.

PARTIES FAIL TO AGREE ON OPENING RICE PANEL

SK110202 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 11 Mar 82 p 1

[Text] The minority political groups agreed yesterday to submit to the National Assembly today a resolution for the formation of a special parliamentary committee to inquire of the government about the alleged payoff scandal involving officials of the Office of Supply (OSROK) and a major U.S. rice dealer.

The motion among the Democratic Korea Party, Korea National Party and a fraternal group of independents and lawmakers from small parties is based on Article 74 of the National Assembly law which provides the parliamentary right to look into the administration.

Lawmakers on the Economy-Science Committee heard reports on the alleged bribery scandal from Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song and Kim Chu-ho, director general of OSROK in a session.

They will deal with the overall rice import policies of the government today after they are given more materials about rice imports from the United States.

The majority Democratic Justice Party raised a strong objection to setting up a special house panel.

Nine standing committees of the total 13 went into session yesterday.

In the Finance Committee, Finance Minister Na Ung-pae revealed that the government would take immediate measures to lower the price of Hansando and Eunhasu cigarettes to 330 won per pack from the present 350 won.

In the Legislation-Judiciary Committee, Justice Minister Yi Chong-won said that it was impossible for the government to ask the Canadian government to turn over Choe Hong-hui to Korean police, known as a wirepuller in an international plot to kill President Chon Tu-hwan, because there was no agreement between the two on the extradition of criminal suspects.

RESTRICTION ON COURT PROCEEDINGS--Seoul, 26 Feb--South Korea's Supreme Court Justices have decided to prohibit the video taping, photographing and broadcast relay of court proceedings, without the consent of defendants, it was announced Friday. The regulation, which is to go into effect 10 March, will also require the consent of both defendants and plaintiffs in the case of civil suits. It will not, however, apply to cases where it is deemed by the judge to be in the public interest to allow such actions. Supreme Court officials said the decision to restrict the exposure to the public of court proceedings has been taken to protect the privacy of those undergoing trial and to ensure the order in the courts. PURGED OFFICIALS POLICY EXPLAINED--Seoul, 2 Mar (YONHAP)--South Korean Culture-Information Minister Yi Kwang-pyo Tuesday said officials purged prior to the launching of the fifth republic a year ago were free to apply for any job. The officials were purged between 26 October 1979 and 3 March 1980 for corruption and other irregularities. Noting that the ban on purged officials was lifted last 31 August, Yi said the current law does not prohibit them from working or engaging in social activities. "There are some people who do not know the termination of such prohibition, and it is possible for people who had been fired from officialdom or from state-run firms to return to their previous occupations," Yi added. CELEBRATION OF CHON'S RULE--Seoul, 3 Mar (YONHAP)--President Chon Tu-hwan celebrated the first anniversary of his inauguration as the chief executive of Korea's fifth republic. The first year of Chon's rule saw the restoration of stability after an "unprecedented" social confusion that followed the leadership vacuum which resulted from the assassination of President Pak Chong-hui on October 1979. During the past year, President Con lost no opportunity to pledge a peaceful change of power and to stress the elimination of political corruption and irregularities. The removal of the three-decade-old curfew, the liberalization of regulations regarding uniforms and hair-cuts for secondary school students and the liberalization of overseas travel by ordinary citizens are all results of his promised pursuance of greater "openness and autonomy" for the republic. He demonstrated his strong determination to achieve the unification of the divided peninsula through peaceful means, by inviting North Korea to the dialogue table, to discuss the drafting of a common basic law for a unified Korea. He visited Washington early last year and had summit talks with U.S. President Ronald Reagan at which the two leaders confirmed their joint determination to safeguard peace and security on the Korean peninsula. He also visited the five member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations last year, thus paving the way for stepped-up economic cooperation, and common prosperity among nations in the Pacific basin. In an effort to achieve national conciliation, he granted amnesty six times during the past year to a total of 9,963 persons, including his political opponents. PARTIES EVALUATE CHON'S ACHIEVEMENTS--Political parties evaluated yesterday that political and social stability has been achieved in the past year, laying the foundation for a democratic welfare society. Commenting on the first anniversary of the fifth republic, Pong Tu-hwan, spokesman of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP), said the DJP feels happy to have as its leader President Chon Tu-hwan who has laid the foundation for a democratic welfare society by eliminating the evil practices of the old era. The DJP will faithfully perform its duty to help strengthen the foundation of Chon's leadership, he said. Yi Sung-il, spokesman of the opposition Korea National Party (KNP), said the government and the ruling DJP should make more positive efforts to enhance national solidarity by creating an atmosphere for unreserved discussion on state affairs. Kim Sun-kyu, spokesman of the Parliamentary Fraternity Club (PFC), said a mood for harmonious politics has been created on the basis of dialogue and that conditions for a second economic takeoff have been provided in the past year. EDITOR SENTENCED TO JAIL--The Seoul District Criminal Court yesterday sentenced an editor of a publishing company to serve one year in prison for reproducing and selling 10 "Communist-titled" books. Judge Min Se-hong of the court found guilty Kim Chong-su, 26, editor of the Hanol Publishing Co. based in Seoul, of violating the national security and anti-communist laws by publishing Korean translations of 10 Marxist books since February in 1980. The judge also suspended Kim civil rights for one year and ordered the 10 books published by the defendant confiscated. The prosecution demanded a three-year prison term and suspension of civil rights for three years. Kim, a Seoul National University student, was arrested and indicted on 17 September last year for allegedly reproducing the communist-oriented books and putting them on sale in defiance of the national security and anti-communist laws. SECURITY STEPS FOR OLYMPICS--The ministry of justice plans to make a systematic and sustained effort to eliminate "any undesirable elements" that may hamper the holding of the 1988 Olympics in Seoul. In a report submitted to the current session of the National Assembly, the ministry said that it will work toward increasing the respect for law and order amongst the people. Such an attitude is needed to insure a good atmosphere for the international sports event. The ministry also said it will regard people disrupting order in tourism or damaging the good image of Koreans as elements harmful to the successful holding of the international sports event. The ministry will make a list of international terrorists and other criminals overseas in a bid to prevent them from entering the country on the occasion of the planned Olympics, the report said. It further said that a number of special processing counters will be set up at the nation's airports in Kimpo and elsewhere for the exclusive use of prospective participants in the sports event. INTEGRATED IRON, STEEL MILL--Seoul, 5 Mar (YONHAP)--The Korean government has decided to begin construction of the country's second integrated iron and steel mill with a rated annual production capacity of 2.7 million tons, in the southern coastal port city of Kwangyang near Yosu, in July 1985. According to the finalized construction plan, released Friday by the commerce-industry ministry, a total of 2.3 billion U.S. dollars, in both domestic and foreign capital, will be poured into the project, which will be under the supervision of the state-run Pohang Iron and Steel Mill. A government subsidy of 198.9 billion won (some 280 million dollars) will cover the construction costs of basic groundwork, such as roads and railways with a combined length of 29.1 kilometers, loading and unloading waterfronts, and electric and communications facilities. The construction of these basic facilities will be completed by October 1987. Construction of five major factories to produce coke, pig iron, steel, cast iron and hot rolled steel will start in July 1985. When the projected steel mill begins commercial operation in the first half of 1988, the country's annual iron and steel production capacity will be boosted, from 12 million tons at the end of 1981, to 21 million tons and the country will rank eighth among the world countries in the production of crude oil. SPEEDY ECONOMIC RECOVERY FORESEEN--Seoul, 3 Mar (YONHAP)--Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun said Friday South Korea has not yet recovered from the economic slump but he predicted a speedy recovery in the second half of this year. In question and answer session in the National Assembly, Yu said he based his optimism on early orders for government construction projects expected in the near future and increase of purchasing power in rural areas. He also cited the decline of interest rates and preparations for the 1988 Seoul summer Olympics. He added that the government has no plans for shock measures to speed up the recovery of the domestic economy. Asked if domestic price increases can be limited to five percent this year, the prime minister said the government is forecasting a single-digit figure. Yu noted that prices began to stabilize in the latter half of last year, and that the stability has been maintained. He said, however, "the idea that price increases must be lower than five percent a year is a rash one, although it seems to be logically possible at the moment." SEABED OIL PROSPECTING RESUMED--Seoul, 6 Mar (YONHAP)--The Korean government has decided to resume seabed oil prospecting projects in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth mining zones from where Gulf, Shell and Texaco of the United States had withdrawn, returning their concessions to the government years ago. The seas surrounding the southern half of the Korean peninsula are partitioned into seven mining zones, and the government is conducting prospecting projects jointly with Japan in the seventh mining zone in East China Sea. A ranking government official said Saturday that results of the previous seismic surveys of these four exclusive mining zones will be reexamined this year to select sites for test drillings to start in 1984 at the latest. Gulf drilled two holes in the second zone and conducted a seismic survey of the fourth zone, Shell drilled two holes in the fifth zone and Texaco bored three holes in the sixth zone. But they failed to find commercially feasible seabed oil reserves. Japax of the United States has already launched prospecting projects in the fourth mining zone and is expected to dig one hole in the zone in the second half of this year. The projected oil prospecting resumption in the fourth zone will be carried out independently from Japax in the same zone, according to the official. The government plans to entrust the Korea Petroleum Development Corp. to supervise the whole of development projects in the four mining zones. With regard to prospecting projects to be conducted this year in the Korean-Japanese joint development area, the official said that one hole will be dug probably in the fifth submining zone and a seismic survey will be due in the seventh subzone. The total breaks down to seven from Seoul National University, four from Kyongbuk National University, two each from Pusan, and Chungnam National Universities and Kyongsang National College and one each from Chonbuk, Kangwon and Cheju National Universities. The ministry said the records of 909 faculty members of 19 state-run universities and colleges were examined as their terms expired at the end of the last semester. Of them, 883 were reappointed, it said. The ministry said the committee set up at the colleges examined the teaching records of their professors and submitted their screening results to ministry authorities for review. Faculty members of state-run colleges and universities are appointed by the government under the tenure system which went into effect in 1976. The faculty members' achievements in teaching students, their health conditions, their qualities as professors and research activities were examined, the ministry said. A ministry spokesman said most of the 26 professors were dropped from reappointment because of their poor research activities and inadequate quality as professors. ROK SEEKS INTERNATIONAL PACTS ON TERRORISM

[Text] Minister of Foreign Affairs No Sin-yong said Korea has closely cooperated since last September with Canadian authorities in the probe of the international plot to assassinate President Chon Tu-hwan.

In reply to lawmakers' queries at a National Assembly Plenary Session, No said the Canadian foreign ministry notified Korea of the results of the six-month-long investigation on 24 February.

Korea's overseas diplomatic missions have been instructed to increase their vigilance against North Korean infiltrations, he said.

The government plans to subscribe to pertinent international treaties to protect diplomats from terrorism, he observed. Speaking of negotiations between Seoul and Tokyo over Korea's request for $6 billion in public loans, he said the two countries will hold a foreign ministers' meeting at the earliest possible date to work out a negotiated settlement.

Leaders of the three of the four countries he recently visited, Sri Lanka, France, India and Nigeria, expressed a wish to meet President Chon, but no plan has yet been set for Chon to make overseas tours, he said.

Vice Minister of National Defense Pak Chan-kung testified that the government will curtail the period of military service for enlisted men in the army, navy and air force by one month each year, so that they will serve 30 months beginning in 1984.

At present, the enlisted men in the navy and air force serve 35 months and those in the army 33 months.

The vice minister said Korea, the United States and Japan virtually have a trilateral collective security system, in that Seoul and Washington have a mutual defense treaty and Washington and Tokyo have a similar security pact.

It is, however, difficult for Korea and Japan to establish a "direct military relationship," he said.

The nation is capable of producing most conventional weapons and some highly sophisticated warheads, and is on a par with North Korea in terms of defense industry, he said.

Pak predicted the nation will be able to outstrip North Korea in every military aspect before the mid-1980s.

Minister of Culture and Information Yi Kwang-pyo said the government will guarantee freedom of the press as far as conditions permit and that the basic press law is designed to guarantee freedom of the press and to emphasize public function of the press.

The government has no intention of revising the press law, since one year of application shows the law has no major shortcomings, Yi said.

Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik said North Korea is rejecting "our new unification formula and 20 pilot projects" by setting forth preconditions such as the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Korea.

The government, however, will continue to make multilateral efforts with patience to persuade North Korea to come to the conference table, he said.

The government, he said, is prepared for any favorable response North Korea may make toward the formula and pilot projects.

ROK, ECUADORIAN MINISTERS AGREE ON TRADE TIES

SK030044 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 3 Mar 82 p 7

[Text] Commerce-industry Minister So Sok-chun and his Ecuadorian counterpart Orlando Alcivar Santos, minister of industries, foreign trade and integration, agreed yesterday to expand trade and economic cooperation between the two countries.

Informed sources close to the meeting, held at Minister So's office, said the Ecuadorian minister hoped that many Korean enterprises would invest in his country.

So called for Ecuador to increase imports of Korean automobiles, pointing to the deepening trade imbalance in favor of Ecuador. The Korean import excess last year reached $50 million in trade with Ecuador.

The sources said the Ecuadorian minister said his country was restudying its import policies, indicating that Ecuador would give favorable consideration to countries which show adverse conditions in trade.

The visiting minister asked for Korean companies to invest in Ecuador to explore markets in the Central and South American areas.

Meanwhile, So called for the Ecuadorian government's cooperation with Korean business companies participating in Ecuadorian economic development plans.

Minister Santos, who arrived here Monday with a three-member entourage, had a series of meetings with Chang Sun-hwan, president of the Korean Trade Promotion Corporation (KOTRA); Chong Chu-yong, chairman of the Federation of Korean Industries; and Sin Pyong-hyon, chairman of the Korean Traders Association.

Last year, Korean imports from Ecuador reached $120,104,000, while exports to that country stood at $159,552,000. Imports mostly consisted of crude oil, and exports were mostly vessels.

ROK TO SET UP RESEARCH FIRMS IN FOREIGN NATIONS

SK090059 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 9 Mar 82 p 8

[Text] The government will establish scientific research institutes or technology-intensive firms in foreign countries or purchase such institutions already in operation overseas in an ambitious step to achieve technological renovation, it was reported yesterday.

The science-technology ministry reported to the National Assembly yesterday that a branch office of the Korea Research Institute for Chemical Technology would be established in New Jersey by the end of this year.

The U.S.-based branch office will collect advanced technological information and carry out research activities beginning next year, it said.

It went on that five researchers would be employed by the office this year and 10 more would be secured next year.

To strengthen research in the semi-conductor field, the ministry said 700 million won would be invested in the operation of a design center affiliated with the Korea Institute of Electronic Technology.

Two researchers are currently working at the Kiet's U.S.-based design center, and 18 more will be employed soon, the ministry said. According to it, the center was established in the United States last September. The ministry did not give details about the location of the center.

The major function of the design center is designing integrated circuit (IC) systems and analyzing products, the ministry said.

It said that similar institutes would be established in foreign countries in the days ahead especially to catch up with ever-advancing technology in the field of fine chemistry, semi-conductors, mechanical automation and genetic engineering.

Officials said that the ministry would continue inviting foreign researchers to local institutes while operating research bodies overseas in arduous endeavors to achieve technological renovation, which the government says is the only way to realize a "second economic take-off."

A KAL official said Wednesday that a Boeing-747 jumbo jet or a DC-10 plane will fly the new air route twice a week. The plane will make a technical landing in Bangkok for a brief machinery and gauge checkup and refueling, and will fly non-stop to Baghdad thereafter. On its way home, however, the plane will stop in Kuwait airport. This two-way air route will help meet the growing demand for air transport between Korea and the Middle East, the official said. Negotiations over the opening of the new air route started in the second half of last year at KAL's initiative, and successfully ended when an Iraqi delegation, led by the Vice President of the Iraq Air Lines, visited Seoul 20-23 January. EXPORTS UP IN FEBRUARY--Seoul, 2 Mar (YONHAP)--South Korea's total exports were valued at 1.59 billion U.S. dollars in February, up 10.9 percent over the corresponding month last year, according to statistics released Tuesday by the commerce-industry ministry. According to the statistics, the country exported 3.04 billion dollars' worth of commodities during the first two months of this year, 7.3 percent more than in the same period last year. The statistics also indicated that the arrivals in February of import letters of credit (L/C) from abroad were down 8.7 percent from 1981--to 1.4 billion dollars--and that the L/C arrivals during the first two months of this year were 8.4 percent less than in the same period last year. JAPANESE DISCUSS TRADE IMBALANCE--Representatives of Japanese retailers stationed in Korea were invited to a meeting yesterday held at the World Trade Center Korea Building to exchange a wide range of frank views on ways of rectifying the chronic trade imbalance between Korea and Japan. The meeting was organized by the Korean Traders Association (KTA) representing a wide spectrum of Korean business interests engaging in international trade. Kae Pong-hyok, vice chairman of the KTA, noted that Korea has sustained a combined total of $21,978 million in trade deficit with Japan since 1966. Stressing that the chronic trade imbalance still remains basically unchanged despite the stepped efforts made by the Korean-side, Kae asked the Japanese representatives to be more sincere in their approach to the issue. For this, the Japanese representatives replied that more Japanese retailers are about to import Korean-made goods in large quantity nowadays because of the improved quality and reasonable prices. They also disclosed that Japanese retailers have opened or plan to open their buying offices in Seoul to increase their purchases from

Korean suppliers. "Korean makers should keep abreast with the changing consumer patterns in Japan if they want to increase their exports to Japan on a long-term and steady basis," one of the Japanese representatives suggested. [Text] [SK100133 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 10 Mar 32 p 3]

ROK DAILY VIEWS STRAINED U.S.-PRC TIES

[Editorial: "Moves in Communist China"]

[Excerpts] It appears likely that the Deng Xiaoping system faces its biggest trial since the cultural revolution. While enacting a major purge of key party officials, Communist China is unable to act jointly with the United States in dealing with international problems which concern the two countries. Relations between the two countries are strained. The trials the Deng Xiaoping system faces are a result of the pragmatic line it has adopted.

We deem it desirable that the strained ties between the United States and Communist China be restored as soon as possible. When the United States and Communist China normalized their relations after issuing the Shanghai communique in 1972, they agreed to recognize the Soviet Union, which had exerted its influence all over the world, as the principal enemy. Asked to accept and understand arms sales to free China by the Reagan administration, which has evinced keen interest in the defense of free China, Beijing, which has severely criticized the United States, did not hide its anger.

Taking advantage of the strained relations between the two countries, the Soviet Union--the biggest enemy--is ogling Communist China and urging negotiations on the border issue. This draws our attention. Should U.S.-Communist Chinese ties worsen and Soviet-Communist Chinese relations improve, a change in the balance of power around the Korean peninsula may occur.

Soviet military advances in the Far East are a grave threat to the balance of power in this region. We are also aware that the Soviet Union and Communist China have tried to win North Korea to their own side.

As in the last 10 years, the restoration of normalized relations between the United States and Communist China will protect the Far East from the Soviet military threat. It will contribute to peace and stability in the Far East. We urge the government to deal prudently with the changing situation and watch the moves in Communist China and relations between the United States and Communist China.

WORKERS FOLLOW EXAMPLE OF UNSUNG HEROES, IMPROVE PRODUCT QUALITY

Pyongyang NODONG SINMUN in Korean 23 Dec 82 p 3

[Articles by special correspondent Kwon Ch'on-ho: "Visitation Report: Every Product With Care. On a Visit to Kanggye Disabled Veterans People's Fountain Pen Plant Which Is Effectively Pursuing the Movement To Follow the Examples of Unsung Heroes"]

[Text] When we visited the Kanggye Municipal Party Committee not long ago, we were told by a municipal party functionary that the party members and workers at the Kanggye Model County People's Fountain Pen Plant are producing the various kind of fountain pens of high quality with good care and conscientious effort following the lofty examples set by the unsung heroes.

We arrived at the plant around noon.

When we entered the front gate of the plant, we felt that the hot breath of the disabled veterans was surging upon us.

As we walked inside the plant, we were heartened by the news posted on a board that they achieved the production target of the year 1 month earlier than planned, even though the target was set at 1.3 times the previous year, and by bulletins depicting the trustworthy disabled veterans conscientiously making efforts to produce fountain pens of high quality.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song instructed as follows:

"The brilliant examples set by the unsung heroes is creating great sympathy in the hearts of the people, and it is directing them toward heroic achievements."

The primary party functionaries proudly told us how their plant was born of the great leader's sagacious leadership and his greatest of great care, and that they have consistently achieved the production targets every month, every quarter, and every year during the past 30 years, and finally introduced to us the people who were putting their good conscience and effort into every product, following the examples of the unsung heroes.

Among other things, we were particularly moved by the story about the disabled veterans who had heroically fought against the U.S. imperialists and their puppets at the time of the fatherland liberation war, and who today continue working hard to bring the red flowers of revolution into full bloom.

Plant primary party functionaries showed us various kinds of fountain pens of high quality, saying that those products reflected the conscientious efforts of the disabled veterans.

We proceeded to a workshop seething with the revolutionary spirit.

The first place we visited was the molding [?] shop.

They just accomplished a month earlier the production target of this year set at 1.3 times of the previous year, and are still marching forward without a sense of complacency or conceit.

One comrade in middle age was conspicuous among others in the revolutionary column.

A primary level party functionary standing nearby proudly told us:

"The comrade is called Chu Pyong-kun, a molder, who does as much as twice the assignment given to him, following the examples of the unsung heroes."

We learned that he has been working without interruption at the plant for 30 years for the sake of the party, the leader, the fatherland, and the people.

Even when urged to stay home because of his physical handicap, Comrade Pyon-kun refused, saying that to be beautiful a flower should continue blooming, and kept devoting himself to difficult research with inexhaustible revolutionary zeal, and finally succeeded in inventing efficient tools and instruments for making fountain pens.

He worked hard with such a zeal that this year alone, he invented several more efficient tools that made it possible to increase production three times and vastly improve the quality of the products.

Such hidden efforts of disabled veterans were blossoming everywhere.

As we heard this moving story from a primary level party functionary, we entered the finishing room to see ejection machines shooting out fountain pens of various colors constantly; wounded veterans' faces were aglow with great joy.

Comrade Choe Chi-ho, who is in charge of the finishing section, said to us, pointing to the trustworthy workers who put in raw materials and take out red and blue fountain pens from the machines:

"Our work team was honored to win the red flag of the three great revolutions in October last year.

"Our workers are not complacent with the achievement they already made and are still marching forward, carrying out 200 percent of the daily assignments."

We were also impressed with the attitude of the workers who were making every effort to produce fountain pens of higher quality for the people.

Especially, Comrade Song Sun-ae, who worked as a products inspector, used to examine the products as if they were for her own personal use, even before she became inspector, and when she found the slightest defect in the products, she traced them back to the worker and determined the cause of the defect and helped them take proper measures against such defects.

With every work team we visited and every work site we visited, we were impressed by their conscientious attitude to follow the examples set by the unsung heroes.

We were especially impressed by the attitude of workers at the material section and the skillful handling of work by the disabled veterans.

There were signs saying "raw materials," "supplementary materials," "tools," at each entrance of the two-story building, which was neatly built, in a corner of the premises.

We found that it was a storage house.

We looked around in several rooms.

Every room was equipped with shelves, on which all the articles were neatly sorted by use, size, quality and marked with names.

How could the quality of the products not be improved and high achievement not made in production?

A primary level party functionary told us as we were leaving the plant:

"The campaign to follow the examples set by the unsung heroes stirred up fire in the hearts of the disabled veterans, as days pass by, and starts to bring about more results."

TEXTILE PLANT WORKERS PROMOTING TECHNICAL INNOVATION, INCREASED PRODUCTION

Pyongyang NODONG SINMUN in Korean 25 Dec 82 p 3

[Article by staff reporter Myong Hong-suk: "New Upsurge in People's Consumer Goods Production: For Bigger Blazes of Technological Innovation. At Sinuiju Textile Plant"]

[Text] The party members and workers at Sinuiju Textile Plant are trying to bring a new upsurge in production so as to brilliantly conclude the first year of all-out march.

During December, they have been fulfilling their plan on a daily, weekly and a 10-day basis while guaranteeing a high standard for the quality of products.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song instructed as follows:

"In order to rapidly improve the people's living, we must bring about a great change in the production of people's consumer goods by emphasizing the development of light industries."

Upholding the great leader's instruction, the plant's primary level party committee is aggressively pushing for an organization and political work, aimed at bringing forth a new upsurge in the people's consumer goods production by intensifying flames of mass movement for technological innovation among the party members and workers.

Especially, the committee is explaining and instilling in workers the great leader's instructions on the definite improvement of the recent people's living and the party's intention, while vigorously conducting political propaganda and economic agitation designed to stimulate their revolutionary enthusiasm and creativeness and initiative.

The planning staff of the plant thoroughly weaved economic organization work designed to solve pending problems on a timely basis and grasp the actual status by deeply penetrating workers as required by the Taean Work System.

Upholding the party's revolutionary slogan, "Production, study and life--all in the manner of the anti-Japanese guerrilla."

All functionaries are managing their work site boldy and on a large scale to live up to the revolutionary enthusiasm of the workers, thereby creating a strong fire storm of the speed war at every work site.

The 1st Twisted Yarn Shop and the 2d Weaving Shop are normalizing production at a high standard through an exemplary management of facilities and technology. All machinists participate in the management of facilities with a work attitude becoming a master and are strictly adhering to the requirements set forth under the technological regulation and the standard operating method.

And then beginning in December, they have achieved reform to produce in excess on a daily, weekly and a 10-day basis.

At the plant, everyone is vigorously pushing for an overall production with emphasis placed on the central link.

At the plant, political work was vigorously developed among the workers and technicians of the industrial power shop so that they can establish their own technological measure to guarantee the production capacity of the boiler to the maximum degree. Highly displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance, the workers and technicians of this sector are making efforts to guarantee a full operation of boilers through such activities as self-manufacturing the required parts and components and the bold rearrangement of unreasonable work processes.

The members of 4.15 Technological Reform Shock Brigade of the plant who are vigorously conducting a drive to pattern after the examples set by the unsung heroes have initiated and manufactured efficient machinery facilities such as a high-speed glossing machine and put them in use for production.

Thus, they have been contributing greatly to the speeding up and modernizing of facilities. With a high sense of service to the people, the workers of the woolen textile plant have adopted an advanced work method and are displaying a high sense of responsibility so that they can make every meter of cloth more lasting and useful.

While exerting its effort in the current production, the plant is also doing preparatory work designed to bring a greater change to the production of the coming year.

With a high degree of revolutionary enthusiasm, today the workers and technicians of Sinuiju Textile Plant and the members of Three Revolutions Team are staging a vigorous march toward the seizure of the 10 major objectives in the construction of socialist economy.

INDUSTRIAL TECHNOLOGY ELIMINATES HEAVY LABOR

SK082324 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1520 GMT 8 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 8 Mar (KCNA)--Automation, remote control, industrial television and telemechanics are being introduced in major production processes in various domains of the national economy of Korea.

Upholding the lofty intentions of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song to free for good from arduous labour our working people liberated from exploitation and oppression, the glorious party centre created a model of all-round automation at the Hwanghae Iron Works, and wisely guided the work for its generalization throughout the country.

Thanks to the party's steps, a large number of scientists and technicians were sent to factories and enterprises to help workers introduce automation and remote control in the production processes.

The youth, Cholligil and Piryugang Electrical Appliances factories and many other production centres of automation apparatuses and elements have been firmly built up to lay a foundation for the comprehensive realisation of automation and remote control in production.

At the enterprises in the mining industry including the coal and ore mines and the metallurgical, chemical and cement industries where there is relatively much labour-consuming work, the production command system by use of industrial television and telemechanics has been set up and comprehensive mechanisation, semi-automation, automation and remote control are being widely introduced.

In the ferrous metallurgical domain, automation and remote control have been realised in the operations of many blast furnaces, electric furnaces, open hearths, coking batteries and converters and production is ensured by industrial television and ultrashort wave. As a result, our furnacemen are now working with ease, freed from arduous labour.

In the domain of the power industry, remote control has been introduced in many production processes and production command personnel at the power stations organize and command production, grasping the conditions of the equipment and water scores of ri away (10 ri is four kilometres) through the control apparatuses.

In the railway transport, operations have been semi-automated at more than 30 major railway stations and 130 sections, with the result that a big success has been achieved in making the train operation high speed.

Some time ago the Central Industrial TV Control Room was built at the Taean General Heavy Machine Works and an electronic computer capable of doing a rapid calculation of over 60,000 items installed there to scientise and rationalise the production command and management activity.

Automation, remote control, and industrial television are also being rapidly introduced in the construction, fishing and light industries, too.

Heat-affected and harmful labour was eliminated in various domains including the metal, chemical and cement industries and the modernisation and scientisation of the national economy are progressing apace.

CHONGNYON MEETING MARKS 1 MARCH UPRISING

SK040420 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0357 GMT 4 Mar 82

[Text] Tokyo, 2 Mar (KNS-KCNA)--A central meeting of Koreans in Japan for commemorating the 63rd anniversary of the March 1 popular uprising, a nation-wide anti-Japanese resistance, smashing the "two Koreas" plot of the enemies and accelerating the independent and peaceful reunification of the country was held at the Korean House of Culture in Tokyo on 1 March.

Placed on the platform of the meeting hall was a portrait of the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song.

The meeting was attended by functionaries of the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan (Chongnyon) and compatriots, 3,000 in all.

Pak Chae-no, vice-chairman of the Central Standing Committee of Chongnyon, made a speech at the meeting.

He said: The March 1 popular uprising demonstrated to the world the patriotic fighting spirit and stamina of the Korean people who struggle to the end in defiance of any sacrifice against foreign aggressors trying to trample under-foot the independence of the country and the dignity of the nation.

The liberation of the country desired so ardently by the March 1 uprisers was brilliantly achieved thanks to the victory of the anti-Japanese armed struggle organized and guided by the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song.

But in South Korea the colonial rule of foreign aggressors is still continuing, he noted.

Pointing out that these days the U.S. imperialist aggressors are running wild again in the new war provocation manoeuvres, he strongly held that the U.S. imperialists must get out of South Korea at once, taking along all their weapons of aggression.

Today the Japanese reactionaries reinvasion of South Korea has become all the more undisguised with the backing of the U.S. imperialists, he said, and stressed: The Japanese authorities must look straight at the situation, act with discretion and immediately stop encouraging the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique.

Laying bare the criminal act of the Chon Tu-hwan-bossed traitors in faithfully serving the splittist manoeuvres of the U.S. and Japanese masters, he exposed the deceptive nature of the socalled "unification proposal" brought forward by them recently and their sinister aim to keep Korea divided indefinitely and realize their long-term office.

In conclusion, he called for actively explaining and propagandizing internally and externally the content and justness of the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forward by the great leader, and waging a vigorous struggle, as the immediate task, to realise at an early date the 100-men joint conference participated in by politicians in the north and south and abroad, proposed by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland.

Speeches expressing solidarity were made at the meeting by socialist member of the House of Representatives Seiichi Ikehata, communist member of the House of Representatives Masako Kobayashi, director of the National Movement Department of the General Council of Trade Unions of Japan (Sohyo) Kansaku Yagi and representative member of the Japan Committee for Supporting the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of Korea Hiroshi Wakabayashi.

The meeting was also addressed by representatives of the League of Korean Youth in Japan, the Democratic Union of Korean Women in Japan, the Federation of Korean Traders and Industrialists in Japan and men of the press.

A letter to the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song was adopted at the meeting.

'MINJU CHOSON' CALLS FOR NUCLEAR-FREE, PEACE ZONES

SK051547 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1511 GMT 5 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 5 Mar (KCNA)--"Establishment of Nuclear-Free, Peace Zones is Demand of Present Situation" is the headline of a MINJU CHOSON article Friday.

Pointing out that the imperialists are making desperate efforts to maintain and expand their domination, dismayed at the daily growing anti-imperialist and independent action of the progressive people and fierce flames of revolutionary struggle raging everywhere, the author of the article says: Owing to these manoeuvres of theirs, the danger of a new world war is felt in Korea, in the Middle East and in Europe.

The obtaining situation raises it as a preferential task of the world peace-loving people to struggle to thwart and frustrate the imperialists manoeuvres of aggression and war and defend peace and security of the world.

To prevent the outbreak of a new world war and save mankind from a nuclear holocaust, the test, production, stockpile and use of the nuclear weapons must be banned and all the nuclear weapons be completely abandoned in all parts of the world.

This can be successfully achieved only through the course of establishing nuclear-free, peace zones in many regions of the world and constantly expanding them.

Peace and security of the world can never be achieved by the socalled "balance of forces" of the military blocs; they can be durable and everlasting only when the globe is cleared of all the aggressive armed forces, means of war and military blocs.

With the imperialists arms buildup and their manoeuvres to secure military bases becoming evermore undisguised, the establishment of the nuclear-free, peace zones is inevitably accompanied by an anti-imperialist struggle and premises it. In a nutshell, the struggle for establishing nuclear-free, peace zones is an urgent struggle for precipitating the course of the decline and ruin of imperialism, hastening the victory of the anti-imperialist, independent forces and for defending peace against war.

Declaring that the struggle for establishing them has a realistic possibility, the article goes on:

The anti-imperialist, independent forces and the anti-war, peace forces are constantly growing in strength on the global scale and the imperialist reactionary forces are being isolated and weakened day by day. The non-aligned movement is a mighty anti-war, peace forces of our era; the expansion and development of this movement greatly contribute to defending world peace and security against the imperialists policy for aggression and war.

The struggle for checking the production of neutron weapons and establishing nuclear-free, peace zones is going on vigorously in many countries of Asia and Europe and many regions of the world and it deals a telling blow to the imperialists policies of aggression and war.

The Korean people will strive to convert the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free, peace zone and actively support and encourage the struggle of the world peaceloving people for establishing nuclear-free, peace zones in Asia, the Middle East, Africa, Latin America and Europe.

ROMANIAN NEWSPAPER NOTES KIM CHONG-IL GUIDANCE

SK021038 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1025 GMT 2 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 2 Mar (KCNA)--The Romanian paper SCINTEIA 16 February published an article titled "DPRK, Love of Creative Labour," according to a report.

The paper said:

All people who have visited the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea say that it is a country where the building of a new society is going on extensively in reliance on the industry and boldness of her people and thanks to the correct policy of the Workers Party of Korea.

In Pyongyang new streets, flats and public and cultural buildings are making their appearance year after year. It is a city constantly taking on modern looks.

One of the characteristic features of the appearance of Pyongyang is that it has many public and cultural buildings. To cite only a few among the city's new buildings, there are the Changgwang Health Complex and the Pyongyang Maternity Hospital.

The director of the Changgwang Health Complex said:

The construction of all the public and cultural buildings is guided by the party centre.

Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the presidium of the political bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea, called on us several times and guided us to find a most rational way in the designing and construction.

It is entirely thanks to his most correct guidance that these buildings have been constructed on the worlds best level.

The Changgwang Health Complex is equipped with excellent facilities from making toilet to training body, and its swimming pool and diving board where even Olympic games can be held give particular impressions. [Sentence as received]

The paper introduced the scale and equipment of the Pyongyang Maternity Hospital and the Kim Il-song University.

Noting that another monumental structure of Pyongyang is the metro, the paper said:

The mural paintings and sculptures of the metro bring into relief the specific features of each station by depicting the scenic beauty of Korea and the history of the heroic struggle of the people and serve as a true textbook of the revolution and construction as a whole.

They also play an excellent role in the revolutionary and patriotic education by vividly showing through what struggle, at what cost and by what efforts and sacrifices today's independence and freedom and the gains of socialism have been achieved to the people, youth in particular.

This is only a partial description of the great creative strength of a free people who are shaping their destinies by their own efforts under the leadership of the Workers Party of Korea and its Central Committee.

At the same time, these successes bear witness to the superiority of the socialist system and the capability of meeting the increasing material and cultural demands of the working people and bettering their life.

JAPANESE SOCIALIST HAILS KIM IL-SONG'S LEADERSHIP

SK090824 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0807 GMT 9 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 9 Mar (KCNA)--CHOSON SINBO 2 March carried an article headlined "Outstanding Leadership and Noble Personality" by Shoichi Shimodaira, socialist member of the House of Representatives of Japan, under the fixed title "On the Occasion of the 70th Birthday of President Kim Il-song, the Great Leader."

The article says, to begin with: Wishing good health and a long life to respected President Kim Il-song, the great leader, we hope for a greater development of socialist construction in the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, the eternal happiness of the Korean people and the earliest independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

Under the subtitle "Tender-Hearted Father of Korean People" he says that, visiting Korea twice, he was received by President Kim Il-song several times and given teachings by him for long hours.

What impressed me in those receptions, he further said, was the president's cordial and profound personality overflowing with humanity.

It was a surprise to me who had imagined him to be a steel-like fighter, as he had waged the anti-Japanese war.

I felt that he is truly the tender-hearted father of the Korean people in his soft facial expression, and his persuasive words attracting people with intimacy.

Under the subtitle "Development of Agriculture is a Requisite for the Country's Independence" the author says: President Kim Il-song, citing detailed figures, said that Korea was directing efforts to the development of agriculture and she had attained full sufficiency in food, but she was bending efforts for land amelioration and land rezoning to modernise it further.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song said that, if nonaligned countries were to achieve independence, they must, first of all, solve the food problem.

I learned a lot from the policy and wise leadership of President Kim Il-song who regards agriculture not merely as a matter concerning the living of the peasants, but as a requisite for the independence of the country and is developing a farming method suited to the conditions of Korea and, furthermore, giving aid to the developing countries.

President Kim Il-song saw to it that the Korean people themselves win the independence and liberation of Korea and carry on socialist construction as the master, on the basis of the chuche idea, and made the beautiful morality of oriental Korea the social order. No wonder he is called "Our Father" by the people.

I was deep impressed, seeing and hearing that President Kim Il-song, with his outstanding leadership and wise practical capacity, was smoothly building a unique socialism which could not be seen in other socialist countries.

Under the subtitle "Clairvoyance and Keen Analytical Capacity, Steadfast Practical Ability," he says:

President Kim Il-song looked much younger when I saw him after the lapse of three years.

He appears so young and full of life. This must be coming from his high pride in the big strides made in the modelling of society on the chuche idea and successes registered in the fulfilment of the three revolutions.

It is the clairvoyance, keen analytical capacity and staunch practical ability possessed by President Kim Il-song that are required today for a greater development of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, for the realisation of the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea, for peace in Asia and for the advance of the movement of the nonaligned countries and developing countries.

I once again wish good health and a long life to President Kim Il-song.

'KCNA' VIEWS ROME SEMINAR ON KOREAN ISSUE

SK070937 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0918 GMT 7 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 7 Mar (KCNA)--The participants in the seminar on the South Korean reality which opened in Rome on 5 March denounced the U.S. imperialists occupation of South Korea and the South Korean puppet cliques brutal suppression of the people, according to a report.

The seminar was attended by members of parliament, leading personnel of political parties and public organisations and personages of various circles of Italy.

Senator Franco Calamandrei pointed out that South Korea was indicted for worst violation of human rights in the world.

Pointing to the life sentence recently handed down against Yi Tae-pok who struggled for the rights of the South Korean workers, he said South Korean death-rows house prisoners sentenced for political reasons.

Exposing the massive suppression of people in South Korea, he asserted that "11,000 people were detained in a single sweep on 3 February."

Antonio Landolfi, a leading member of the Italian Socialist Party, noted that the United States gave South Korea billions of dollars in military aid between 1975 and 1980 and denounced the United States for trying to justify it.

The tension in Korea must be eased, he said.

The participants in the seminar contended that the prospect of reunifying Korea has grown ever more distant with the installation of the Reagan administration as the United States presence in South Korea maintains its position as the major obstacle to rejoining the two parts of Korea.

They also fingered out South Koreas poor record on human rights as another factor for the tension in the Korean peninsula.

'NODONG SINMUN' DENOUNCES ISRAEL'S SCHEME TO ANNEX ARAB LANDS

SK101534 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1523 GMT 10 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 10 Mar (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today carries a signed article under the headline "Israel's Scheme to Build Settlements for Swallowing Up Occupied Arab Lands for Good."

With the zealous encouragement and assistance of the imperialists, it says, the Israeli aggressors are maliciously scheming to annex forever some Arab lands they have illegally occupied and build a "great Israel state" there.

Noting that some time ago they declared that they would build 20 more "settlements" in the illegally occupied Golan Heights, Gaza area, West Bank of the Jordan River and Negev Desert, the article says that this clearly reveals the ever more unscrupulous territorial expansion plan of the Zionists to "Israelize" the occupied areas.

It exposes, citing concrete facts, the persistent moves of the Israeli aggressors to turn the occupied Arab lands into their territory.

The article continues:

The aggressive "settlement" construction plan has been stepped up more viciously since the Begin clique came into power.

The Israeli aggressors are bent on the building of the Zionists "settlements" in the occupied Arab lands and their maintenance in a bid to achieve their aggressive purpose for permanent occupation by changing the population composition and dividing and encircling these occupied areas with fertile land and rich natural resources, whose location is important in a military strategic point of view.

But they can not realise their filthy aggressive ambition.

They should stop the "settlement" construction and withdraw from the occupied Arab lands.

KOREANS IN JAPAN DENOUNCE CHON AMNESTY PLOY

SK041144 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1018 GMT 4 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 4 Mar (KCNA)--Kim Chae-hwa, chairman of the Japan headquarters of the "National Congress for the Restoration of Democracy in South Korea and the Promotion of Unification" ("Hanmintong"), and Chong Chae-chun, chairman of the "Committee for Rescuing Kim Tae-chung," issued a talk in joint name on 2 March in connection with the announcement of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique on the "commutation" of penalties passed upon Kim Tae-chung and other democratic figures, according to a KNS report from Tokyo.

It notes that the "commutation" is a trick of Chon Tu-hwan who is branded as a human butcher by the whole nation. It is aimed to veil his criminal massacre in Kwangju, escape public censure at home and abroad of his violation of human rights and improve his image externally.

How much would the position of Kim Tae-chung be changed if life imprisonment is commuted to 20 years in prison? There would be no change in the position of Kim Tae-chung who is deprived of political freedom and faced with the danger of death.

Chon Tu-hwan tried guiltless people and sentenced them to death for grabbing "power" and is now making a mockery of human rights and humanitarianism by using "commutation" as a policy to gain popularity. We cannot repress surging indignation at such act.

It is Chon Tu-hwan himself who must be judged for treacheries against the nation, as shown by the Kwangju massacre. He cannot escpae a stern judgement of the people. Chon Tu-hwan must immediately and unconditionally release Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners and step down from "power."

We demand that the Japanese Government stop all moves helping Chon Tu-hwan to suppress people and execute the policy of war, while giving up a principled settlement of the Kim Tae-chung issue.

We will vigorously wage the movement for the release of Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners and against the dangerous war moves and the "South Korea-Japan foreign ministers talks" and "summit talks."

The 3 March issue of the Japanese paper MAINICHI SHIMBUN conveyed words of Korean residents in Japan and Japanese personages of various circles, according to a KNS report.

Haruki Wata, assistant professor at Tokyo University and representative of the "Japan-South Korea Solidarity Committee," said: Even if Kim Tae-chung is "commuted" to 20 years in prison from life imprisonment, we cannot be pleased with it. Voices demanding the release of Kim Tae-chung are being further lifted up in South Korea. The "commutation" is aimed at toning down public sentiments. We will continue our movement till Kim Tae-chung is set free.

Critic Shin Aochi stressed that "Kim Tae-chung and Japan-resident Koreans are all guiltless." Noting that through the "commutation" the Chon Tu-hwan "regime" aims at improving his public image, he demanded the release of Kim Tae-chung.

The Japan headquarters of "Hanmintong" issued a statement, according to Radio NHK, Japan. The statement syas: "Although there was a commutation, there is no change in the position of Kim Tae-chung who is deprived of political freedom and faced with the danger of death." The South Korean puppet government "must immediately release Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners."

According to a report from the Seoul correspondent of the Radio, Yi Hui-ho, wife of Kim Tae-chung, said in connection with the fascist clique's "commutation": What difference is there between life imprisonment and 20 years in prison? The commutation is meaningless unless he is acquitted.

KSDP APPEALS FOR WORLD SUPPORT FOR KIM TAE-CHUNG

Letter Sent to Various Countries

SK042241 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2203 GMT 4 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 5 Mar (KCNA)--The Central Committee of the Korean Social Democratic Party [KSDP] sent a letter on 4 March to the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries, calling for waging brisk activities for the reinstatement of South Korean democratic figure Kim Tae-chung to his original status.

The letter was sent in connection with the continued detention and harsh persecution of Kim Tae-chung by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique. It stresses: The struggle for rescuing Mr Kim Tae-chung is not one confined to the problem of saving his life alone but is related to democracy in South Korea and to the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. It is part of the struggle against fascism and subjugation and for peace and stability on a world-wide scale.

We express the hope that the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries linked with us for the common idea will as ever actively organise and wage various forms of struggle for rescuing Mr Kim Tae-chung. To save Mr Kim Tae-chung fully accords with our common idea of struggle against all manner of domination and subjugation and for sovereignty and independence, against dictatorship and war and for democracy, peace and human rights.

We sincerely hope that the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries will scathingly denounce the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique's persecution of Mr Kim Tae-chung, isolate it internationally and take necessary steps for the immediate and unconditional release of Mr Kim Tae-chung and properly exercise their influence upon the governments of various countries so that they may sever political and economic relations with the South Korean puppet clique.

We expect that the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries will conduct positive activities to make the U.S. and Japanese authorities immediately stop their aid to the South Korean rulers and take possible steps for the reinstatement of Mr Kim Tae-chung to his original status.

The rescue of democratic figure Mr Kim Tae-chung will be at once a victory of the common idea of all the social democrats of the world and a victory of justice and human conscience.

[Text] Pyongyang, 5 Mar (KCNA)--The Central Committee of the Korean Social Democratic Party [KSDP] sent a letter on 4 March to the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries in connection with the continued detention and harsh persecution of South Korean democratic figure Kim Tae-chung by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique.

The letter reads in full: We send this letter to your parties, expressing deep anxiety about the fact that Mr Kim Tae-chung, a South Korean democratic figure, is undergoing all sorts of sufferings in prison and even his physical life is threatened by the fascist hangmen.

One year has passed since democratic figure Mr Kim Tae-chung who had conducted righteous activities for democracy in South Korea and for the peaceful reunification of the country was sentenced to life imprisonment by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique. The South Korean fascists have since detained Mr Kim Tae-chung and subjected him to all sorts of persecution, defying the strong protest of the world's progressive forces including the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries.

Mr Kim Tae-chung is now detained in a special solitary cell called "prison in the prison" shut from the sunlight, and is trembling with cold in the dark, unheated room without a ventilator or a bed and groaning at the death's door owing to the aftereffects of tortures and chronic diseases. This notwithstanding, the fascist thugs refuse to allow him to receive even medical treatment and articles from outside generally allowed to prisoners. Moreover, his meeting with his family is restricted.

These facts show that the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique schemes to totally destroy Mr Kim Tae-chung not only politically but also physically.

Originally, there is no ground that he should be penalized and imprisoned. The "crimes" imposed upon him at fascist trial were all fabrications invented by the South Korean fascist clique as it needed them. Although the fascist clique claimed that Mr Kim Tae-chung "plotted for a rebellion" as a "pro-communist," the world knows full well that he is a Catholic and an advocate of liberal democracy and could have taken office through democratic elections without taking the trouble of raising a rebellion.

As for the Kwangju incident, the biggest blame laid on him, it broke out after he was arrested by the "martial law" authorities.

Despite this undeniable stark fact, the fascist clique put Mr Kim Tae-chung and those who had connections with him to brutal tortures to fabricate

"crimes" and cooked up false "confessions" and finally passed death sentence on him through repeated dark, secret trials without the presence of witnesses and lawyers. It is not accidental that the South Korean authorities have not yet made public the ruling of the Kim Tae-chung trial to the world. This is why the unlawful outrageous acts of the Chon Tu-hwan group to murder Mr Kim Tae-chung aroused unanimous denunciation and protest at home and abroad.

The Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries have played an important role in organising an international protest movement. The Socialist International invited Mr Kim Tae-chung to its 15th congress and launched a movement for his acquittal and the resolution of the congress expressed deep concern over the South Korean situation and demanded an immediate revocation of the death sentence passed upon Mr Kim Tae-chung.

The Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries have repeatedly taken various steps possible, denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique's brutal persecution of Mr Kim Tae-chung and demanding his unconditional release. We consider that the world's progressive forces including the Socialist International made great efforts to compel the South Korean fascist clique to "commute" the sentence of Mr Kim Tae-chung to life imprisonment from death penalty.

We take this opportunity to express deep thanks to the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries for their expression of warm sympathy with the position of Mr Kim Tae-chung and for their steps of solidarity for rescuing him.

Recently the South Korean authorities "commuted" the life imprisonment passed upon Mr Kim Tae-chung to 20 years in prison and are making much noise as if they bestowed a big favour on him. This is one more mockery of the entire Korean people and the honest-minded people of the world struggling for the release of Kim Tae-chung and a trick to mislead public opinion at home and abroad and gain popularity.

Both 20 years in prison and life imprisonment are not different from death penalty for Mr Kim Tae-chung whose life is now in danger and there is no change in his position.

Mr Kim Tae-chung who is guiltless must be acquitted, not be "commuted," and freedom of political activities must be ensured to him.

The struggle to save Mr Kim Tae-chung is not one confined to the problem of rescuing his life alone but related to democracy in South Korea and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. Furthermore, it is part of the struggle against fascism and subjugation and for peace and stability on a world-wide scale.

We express the hope that the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries linked with us for the common idea will as ever actively organise and wage various forms of struggle for rescuing Mr Kim Tae-chung.

To save Mr Kim Tae-chung fully accords with our common idea of struggle against all manner of domination and subjugation and for sovereignty and independence, against dictatorship and war and for democracy, peace and human rights.

We sincerely hope that the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries will strongly denounce the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique's brutal persecution of Mr Kim Tae-chung, isolate it internationally, take necessary steps for his immediate and unconditional release and properly exercise their influence upon the governments of various countries so that they may sever political and economic relations with the South Korean puppet clique.

The Kim Tae-chung issue is a product of the criminal collusion between the South Korean puppets and the U.S. and Japanese reactionaries.

We expect that the Socialist International and socialist and social democratic parties of various countries will conduct brisk activities to make the U.S. and Japanese authorities immediately stop their aid to the South Korean rulers and take possible steps for the reinstatement of Mr Kim Tae-chung to his original status.

The rescue of democratic figure Mr Kim Tae-chung will be at once a victory of the common idea of all the social democrats of the world and a victory of justice and human conscience.

With high considerations.

'MINJU CHOSON' CONDEMNS KIM TAE-CHUNG COMMUTATION

SK061045 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1028 GMT 6 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 6 Mar (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON Saturday comes out with a commentary captioned "Crafty Ruse To Mislead Public Opinion" denouncing the hypocritic "commutation" of the life imprisonment passed on Kim Tae-chung to 20 years in prison by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique. The signed commentary brands the "commutation" as another intolerable mockery of the entire Korean people and the honest-minded people of the world unanimously demanding the immediate acquittal of Kim Tae-chung and a political fraud for misleading public opinion at home and abroad and winning popularity. It further says:

The "commutation" has brought no change to Kim Tae-chung's lot. Both 20 years in prison and life imprisonment are little short of a death sentence to him whose life is hanging by a thread.

The "commutation" by the military fascist clique is a brutal act of human-butchery revealing once again their heinous intention to destroy his spiritual and physical lives in prison at any cost and a vicious act strangling democracy and human rights. Kim Tae-chung had not committed any "crime" deserving arrest by the fascist thugs and the murderous prison life and he is not a criminal to be made an object of a "commutation" buffoonery.

He is a patriotic democrat who conducted lawful political activities in South Korea against fascism and division and for democracy and the peaceful reunification of the country. He is a politician of conscience recognised by all people, who enjoyed high prestige among the South Korean people.

The ridiculous "commutation" farce staged by traitor Chon Tu-hwan on the "anniversary day of his inauguration" is nothing but a crafty claptrap tactic for allaying the fierce denunciation at home and abroad, winning the favour of the people and raising the price of his stinking body for staying in power. He must immediately release Kim Tae-chung, complying with the unanimous demand at home and abroad and reinstate him. If he, remaining deaf to the demand of the times, continues to run recklessly in repression, brandishing the club, he will bring down on his own head the stern sledge hammer of the people.

DPRK ARTS ORGAN SUPPORTS CPRF PROPOSAL

SK050033 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 2 Mar 82

["Text" of 2 March statement issued by the General Federation of the Unions of Literature and Arts of Korea--read by announcer]

[Text] The proposal for convocation of the 100-man joint conference put forth by the Committee for Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] greatly excited all of our writers and artists whose hearts, along with the whole nation's, have been burning with desire for the reunification of the fatherland for the past 40 years.

The General Federation of the Unions of Literature and Arts of Korea [GFULAK] warmly welcomes and supports this proposa, regarding it as the most realistic means of negotiations to realize the desire of our writers and artists to jointly bring into bloom the national culture of the North and the South and to realize our national aspiration--the nation's reunification.

Under the wise leadership of the great leader President Kim Il-song and the glorious party center, our literature and arts have come into their most brilliant bloom in the nation's history. The farther the rays of our chuche-type literature and arts reach in the world, the stronger our aspiration brings into bloom the national culture, literature and arts even in the southern part of the fatherland and the stronger the aspiration for the national reunification grows in the heart of every one of our writers and artists.

Owing to the ideological and cultural encroachment of the alien aggressors and the treacherous and flunkeyest acts of the South Korean ruling clique, the indigineous national culture has been extirpated completely in South Korea. There, where the rotten Yankee culture and exotic fashion and customs prevail, all things national and progressive are disappearing without a trace.

With each passing day, the cultural differences are growing between the North and South. As a result, people in the North and South, although they are homogenous, are becoming more alienated, just like two different peoples. To end this tragic situation, we have repeatedly proposed to realize collaboration and exchanges between the North and South in the field of culture as well as in the political, economic and military fields. We have done every thing possible to realize the implementation of these proposals.

At the second Korean Writers' Conference held in October 1956, we proposed to exchange mail and works between individual writers and artists in the North and South and between our Writers' Union and the literature and arts organizations of the South, to jointly organize exchange meetings of performances, discussions and study sessions, and to pave the way for mutual trips for gathering information for works. A total of 10 times over the 6 years period between 1959 and 1964, we proposed to jointly organize literature and arts organizations and to jointly participate in art festivals held at home and abroad.

Driven by a single aspiration to jointly promote the unified development of literature and arts of North and South, we proposed not only in the 1950's and 1960's but also in the 1970's--in particular, at the first meeting of the North-South Coordinating Committee held in November 1972--to allow men of letters and artists freely and jointly to write and perform works and gather information through free travel in the North and South and to jointly organize a single national arts organization to be sent to international performances.

Today we are making every effort to put in practice the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] put forward by the great leader President Kim Il-song at the Sixth KWP Congress in October 1980 and the plan of interchange and collaboration in the field of culture advanced in the 10-point policy of the DCRK.

The fact that the interchange and collaboration between the North and the South have not been achieved despite our consistent efforts is entirely due to the splittist maneuvers of the South Korean ruling faction supported by the U.S. imperialists. In order to destroy the thick barriers of national division and open up the road to national reunification, obstacles to reunification should be eliminated, a climate for reunification should be created and the road of genuine dialogue and negotiation should be provided. However, the South Korean authorities are continuously laying obstacles on the road of reunification while loudly raving about reunification, running counter to the will of the nation.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique, in particular, is maneuvering to check the influence of our most reasonable proposal for reunification by putting forth the so-called 22 January proposal, the pilot projects and so forth, which were fabricated in accord with the U.S. scenario for two Koreas, paying no attention to the proposal for founding the DCRK which is being supported by all the people and the entire world.

Even at this moment, when we are striving to implement the proposal for convening the 100-man joint conference, it is staging the large scale "Team Spirit '82" war exercise by dragging in the U.S. imperialist aggressors and is strengthening anticommunist confrontation rackets against us.

It is unnecessary to prove that there is no seat for the Chon clique at the sacred table of dialogue for reunification. Nothing will be resolved or gained by sitting face to face with fanatic splittists who pursue the nation's permanent division and who follow the two Koreas policy of the United States.

How dare the Chon Tu-hwan clique, rejected by all, come to the sacred table of negotiation for reunification with such a filthy face? A dog's tail, although buried 3 years, cannot become the tail of a weasel. Those who have committed crimes should first seek pardon.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique should give up its foolish idea to turn up somewhere. It should have U.S. troops withdraw from South Korea, discontinue the policy of anticommunist confrontation, release Kim Tae-chung and other detained figures and patriotic people and make an apology for the barbarous Kwangju massacre. It should strive to atone, even slightly, for the crimes it committed against the nation.

Doing so is the only way for it to promote the early convocation of the 100-man joint conference and to expedite national reunification.

SOCIAL SCIENCE ACADEMY SUPPORTS CPRF PROPOSAL

SK050205 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 3 Mar 82

["Text" of 3 March statement of spokesman of Academy of Social Sciences--read by announcer]

[Text] The Academy of Social Sciences extends complete support to the proposal of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] for a 100-man joint conference, recognizing it as a reasonable suggestion which fully reflects the desire and will of our social scientists to promote the unified development of science and the cause of national reunification by uniting the wisdom and efforts of scholars in the North and South.

In the field of social sciences, we, in line with the reunification policy advanced by President Kim Il-song, the great leader, have suggested, on many occasions, collaboration and exchanges between the scientists of the North and South with a view to advancing national unity and reunification.

To cite some instances: On 16 November 1956, a seminar of college professors proposed that the scientists of the North and South make contact, exchange experiences and cooperate with each other; it was suggested in February 1958 that scholars and cultural personages of the North and South carry out contacts and joint ventures for the unified development of national culture and sciences; in November 1960, the eighth meeting of the second SPA came forward with the proposal that the scientists of the North and South join hands in excavating cultural relics, carrying out research on them and working out measures for their preservation. It was repeatedly suggested in the first meeting of the North-South Coordinating Commission held on 30 November 1972 and in other meetings that collaboration and exchanges in the field of scientific research be realized and practical measures be taken to ensure joint research.

In particular, of late we have been exerting all our efforts to carry into action the DCRK proposal and the 10 policies of the DCRK--which were laid forth at the historic Sixth KWP Congress--with a view to achieving national reunification and realizing exchanges and cooperation between the North and South in the field of science.

Had our suggestions and efforts been realized, the scientists of the North and South would have already made mutual visits and carried out joint research, cooperating with each other.

To our regret, none of our reasonable suggestions and proposals, however, have been realized because of the scheme of the South Korean rulers trying to divide the country into two Koreas forever, thus making exchanges and collaboration between the North and South in the field of science an unfulfilled dream in our minds.

Collaboration and exchanges between the North and South have as their purpose the promotion of the unified development of the North and South, encouraging national unity and advancing the country's reunification. Accordingly, collaboration and exchanges between the North and South are different in nature from those conducted with other countries and nations. North-South collaboration and exchanges--to be conducted between compatriots of a nation--are a noble task conducive to achieving the cause of national reunification, the utmost task of the nation.

Nevertheless, the incumbent South Korean rulers are trying to use North-South exchanges as a tool for the permanent division of the nation, while pursuing two Koreas more blatantly than their predecessors. This is manifested by the fact that imitating others, they have called for the conclusion of an agreement on basic relations between the North and South and babbled about carrying into action so-called model projects, which constitute merely a part of the proposals for collaboration and exchanges we had already advanced.

This is nothing but a tactic to keep the influence of the DCRK proposal--a most realistic and reasonable proposal we have advanced--from spreading, to mislead public opinion by creating the impression that they are concerned about the country's reunification and to buy time in their efforts to fix the nation's division.

As is the case, it is obvious to anyone that the Chon Tu-hwan clique cannot be regarded as a partner in negotiations for reunification. Chon Tu-hwan is a murderer and fascist who massacred several thousand citizens, youths and students in Kwangju who had turned out in peaceful demonstrations for democracy and peaceful reunification, and illegally arrested and viciously punished many democratic personages, including Kim Tae-chung, scholars, professors and students.

It goes without saying that we cannot share a place with such a traitor in discussing reunification, which is for the good of the nation.

Given this, it is very natural and timely that the CPRF excluded the Chon Tu-hwan clique of murderers and splittists in negotiations for reunification and called for a joint conference of politicians in the North and South and abroad.

We have a proverb saying that you should not even look up the tree if you cannot climb. The South Korean rulers should not look over at the forum of negotiations for reunification and put their blood-soaked feet into it as they are not entitled to do so. This is what the nation orders them to do.

It is recommended that the South Korean rulers, looking straight at reality, release the detained politicians--including Kim Tae-chung--scholars and professors, ensure them the freedom of political activities so the 100-man conference can be convened as the nation desires and atone for their crimes.

RED CROSS SUPPORTS CPRF CONFERENCE PROPOSAL

SK060547 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 5 Mar 82

["Text" of 5 March statement issued by the spokesman for the Korean Red Cross Society--read by announcer]

[Text] Our Red Cross Society, which takes it as its mission to alleviate the sufferings of the people separated in the North and South and hasten the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland, positively supports the proposal of the Committee for Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] for convocation of the 100-man joint conference, regarding it as a new proposal contributing to promoting the cause of the reunification of the fatherland.

Because of national division, our people have remained separated in the North and South for 37 years without exchange of mail between blood-relatives, without knowing whether they are alive or dead.

Our Red Cross Society has done everything possible, from the day it was founded, to put an end to such an abnormal situation. In August 1956, we proposed to the South Korean Red Cross organization to discuss such matters as an exchange of mail between the families separated in the North and South and their free visits to both sides. In January 1957, we sent a letter to the president of the South Korean Red Cross proposing a regular exchange of mail, from the separated families in the North and South, directly between the Red Cross organizations of the North and South at a place considered convenient by the South Korean side.

We proposed to the South Korean side to discuss matters aimed at alleviating the sufferings of the separated compatriots including free visits and an exchange of mail between the North and South, around 10 times in the 1950's and 1960's. In addition, we have taken the humanitarian measure of requesting the South Korean side to provide us with information on 14,000 people in order to realize the urgent desire of the families and relatives separated in the North and South who desired to know whether their families and relatives were still alive or dead.

However, the South Korean side never forwarded to us the information on a single individual we inquired about. What is more, the South Korean side changed the contents of the requests as it pleased and, after distorting and fabricating the facts in the requests, committed intolerably inhuman acts of using them in its anticommunist propaganda.

In the North-South Red Cross meetings held in the 1970's, we proposed more than dozens of times to the South Korean side to realize mutual free visits and an exchange of mail between the families, relatives and friends separated in the North and South and to provide reunions for them. In our proposals was our warm compatriotic passion to give at least a little joy to the fellow countrymen suffering from the tragedy of division and to alleviate their misery. Also in them was our earnest desire to provide a cornerstone for national reunification through such humanitarian projects.

However, the Korean Central Intelligence Agency's secret agents appeared at the meeting place wearing Red Cross badges. Turning a deaf ear to such fundamental issues as providing realistic conditions and an atmosphere for alleviating the sufferings of the families and relatives separated in the North and South, they insisted on the formula of card exchanges, which is not suitable to our country's reality, and created artificial obstacles to the meetings. They even tried to prevent us from saying that the purpose of the Red Cross meetings was to promote the reunification of the fatherland and used the humanitarian meetings for their dirty political ends of division and confrontation.

From experience, we have drawn the lesson that to sit face to face with the splittists will not resolve the human problems or alleviate the people's sufferings, let alone solve the question of reunification.

That the South Korean puppet clique has recently prattled about what is a part of the numerous proposals for collaboration and exchanges we previously put forth stems from a propagandistic purpose--to win popularity--not from an intent to resolve problems.

The murderers, who unscrupulously committed acts of fratricide like the unprecedented Kwangju massacre, raised humanitarian issues, babbling about the sufferings of separated families. This is a mockery of the separated families and an insult to a humanitarian attitude. Paying lipservice to reunification and model projects, the South Korean authorities, while intensifying splittist anticommunist confrontational rackets as never before, are now straining the situation to an extreme degree by staging a large-scale war exercise together with the U.S. imperialist forces of aggression, running counter to peaceful reunification and humanitarian projects.

Even to a toddler it is apparent that anticommunist confrontation deepens the sufferings caused by national division and that war rackets will induce national tragedy. No matter how the murderers and splittists may babble about sufferings of separated families and about the pain of national division, the tears in their eyes are crocodile tears and the reunification they babble about is a two Koreas scenario turned inside out.

unable to resist pressure at home and abroad protesting their suppression of Kim Tae-chung, they have commuted his life sentence to 20 years. This was third-rate juggling designed to cover up their fascist maniac nature. It is nothing but a mockery of human life that the hangmen, who had arrested and subjected an innocent man to a plight after torturing, play the game of commutation. Needless to say, we cannot discuss important national questions with these people who have committed all sorts of crimes before the nation. The South Korean ruling class should not try to come to the sacred negotiation venue for reunification with their blood-stained appearance. They should immediately release all political prisoners, including Kim Tae-chung, and it would be best for them to guarantee the conditions for convening the 100-man joint conference at an early date by ensuring their free political activities.

RED CROSS SOCIETY SUPPORTS CPRF PROPOSAL

SK061030 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1018 GMT 6 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 6 Mar (KCNA)--The Red Cross Society of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea fully supports the proposal of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland for convening the joint conference of 100 North, South and overseas Koreans, considering that it is a new initiative contributing to accelerating the cause of national reunification at the present stage, stressed a spokesman of the Red Cross Society in his talk issued on 5 March.

He recalled that up to this day from the first day of its founding the Red Cross Society advanced many proposals for collaboration and interchange to the South Korean side including those for realising free travel, mutual visits and correspondence between families, relatives and friends scattered in the North and South and arranging their reunion.

Noting that the South Korean puppet clique recently brought forward "proposals" which are only part of these proposals, the spokesman said: This merely seeks a propaganda aim intended to get marks in its favour, not to practically solve the question. It is a mockery of the scattered families and an insult to humanitarianism that the murderers who committed without hesitation such slaughter of fellow countrymen as the Kwangju massacre without precedent in history should bring forward a humanitarian problem, clamouring about "sufferings of scattered families."

Recently they commutted the life imprisonment passed upon Kim Tae-chung to 20 years in prison under the pressure of public opinion at home and abroad protesting against his persecution. But it is a foolish trick to cover up the true colors of fascist maniacs.

It goes without saying that we cannot discuss the important problems of the nation with them who have committed a hundred and one crimes against the nation. The South Korean rulers had better not try to turn up as blood-stained murderers at sacred negotiations for reunification but guarantee conditions for the convocation of the joint conference of 100 Koreans, by immediately acquitting Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners and ensuring them freedom of political activities.

SCIENCE COMMITTEE SUPPORTS CPRF PROPOSAL

SK070432 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 6 Mar 82

["Text" statement of a spokesman of the State Science and Technology Committee--read by announcer]

[Text] In the name of all scientists and technicians in our country, the State Science and Technology Committee fully supports the proposal of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] for a 100-man joint conference of the politicians in the North, South and abroad, recognizing it as a very reasonable proposal under the present circumstances.

Our nation, which long developed the country's science and technology with concentrated wisdom and efforts in one territory, has not been able to achieve unified development of North and South in the field of science and technology, or in any other field, for a long period of 37 years owing to territorial division by the outside forces.

In order to overcome this situation, we have put forth proposals on many occasions for realizing collaboration and exchanges between the North and South in the field of science and technology even before the country is reunified.

At the first national seminar of college professors on 16 November 1956, we proposed that the scien tists of the North and South make contact to discuss all relevant matters in a free fashion, exchange experiences and cooperate with each other. At the eighth meeting of the second SPA in November 1960, we proposed that the North and South jointly manage scientific research institutions, establish a joint research institute and conduct joint research activities in various fields of sciences and technology. And, on 13 May 1961, the inaugural rally of the CPRF came forward with the proposal that the North and South jointly organize and operate scientific research seminars and academic discussion meetings and undertake exchanges in the fields of industry and agriculture.

At the second congress of the Korea Architects Union on 2 November 1964, we proposed that the North and South exchange the architectural technology and observer groups, jointly organize ideooogical discussion meetings regarding the creation of architectual works of art and a prize contest for architectural work, and exchange tourists--groups or individuals--who would explore places of natural beauty and historic interest and national architectural properties.

In the second meeting of the co-chairmen of the North-South Coordinating Commission [NSCC] on 3 November 1972 and in the first meeting of the NSCC on 30 November 1972, we put forth concrete measures to realize collaboration and exchanges between the North and South in the field of science and technology. In particular, the 10-point policy of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forth by the Sixth KWP Congress in October 1980 clearly proposed that the North and South jointly conduct scientific research activities and widely exchange successes and experiences in the field of science and technology, reflecting the opinion of our scientists and technicians.

Owing to the obstructionist machinations of the South Korean persons in authority, to date none of our patriotic and reasonable proposals have been realized. Moreover, the present South Korean rulers, seeking the permanent division of the country with the support of the U.S. imperialists, are stubbornly obstructing the country's independent and peaceful reunification and the full-scale collaboration and exchanges between the North and South, while sticking to the two Koreas plot.

If collaboration and exchanges between the North and South are to really serve the sacred cause of national unity and reunification, the atmosphere of antagonism and jealousy within the nation should be removed and an atmosphere of unity and cooperation be created.

If any side makes remarks arousing animosity and thinks only of attacking and annihilating the other side, our nation can never pool its wisdom and rally its strength and cannot achieve the country's unified development. The South Korean rulers are now unprecedentedly intensifying the anticommunist confrontation rackets against us. Along with the U.S. imperialist aggressors --uninvited guests--they have not only waged the large-scale war exercise commotions for attacking compatriots, but also are running wild to inflict injury upon an innocent person by fabricating the so-called assassination plot, which has no connection with us.

It is the favorite trick of the South Korean ruling bunch to shift responsibility onto others. Even though the South Korean rulers are using all sorts of flowery words under the cloak of the dialogue and reunification, the nature of those making a habit of war, terrorism and division was already brought to light long ago.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring should not stage a clumsy farce feigning interest in the country's peaceful reunification but ensure the conditions in which the South's politicians, including Kim Tae-chung, can participate in the 100-man joint conference, which will serve as a forum for a real reunification dialogue.

BUDDHIST FEDERATION SUPPORTS CPRF PROPOSAL

SK090832 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 8 Mar 82

["Text" of 8 March statement issued by spokesman for the Korean Buddhist Federation--read by announcer]

[Text] At a time when the whole nation is ardently longing for the nation's reunification and the Korean people aspiring national reunification and national salvation are seeking ways to achieve national reunification, the Committee for Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] proposed the convocation of a 100-man joint conference, pleasing all Buddhists and the whole nation.

Reflecting the will of the Buddhists, the Korean Buddhist Federation positively supports and agrees with the proposal to convene the 100-man joint conference as advanced by the CPRF. Our Buddhists, who have long regarded it as their motto to build a peaceful and harmonious paradise on this land of 3,000 ri, persistently held that the question of national reunification should be resolved through negotiation and peacefully.

Starting from the aspiration for the peaceful reunification of the fatherland, we made many reasonable and realistic proposals in the past, along with political parties and social organizations in the northern half of the republic, and have worked patiently for their implementation. Regrettably, however, our fair proposals and sincere efforts have not brought about success due to the South Korean rulers, who are under the instigation of the U.S. imperialists. What is more, the current South Korean rulers, emerging as the enemy of national reunification and intent on the perpetual division of the nation, talk about dialogue and reunification while putting serious obstacles on the road to peaceful reunification by wielding bayonets.

Even at this moment, instead of providing the necessary conditions for the politicians in the North and South to hold a dialogue for national reunification, they not only are staging a criminal war exercise against their own fellow countrymen called Team Spirit '82 together with the U.S. imperialist forces of aggression who sneaked into South Korea from across the ocean, but also are frenzied in encouraging the nation to confrontation by fabricating preposterous incidents.

Nowhere in the world, which is advancing on the road of independence, are there such wicked national traitors and flunkeyists as the nation-sellers in South Korea, who are now wickedly committing treacherous acts against their own fellow countrymen by colluding with foreign aggressive forces. Indeed, the fact that such national traitors as Chon Tu-hwan babble about reunification--a matter of great national importance--hurts our nation's dignity.

This being the case, we think it is natural to exclude those who have turned against their own country from the dialogue for reunification. The Chon Tu-hwan clique should stop babbling about dialogue and reunification, which is has never aspired for. It would be best for it to apologize for crimes committed before the nation.

If the clique is, indeed, interested in peaceful reunification, it should have the U.S. troops withdraw from South Korea. It also should abandon the two Koreas policy, practice democracy, abandon anticommunist confrontational policies and apologize to the nation for the Kwangju massacre.

Instead of attempting to deceive world public opinion by a meaningless game of commuting the sentence given Kim Tae-chung, the clique should immediately release him and guarantee his political activities.

Availing ourselves of this opportunity, we express our conviction that all the Buddhist organizations in South Korea and abroad and our Buddhist friends at temples will oppose the maneuvers for national division of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique and wage positive activities to hasten the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and convene the 100-man joint conference at an early date.

'PRAVDA'COMMENTS ON JAPAN-S. KOREA LOAN ISSUE

SK111033 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1023 GMT 11 Mar 82

[Text] Moscow, 9 Mar (KCNA)--The Soviet paper PRAVDA on 8 March in its commentary titled "Bargain Has Not Ended" exposed the manoeuvres of the United States to force Japan to sign an agreement on granting "loan" to the South Korean puppet clique. The "foreing minster-level talks" which are now under preparation in full scale surrounding the question of Japan's "loan" to South Korea are aimed at reaching a concrete agreement on Japan's colossal "loan" to South Korea, declares the paper.

Noting that it was the United States which advocated the demand of Seoul for Japan's "loan" to be used for military purposes, the paper continues: Neither in Seoul nor in Tokyo nor in Washington is it concealed that the question of financial "aid" to the South Korean "regime" is an offspring of Pentagon's Far Eastern strategy. It cannot be denied that the Japanese Government is hastening militarization at a very fast pace. But Washington feels this is not yet satisfactory.

Pointing out that the United States worked out the Far Eastern strategy, South Korea acts the shock force in its implementation and Japan supports South Korea, the paper says: This became a topic already in May last year when Japanese Prime Minister Suzuki and U.S. President Reagan had talks.

It was known instantly that the sum demanded by South Korea was $10,000 million. Although the figure dropped to $6,000 million, Japan dislikes the too blunt act of Seoul which does not bother to conceal the military nature of the bargain.

Noting that Japan would rather cover the loan with the veil of "pure economic aid," the paper says: The nervous United States is strongly urging Japan to sign an agreement on the "loan" to South Korea.

OLYMPICS WILL BE FINANCIAL BURDEN ON S. KOREA

SK110840 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0802 GMT 11 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 11 Mar (KCNA)--A magazine published in Japan in its recent issue exposed the sinister scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan traitor clique to gratify its desire for long-term office, kicking up a noisy row over the "inducement of 1988 olympiad," according to a report. The magazine says:

Chon Tu-hwan is talking big after making himself "chairman of the Olympic Promotion Committee." But, nowhere can be found realistic conditions for satisfying his wild ambition to sponsor the Seoul olympiad by prolonging his "presidential" term of office. On the contrary, the unstable factor of the collapse of the present fascist system is growing daily.

What is noteworthy of it is the "explosive factor of a new economic crisis," the magazine says, and adds: Olympiad will reportedly involve a cost of $7,000 or $8,000 million. But, where will it come from? Judging from the present rate of inflation, the cost is sure to be larger. It would have to be covered with foreign debts and taxation. But, would there be any room for that? The foreign loans alone exceed $30,000 million and the tax levies including the newly instituted educational tax will average 1,319,000 won for a five-member family in 1982.

Recalling that Japan and other earlier sponsors of the olympiad fell into large debts, the magazine predicts that the olympiad which the South Korean puppets intend to sponsor "will entail an irretrievable economic chaos endangering the existence of the Chon Tu-hwan system itself."

WFTU DEMANDS KIM TAE-CHUNG'S RELEASE--Pyongyang, 9 Mar (KCNA)--The secretariat of the World Federation of Trade Unions sent a letter of protest to the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique on 1 March, according to a report. It says: The WFTU strongly denounced the imprisonment of Kim Tae-chung and inhumane tortures inflicted on him. The WFTU demands an unconditional and immediate release of Kim Tae-chung and all other personages and guarantee of necessary conditions for their participation in a joint conference of 100 politicians in the North and South and abroad which was proposed by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. REUNIFICATION GROUP SCORES CHON PROPOSAL--Pyongyang, 8 Mar (KCNA)--The International Liaison Committee for the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of Korea in its statement denounced the "unification proposal" brought forward by the Chon Tu-hwan clique, according to a report. The statement says: How can "general elections" be held according to the "principle of national self-determination" and "democratic procedures" with foreign troops left in South Korea and the military fascist system maintained there? How can we believe the proposal of the Seoul authorities, who have imprisoned and murdered tens of thousands of South Korean patriots and democrats, to form a "Consultative Council for National Unification" with persons "representing the will of the population"? We bitterly denounce the so-called "unification proposal" brought forward by the South Korean person in authority under the patronage of the United States, considering it to be one for creating "two Koreas." The reunification of Korea must be realised in accordance with the principles of independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity. PAPER URGES KIM TAE-CHUNG'S RELEASE--Beijing, 5 Mar (KCNA)--The 5 March issue of the Chinese PEOPLE'S DAILY printed a short commentary titled "Kim Tae-chung Must be Released at Once." Pointing out that Chon Tu-hwan is harshly persecuting Kim Tae-chung, a prominent democratic figure of South Korea, on charges of "agitating for a rebellion" and "commuted" life imprisonment passed on him to "20 years in prison" on 2 March, the paper says: People are paying attention to the fact that although the South Korean authorities "commuted" the penalty passed on Kim Tae-chung, they keep him in prison in an attempt to persistently bar the peaceful reunification of Korea at a time when the North of Korea proposed to convene a joint conference of 100 North, South and overseas Korean politicians and discuss the cause of reunification to pave the way to reunification and called for the participation of Kim Tae-chung and other representatives of the political circles of South Korea in the conference. NORTH'S ASSASSINATION PLOT CONDEMNED--Toronto, 6 Mar (YONHAP)--A group of Korean immigrants in metro Toronto condemned the North Korea-inspired attempt on the life of South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan in a rally organized by the Korean-Canadian Association here Saturday. A three-point resolution, adopted by the 200 Koreans attending the rally held shortly after a ceremony marking the 1 March independence movement, denounced "impure elements," for plotting to kill Chon. To our motherland, we felt we owe an apology for such a conspiracy because it took place in Toronto where we live, and we denounce the behavior of "some impure elements, which are inspired by North Korea's sinister scheming, in the name of the entire Korean community (in Toronto) as it affects our good names," the resolution said. There are an estimated 30,000 Koreans in metro Toronto. Calling on North Korea to abandon its "wild dream" of communizing the Korean peninsula by force and accept Chon's 22 January peace initiative, those attending the rally asked their fellow Korean immigrants in Canada to refrain from visiting North Korea. Following the rally, some of the participants drove to Choe Hong-hui's home in the Toronto suburb of Mississauga and staged a brief demonstration in front of his house. Chanting anti-Pyongyang slogans and carrying placards reading "down with Kim Il-song," the demonstrators denounced Choe for masterminding the plot to kill Chon under riders from North Korea. The demonstrators dispersed peacefully after about 20 minutes. [Text] [SK080250 Seoul YONHAP in English 0219 GMT 8 Mar 82]

DAILY EVALUATES FIRST YEAR OF CHON ADMINISTRATION

[Editorial: "The First Year of the New Government and the Amnesty"]

[Excerpts] We are at a juncture when we should extend congratulations and reflect on events. Today marks the first anniversary of the inauguration of the new president and the new government. On this occasion, the government granted a special amnesty and commutation benefitting 2,863 persons. It is of great political significance that the amnesty was granted to those involved in the Kim Tae-chung and the Kwangju cases.

This is evidence that our political situation has reached a stage where magnanimity can be exercised. This also shows that some political stability has been attained. We welcome the amnesty and hope the government will make even bolder decisions to achieve a national consensus. We believe the government must try to cure the disease which gave rise to the sentencing and the need for an amnesty in the first place. It is no exaggeration that the efforts of the government in the past year were taken to eliminate the cause of a political tragedy. We would like to assess government efforts on behalf of economic and social stability. The emphasis placed on the politics of dialogue was to prevent the recurrence of such a tragedy.

For politics of dialogue, the Advisory Council on State Affairs was established, and the president held talks with leaders of major political parties. The government organizations were reduced to share the burden. The policy of self-regulation which effected the self-regulatory economy, the lifting of the curfew, liberalization of student uniforms and liberalization of overseas trips was enough to win the sympathy of the people.

For these reasons, we offer our congratulations on the first anniversary of the inauguration of the new government. However, history does not allow us to be compalcent and self-congratulatory. We must not. History can advance only when we are ready to suffer the agony of self-examination. We must recognize our faults. Government offices have been reduced, and the purification campaign has weeded out corruption and fraud. Nevertheless, we are far from a proud democratic administration and clean government. Even the government policy to achieve social justice is an abstract slogan. We still cannot see any tangible signs of justice being done.

Moreover, if someone asks whether genuine politics of dialogue has been realized, we cannot say yes. At the ongoing National Assembly interpellation, the opposition party is calling for genuine politics of dialogue. However, it is doubtful whether stability is being achieved based on a reflection of popular opinion. Friction beneath the surface cannot be construed as stability. Uniformity is not stability.

All in all, we think a single year is not enough to assess the government's actions. We would like to consider this past year as a turning point and a period to build the foundations for the achievement of a goal. We once again extend congratulations for the efforts to build these foundations and hope that the government, on the first anniversary of its inauguration, will renew its determination to bring about a democratic and just welfare society.

ASSEMBLYMAN STRESSES PEACEFUL TRANSFER OF POWER

[Interpellation of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun by Rep Kim Hyong-rae of the Democratic Korea Party at 4 March plenary session of National Assembly]

[Text] The new cabinet lacks vitality, falling far short of the expectations of the people, who hoped that things would be different. This being the case, how can the government ask the people to follow it and expand its justness? It is urged that the government renew its determination so that the people will not be heard to say that the new era is marked merely by a reshuffle of people.

The government has been creating the false impression that everything is going well, by doing such things as lifting the nightly curfew and liberalizing educational policies, while cunningly sidestepping important political issues. This has resulted in the opposition side's being at wits end. Being in the opposition camp is a tough job.

However, it is a lesson of history that so long as that which is essential remains blocked, everything will come to naught, no matter what partial measures are taken.

Per capita income was $130 in 1961 when President Pak Chong-hui made his debut, and it grew to $1,600 by 1979, the year when the president died. This notwithstanding, the people did not follow him because he wronged the basics of politics, meaning that he refused a peaceful transfer of power, the nucleus of democracy. Do you [the prime minister] think that a change of the ruling party, to one different from the ruler's, is possible under the current system? Do you think that there is no instance of abuse of power or political repression?

If you say no, it is like looking at the sky through the eye of the needle. There is a National Assembly, but no politics; there are politicians, but no politics. As politics has lost heat, so has society and so, even, has the era. Under this cold situation, how can we expect enthusiasm from the people? With all things swept away and begun anew in the name of reform, experience is lost and the nation's strength weakens in a time of internationalization and specialization. Looking back on the fact that there were deserters among the soldiers under the command of Admiral Yi Sun-sin, the government should not force uniformity on the people.

[Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean on 5 March published the following response by Prime Minister Yu to the above interpellation: "The fundamental factor that hindered democracy in our country is one-man's long-term rule and resultant political antagonism.

["Detailed government measures for implementation of democracy are, as noted in the constitution, stipulation of a single-term presidency, promotion of spiritual education for the people, reestablishment of traditional ethical values, establishment of the climate of a responsible administration, fostering of a thorough concept of national security, balanced regional development and expansion of policy considerations to social classes that have been denied them. If the people have confidence in them, I believe we can have democracy take root.

["The government is moving toward an era of liberalization, loosening or abrogating unnecessary regulations which have potential for abuse of power.

["The government has reviewed overall educational issues: ideals, goals and system, and is working out a comprehensive plan, which covers what textbooks should be used and how qualified teachers should be secured."]

DKP DISSATISFIED WITH PREMIER AT HOUSE SESSION

SK040512 Seoul CHONSON ILBO in Korean 4 Mar 82 p 2

[From the column "News Behind the News"]

[Text] On 3 March ruling and opposition party alwmakers held an interpellation session on politics, security and foreign affairs at the plenary meeting of the National Assembly. Because representatives of the house negotiating bodies had already touched on key topics the previous day, it was felt that many topics raised by lawmakers, who took the floor, overlapped with ones raised the previous day.

In this connection, Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, in his answers to lawmakers' questions, often said: "My answers given yesterday will suffice."

Accordingly, the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] side expressed its dissatisfaction with the prime minister's attitude and forced him to stop speaking at the rostrum for a while.

That afternoon, following the conclusion of the prime minister's remarks, the DKP's deputy floor leader in charge of parliamentary affairs, Cho Chung-yon, took the floor. He said: "This is not a forum for raising private questions but for the National Assembly to interpellate the administrative branch. Consequently, no matter how often we raise similar topics, the government is obligated to answer in a detailed and courteous manner. What are the inmost thoughts of the prime minister, who even though he has given detailed answers to economic questions has avoided answering questions concerning political affairs?"

Speaker Chong Nae-hyok got the attention of both the lawmakers and government side by saying: "Lawmakers should avoid asking repetitive questions, and the government should show more sincerity, because lawmakers sometimes can ask similar questions from different perspectives."

Prime Minister Yu also sought the lawmakers' understanding, saying: "I didn't mean what I said to you; the problem was the expression I used."

SEOUL RADIO REPORTS RICE SCANDAL LAWSUIT PENDING

SK090748 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 0500 GMT 9 Mar 82

[Text] According to an AP report from San Francisco, U.S. rice cooperative associations have initiated a lawsuit against two U.S. rice exporters for paying kickbacks to officials of Korea's Office of Supply to compensate for exporting rice to Korea at a higher cost than the market price.

According to the lawsuit brought before the federal court by the U.S. rice cooperative associations charging violation of the (?U.S. antitrust act), Pirmi, which mills and sells cheap California-grown rice, the Connel R Sug Agroperm, based in Geneva, and many officials of Korea's Office of Supply are involved in this case.

The suit points out that the Pirmi and Connel R Sug Agroperm violated the (?U.S. antitrust act) by conspiring to monopolize the export of rice to Korea and offered kickbacks to officials of Korea's Office of Supply to prevent other firms form participating in Korea's market. Pirmi and Korea's Office of Supply signed a contract in January 1981 specifying that Pirmi sell 200,000 tons of rice at $429.60 per ton. However, with a 15 percent price increase, Pirmi shipped only 100,000 tons and canceled the remainder.

The price of rice soon began to decline, closing at $350 epr ton in August 1981. Pirmi agreed with some officials of Korea's Office of Supply to ship 100,000 tons which had previously been canceled at $499.90 per ton and to pay $6 million--the difference from the current price--to Korea's Office of Supply. The suit also discloses that they agreed to ship 130,000 tons of rice in February and March 1982 at the higher price and to share the balance with each other.

The two U.S. rice cooperative associations and some rice exporters claimed that such a contract was concluded despite the fact that they were ready to export California-grown rice at a considerably lower price than Korea's Office of Supply would pay. The director of the Office of Supply, Kim Kyu-ho, denied the foreign news report about kickbacks, calling it totally groundless.

Director Kim Kyu-ho, in a statement to the press, said reports about the purchase of 370,000 tons of California-grown rice last year are true. However, he stressed that the purchase was carried out in accord with normal practices and procedures and no commission was involved.

OPPOSITION FRONT AGAINST DJP--The 4 March meeting of floor leaders of the three major parties--the Democratic Justice Party [DJP], the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] and the Korea National Party [KNP]--ended with a unanimous agreement among the participants only 1 hour after it was convened--an indication that the three floor leaders are still enjoying a honeymoon, contrary to the expectation that opposition floor leaders Yim Chong-ki of the DKP and Yi Tong-chin of the KNP, who had a tete-a-tete before the tripartite meeting, might form a united front against the ruling DJP. It appears that horse-trading took place at the meeting, with the DJP agreeing to the opposition demand for deliberation of such quite "embarrassing" bills as the one recommending freeing of restrictions on former politicians and the bill concerning the basic press law, and the opposition promising "favorable consideration" to early deliberations on the amendment to the government organization law, the gist of which would set up a Ministry of Sports Affairs. However, their accord failed to specify the scope of the agreement. Did they agree to discuss such bills for the sake of deliberation? Or does their agreement go beyond deliberation, that is, up to the point of passages of the bills? It only remains to be seen. With discussion of the KNP-proposed bill recommending a 5-day school week postponed, Yi played a "new card" by saying: "The KNP will, during the current National Assembly session, propose an amendment to the National Assembly law as we pledged to the people last year." EDUCATION MINISTER ON CAMPUS SITUATION

[Text] Education Minister Yi Kyu-ho has said that "only when they are faithful to their duty, eager to carry out their mission, exercise self-control over disorder and inappropriate activities can colleges enjoy self-regulation." He also said: "As far as administrative matters are concerned, in a month or so a College Education Council will be established to take over many tasks now handled by the Education Ministry and to help promote college self-regulation."

Minister Yi made these remarks in answers given 2 March to a series of questions which the press of Seoul National University put forth in writing.

On the controversial graduation quota system, Yi said: "I think there will be no serious problems, if natural selection is promoted."

The following are the highlights of the questions and answers:

Question: What is the government policy on an increased number of students?

Answer: For primary, middle schools and high schools, if they were overexpanded, it would be difficult to create an academic atmosphere. The same principle applies to colleges. Therefore, the facilities of the Seoul National University will not be expanded but improved and modernized. When the Education Ministry plan has been implemented, there will be more spaces.

Question: What do you think about the graduation quota system?

Answer: There will be no serious problems, if we make it difficult to get points and promote natural selection.

Question: How will you improve the college entrance examination system?

Answer: We will make adjustments among the colleges of the first and second groups. And I think we must provide more opportunities for applicants to make second choices and to apply for subjects suited to their aptitude.

Question: How are you going to handle campus disturbances?

Answer: I don't worry too much about campus disturbances. I know what the people want and have confidence in the students. I am optimistic about coping with the campus situation. We are determined to deal with chronic unrest.

SEOUL DAILY WELCOMES RESTORATION OF CAMPUS CLUBS

[Editorial: "Students' Academic Clubs"]

[Excerpts] With the beginning of the new semester, college students will be allowed to join academic clubs. It has been 8 years since the discontinuation of extracurricular activities was enforced on campuses with the formation of the Student Defense Corps in 1975. This means that, with the arrival of spring, the campuses, where students should actively and voluntarily conduct academic activities, have begun to function on the right track.

Over the past 8 years, Education Ministry authorities, under the pretext of creating an atmosphere of study on campuses, bitterly suppressed students' academic clubs and eventually banned such activities. Perhaps it can be said this was the inevitable outcome of the situation which developed on the campuses, reflecting the anguish of an era and deepening the feeling of stagnation and discontent on campuses. It is not right to check the activities of the students.

As a matter of fact, chaos and discord arose on the campuses during the past 8 years because of the suppression of club activities and because of inflexibility in the operation of the Student Defense Corps.

Stagnation in the operation of academic clubs on campuses was the cause for the feeling of discontent with the government's education policy and with the university authorities. This abetted student abandonment of extracurricular activities in favor of pastimes and amusements.

Now that the Education Ministry authorities are working toward autonomy for the university, their policy of allowing students to autonomously conduct their academic activities will greatly vitalize and develop campus life. This will greatly contribute to developing campus culture and to creating an atmosphere of study on the campuses.

The view that an atmosphere of study on campus can be influenced by the situation outside the campus is the product of a misunderstanding of the true nature of the university. Needless to say, the university develops in an atmosphere in which students freely express their views with zeal and desire for study. This atmosphere is not created by students alone. It will be created in an organic manner in cooperation with professors.

With the restoration of the academic clubs this spring, we should develop the university into a sanctuary of truth.

SEOUL DAILY VIEWS INTERNATIONAL CONFIDENCE

SK080354 Seoul SINMUN in Korean 7 Mar 82 p 3

[Editorial: "International Confidence Is Foundation for Progress"]

[Excerpts] It is obvious that international confidence in the Fifth Republic has been greatly increasing. On 3 March the 38th plenary meeting of the Commission on Human Rights of the United Nations decided not to make an issue of the human rights situation in the ROK any more. And unprecedently, the 4 March edition of THE NEW YORK TIMES widely covered President Chon Tu-hwan's achievements since his inauguration a year ago.

The international community's generally favorable estimate of the Fifth Republic can be construed as meaning that the international community highly values our government's policy of opening the society, of trying to allow more autonomy and of boldly pushing ahead with its programs.

The Fifth Republic's positive and audacious unification policy has aroused great sympathy from the international community. As THE NEW YORK TIMES put it: "With the proposal of such a positive and audacious unification policy, President Chon has taken over Kim Il-song's place as the torch bearer of reunification."

However, we must not be complacent about the increasing confidence in our country. Political leaders should not boast of it, either. It is desirable for us to make this opportunity a new turning point for further progress. We should bear in our mind that the more we receive praise, the more we should review ourselves with modesty, and that such an attitude is the source of durable growth. In this connection, we are going to offer some candid advice.

First, we would like to touch on the government's reform-minded will. It is advised that the government carry out its original intention of establishing a clean government trusted by people.

At the same time, we should exert more efforts to achieve great national harmony. It is surely encouraging that the government has been taking measures for national reconciliation. In this connection, it is expected that critics will also open-heartedly accept the present situation as it is, too. We think that great national harmony is an important foundation for the peaceful transfer of power.

DFRF OFFICIAL MARKS 1 MARCH UPRISING

SK030124 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0005 GMT 2 Mar 82

[Report by Yo Yon-ku, director of the Secretariat of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland, at Pyongyang report meeting on 1 March on 63d anniversary of the 1 March people's uprising--read by announcer]

[Excerpt] The reporter said we greet the 63d anniversary of the 1 March people's uprising under magnificent circumstances when all party members and workers in the northern half of the republic are vigorously carrying out an all-out advance movement to implement the magnificent program set forth for socialist construction by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation and a revolutionary genius, at the Sixth KWP Congress and the militant task he delineated in his new year message and to greet the 70th birthday of the respected and beloved leader as the greatest, politically significant festival of the people in history and in which all Korean compatriots at home and abroad ardently long for the fatherland's reunification as never before. She went on to say that the 1 March people's uprising was the eruption of our people's hatred and rage against the tyrannical Japanese imperialist aggressors and their bestial colonial rule and was a courageous, sacrificial pan-national struggle to achieve the independence of the fatherland and the sovereignty of the people and to oppose Japan.

She said that, having completely occupied our country in 1910, the Japanese imperialist aggressors established the most outrageous, barbarous colonial and military ruling system, forcing our people to suffer absolute subservience, randomly arrested, imprisoned and murdered our innocent fellow countrymen, usurped the country's precious natural resources, mercilessly extracted our people's blood and converted the country into a springboard for aggression on the continent and a living hell. However, none of the brigandish Japanese imperialists' barbarous acts of tyranny and usurpation frustrated our people's patriotic spirit in their struggle to achieve the country's independence, she said.

She said our people's pent-up rage and rancor against the Japanese imperialist aggressors' brutal gendarme military rule over a decade erupted into a pan-national anti-Japanese struggle in 1919. She then said: The oppressed people throughout the country, including those in Pyongyang and Seoul, rose in a large-scale struggle to achieve the freedom and independence of the fatherland. The 20 million Korean people, who lamented over national ruin because of the brigandish Japanese imperialists, rose regardless of sex and age and courageously struggled against Japanese imperialist aggressors armed to the teeth, loudly chanting the slogans "Japanese and the Japanese troops must withdraw!" "long live the independence of Korea!" "Korea is for Koreans!" and "long live freedom and equality!"

Because of the Japanese imperialist military and police forces' bestial wielding of bayonets, streets and villages throughout the country were stained with the scarlet blood of the fellow countrymen. However, the demonstrators did not stop their struggle, and, without fear, they gradually developed their peaceful demonstration into a mass riot. Holding axes, sickles, picks, shovels and clubs, they assaulted and destroyed Japanese ruling agencies throughout the country, military police posts, police stations, county and myon government offices and post offices, thus mercilessly chastising the aggressors and traitors.

The anti-Japanese people's struggle continued to the end of the year. The number of struggles throughout the country amounted to over 3,200. More than 2 million people participated in these struggles. Indeed, the 1 March people's uprising was a pan-national patriotic mass struggle in which all people, including workers, peasants, intellectuals and students regardless of sex and age, who loved the country and the people, rose to achieve the independence of the fatherland and the freedom of the people. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Through the 1 March movement, our people demonstrated to the world's people that the Korean people are alive, that they do not want a life of national ruin and that they are resolved to struggle to the end to achieve freedom and independence. The 1 March people's uprising above all demonstrated to the Japanese imperialist aggressors our people's ardent patriotism and resolute revolutionary spirit. This uprising promoted our people's awareness that they are members of the people and promoted their class awareness.

The 1 March people's uprising severely chastised the Japanese imperialist aggressors who ran amok to swallow up Korea and to become the leader of Asia and completely shook the rascals' colonial ruling system. Indeed, the 1 March people's uprising in which all the people rose and struggled against the Japanese imperialist aggressors was a heroic anti-Japanese struggle which added a brilliant chapter to the history of the national liberation struggle in our country. The reporter said that although the struggle of our people failed because of the bestial suppression of the struggle by the Japanese imperialist jackals, the history of the 1 March struggle afforded a serious lesson to the history of the anti-Japanese struggle of the Korean people. She then added: The 1 March people's uprising afforded a lesson that to win victory in their revolutionary struggle, the masses of the people--the masters of history--should struggle under the leadership of an outstanding leader. Although the spirit of the people was high in the 1 March uprising, they failed to organize a chuche-type revolutionary force in this struggle and lead it to an organic and decisive stage because of the absence of the leadership of an outstanding leader and of a correct struggle program, strategy and tactics. In short, they failed.

The entire course of the 1 March people's uprising clearly showed that reliance on foreign forces is by no means the way to achieve the independence of the country and the sovereignty of the people. The reporter said that although the anti-Japanese struggle of the Korean people had steadily continued following the 1 March people's uprising, this struggle was thwarted by the Japanese imperialists' bayonets because it was not guided by a correct struggle program, strategy and tactics.

She said the Korean people longed for the emergence of an outstanding leader--the sun of the nation--who could relieve the fatherland and the people from hardships and lead the national liberation struggle along the road of victory. She went on to say this ardent desire of our people was brilliantly fulfilled when the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the genius of the revolution, the sun of the nation and a legendary hero, taking responsibility for the destiny of the fatherland and the people, took the lead in the Korean revolution.

She said: Having deep insight into the weakpoint of the nationalist movement and the initial stage communist movement in our country, the great leader developed a new struggle method entirely different from the previous movements and formed the down-with-imperialism union--the first communist revolutionary organization in our country--in October 1926 by rallying the young communists from the new generation he had led and trained. The formation of the down-with-imperialism union was a glorious and proud declaration to the world of the greeting and holding in high esteem of the great leader for the first time in the long history of our people. This was a historic declaration of the new beginning of the Korean revolution under the banner of the chuche idea. This was a magnificent declaration ushering in the chuche era--a new era.

With this momentum, our people ended the disgraceful history of reliance on foreign forces, toadyism and treachery under the wise leadership of the great leader and greeted a new revolutionary era of winning victory and advancing under the banner of chuche.

The reporter said the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has illuminated the future path of the Korean revolution by inventing the immortal chuche idea and has organized and led the heroic anti-Japanese armed struggle to victory by organizing a chuche-type revolutionary force in the flames of a grim struggle. She added the anti-Japanese armed struggle was a great revolutionary one which developed the national liberation struggle and the communist movement in our country to a new, higher stage and a colonial national liberation struggle waged for the first time in history against the imperialist aggressive force with an independent national force under the banner of the chuche idea.

She noted that by eventually defeating the brigandish Japanese imperialists, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song accomplished the cause of the liberation of the fatherland--the ardent and long-cherished desire of the 1 March uprisers and our people.

She said that since liberation, our people have established an advanced socialist system in this land and developed our country, once poor and backward, into a powerful socialist country--the chuche fatherland--which has a solid self-reliant national economy, brilliant culture and a strong defense power by successfully carrying out a complicated democratic and socialist revolution against imperialism and feudalism. She went on to say that only as a result of the wise leadership of the great leader and the glorious party center have our people ended the history of suffering and greeted a worthwhile era of independence for themselves as true masters of their destiny. They are vigorously advancing toward the future of communism along the single road of victory and glory.

The reporter said that although 63 years have elapsed since the 1 March people's uprising and 37 years have passed since the defeat of the Japanese imperialists, the desire of our people for independence has not been fulfilled and the South Korean people are still suffering a miserable state of colonial slavery. She denounced the U.S. imperialist aggressors for occupying and reigning over South Korea as a new colonial ruler, relieving the Japanese imperialists following the 15 August liberation, maintaining an atrocious rule of neocolonialism in South Korea for 37 years and mercilessly violating the democratic freedoms and rights of the people by employing dictators in South Korea.

She said that with the infiltration into South Korea of the revived Japanese reactionary force, subservience has been deepended in South Korea where the sovereignty of the people has been cruelly violated and all sectors have been completely subjugated to the United States. She then said the Japanese reactionaries have already extended the tentacles of reinvasion to the South Korean political, economic and cultural sectors and formulated a plan for deploying its self-defense forces to the Korean frontline in a contingency.

She said that because of the descendents of the Japanese imperialists who forced our people to suffer slavery, South Korea is now in a serious position--bogged down in subjugation. She said the southern land of our fatherland is being degraded into the twofold colony of the U.S. imperialists and the Japanese militarists. She said that because of the antinational, toadyist and treacherous maneuvers of the South Korean ruling bunch to follow foreign forces, the ardent desire of the 1 March uprisers for the liberation of the people and the independence of the country has not been fulfilled and that the South Korean people are suffering twofold colonial slavery--one which is more miserable than that they experienced during the dark period of the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule 63 years ago.

She said that emerging as a new fascist dictatorial maniac after usurping power with bayonets and patronized by the U.S. imperialists, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has committed intolerable treachery, far surpassing his predecessors. She then said: Using the method of maintaining power by introducing and relaying on foreign forces, the Chon Tu-hwan ring has continuously kept the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces in South Korea and fostered a policy of subjugation to the United States. It is trying to make South Korea its colonial military base forever.

Immediately following the inauguration of the president in the United States, traitor Chon Tu-hwan visited his new master, preceding others, pledged loyalty to him, begged for the long-term occupation of South Korea by U.S. forces and the strengthening of U.S. military aid to South Korea and sealed the treacherous South Korea-U.S. joint statement to more thoroughly subjugate the South Korean people as colonial slaves of the U.S. imperialists.

In addition to allowing the U.S. imperialists to subjugate South Korea, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, shouting about the body of common destiny, has more outrageously left it in the hands of the Japanese reactionaries and sold out the interests of the country and the people at random. He has worked toward strengthening his political, economic and military collusion with Japan and encouraged the Japanese monopolist capitalists to indefinitely infiltrate South Korea. Needless to say, $6 million which the South Korean puppets have recently begged from the Japanese reactionaries is for military aims against our republic.

She said that having seized power and patronized by the U.S. imperialists, the Chon Tu-hwan ring, while maintaining a most tyrannical fascist military rule in South Korea, has unhesitatingly committed an abhorrent, barbarous act of murdering its fellow countrymen. She then said: The barbarous mass slaughter the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military clique committed in Kwangju far surpassed in its bestial and brutal nature that committed by all the fascist dictators of the world.

Since the Kwangju incident, the Chon Tu-hwan ring has continuously created a whirlwind by arresting en masse patriotic people and students. It has frantically raised commotions in cruelly punishing them on charges of fictitious crimes. In South Korea today many democrats, including Kim Tae-chung, patriotic people and students are being confined in the enemy's murderous prisons. They are also suffering hardships in secret prison camps. This is clear evidence of the degree of the South Korean fascist military clique's barbarous suppression of the people and an act of a human butcher.

She said that having bound everything to the punishment instrument of the fascist military dictatorial system in South Korea, the fascist element, while following the U.S. imperialists' policy of war, has zealously and frantically run amok to make war preparations against us. She then said that together with scores of thousands of the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces, the fascist clique is staging a large-scale war exercise at this very moment, leading the situation to the brink of war. She said no one can guarantee this war exercise will be limited to a mere exercise and that it will not develop into an all-out war to attack us, breaking through the military demarcation line. She then said that, because of the reckless war exercise rackets kicked up by the South Korean puppet clique with the U.S. imperialist aggressors, a grave situation has developed in our country. No one can tell when the flames of a new war might flare up.

She said the South Korean puppets' antinational maneuvers have not only violated the sovereignty and democratic rights of the people in South Korea and threatened peace in the country but also laid grave obstacles to the cause for the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification--the people's long-cherished supreme desire. She said: While randomly arresting and imprisoning and cruelly executing and murdering patriotic people, students and democrats for demanding democracy and peaceful reunification, the fascist military Chon Tu-hwan clique has sought a line for two Koreas ever since it usurped power. It has eventually reached the point at which it has brazenly espoused the theory of reunification in the 2000's. This is clear evidence that the Chon Tu-hwan ring has no intention at all of achieving reunification. Recently advancing proposals for reunification and pilot projects, it has babbled about dialogue. This is a political trick designed to conceal its true color as a splittist, extricate itself from isolation and crisis at home and abroad by misleading public opinion and fulfill its wild desire for long-term power.

The past experiences of the North-South dialogue have clearly proved that the dialogue and negotiations with those who seek division after seizing power patronized by foreign forces cannot bring about any affirmative results. The discussion of the question of the country's reunification--the important issue of the people--with those whose hands are stained with the blood of fellow countrymen and who are the target of the rancor and hatred of thousands of fellow countrymen is an act defiling all the people who demand the fatherland's reunification and betraying the South Korean people who are struggling to achieve democracy and peaceful reunification.

The present South Korean rulers have already lost the qualification to sit at the sacred site for negotiations for reunification. It is clear that as long as the existing political parties and social organizations in South Korea play a role as the tools of those in power, they are also not qualified to become partners to the negotiations for reunification.

The best way to resolve the question of the country's reunification through dialogue and negotiations in this situation is to convene a joint meeting of politicians from the North and South and overseas as proposed on 10 February by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland. The new proposal for convening a 100-man joint meeting is a rational and practical measure to overcome difficulties on the road of reunification and pave a true way for negotiations of reunification.

Fellow countrymen at home and abroad have enthusiastically supported and sympathized with this proposal. The world's progressive people are warmly welcoming this proposal.

Nevertheless, while groundlessly denouncing our rational proposal for convening a 100-man joint meeting, the South Korean ruling clique has openly vowed that it will not release detained politicians supposed to participate in this meeting, including democratic Kim Tae-chung, and lift the ban on political activities, thus eagerly trying to prevent convocation of the meeting.

Despite the fact that it is not qualified to become a partner in negotiations for reunification and to participate in dialogue, this ruling clique, while talking about dialogue, has unhesitatingly and brazenly attempted to sneak into the negotiation site. Every fact clearly shows that the Chon Tu-hwan ring is a group of nation-selling traitors who have more completely subjugated South Korea to foreign forces, butchers who have murdered scores of thousands of fellow countrymen, war maniacs who have cast the dark cloud of internecine war over the country and the people's enemies who have sought perpetual division of the nation.

She said that, firmly believing from their practical experiences that, without eliminating the group of traitors like the Chon Tu-hwan ring they cannot fulfill their long-cherished desire for independence, democracy and reunification, the South Korean people from all walks of life have resolutely risen in a sacred struggle against the U.S. imperialists and their stooges.

On the occasion of commemorating the 63d anniversary of the 1 March people's uprising, she extended warm brotherly greetings and enthusiastic support and encouragement to the people of all walks of life and students in South Korea, who not giving in to the fascist military clique's suppressive measures, are tenaciously struggling to achieve independence, democracy and reunification.

The reporters said achieving the sovereignty of the people throughout the country, as desired by the 1 March uprisers more than 60 years ago, is the most urgent, impending task of all Korean people today. She then said forcing foreign aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea, eliminating a fascist military dictatorial system there and achieving the country's peaceful reunification is a true way for correctly achieving the sovereignty of the people. She said that to regain the lost sovereignty of the people in South Korea, aggressive maneuvers by foreing forces to meddle in the internal affairs there must be, above all, rejected.

She demanded that the U.S. imperialists abandon their foolish, wild desire to hold onto South Korea forever as their colonial, military base and immediately withdraw from there, taking along U.S. forces and nuclear weapons; that the Japanese reactionaries abandon their foolish illusion about seizing a position as a second colonial ruler in South Korea by taking advantage of the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and their illusion about aggression against the whole of Korea and Asia and stop instigating the South Korean military hooligans to fascism, war and division.

She said that, to achieve the sovereignty of the people in South Korea, we, while struggling against foreign forces, should eliminate fascist military rule and achieve the democratization of society.

She said the way to prevent perpetual division of the country and reunify the fatherland is to implement the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo--a new proposal for reunification--set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Supporting the proposal for convening a 100-man joint meeting of politicians from the North, South and overseas to implement the new reunification proposal set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, she defined this meeting as one to pave the way toward negotiations to overcome present difficulties on the road of reunification and to smoothly solve various questions concerning the fatherland's reunification.

BUDGET STRUCTURE OF ANNUAL REVENUES, EXPENDITURES ANALYZED

Seoul PUKHAN in Korean Dec 81 pp 74-85

[Article by Kim Kwang-su, professor of economics, Sungjon University: "An Analysis of the Budget Structure of North Korea's Annual Revenues and Expenditures"]

[Text] 1. The Socialist Structure and Budget

Regardless of the differences in economic structure or social system, a public organization must raise a certain amount of revenues to fulfill its unique functions. However, the ways of raising such revenues and establishing budgets vary conspicuously between the marketing economy system and the centralized economy system--in a comparison between categories higher than the socialist system and the capitalist system. North Korea's economic system, based on the social ownership of the means of production, is operated not through selection by consumers but through compulsory selection; therefore, North Korea's financial resources are those of its entire economy. The revenues of central and local government organizations, the finances of socialized business enterprises, bank loans, social insurance, and national income are regarded as a series of comprehensive economic issues. The finances in the socialist system are defined as "the planned formation, distribution, and utilization of monetary funds,"[1] designed to guarantee expanded reproduction. This also applies to the case of North Korea. Its finances are not only closely related to the process of forming the economic plans but also serve as a means of implementing economic policies. Furthermore, its finances serve as a means of direct intervention in and control over every field of the economy--enterprises, collective farms, and other cooperative endeavors.[2]

The finances of North Korea, in a broad concept, include those functions which are defined as monetary operations in the capitalist system. The function of finances in North Korea are fundamentally different from that of the capitalist system; but in North Korea also the budget of administrative organizations is the core of finances. The function of the finances under the so-called economic plans of North Korea is, first of all, to maintain a balance between accumulation and consumption. In other words, the finances suppress the consumption of individuals in order to expand production and meet social demands, while appropriating the financial resources concentrated in the field of finances for economic, social, and military purposes and for the purpose of maintaining power. Second, the objective of finances is to take part positively in the first and second distributions of the genuine social products for the purpose of maintaining economic growth, and thereby to suppress the consumption rate as well as the expansion of nonproductive fields, and consequently to contribute concentratively to economic development through the intensive formation of capital. Third, the objective of finances is to validate the planned economy.[3]

As explained by North Korean authorities, their finances under the socialist system are to guarantee the balanced development of their economy and to back up financially the operations of their government in power. Such a role of finances is fulfilled through the budget system.

The budget of North Korea represents the fundamental financial plan of the government organizations. It is a fundamental component of the comprehensive financial plan for the national economy. In it are expressed the demands for various funds in the field of finances as well as the scale of currency funds concentrated in the field of finances. In other words, in North Korea, too, the budget is to be defined as a fundamental form of economy in which the centralized currency funds are formed and utilized in accordance with plans. North Korea's budget, too, is fulfilling the unique functions of finances, in which social demands are met through expenditures as they appear externally and the needed financial resources are acquired through revenues. However, within the economic structure of North Korea--a system of command economy that is based on social ownership of the means of production--the budget serves not only as a means of enforcing upon the populace in North Korea the despotic preferences of the communist ruling group, but also as a means of concentratively appropriating the needed financial resources from the income revenues.

North Korea's budget may be viewed in the following three forms: 1) the budget as a fundamental financial plan which, reflecting the financial aspects of all the political, economic, social, military, and cultural activities, includes a summation of organic relationships with the finances, bank loans, and social insurance of plants and enterprises; 2) the budget as a central budget in which funds are appropriated and utilized for the society and its economy as a whole in order to fulfill the function of the central [government] organizations; and 3) local budgets made at the level of provinces (cities under direct jurisdiction), cities, and counties (districts). However, the budget, in actuality, is a single centralized one--a fundamental financial plan in which the central and local budgets are unified. The budget in North Korea is charged with a leading role in distributing and redistributing the national income. In other words, most of the national income is distributed through the budget; the budget is not only closely related to the economic plan but also provides a means of accomplishing the plan.

2. The Structure and Content of Revenue and Expenditure

North Korea's revenue is a total of currency funds concentrated in the hands of the state. The components of the revenue are: the nontax income which includes accumulated business income of the socialist business enterprises and the profits of the state-operated businesses; and the funds appropriated in the form of income taxes from part of the net profits of the cooperative organizations and enterprises. These items of revenue are collectively called the revenue from socialist management.

North Korea, too, relies on taxes in order to mobilize centralized currency funds, especially heavily on indirect taxes. It is widely acknowledged that the tax burdens of the populace are far heavier than those under the capitalist system. The taxes that are charged with such an important function not only serve as a means of forming the financial resources to defray budget expenditures, but are also utilized as an important means of exercising various kinds of control. Even in the revenue system of North Korea, the primary means of raising financial resources is income from business transactions.

North Korea authorities assert that the profit from business transactions is not a tax. However, the account of revenues is a kind of sales tax, which comes under huge and complicated discriminatory tax rates--supported by the "single step theory." This transaction tax (the profit from business transactions), while serving as a means of acquiring needed financial resources, also serves as a balancing factor through which the consumption of specially designated goods, for example consumer goods, is suppressed and the balance between the supply and total demands for usable consumer goods is maintained; and it also serves as a means of regulating profits of the socialized enterprises. In other words, since the sale price of producers is usually set in advance, the regulation of the transaction tax will cause increase or decrease in the profit rates.[7]

The profit from business transactions is to be defined as: 1) retail price--commercial margin; and 2) wholesale price--the net social income derived from retail price. And the principles governing the levying of the profit from business transactions are: 1) that it be levied only once per item of goods (once per item of goods principle on the profit from business transactions); 2) that it be collected immediately after receiving the price (the immediate collection principle on the profit from business transactions); and 3) that those enterprises and organizations which have settlement accounts must pay the state within a set period of time after figuring out the profit by themselves. Being levied in compliance with such a theory and procedures means there must also be a levy on the operations or service charges at the service organizations or enterprises as well as on the sideline business of enterprises. It must also be levied on indirect social fields, such as transportation and electricity.

The profit from the state-run enterprises, second in importance, is the sum paid to the state, that is, the net profit from the business enterprises minus the reserve funds of those enterprises in the expanded reproduction field; and it is recalculated and readjusted by means of monthly and annual profit rates. Furthermore, the recovered funds from the income tax surplus funds of cooperative organizations and the recovered funds from depreciations are to be included in the revenue sources.[8]

North Korea's budget is an important component of the comprehensive financial plan which is included in its economic plan; and it is distributed in compliance with the priority sequence set forth in the economic plan. By and large, the expenditure may be regarded as either organizational or functional. In the case of North Korea, its functional expenditure is made public; but the organizational expenditures of the State Administration Council and other organizations have never been made public. As for the functional budget of North Korea, as made public, according to the classification scheme common to the communist bloc, the expenditures for the socialist economy are: national economy expenditures, expenditures for social and cultural policies; military expenditures, and expenditures for the management and maintenance of administrative organizations.

The so-called national economy, as the term is used in North Korea, is the whole of the field of economy. In a broad sense, it means the economic field in its unique sense, including industry, commerce, agriculture, construction, etc, and the field of culture and welfare, such as science, education, public health, art, etc.[9] However, when referring to the national economy expenditure as a term used as an expenditure in the composition of the budget, "the national economy" is used in a narrow sense, not a broad sense; therefore, it includes only the economy in its genuine sense. So the field of culture and welfare is covered by the expenditures for social and cultural measures.

The national economy expenditure, which weighs most heavily among the expenditures of North Korea's budget, is an expenditure for the socialized business enterprises and organizations. It's major items are fixed capital investment, which North Koreans call capital construction investment, and a supplemental supply of floating funds. The expenditures of the national economy are made for the fields of socialized industry (including mining), agriculture, transportation, communications, and construction; also included in them are, it is said, the expenditure reserve fund, which is used to secure the expenditures of defaulting enterprises and to increase the balance of the subsidies to offset price. Industry includes the metal, power, machine, chemical, construction, and light industries. The social and cultural policies represent the whole of the state policies designed to meet the common demands of the society for the protection and development of the spiritual and physical capabilities of the people.[10] And the expenditures for these policies are expenditures for social and cultural policies. Included in the expenditures for social and cultural policies are expenditures for education, public health, social insurance, social security, and scientific research, as well as for publications, cadre training, and cultural propaganda.[11]

The national defense expenditure is expenditure defrayed to strengthen the defense capability of the state. It is an important item of the state budget.[12] The military expenditure is a self-evident expenditure; however, no information about its content has ever been given out. Therefore, military expenditure may also be included in any other items of the budget. For example, included in the science expenditure (included in the educational expenditure) is part of the expenditure for military nuclear research; and similarly, in some cases, the accumulation of the arms stockpile may be included in the expenditure for the accumulation of stockpile in the national economy expenditure. Furthermore, it logically follows that an investment in the arms engineering science is included in "the national economy expenditure."[13] Such an observation as this by Alec Nove may be called a good suggestion about the inclusiveness of the military expenditure.

Details of the military expenditure have never been made public. However, it is conjecture that the expenditure may be divided into expenses for military personnel and military equipment, expenses for strengthening combat capabilities, and expenses for the operation of military industries. Customarily, military expenditure generally includes personnel expenses, army barracks maintenance expenses, expenses for military equipment supplies and repairs and expenses for construction and maintenance of military establishments and educational facilities.[14] In view of the fact that the content of the military expenditure is a matter of highest secrecy, the scale of North Korea's military expenditure, as made public, must be evaluated as greatly different from the facts.

The expenditure for the management and maintenance of organizations includes all administrative and management expenses for central and local government organizations. In other words, it includes expenses for general administration, economic management administration, and safety operations. It appears that the budget for the intelligence and police organizations and operations is placed under the category of social and cultural expenditure. North Korean authorities emphasize that budget expenditure for this category is being reduced relative to other categories, despite the fact that such expenditure includes even expenses for safety operations. However, one must consider, to some extent, the fact that the weight of administrative and management expenditure is being reduced in such circumstances as those of North Korea in which the system of centralized planning and management is being tightened. Therefore, there is a strong possibility that portions of the administrative and management expenditure are expediently being transferred to economic expenditure or social and cultural expenditure or the burdens of local government organizations, depending on the administrative functions of the portion at issue.[15]

3. The Scale of Annual Expenditure (up to 1979)

The scale of North Korea's budget shows a trend of continuing increase caused by rising commodity prices, expansion of activity areas of budget fields, expansion of administrative structure, increase in population, and the expansion in military expenses caused by the policy of seeking unification through communization of South Korea.

The expenditure in North Korea's budget is divided into the national economy expenditure, social and cultural expenditure, military expenditure, and administrative and management expenditure. The importance of these components of budget expenditure is being shifted in conformity with political changes; however, the shifting has always been insignificant because of the consistent political objective of attaining the unification of Korea through communization. The political objective has consistently been the strengthening of military power on the basis of the policy of giving priority to heavy industry. Therefore, the basic direction of North Korea's policies has undergone very little major change.

The total amount of North Korea's budget expenditure was 71.11 million won in 1947; in 1955 it was 1,006,190,000 won or about 14.15 times that of 1947; in 1960 it was 1,967,870,000 won or about 27.67 times that of 1947; in 1970 it was 6,002,690,000 won or about 84.41 times that of 1947; and in 1979 it was 16,972,600,000 won or 238.68 times that of 1947--a large-scale increase was thus effected. The average annual rate of increase of the total annual budget expenditure was 118.6 percent in the 1950's; 112.6 percent in the 1960's; and 114.8 percent in the 1970's. As for the relationship between the plan for the total amount of annual budget expenditure and the actual amount of execution of the plan, the actual amount of execution was larger than the planned amount in the 1950's; however, in the 1960's, it was generally smaller than the planned amount.

Table 1 shows annual budget expenditures and their increase rates during the period from 1947 to 1979.

Details of the content of some items of the annual budget expenditure are as follows: the national economy expenditure carries the heaviest weight among the items of expenditure. It has occupied over 50 percent of the total budget expenditure every year up to the present--except for the few years from 1967 to 1971. It occupied over 70 percent of the total budget expenditure during the early 1960's, the postwar rehabilitation period. Components of the national economy expenditure have changed considerably in accordance with the features of the situation in the period. In 1949, the national economy expenditure had seven items--distribution funds for the following seven fields: state-operated industries, agriculture and forestry, local industries, civil engineering, city management, communications and transportation, and postal services. However, in the postarmistice period, it has had four components, such as capital construction, agriculture, industries, and transportation.

The percentages of the items of the national economy expenditure in 1966 were as follows: capital construction, 40.9 percent; agriculture, 16.6 percent; industry 30.4 percent; and transportation, 12.1 percent. These percentages changed to a certain extent whenever major policy emphases were shifted; however, there have been no major changes, as interpreters generally agree on this. The percentage of social and cultural expenditure in the total annual expenditure has been comparatively stable, except for the few years of the postarmistice period in which social instability prevailed: in the 1960's it was in the neighborhood of 20 percent; and in the 1970's in the neighborhood of 25 percent. Detailed components of social and cultural expenditure are education and culture, public health and hygiene, and others, including publications and reporting, social businesses, social insurance, cadre training, and education for the General Association of Koreans in Japan.

Components of the social and cultural expenditure of 1949 were: educational cultural expenses, 54.9 percent; public health expenses, 19.6 percent; and others, 25.5 percent. The same expenses in 1955 were: 45.4 percent; 25.8 percent; and 28.8 percent. Those in 1963 were: 53.8 percent; 24.3 percent; and 21.9 percent. The percentages of the educational cultural expenses changed to a certain extent; but "others" did not change much. Since 1963, no details have been made public, but it is generally understood that the level reached in 1963 continues to prevail up to the present.

The national defense expenditure is the item which changes most conspicuously among the components of the annual expenditure of North Korea. The percentage of national defense expenditure in the annual budget expenditure was 15.2 percent in 1953. It was reduced greatly in 1954, down to 7.9 percent. This trend continued, and in 1963 it reached 1.9 percent, which was the lowest. But from 1964 on, it began to increase. In 1967 it was 30.4 percent. Until 1971, it continued to stay at the level of the neighborhood of 30 percent. In 1972, on the occasion of the North-South dialogue, it began to decrease, to 17 percent. Therefore, the circumstances are such that a general understanding is difficult to reach.

Despite the fact that the national defense expenditure was as described, North Korea's military strength continued to increase. In fact, four major military policies were adopted; and a strong military policy was implemented on a full scale. It was understood that the public announcements were arbitrarily camouflaged in compliance with a definite political purpose.

The expenditure for the management of organizations is also called state management expenditure, state operations expenditure, or administrative management expenditure. It is limited to the general administrative expenditure. Due to the measures of simplification in administrative management and the acceleration of revolutionary movement, the weight of the administrative management expenditure continued to decrease; it now occupies only about 2 percent. Since 1964, however, the amount of expenditure for the management of organizations and its percentage in the annual budget expenditure have not been made public at all. So the scale and the nature of the organization management expenditure are not known precisely. But if we assume that the organization management expenditure is the balance set after deducting the national economy expenditure, social and cultural expenditure, and the national defense expenditure, as they were made public, the organization management expenditure is believed to have occupied 1.8 to 2.1 percent of the budget expenditure after 1967.

Table 2 shows an itemized structure of North Korea's annual budget expenditures. It is given for reference.

4. The Scale of Annual Revenues (up to 1979)

North Korea's annual revenue was 92.14 million won in 1957 [sic]; 216.59 million won in 1950; 2,019,300,000 won in 1960; 6,232,200,000 won in 1970; and 17,477,900,000 [sic] won in 1979--a tremendous increase.

Most of the budget revenue comes from the income from socialist management. This practice started in the late 1950's. The income from socialist management is mainly the so-called centralized incomes, which include the profits from business transactions, profits from business enterprises, cooperative organizations income tax, and social insurance charges. From about 1957 on--from the time when the first 5-year plan was implemented, the income from socialist management occupied 60 percent of the annual budget revenue.

From the early 1960's on, North Korea has never made public the content of the income from socialist management. Therefore, there is no way of knowing the percentages of the profits from business transactions, the profits from business enterprises, and other income in North Korea's annual revenue. However, judging from the fact that North Korea could not escape from the lack of revenue because of limited financial resources while it was implementing the 7-year or 6-year plan, and that it greatly pushed the development of local industries in order to cope with the situation, it appears we should assume that the percentages of the profits from business transactions or the profits from business enterprises in the annual budget revenue continued to increase.

The annual rate of increase in the annual revenue was 12.3 percent in the 1960's, when the income from the socialist management occupied 98 percent of the total annual revenue; but the average rate of increase in the 1970's was 13.1 percent. Since 1958, when North Korea announced the establishment of the system of socialist economy, the annual revenue has come exclusively from the profits from socialist management and taxes paid by the populace. As for the profits from socialist management, referred to as such by North Korea, all the profits should be collected by the state, because all the profits engendered under the circumstances that all the means of produ-tion and capital are socialized belong to the so-called entire people.

Table 3 shows North Korea's annual revenues and their rate of increase. It is given here for reference.

5. An Analysis of the Structure of Budget Revenues and Expenditures

North Korean authorities said, about the thoroughgoing implementation of the party's financial policies, that "today we are confronted with the task of financially guaranteeing the massive march designed to implement the decisions of the Sixth Party Congress through a successful fulfillment of this year's plan." Thus they are emphasizing that in order to implement this year's budget successfully, it is above all imperative that all "cadres and workers" be armed with the ideology of socialist management and the cause of the party's financial policies, and that they highly display the revolutionary lifestyle of unconditionally carrying out the party's financial policies.

In order to implement the budget successfully, it is imperative that a nationwide struggle for thrifty living be launched in all fields; and the fundamental factor in the struggle for thrifty living is to reduce the cost of production by actively launching the management activities of enterprises, they have emphasized. They have gone on to stress that this is the way to increase the inner reserves of the national economy. Only when the state's finances are managed correctly and the financial control is in effect can the socialist economic construction be achieved; and in order to step up the financial control, the principle governing the interest rates of finances must be adhered to thoroughly. They then emphasized that in order to implement this year's budget effectively, the functions and roles of the financial organizations must be enhanced further. Thus they are paying great attention to the implementation of the budget; however, no special or major changes have occurred in the structure of the annual revenues and expenditures.

The Fifth Session of the Sixth Supreme People's Assembly was opened on 6 April 1981; it passed the statement of accounts for the 1980 budget and approved the 1981 budget. The statement of accounts for the 1980 budget, which was included in the report of Yun Ki-chong, minister of finance, State Administration Council, reveal that the budget was implemented not far from the plan in terms of the revenue and expenditure and their contents. To cite some of the major items, among the items of budget revenue, the central budget revenue increased by 13 percent, while the local budget revenue increased by only 6 percent. Among the items of budget expenditure, it was characteristic that investment in the field of fishery increased by 250 percent over that of 1979.

Table 4 provides a comparison between the budget and the statement of accounts for 1980. In terms of the scale of annual revenue and expenditure, too, no special increase is found in comparison with that of the previous year. No major changes are found in the content of the expenditure either.

The 1981 budget policy was aimed at strengthening the political, economic, and military capabilities in keeping up with the growth of economy. The annual revenue of 1981 was 20,478,900,000 won, which included an increase of 7.0 percent compared with that of 1980. This increase rate is quite small compared to the 13.7-percent average increase rate of the period from 1971 to 1980. The budget expenditure of 1981 increased by 8.7 percent compared with that of 1980. Items of the annual expenditures of both years were almost the same in their structural comparison. The national economy expenditure of 1980 showed a 60.5-percent increase, while that of 1981 showed 60.9 percent. The social and cultural expenditure: 22.2 percent versus 21.6 percent; the military expenditure: 14.6 percent versus 14.7 percent; and the management expenditure: 2.7 percent versus 2.8 percent.

The national economy expenditure of 1981 increased by 9.5 percent compared to that of 1980. Comparing this with the 11.1 percent of 1979, it certainly shows a decrease in the rate. The military expenditure of 1981 increased by 9.5 percent compared to that of 1980. This increase rate shows a 2.2 percent increase, compared to the 7.3 percent increase in military expenditure in 1980 over that of 1979. The military budget expenditure of 1981 was 3,010,400,000 won, mainly aimed at strengthening the military power designed to infiltrate into South Korea for the purpose of reunifying Korea under the communist system. No major changes have been made in the scale and structure of North Korea's annual revenue and expenditure. As stated above, the points that are to be noted here are that the financial source of the military expenditure is not clearly discernible, and that the annual revenue consists of the socialist management revenue.

To settle the accounts of the budget revenue and expenditure of 1980, the revenue was 19,139,230,000 won, while the expenditure stood at 18,836,910,000 won, approximately 302.32 million won in black. Thus there would be no major obstacle in the way of implementing the 1981 budget, the emphasis of which was placed on firmly and financially guaranteeing the rapid development of the national economy and on further strengthening the political, economic, and military power of the state.

NATURE-REMAKING PROJECTS TO DEVELOP COUNTRY URGED

Pyongyang NODONG SINMUN in Korean 5 Jan 82 p 2

[Article by Song Nak-kyun: "The Four Major Nature-Remolding Projects Are Rewarding Tasks the Entire Party, the Entire Nation and the Entire People Must Vigorously Accomplish"]

[Text] The respected and beloved leader Kim Il-song in his New Year's message this year instructed as follows:

"In the coming year, the whole party, the whole nation, and all the people have to take part as one in the struggle to carry out the four-part nature-remaking project."

The great leader Kim Il-song already at last year's Fourth Plenum of the Sixth Party Central Committee opened a grand plan for remaking nature, which would work for the development of the strength and prosperity of the nation and for the happiness of generations to come. And for the coming year in his New Year's message he again pointed to the militant task necessary to carry out this plan.

This is an heroic, rewarding struggle for the development of tideland, for reclaiming new lands, building the Namp'o sluice gates, and the Taech'on power station, for making the entire country's landscape even more beautiful and changing it in all ways into a people's paradise where all can live well. It is a struggle to burnish even brighter our country's socialist system, to speed the full victory of socialism and the unification of the country.

The four-part nature-remaking program reflects the more mature, newer level of demands of a nature remaking program that has historically been carried out in our country.

Earlier, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song after the liberation established nature-remaking immediately as a strategic task in the construction of a strong and prosperous fatherland and urged that it be vigorously pursued. The great leader, looking toward the fatherland's distant future and even during the rigorous days of the war gradually developed a mature plan for carrying out nature remaking and personally gave directions for doing the preparatory work. Thus in our country the work of taming and remaking nature has always been unceasingly developing.

Today the four-part nature-remaking task is aimed at attaining momentous and huge goals which were unprecedented in the history of our fatherland. In setting these goals and in pursuing the struggle to attain them, blitzkrieg fashion, our country's nature-remaking program is giving a forceful display of how high a level activity is being conducted on.

As is the case with construction, all other tasks of revolution and the task of remodeling nature can be successfully carried out only if its precise goals are set in accordance with the demands of the people and the capabilities for such remodeling.

As a result of the great leader comrade Kim Il-song's scientific foresight and sagacious leadership, today in our country we enjoy all the conditions for going forward with the nature-remaking work a new high level in a daring and completely large-scale manner. We have powerful socialist industry which can guarantee the production of the machinery and facilities necessary for the task of great remodeling of nature, and we have a large contingent of vigorous and vital technicians and specialists reared by the party. And we have plenty of experience and tested commanders.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song scientifically assessed the subjective and objective conditions and capabilities of the nation and in a timely fashion gave directions for a new grand plan for the remaking of nature.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, in his New Year's message, established as a most important project for the people the task of nature remaking, and he directed that the entire party, the entire nation, and all the people dash out for the struggle to carry out this task.

The reason that the whole party, the whole nation, and all the people must dash out for the four part nature-remaking project is, more than anything else, that it is, historically, an unprecedentedly grand and huge project for our fatherland.

The plan of our party for a remaking of nature embraces the lofty goal of rapidly building a communist society in our country. The work is designed to completely solve the people's food problem, totally change the face of the nation, to pass on to future generations a country in which it is better to live. It is a struggle for a goal whose height, scale and greatness surpass the imagination. That is why this struggle demands the involvement of the whole nation and the concentration of all our strength.

In order to carry out the four-part nature remaking task, there must be great efforts, expenditures, and use of material resources. Only this way can the work be spread and pressed forward throughout the entire nation and the rate of construction be kept at an extremely high level. The problem of solving the need for modern machinery and equipment and for enormous construction resources cannot be solved by the effort of this or that government agency, factory of enterprise. Only when the whole party, the whole nation, the whole people jump to the task can this be fully guaranteed. Only when all party organizations and members, all national economic organs and their workers, all the workers of the whole country dash out together as one can an enormous construction level be fully reached. And only in this way can all reserves and possibilities be unfailingly mobilized and utilized and the great task carried out in a short period of time.

Another reason why the whole party, the whole nation, and all the people must dash out for the nature-remaking work is that this task is a lofty one, aimed at providing a happy life for the people themselves.

The nature-remaking task plays a very important role in guaranteeing the people's independent and creative life.

Only by vigorously pursuing on a broad scale the country's nature-remaking struggle can we successfully triumph over disadvantageous natural and climatic conditions and fully and continuously satisfy the people's growing material and cultural needs.

Particularly, it is of great significance that the work will completely solve the food problem.

Currently, many of the world's nations are experiencing terrible food crises. Without food, many people each year are dying of starvation and populations of many hundreds of millions are languishing in hunger. But in our country, because the nature remaking work has been properly carried out under the leadership of the party, the people are eating well, we are able to store much food, and we have been able to rid ourselves of natural bad harvest years and lead a happy life. But we cannot be content with this. If we are to implement a communist policy with respect to the food problem, and to provide communist conditions for our life, we must ceaselessly go forward with a nature-remaking program on a grand scale in order to develop the tidelands, seek new acreage, and solve the water problem. This sacred task can be successfully accomplished only if the whole party, the whole nation, and all the people dash out for it.

If all party organizations vigorously pursue their organizational and political tasks, if the whole country dash out to support construction, then the fighters on the line can provide the revolutionary fervor and attitude and the necessary material and technical levels can be guaranteed.

The struggle to carry out the four-part nature-remaking task set out by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is an honorable undertaking to provide for today's happiness and to transmit to future generations widespread prosperity. Thus, the nation's entire party membership and all the workers must have a deep understanding of the importance of the four-part nature-remaking program, must set in high gear the revolutionary spirit of self-rebirth and of struggling against hardship and must continue to brilliantly implement the party's ideas.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song urged that the whole party, the whole nation and all the people unite to broaden the nature-remaking task because this is a correct course which will firmly guarantee the success of the program.

Urging the whole party, the whole nation, and the entire people to jump into the task of carrying out the nature-remaking program is a powerful method which accords with basic nature of socialism.

The united strength of the whole party, the whole country and the entire people is a powerful force contributing to revolution and construction. Mobilizing this kind of united strength is possible only under a socialist system where the working class has seized power and owns the means of production.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song wisely showed that in the economic building of socialism, our country carried out each great task set before it by basing itself on the superiority of our socialist system and through the united strength of the whole party, the whole nation and the entire people.

All the proud creations which brighten chuche Korea are, all of them, a result of the unity of the whole party, the whole nation and the entire people.

In the past, we vigorously carried out a mass movement to fully introduce irrigation into our agriculture, to create forest land, to widely plant orchards, to build terraced fields and to accomplish other nature-remaking tasks. As a result, no mattet how difficult or enormous a task was, we were able to successfully carry it out in a short period of time. Today, if our party members and the workers proceed from the valuable experiences gained in the previous period's nature-remaking program, following the path of uniting the whole party, the whole nation, and the entire people on the task, then it is absolutely certain that brilliant victories can be obtained in the nature-remaking program.

Today the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his New Year's message put before us the glorious task of vigorously carrying on the battle for the implementation of the four part nature-remaking program which he has directed.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his New Year's message once again gave a full explanation of the political and economic significance of carrying out the development of tideland, the reclamation of new acreage, the Namp'o sluice gate construction project and the Taech'on power station under the four-part nature-remaking and the place this program would have in this year's economic development.

As a prerequisite for successfully carrying out the enormous nature-remaking program, the entire party membership and all the workers must strongly arm themselves with the ideology and the aims set out in the New Year's message.

The victory and success of the nature-remaking program depends on the masses having a high revolutionary fervor and a vigorous fighting spirit and on the entire country becoming involved in this task. The instructions of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the policy of the party are an ideological and spiritual driving force leading the workers to miracles, reforms, and to new great achievements.

All party members and workers must deeply study the ideology and the policy line set out in the New Year's message of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

They must make this ideology and policy line firm articles of faith and display the revolutionary frame of mind to carry them out under any circumstances.

An important requirement for vigorously pressing forward with the four-part nature remaking task is spreading political organizational work in an assault-fashion.

The nature-remaking program is a difficult undertaking aimed at conquering and developing nature. It is a difficult struggle for which all psychological and material effort must be mobilized. Thus, the question of whether or not we achieve success in this task, depends to an important extent on how we carry out organizational and political work.

All party organizations and state economic offices must actively carry out political work among party members and among the workers and ceaselessly organize material and technical support for the nature-remaking program. In this way, with the concern and support of all the people and the entire nation we must vigorously strive for the accomplishment of the four-part nature-remaking program.

The responsive and enormous nature-remaking task is being carried out under the leadership of the party.

Through the leadership of our party, which has been trained and tempered in battle, we will surely be able to carry out the nature-remaking task in spite of any obstacles. When all party organs, all workers, and all the people loftily respond to the call of the party and are completely mobilized, the brilliant victory in the nature-remaking program, which contributes to the far-reaching, great policies of the nation can be achieved.

VISIT TO KOREA ART MOVIE STUDIO REPORTED

Pyongyang NODONG SINMUN in Korean 6 Feb 82 p 4

[Report by a staff reporter Yi Nung-kol: "A Modern Hall for Movie Production: A Visit to Korea Art Movie Studio"]

[Text] The great leader, Comrade Kim Il-song, taught us as follows: "The motion picture art of our country has advanced by leaps and bounds under the correct guidance of the party center."

We visited the Korea Art Movie Studio on its 35th anniversary.

When we explained the purpose of our visit, a functionary of the studio welcomed us and took us to a neatly arranged room in the studio where the itinerary of the great leader, when he visited [the studio] to provide on-the-spot guidance, was shown.

We could learn, through numerous exhibits in the room, the advances made by the studio following the leadership of the party and with profound love and concern from our great leader.

Among the exhibits, two pictures in particular attracted our attention.

One was the picture of the studio 35 years ago. The other was a panoramic view of the present, majestically, and splendidly built studio.

For a while, we fell into deep thought on the reform that took place between the times represented by the two pictures.

There are many legendary stories about the great love bestowed on the studio by the great leader during these 35 years.

Immediately after the liberation [from Japan], there was no movie studio [in North Korea]. The great leader himself visited and selected the location of the first movie studio. When motion picture artists were not successful in creative activities, he led the artists by the hand, holding an expanded session of the political committee of the party Central Committee with the artists at the studio.

The great leader had a profound understanding of the role of motion picture art in revolution and construction. He has visited this studio 20 times so far, and has clearly shown motion picture artists the paths to be followed on all occasions for revolutionary development.

We can amply see the warm sunlight of benevolent guidance by our party.

Under the wise leadership and unlimited love of the great leader and under the shining guidance of our party, the Korea Art Movie Studio has become a towering grand hall of motion picture art, equipped with the most modern facilities, to serve as a base for creating chuche-oriented movies.

We were deeply moved, thinking of these events, when we again watched pictures of the great leader who had often visited here.

After we visited the room, we proceeded to tour the rest of the studio.

We first went to the top of a hill in front of the studio, where a historical monument to commemorate the on-the-spot guidance of the great leader was located.

The monument, which was erected by the loyal cinematic artists of the studio, records moving stories of the toils of the great leader for the chuche-oriented development of cinematic art and his unlimited love and concern bestowed upon the motion picture artists.

After reading the stories on the monument, we looked down on the full view of the spacious studio.

We were told that, until a few years ago, the studio had only one indoor studio and a few small buildings, which do not exist any more. Now, there is a large city in the studio compound.

There were wide and long-stretching roads, well planned and neatly arranged buildings of various shapes, and all kinds of support and service facilities for the benefit and convenience of the motion picture artists.

This truly was a movie city.

A functionary of the studio guided us to the compound saying:

"We cannot even think of this kind of a movie city without thinking of the party's intention which always urges us boldly to carry out all projects.

"The breath of the party is hidden everywhere in the studio, be it a small room in the studio or an alley in a corner of the compound.

"The motion picture artists who always live under the warm breath of the party are so happy that we have nothing to envy. We can carry out creative activities in film production to our hearts' content."

On the streets of the studio we met many actors whom we were familiar with on the movie screen.

Some of them were old actors with gray hair.

"Before the liberation, actors were at the bottom of society, they had to sell their faces and songs to survive day by day, and were looked down upon. Now they are the masters of this movie city, and have grown to be the creators of motion picture art.

"The great favor of the party is deeper than an ocean and higher than a mountain."

In these words, the functionary told us in an excited tone about the studio which changed its face under the guidance of the party center. He led us into buildings equipped with modern facilities.

All the facilities of the Korea Art Movie Studio were highly advanced and very valuable.

We felt even more excited as we toured the indoor studios.

There were four indoor studios in the compound. Each studio had almost 100 remote-controlled lamps and was equipped to accommodate 2 to 3 acting groups simultaneously.

When we entered Indoor Studio No 1, the sequel to the art movie, "The Star of Korea," was being filmed.

Lamps that lighted the studio like daylight upon a command from the producer, actors in motion, whirring cameras,....

When filming started, all units moved in harmony.

They acted methodically and in an orderly fashion.

A producer we met at the studio told us that he could produce movies several times faster here because of superior facilities and working conditions.

He told us that sometimes several hundred meters of film would be insufficient for one day's filming.

"We can produce movies at such a great speed only because of the wise leadership of our party."

A functionary who began to talk in these words as he walked with us, told us about the reforms that occurred in the creative activities of motion picture artists under the wise leadership of our party.

From producers, cameramen, actors, and actresses to support members, everyone carries out his or her share by taking responsibility for the fate of the movie, once he or she becomes part of the creative activity.

The creative atmosphere is such that even those who are flashed only once on the screen take as much responsibility as the main cast. Such an actor devotes sincere effort to assure the best acting skill for his role.

We met these enthusiastic and devoted workers when we visited Indoor Studio No 3.

After a day's filming, the producers and actors had left, but some functionaries were still there. They were artists who were working in stage sets for the following day's filming.

They were determined to finish painting during the night the stage sets that covered tens of square meters.

Because all of the artists participating in movie production carry out their responsibilities in this way, the film making progressed with extraordinary speed.

Large-scale movies that used to take 1 to 2 years in the past now take only 1 to 2 months to produce.

The reforms that took place in movie production resulted from the establishment of a new movie production system under the wise leadership of our party.

We did not want to leave the studio.

These workers passionately try day and night to bring full blossoms to the flower garden of cinematic art. We met more of them when we stopped by the composite photography shop.

We visited the title studio and special effects studio.

Composite filming for many art movies then in production was in progress.

In the special effects studio, nnew splendid scenes were being created by combining painted scenes with acting scenes by actors and actresses.

In the studio, all kinds of magic were being performed with paintings and models.

The grand overview of a foreign city which had appeared in a famous movie had been filmed on a desk in this composite photography shop.

A cameraman in the shop told us proudly that it was necessary to develop composite photography in order to reduce filming costs, enhance artistic value, and guarantee speed in creative filming. He also said that he was proud of the importance of his assignments, and felt honored to participate in artistic activities at the studio.

On the wide streets of the studio compound, there were many buildings and rooms we wished to visit.

We wanted to visit the makeup room where a person can be made to look like a young or old man in a few hours; the recording room where beautiful musical melodies and powerful dialogues of the actors and actresses are recorded for each scene of the film; and the training studio for acting which is a favorite place for actors and actresses.

Truly the Korea Art Movie Studio is a comprehensive base and grand hall for the creation of modern cinematic art.

The artists in the studio are also striving to raise performance standards in related arts.

The actors and actresses performed in concerts and recitals. They were preparing themselves to become revolutionary motion picture artists with comprehensive artistic skills.

As we left the studio, we could vividly recall the two pictures and the image of the great leader who stood among the motion picture artists.

Our hearts became warm as we thought about the future of our motion picture art which would flourish further by glorifying the great leader and by following the leadership of the party.

WORLD PUBLIC DENOUNCES TEAM SPIRTT '82

SK170826 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0806 GMT 17 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 17 March (KCNA)--The world public is strongly denouncing the "team spirit 82" military exercises being staged by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique, branding them as "criminal war exercises," "malicious provocation disturbing peace in the Far East" and a "fit of the chieftain of war."

The Soviet paper PRAVDA in a commentary points out that the "team spirit 82" war exercises are aimed to complete the "deployment operations of armed forces in case of emergency." It says that these military demonstrations staged annually for 7 years assumed aggressive nature each time and were directed, above all, against the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea.

The war preparations stepped up by Washington and its conspirators, the expansion of the military tieup between the United States and South Korea and the involvement of Japan in it are contradictory to the interests and desires of the Korean people and render the international situation in this region complex, the paper notes.

The Chinese paper LIBERATION ARMY DAILY in a commentary contributed by a XINHUA reporter says that the assertion of the United States and South Korea about the existence of "threat of southward invasion" in the Korean peninsula is a groundless one and it is thanks to the firm peaceloving policy of the north side of Korea that the present phase is preserved in the Korean peninsula.

Pointing out that the military exercises are organically combined first of all with the aggressive strategy of the Reagan administration, the Hungarian paper NEPSZABADSAG writes: Washingtons aim is to force Japan and other "allies" to enhance their military role by strengthening the U.S. military presence in this region. The Bureau of the World Federation of Democratic Youth sent telegrams of protest respectively to U.S. President Reagan and Chon Tu-hwan the puppet in denunciation of the "team spirit 82" war exercises.

In the telegram to Reagan, the bureau scathingly denounced the military exercises as a very dangerous act heightening tension in Korea and jeopardizing peace and security in Asia and demanded that the United States stop at once the military exercises, withdraw all its troops and military equipment from South Korea and promptly accept the proposal of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea for replacing the armistice agreement with a peace agreement.

The trade unions international of transport workers made public a statement demanding the discontinuation of this war racket.

In its statement, the Arab Lawyers Union called upon all the lawyers and peace-loving people of the world to direct attention to the new "arms buildup program" of the U.S. imperialists designed to bring larger aggression forces into South Korea and strongly demanded an immediately end to such dangerous war manoeuvres.

Statements and talks have been published by committees for supporting Koreas reunification, organisations for friendship with the Korean people and public organisations of various countries of the world in denunciation of the U.S. Imperialists criminal war exercises.

In connection with the U.S. imperialists "team spirit 82" war exercises, Japanese organisations for peace and democracy are watching the bases of the U.S. troops and the "self-defense forces" throughout Japan to expose the criminal nature of the U.S.-Japan-South Korea military integration.

OVERSEAS KOREANS CONDEMN U.S. FOR KOREA POLICY

SK131036 Pyongyang KCNA in Egnlish 1019 GMT 13 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 13 March (KCNA)--A recent issue of PAEDAL SINBO, a Koreans newspaper published in Canada, carried an article by Yi Ung-no, advisor to the "PAEDAL National Council," exposing the splittist crime of the U.S. imperialists.

"The desire for national reunification deeply cherished in our hearts is growing more ardent and we can hardly repress indignation at the chief obstructor of our reunification," the author of the article says, and adds: This chief obstructor is the United States.

Recalling that the United States entered South Korea under the pretext of disarming the Japanese army after the Second World War and framed up a separate government in South Korea by raking together pro-U.S. and pro-Japanese charlatans, seating Syngman Rhee in the "presidential" chair, he says: Our nation has since been completely divided into two.

He continues:

The United States manipulated Syngman Rhee to remove leading patriotic figures who had opposed the establishment of the separate government and patriotic figures and patriotic youths who had called for reunification, through assassination, murder, imprisonment and execution and cry for "march northward to unify" and declare anti-communism the "state policy," seeking fratricide within our nation.

Thus, it became clear long ago that the United States is neither a liberator nor a friendly state as claimed by Chon Tu-hwan with such allegiance.

Pointing out that such nature of the United States was clearly revealed in the Kwangju incident, too, he says:

The United States left weapons and the command of the ROK army to Chon Tu-hwan so he could commit atrocities against Kwangju citizens and threatened the democratic movement by transferring its warships, thereby causing tragedies beyond imagination, and chose him for "presidency."

It put pressure on Japan to conclude a "South Korea-Japan treaty," seeking to wirepull Japan as its vassal and force her to take over South Korea.

When the complaint of the people distrusting the Pak Chong-hui "regime" grew louder and there was a tangible danger of it turning into an anti-U.S. movement, it replaced him with Chon Tu-hwan and completed the introduction of nuclear weapons.

But, if the United States continue along this course, it is natural that the United States itself, not our country, will meet its doom.

The United States must pull out with the nuclear weapons and its troops, leaving the question of our country to our nation.

'VRPR' CONDEMNS UPCOMING S. KOREA-U.S. SECURITY TALKS

SK120821 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 13 Mar 82

[Commentary by station commentator Yun]

[Text] The 14th South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting [SCM] is to review all matters that were discussed at last year's SCM and to affirm a combined South Korea-U.S. defense capability.

In the joint communique released at the close of last year's SCM, it was reconfirmed that the United States had cancelled the plan to withdraw U.S. troops from South Korea; it was stated that the United States, obliged by its commitment to the defense of South Korea and in view of the threats from the North, would bring into South Korea an assortment of modern weapons and operational equipment to reinforce the U.S. forces in South Korea and the South Korean Armed Forces; and it was noted that the 12 January proposal of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, whose nature had been exposed in detail to the world, deserves praise.

The joint communique was aggressive and warlike in that it reaffirmed U.S. abrogation of the troop withdrawal plan and prompt and effective U.S. support to South Korea in case of a new war on the Korean Peninsula, and more, that it affirmed the U.S. decision to bring into South Korea an array of modern weapons and operational equipment under the pretext of the threat of an invasion from the North.

These facts show how frantic the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan clique are in their manuevers to keep the Korean Peninsula permanently divided and to provoke a northward invasion.

The U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique are to reconfirm these facts at the 14th South Korea-U.S. SCM scheduled for Seoul in late March. This indicates that they are the very ones disturbing peace on the Korean Peninsula and leading the situation to the brink of war.

The United States and the Chon Tu-hwan clique say that the arms buildup in South Korea and Team Spirit 1982 exercise are conducive to peace and security on the Korean Peninsula. This is a brazen sophistry designed to conceal their schemes for aggression and war. The peace they babble about is war; the security they talk about is aggression.

The U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique should cancel the 14th annual South Korea-U.S. SCM and nullify the so-called joint communique released last year.

The United States should give up the arms-buildup scheme and promptly withdraw from this land. The Chon Tu-hwan clique should stop acts of treachery against the nation and instantly step down from power. This is the unanimous demand of our people and the world's peace-loving people as well.

If the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan clique reject this just demand, they will have to face strong denunciations.

SOVIET MEDIA DENOUNCE U.S. WAR MOVES AGAINST DPRK

SK151022 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1007 GMT 15 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 15 March (KCNA)--Newspapers and news agency of the Soviet Union strongly denounced the war manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists against the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, according to reports.

The Soviet paper IZVESTIYA carried a commentary captioned "Pentagons Far Eastern Design" on 9 March.

The United States ushered in this year with a new war hysteria in the Far East, the paper said, and continued:

The United States is frantically trumpeting an increasing "danger" from the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, shouting itself hoarse about "military superiority of North Korea."

This seeks two aims: One is to invent a pretext for Washington to keep its troops in this area by coming out with an argument about "threat from the north" while kicking up a row to make it appear as if there existed a "danger," and the other is to perpetuate the U.S. occupation of South Korea by creating preconditions for increasing military potentials in South Korea and hastening arms buildup.

Exposing the accelerated modernisation of the U.S. army divisions present in South Korea, the paper said that the concord of actions of the United States, Japan and South Korea in the Far East evidently assumes aggressive nature.

Under the resepctive titles "Provocative Exercises" and "Training," "SOTSIALISTITCHESKAYA INDUSTRIYA" and "KRASNAYA ZVEZDA" recently laid bare the mobilization of new armed forces by the U.S. imperailists in the "team spirit 82" war exercises.

TASS also exposed the exercises.

CUBAN FOREIGN MINISTER DENOUNCES U.S. ACTS IN KOREA

SK171018 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1010 GMT 17 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 17 March (KCNA)--A message and a letter of solidarity came respectively to Foreign Minister Ho Tam and the Central Committee of the General Federation of Trade Unions of Korea from Isidora Malmierca Peoli, foreign minister of the Republic of Cuba, and from Ralambotahina Desire, chairman, and Razakanaivo, secretary general, of the National Executive Committee of the Federation of Workers Trade Unions of Madagascar, in support of the 8 January statement of the spokesman of the DPRK Foreign Ministry denouncing the new war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists.

The Cuban foreign minister in his message bitterly denounced the U.S. imperialists new provocation manoeuvres for blocking the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

The chairman and the secretary general of the National Executive Committee of the Federation of Workers Trade Unions of Madagascar in their letter noted:

The Federation of Workers Trade Unions of Madagascar true to the principle of anti-imperialism expresses active solidarity with the people and workers of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea and denounces the U.S. imperialists manoeuvres as a challenge to the northern half of the DPRK and a threat to the progressive forces of South Korea.

The letter supported the valiant struggle waged by the people and workers of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea for socialist construction and for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

SOCIALIST MEDIA DENOUNCE CHON'S PROPOSAL

SK171522 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1501 GMT 17 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 17 March (KCNA)--Papers of socialist countries are sharply denouncing the "unification proposal" brought forward by the South Korean ruler, according to reports.

A recent issue of the Polish paper TRYBUNA LUDU in a commentary titled "Seouls Flowery Words" recalled that the South Korean dictator Chon Tu-hwan came out with the so-called "unification proposal." But, it added, we cannot help denouncing it, considering that the South Korean authorities have pursued a "two Koreas" policy and are kicking up a din over "unification" with a foolish "plan of march northward."

Branding Chon Tu-hwan as a hangman, it said: It is natural that he cannot be a party for a dialogue.

Stressing that the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forward by President Kim Il-song is the only just one for achieving the reunification of the country, the paper says: It will enjoy ever greater support among the South Korean people.

A recent issue of the Hungarian paper MAGYAR HIRLAP said in a commentary:

Observers are suprised at the "unification proposal" of South Korea, because the suppression of the people has become ever harsher than under defunct Pak Chong-hui and, at the same time, the anti-communist propaganda offensive against the norther half of the republic has been intensified in South Korea, the military collusion between South Korea and the United States has been tightened and provocative acts have been ceaselessly committed in the demilitarized zone after Chon Tu-hwan came to power.

Exposing the heinous aim of the "unification proposal" brought forward by the South Korean ruler, the paper noted: Chon Tu-hwan is seeking to divert elsewhere the attention of the people from the internal problems of South Korea, his "proposal" is no more than a tactical propaganda.

A recent issue of the Bulgarian paper TRUD in an article titled "smokescreen" said:

A smokescreen has been spread over Seoul to deceive the world public, the words "unification of Korea" that spewed forth from the mouth of the South Korean dictator Chon Tu-hwan are a veil for covering up his true colour.

"General elections" are out of question under the present condition of South Korea where tens of thousands of U.S. troops are playing the master, still occupying there, remarks the paper.

Pointing out that the military dictator of South Korea is trying to deceive the world public with a ruse invented by him, the paper said: This is an act of the lunatics bereft of reason.

OVERSEAS KOREANS REJECT CHON REUNIFICATION PLAN

SK181049 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1010 GMT 18 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 18 March (KCNA)--The 3 March issue of SINHAN MINBO, a newspaper of Koreans published in the United States, carried a statement issued by the "Democratic Koreans united in the Americas" under the headline "Proposal on Dialogue for Unification Ignoring Democracy is a Ruse to Fix the Countrys Division."

The statement says:

The so-called "Proposal for Unification" brought forward by Chon Tu-hwan calls for "unification" outwardly, but, in content, is craftily camouflaging and advertising his intention to perpetuate the division of the country.

As recognised by the whole world, the Chon Tu-hwan "regime" is a group of "political robbers" who massacred democratic-minded citizens in Kwangju and grabbed "power." To begin with, this anti-national, anti-democratic group is not entitled to talk about the countrys unification, the sacred cause and cherished desire of the nation.

Before employing such deceptive ruse, Chon Tu-hwan must show with his action whether he truly desires unification or not.

First, Chon Tu-hwan calls for "holding a free referendum in a democratic way to institute a unified constitution." If he truly means what he says, he must revise the fascist "constitution" in South Korea before proposing for "unification."

Secondly, he must renounce the confrontation policy of being hostile to and slandering the north, the other party to the dialogue for unification.

Thirdly, he must release, above all, all the patriots who have been imprisoned under the fascist laws.

Fourthly, freedom of speech, the press, association, assembly and demonstration and so on should be allowed.

Fifthly, he must apologize for the massacre in Kwangju and make a due compensation for it.

No matter how loudly he may talk about "proposal for unification" without providing such preconditions for unification, he will only invite derision from all people.

Disclosing the reactionary nature of the "unification proposal" brought forward by the Chon Tu-hwan clique, the statement says:

1) The hidden meaning of the precondition "until a unified state is established" advertised by Chon Tu-hwan is that as the countrys reunification is a matter of indefinitely distant future, the country should remain a divided one, that is, our country should become two separate states which are confronting with each other, existing side by side. This is a trick for permanent division.

2) The argument that the north and south should "solve the dispute in a peaceful way through dialogue and negotiation" means a dialogue, negotiation and "peaceful way" while keeping the division in an attempt to maintain forever the present system, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist system.

There is not an argument for fundamentally removing various sources of dispute becuase its fundamental source is the Chon Tu-hwan fascist group.

3) The argument that "the two sides should mutually recognise the existing different political orders and social systems" is a crafty trick to justify internally and externally the Chon Tu-hwan fascist system and its misrule and misgovernment under the veil of "unification."

4) The "maintenance of the present ceasefire system" means opposing the withdrawal of foreign troops, the obstacle to the independent unification of the country, and keeping the military tension between the north and south alive indefinitely, while leaving nuclear weapons intact.

5) Choosing fine-sounding honeyed words, Chon Tu-hwan talks about "many-sided interchange" between the north and south for creating a "climate of trust and concord of the nation." But there cannot be the word, trust, as long as the fascist "constitution" and anti-communist evil laws regarding brothers as "enemy remain in force.

6) The "establishment of liaison offices in Seoul and Pyongyang" is not different from establishing "embassies" in Seoul and Pyongyang. He craftily avoids the use of the word, "embassy," and employs the false nomenclature, "office," just because of the eyes and ears of the 50 million people desirous of unification.

In conclusion, the statement stresses that the unification, the supreme desire of the 50 million Korean people, can not be achieved unless the Chon Tu-hwan fascist group is overthrown and a genuine democratic government established in South Korea.

DPRK DAILY HITS CHON'S SUPPRESSION OF STUDENTS

SK160423 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0336 GMT 16 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 16 March (KCNA)--It is reported that the Chon Tu-hwan group recently expelled or "disciplined" 793 students at the Choson University, more than 760 at the Seoul University, over 860 at the Pusan University, 713 at the Hanyang University, 476 at the Koryo University and 310 at the Sogang University. Similar steps were taken at nearly all other universities.

The puppet minister of education recently laid stress on maintaining the criminal "graduates limitation system," raving that "campus disturbances" would be ruthlessly crushed with bayonets.

In a signed article printed in this connection NODONG SINMUN 15 March brands all these acts of the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique as a new all-out reactionary offensive, rare to be seen, against the students who are burning with longing for democracy and patriotism.

The article says that the puppet clique is "disciplining" students on the pretext of "poor school records" and openly clamouring about cracking down with bayonets on their struggle for the democratization of the campus and society on the excuse of preventing "disorder and derailment from the right track."

The article continues:

As admitted by the puppets themselves, their "graduates limitation system," whereby universities enroll 30 per cent more students than the fixed number and annually expel progressive students, is aimed at banning the progressive campus movement.

It is ridiculous to describe the just sturggle of students as "disorder" and "derailment."

As the world knows, what the South Korean students cried for in their struggle is democratisation of the campus and society.

This is just action; it can never be a violation of order or an act of detailment.

In launching a wholesale repressive campaign all of a sudden against South Korean students, the Chon Tu-hwan clique tries to prevent the eruption of their resistance for democracy with an open fascist offensive, the article says, and stresses:

The South Korean students will never step backward from the road of struggle unless their just demand is met.

KIM TAE-CHUNG MUST BE ACQUITED

SK161048 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1035 GMT 16 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 16 March (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today carries an article titled "Thugs Must Acquit Kim Tae-chung."

The paper says: The Chon Tu-hwan group is these days loud-mouthed about its "leniency" after "commuting" the penalty on Kim Tae-chung. But, this is an unpardonable challenge to the entire Korean people and the honest-minded people of the world demanding the acquittal of Kim Tae-chung and clumsy trick to flout public opinion and win public favour.

Both life imprisonment and 20 years in prison are little short of the death sentence to Kim Tae-chung; they bring no change to his fate, the paper declares, and notes:

The "commutation" is nothing but a deceptive political drama for burying the Kim Tae-chung case in oblivion for good and leaving him to wither away in prison. This was made plain bluntly by traitor Chon Tu-hwan when he told the former puppet prime minster:

"His penalty has been commuted to life imprisonment at most, which is virtually a death sentence. Though he is alive, he will become disabled mentally and physically, spending a few years in a solitary cell. It can't be helped. I will make his family, too, wither away."

Can there be more brazen challenge to justice and human conscience than this?

Declaring that there is no ground to keep Kim Tae-chung in chains, the paper remarks:

Kim Tae-chung is a democratic figure and a politician who conducted legal activities against fascism and division and for democracy and reunification in South Korea which has been turned into a most shocking living hell towards the close of the twentieth century.

The Kim Tae-chung problem is not confined to the fate of a South Korean democratic figure. It is a problem concerning the human rights in South Korea, a problem of the destiny of democracy there and, furthermore, an important problem linked to the peaceful reunification of Korea and the cause of world peace.

Therefore, it is a matter of common concern for the entire Korean people and all peoples of the world who value human rights, democracy and peace to thwart the criminal acts of the Chon Tu-hwan group and rescue Kim Tae-chung from the clutches of the fascist thugs.

The reality today when the Kim Tae-chung problem remains unsolved and, furthermore, his life is hanging by a thread calls for an intensified struggle for his rescue at home and abroad.

MINJU CHOSON' HITS ROK-JAPAN COMMITTEE MEETING

SK161040 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1030 GMT 16 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 16 March (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON in an commentary Tuesday brands the "joint meeting of the South Korea-Japan cooperation committee" held in Tokyo recently as a dangerous bargain between an aggressor and a traitor. The talks , it says, indicated that the manoeuvres of the Japanese reactionaries to realize their reinvasion designs on Korea and of the South Korean puppets to perpetuate the split of the nation and ignite a war with the backing of the U.S. and Japanese reactionaries were entering a new, grave stage.

The author of the commentary continues:

At the Tokyo talks, the Japanese ruling circles "appreciated" the "security efforts" of South Korea and assured the South Korean puppets of a "satisfactory settlement: of the problem of 6,000 million dollar loans.

It is nobodys secret that the colossal loans granted to the South Korean puppets by Japan are used in accelerating the arms buildup and militarisation of South Korea and preparing for a new war against us.

The proposed 6,000 million dollar loans coming up against the protest of broad public circles, the Japanese reactionaries attempt to conceal their true colour, claiming that the "defence efforts" of South Korea are "justified" by our alleged arms buildup.

The schemings of the Japanese reactionaries are a manifestation of their hostile policy against Korea; they are criminal acts menacing peace and security on the Korean peninsula and laying big hurdles on the way of the peaceful reunification of Korea.

The Japanese reactionaries must give up all their intrigues against us and renounce their reinvasion designs on South Korea, concludes the commentary.

YUGOSLAV MAGAZINE PRAISES DPRK PROPOSAL

SK181042 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1003 GMT 18 Mar 82

[Text] Belgrade 16 March (KCNA)--A recent issue of the Yugoslav magazine NIN printed a portrait of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and carried an article supporting our partys policy of national reunification.

The magazine said:

The Korean people with one language, custom and culture are making positive efforts, using every occasion and every opportunity, to achieve the reunification of the country. The proposals of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea were always based on a deep thought and consisted of various concrete matters.

But the "proposals" brought forward by South Korea were quite contrary to them. The "proposals" put forward by the south so far were in essence those aimed at justifying the "two Koreas" plot and similar to the vague "argument for unification in the 2000s."

Of particular significance are the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DPRK] and the ten-point policy of the unified state put forward by President Kim Il-song at the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea held in 1980.

He advanced the proposal for bringing the north and south together into a confederal state, while leaving the ideas and systems existing in the two parts as they are.

He said that the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo would pursue a nonaligned policy and refrain from joining any political-military alliance or bloc and none of the two sides should impose its will upon the other side.

The Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea holds that the differences in ideology and system cannot be a condition for making the reunification of the country impossible as the reunification is regarded as the supreme task of the whole nation.

The initiative taken by the northern half of the DPRK in February last proceeded from this proposal and was based on the already known three principles of national reunification.

On this basis the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea proposed to convene the joint conference of 100 Koreans at an early date. The northern half of the DPRK made public even the names of personages who would discuss the reunification question most objectively.

The division of Korea is one of the tragic results of the Second World War.

The solution of this question will remove a danger to peace not only in this region but in the world.

DPRK SPORTS ORGANIZATION SUPPORTS 100-MAN CONFERENCE

SK131202 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 12 Mar 82

[Statement by spokesman of the Korean Physical Culture and Sports Guidance Committee dated 12 March--read by announcer]

[Text] The new proposal of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] for convening a 100-man joint conference is arousing great repercussion even among our sportsmen who are eagerly waiting, together with all of the nation, the day when the reunification of the fatherland is achieved.

The Korean Physical Culture and Sports Guidance Committee enthusiastically supports and welcomes the proposal for convening a 100-man joint conference, firmly believing that it will positively contribute to linking the severed blood vessels of the country again and to expediting its peaceful reunification.

Proceeding from the sheer desire to demonstrate national wisdom and spirit at home and abroad, to achieve national harmony and unity and to achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland, a long-cherished national desire, we have in the past consistently advanced proposals for realizing collaboration and exchanges between the north and south in the field of sports, too.

The earnest and sincere efforts that we have made so far to realize collaboration and exchanges in the sports field can be seen clearly on the question of forming a single team between the north and south.

In an effort to realize the desire of the nation to demonstrate our united might by participating in international sport games as a unified team, we, in the postwar period alone, proposed to participate in the sixth universiad games held in 1957 and the 17th Olympic Games held in 1960 as a single team.

We also proposed to participate in the 18th Olympic Games held in Tokyo in 1964, the 35th World Table Tennis Championship held in Pyongyang in 1979 and the 22d Olympic Games in Moscow in 1980 as a unified team.

The proposals for realizing collaboration and exchanges between the north and south in the sports field that we have advanced thus far addressed in detail not only the question of mutual exchanges of sport players but also various questions ranging from resuming the long-distance relay race between Pusan and Sinuiju and the soccer games among major cities--which were annual events before the 1945 liberation--to exchanging sport technique and experience and developing sports through unified efforts between the north and south.

We have advanced various realistic and just proposals for realizing collaboration and exchanges in sports which are acceptable to anyone and have made all possible sincere efforts for their realization.

As everyone knows well, in the past we repeatedly proposed to hold a meeting of sportsmen to discuss collaboration and exchanges in the filed of sports, showed our sincere willingness to sit together with the South Korean side and made all possible sincere efforts for successfully realizing this proposal.

In the 1960's, we arranged the Lausanne and Hong Kong conferences to discuss the formation of a single team for the Tokyo Olympic Games and the 1970's we arranged table tennis talks in Panmunjom.

Our just proposals and sincere efforts, when they were advanced, enjoyed enthusiastic support from international sport organizations and world sports leaders, to say nothing of the sportsmen in the north and south. But, none of them could be realized because of obstructions by the South Korean side.

In the field of sports alone, past history clearly shows that no proposal for collaboration and exchanges can be realized or solved through negotiations with the national splittists who obstruct reunification and try to create two Koreas.

The South Korean authorities have tried to utilize sports--which should contribute to demonstrating national wisdom and unity and to linking the severed national blood--as a means of confrontation against fellow countrymen and as a tool to permanently divide the country and the nation into two. Thus they have perpetrated all sorts of dastardly scheme.

Furthermore, disgracing the sacred name of the Olympics, recently the Chon Tu-hwan ring is using the lofty ideal of sports for its evil purpose for national division and for permanent power and is trying to mislead public opinion at home and abroad, while talking about pilot projects.

This treacherous clique has defined the period until 1988, when the 24th Olympics will be held, as a period of confrontation between the north and south is frantically staging anticommunist rackets against us. It is even talking about a theory of reunification in the 2000's.

The true color of the antinational and the antireunification Chon Tu-hwan ring has been already exposed completely.

It is only too clear that even problems arising in the field of sports, to say nothing of the reunification question, an important issue of the nation, cannot be discussed with the Chon Tu-hwan ring, the murderers who have massacred countless fellow countrymen, the splittist maniacs who seek only fascism, oppression and anticommunist confrontation and the bellicose elements who are running wild to ignite a fratricidal war through a dangerous war racket.

We believe that only the convocation of the 100-man joint conference of politicians in the north and south and abroad who are devoted to the nation and desire reunification can open a short cut to national reunification and realize the urgent desire of our sportsmen.

The Korean Physical Culture and Sports Guidance Committee will make all possible efforts for the early convocation of the 100-man joint conference in order to realize collaboration and exchanges in the field of sports and to expedite the day when the north and the south can jointly advance into the international arena to demonstrate our nation's wisdom and honor.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring should not clamor about dialogue and reunification but unconditionally and immediately release all detained politicians, including Kim Tae-chung, and ensure their free political activities so that the 100-man joint conference, a forum for sincere negotiations for reunification, can be convened without delay.

PAPER DENOUNCES CHON PROPOSAL--Belgrade 10 March (KCNA)--The Yugoslav paper POLITIKA recently published an article fully supporting the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and denouncing the "unification proposal" of the South Korean military fascist clique. The paper dwelt on the correctness of the new proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo advanced by President Kim Il-song, he taught that to achieve the reunification of the country, the military fascist rule must be destroyed and the democratisation of society be realized in South Korea, the paper said. Denouncing the so-called "unification proposal" brought forward by the South Korean military fascist clique, the paper pointed out that it is in essence designed to keep the country divided. Pointing out that Chon Tu-hwan intends to fix the present state of the Korean peninsula and perpetuate the U.S. troops occupation of South Korea, the paper stressed: this is, in fact, an act obstructing the reunification of Korea. 'NODONG SINMUN' MARKS WANGJAESAN MEETING ANNIVERSARY

[Text] Pyongyang 11 March (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN, MINJU CHOSON and other papers here today dedicate articles to the 49th anniversary of the historic meeting of chiefs of underground revolutionary organisations and political workers in the Onsong area (Wangjaesan meeting) which was convened by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on 11 March 1933, after advancing into the Onsong area in the homeland, leading a unit of the anti-Japanese guerrilla army.

"Great event which marked epochal turn in the development of anti-Japanese armed struggle" is the title of an article of NODONG SINMUN, which says:

At the meeting the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song made a historic speech "to spread and develop the armed sturggle into the homeland" illumining a bright road for vigorously developing the Korean revolution as a whole, centering around the armed struggle.

In the speech he comprehensively analysed the prevailing situation and the successes achieved in one year after the founding of the anti-Japanese guerrilla army and, on its basis, put forward the outstanding policy of spreading and developing the armed struggle into the homeland and concrete ways for its implementation.

The strategic policy of spreading and developing the armed struggle into the homeland was a most revolutionary one based on the firm stand of Chuche that the Korean revolution should be carried out to the end on the responsibility of the Korean communists and with the strength of the Korean people on all accounts.

The great leader said that it was necessary for expanding and developing the armed struggle into the homeland to establish and consolidate more semi-guerrilla zones over a wide area in the homeland adjacent to the already established guerrilla bases along the Tuman River, and he dwelt on the tasks for this.

In the speech he put forward strategic tasks for accelerating the historic cause of national liberation in a comprehensive way--the question of firmly uniting the whole nation into a political force under the banner of the anti-Japanese national united front, the question of making preparations for expanding and developing the armed struggle into the homeland and closely combining them with the mass movement and the question of actively pushing ahead with the preparatory work for the founding of a party.

Referring to the significance of the Wangjaesan meeting, the article says:

The significance lies in that the meeting marked an epochal turn in establishing Chuche more firmly in the development of the Korean revolution and illumined a bright road for the steady development of the general Korean revolution with the armed struggle as its pivot.

The validity and invincible vitality of the strategic policy advanced by the great leader at the Wangjaesan meeting were fully displayed in the whole course of the development of the anti-Japanese armed struggle, the article says.

YIM CHUN-CHU ADDRESSES FUNERAL SERVICE FOR CHON CHANG-CHOL

SK151015 Pyongyang Domesitc Service in Korean 2300 GMT 14 Mar 82

[Text] A funeral service for late Comrade Chon Chang-chol, member of the KWP Central Committee, deputy to the Supreme People's Assembly [SPA] of the DPRK and secretary of the standing committee of the SPA, was held in Pyongyang on 14 March.

The funeral service hall was overflowing with the solemn atmosphere over the loss of a precious revolutionary comrade who had devotedly sturggled for the fatherland's independence and people's freedom and liberation and for the victory of the socialist revolution and the successful performance of the socialist construction.

Present at the funeral service were Comrades Kim Il, Pak Song-chol, Yim Chun-chu, So Chol, Kim Yong-nam, O Paek-yong, Kang Song-san, Paek Hak-nim, Choe Kwang, So Yun-sok and Hwang Chang-yop, anti-Japanese revolutionary fighters, responsible functionaries of party, organs of power, central organs and public organizations and the bereaved family and relatives of the deceased. A guard of honor lined up by the side of the bier of the deceased.

Before the coffin of the deceased was carried out to the hearse, the bereaved family and relatives of the deceased and members of the funeral committee expressed their condolences to the spirit of the late Comrade Chon Chang-chol.

At 1000 hours, members of the funeral committee carried the coffin of the deceased to the hearse to the strains of a dirge. Visitors filled with grief offered their deep condolences.

The hearse carrying the coffin of the late Comrade Chon Chang-chol left Sojang club in Potonggang District, Pyongyang for the cemetery. Along the roadsides where the hearse was passing by, citizens expressed their sorrow to the deceased who had been boundlessly loyal to the party and revolutionary cause to the last moment of his life.

A guard of honor lined up at Sinmiri cemetery on the outskirts of Pyongyang. A solemn ceremony was held on the spot to bid a last farewell to the deceased.

Comrade Yim Chun-chu gave an address in the name of the KWP Central Committee and the Central People's Committee of the DPRK.

He said: We are going to bid our last farewell to the late Comrade Chon Chang-chol, member of the KWP Central Committee, deputy to the SPA and secretary of the standing committee of the SPA, who had devoted himself to the fatherland and people with endless loyalty to the great leader and the glorious party center.

Comrade Chon Chang-chol, who was born in a peasant's family at Changhyo-ri, Hoeryong county, north Hamgyong Province on 10 April 1905, had engaged in agriculture. With a burning hatred of the Japanese imperialists, he courageously fought the glorious anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle organized and led by the great leader. During the arduous anti-japanese revolutionary struggle days, he resolutely defended and accomplished the Chuche-oriented revolutionary lines put forth by the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song. He positively struggled to consolidate politically and ideologically the anti-Japanese armed ranks and to expand and develop the ranks. When he worked in the responsible positions within the party, organs of power or labor organizations under the great leader's high political trust and considerations after the liberation, he energetically took an active part in achieving success in the socialist revolution and construction, upholding the lines and policies put forth by the great leader. He devotedly struggled in the work for indoctrinating and fostering our revolution's reserves and military and political cadres with all his wisdom and energies.

It is a pity that Comrade Chon Chang-chol has passed away without seeing the fatherland reunified and our revolution ultimately victorious, for which he eagerly anticipated.

He was boundlessly loyal only to the great leader and the glorious party center to the last moment of his life. He devotedly worked for the consolidation and development of the party, prosperity of the republic and happiness of the people. He had received many medals including the Kim Il-song medal--the highest medal of the republic--in recognition of his meritorious services performed in the struggle for consolidating the party and revolutionary government and for prospering and developing the fatherland.

Although Comrade Chon Chang-chol has passed away, his precious achievements for the party, state and people will remain forever in our memory. His achievements will stay in our mind on the road of the glorious and rewarding struggle for consummating revolutionary cause of Chuche forever.

At this moment of bidding a last farewell to Comrade Chon Chang-chol who was endlessly loyal to the great leader and the glorious party center, we heartily pledge to turn our grief of losing a precious revolutionary comrade into strength and fighting spirit, thereby vigorously accelerating the cause for modelling the whole society on the Chuche idea and continuously struggling strenuously to advance the fatherland's reunification.

Messages of condolence sent from inside and outside the country in respect for the memory of the death of Comrade Chon Chang-chol were introduced. Amidst the strains of a dirge and a volley of rifles, the coffin of the deceased was laid in state at the tomb.

The bereaved family and relatives of the deceased, members of the funeral committee and visitors, being unable to repress their grief of bidding a last farewell to the deceased, covered the coffin with earth. Then, wreaths and bouquets of flower were offered at the tomb. The participants in the funeral service paid silent tribute to the memory of the deceased amid the strains of a dirge.

Although Comrade Chon Chang-chol has passed away, his precious achievements for the party, fatherland and people will remain in our memory forever.

NEW GENERATOR SYSTEM COMPLETED--Pyongyang 13 March (KCNA)--One more generator system has been completed and started producing electricity at the Pukchang Thermal Power Station, a giant power production base of the country. The constructors there creditably built generator No 14 in less than half a year after they completed generator No 13. They are now pushing ahead with preparations to finish the assembling of one more generator system and complete other major objects of construction within this year. At the termal power station which created the production capacity of 1.2 million kilowatts during the last 6-year plan (1971-76), new generators are being built one after another, they will play a big role in attaining the electricity target of the current 7-year plan. BRIEFS

CHINA'S CONTAINER SHIPPING GROWS--Beijing 11 March (KCNA)--China has developed container shipping in recent years. Her 1981 container shipping carried 63,800 standard international containers, two times more than 1980. The nation had 93 container and semi-container ships carrying 10,700 standard international containers. Shanghai, Tianjin, Qingdao, Huangpu, Dalian, Guangzhou and Fuzhou, leading harbors of China, handled 107,000 containers in 1981 weighing a total of 687,000 tons, respective 67 per cent and 74 per cent increase from 1980. Construction of specialized container wharves is being hastened at ports. A construction of China's first specialised container wharf was completed last December at Tianjin. The 380-metre-long wharf can handle 100,000 standard containers annually and accommodate ships with 1,300 containers. Other container wharves are under construction at Shanghai and Huangpu harbors. To increase the container shipping, China will open many new ways for container shipping this year. [Text] [SK121024 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1016 GMT 12 Mar 82]

'NODONG SINMUN' MARKS PARIS COMMUNE ANNIVERSARY

SK181103 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1037 GMT 18 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang 18 March (KCNA)--Nodong Sinmun today dedicates a signed article to the 111th anniversary of the proclamation of the Paris commune, the first power of the working class in history (18 March 1871).

The Paris commune, the article says, signified a brilliant victory won by the working class in the struggle against oppression and exploitation by capital and a signal shattering the myth about the "eternity" of capitalism and declaring its doom.

The working class of Paris which seized power formed a commune committee with genuine representatives of the people and, under its guidance, destroyed the standing army and old police machines of bourgeoisie and organized the national guards, the peoples armed force, and took revolutionary measures which included the confiscation of the means of production of the capitalists and their transfer to the workers, the article recalls, and continues:

The proclamation of the Paris commune and its revolutionary and progressive policies gave a great inspiration to the working class of many countries of the world and powerfully roused it to a sacred struggle for destroying the stronghold of capital.

Though the Paris commune ended in a failure, it left behind valuable experiences and lessons.

The Paris commune and its failure taught that, if the working class was to win a revolutionary struggle, it must have the leadership of an outstanding leader and a party.

The Paris commune showed that, only when the working class enjoys the leadership of a leader and a party, can its revolutionary cause advance victoriously without any turns and twists or failure.

The historic experiences of the international communist movement, particularly our peoples revolutionary struggle and its victorious course eloquently attest to this truth.

The Paris commune and its failure also gave the precious lesson that for defence of the triumphant revolution and consolidation of its success, it is essential to make a clean sweep of the overthrown counter-revolutionary forces, always take an active and decisive offensive against the counter-revolution and carry the revolution to accomplishment.

The lessons of the Paris commune gained at the cost of blood and the history of the international communist movement prove that, only when the working class which seized power firmly builds up the party organizationally and ideologically, firmly ensures its leadership, strengthens the peoples power and vigorously pushes ahead with the revolution, thoroughly smashing the manoeuvres of the class enemies at home and abroad, can it defend the revolutionary gains and lead the cause of socialism and communism to victory.

After the Paris commune, the revolutionary struggle of the working class for breaking the chains of capital surged higher and a fundamental turn took place in the international arena.

A great progress has been made in the accomplishment of the revolutionary cause of the world working class, socialist systems have been established in many countries of the world and hundreds of millions of people in Asia, Africa and Latin America cut off the chains of slavery of imperialism and colonialism and achieved national liberation and independence.

Today the peoples struggle for independence is winning definite victories and more and more countries are following the road of independence. This is an irresistible trend of the times.

Our party and people will strengthen solidarity with the peoples of the socialist countries and non-aligned and developing countries, the working class of the capitalist countries and all other revolutionary peoples of the world and accelerate the victory of the common cause of the world working class and peoples for socialism and national independence.

VRPR APPEALS FOR KIM TAE-CHUNG RESCUE

SK301040 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 30 Mar 82

[Text] According to a source close to Chongwadae, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique is soon going to kill democratic personage Kim Tae-chung. This unprecedentedly vicious plot was discussed in detail when the recipients of the so-called amnesty of this past February were singled out.

In a meeting, which separately discussed measures to commute Kim Tae-chung's life term to 20 years' imprisonment, Chon Tu-hwan hinted that the Kim Tae-chung affair should be buried in history as soon as possible and, as a result, a plot to kill Kim Tae-chung was hatched. The reason why Chon Tu-hwan wanted to bury the Kim Tae-chung affair as soon as possible is as follows:

Cnon Tu-hwan believes that a living Kim Tae-chung is the only cause that even today leads public opinion at home and abroad to remind people of the Kwangju incident 2 years ago, which led to Chon Tu-hwan being branded as a murderer. As the Kim Tae-chung affair is the focus of public opinion at home and abroad, Chon feels it is greatly hindering his efforts to solicit support for his unification proposals and is turning Japanese public opinion against realizing South Korea-Japan cooperation.

Chon Tu-hwan is unhappy whenever he recalls his visit to the five nations of ASEAN, during which the peoples of the countries shouted "go home, murderer Chon Tu-hwan," and "release the democratic personage Kim Tae-chung." He frowns upon the Kim Tae-chung affair on the 1986 Asian games and the 1988 Olympic games to be held in Seoul. His concern worsens as various countries, including West Germany, argue about a boycott of the 1988 Seoul Olympics because of the Kim Tae-chung affair. Chon Tu-hwan also believes that pro-Kim Tae-chung people and journalists from various countries such as the United States, Japan and West Germany will possibly be more interested in the Kim Tae-chung affair than the Olympics when they come to Seoul. Those people could request interviews with Kim Tae-chung and Mrs Yi Hui-ho [Kim Tae-chung's wife] and this, in turn, may unexpectedly turn Seoul into a campaign ground for rescuing Kim Tae-chung.

For this reason, Chon Tu-hwan believes that, if he kills Kim Tae-chung right away, the aftermath of his execution will die down after a certain period of great controversy, and then he can smoothly hold the 1988 Olympics. Chon Tu-hwan's calculation is that, in the long run, it is more beneficial to kill Kim Tae-chung as soon as possible.

For reasons listed above, the Chon clique has decided to kill Kim Tae-chung at an early date and will choose a method which will least stir up public opinion at home and abroad, according to a well-informed source. Thus, the Chon clique has refused Mrs Yi Hui-ho's request that Kim Tae-chung receive medical treatment in prison from a reliable doctor.

Democratic personage Kim Tae-chung, it appears certain, faces death.

Today, as democratic personage Kim Tae-chung faces certain death, we implore that the campaign to rescue him by all democratic personages, progressive factions and the masses of all walks of life at home and abroad is urgently demanded now more than ever before.

ATOMIC RELATED DEVELOPMENTS REPORTED

Seoul WONJARYOK SANOP in Korean Nov-Dec 81 pp 61-64

[Text] Successful Bid on the Secondary System of Power Reactor Units 9 and 10 by Alsthom-Atlantique of France

Alsthom-Atlantique of France has successfully won the contract worth a total of $500 million (350 billion won) for the secondary system (turbine generators) of nuclear power reactor Units 9 and 10.

Six companies from five countries were invited by the Korea Electric Co [KECO] at the end of February [1981] to bid on the supply of secondary system equipment for Power Reactor Units 9 and 10. Of the companies, Alsthom-Atlantique of France was chosen as the supplier because it made the best offer.

Other companies that submitted bids were Westinghouse and General Electric of the United States, Mitsubishi of Japan, GEC of Great Britain and BBC of Switerland. These companies engaged in tense competition for the last 9 months.

Alsthom offered not only a lower price but also better loan conditions. The company belongs to the same group as Framatome of France, which received an order worth $1 billion for the primary system (reactors). Technical compatibility was also considered in the decision.

The total price for the turbine generators, which are called the conventional bases, amounts to only $120-130 million. The company selected, however, also receives orders worth about $350 million in auxiliary equipment, called the island bases, thus resulting in a total order worth $500 million.

Reactor Units 9 and 10 will have a combined capacity of 1900 MWe (950 MWe per reactor). They represent a large-scale investment of $2.6 billion. Framatome won the bid for the primary system last November after fierce competition with Westinghouse.

Reactor Units 9 and 10 will be built in Pugu-ri, Puk-myon, Ulchin-kun, Kyongsang-Pukto. The Tonga Construction Co is now preparing the site, and the power station is scheduled to be completed by March 1989.

Basic Agreement on Scientific and Technical Cooperation Extended and Various Technology Agreements Signed

Minister of Science and Technology Yi Chong-o, who visited the United States and West Germany, announced the following cooperative programs: The basic agreement on scientific and technical cooperation between Korea and the United States has been extended for 5 years, until 1986. Korea and the United States will participate in joint projects on nuclear power; the Korea Advanced Institute of Science and Technology (KAIST) and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will cooperate in the exchange of research programs, training and the evaluation of research results; the Korea Standards Research Institute and the U.S. National Bureau of Standards will cooperate on standards and precision measurements; scientific, industrial and marketing information will be transferred to the Korea Science and Technology Information Center from five data banks managed by U.S. information centers; and the mutual cooperation between the Korea Science and Engineering Foundation [KOSEF] and the U.S. National Science Foundation will be expanded.

Minister Yi also announced that memoranda for mutual cooperation had been exchanged between the Korea Institute of Energy Research [KIER] and the U.S. Bureau of Mines, the U.S. Geological Survey, the Pittsburgh Energy Research Institute, the Argonne National Laboratory and the Solar Energy Research Institute. The agreement covers technology in the use of low-quality coal, solar energy and conservation of energy.

Minister Yi stated that joint research will be carried out with West Germany on nuclear energy safety, solar energy, wind power generation, the use of low-quality coal, the mechanization of coal mining and energy and material sciences.

Cooperation with West German research organizations has been expanded to include KAIST and 8 other Korean institutes with 13 West German institutes that belong to the Max Planck Institute. KAIST also signed a sister-institute agreement with the Fraunhoff Institute to carry out joint research on the automation of machinery.

Korea agreed to send 20 students a year to West Germany to be enrolled in degree programs in mechanical engineering, electronics, metallurgy and computer science. These students will be financially supported by the Korean Government.

Ministry of Energy and Resources [MOER] Will Invest 4.36 Trillion Won in Nuclear Power During the Fifth 5-Year Plan

The government plans to invest 7.461 trillion won in power generation during the fifth 5-year plan.

According to the investment plan of MOER, a total of 4,368,200 million won and $5.7 billion will be invested for power generation. The money will be invested in 13 nuclear power plants which represent a total capacity of 11,530 MWe and will cost 4.36 trillion won. The plan will also finance 2 pumped-storage hydroelectric power plants with a total capacity of 1,200 MWe which will cost 208 billion won, as well as 10 thermal power plants with a total capacity of 4,520 MWe which will cost 585.4 billion won.

Steam Generator for Nuclear Reactor Unit 5 Shipped

The first steam generator of the three needed for nuclear reactor Unit 5 was shipped from the Ulsan plant of the Hyundai Heavy Industry Co to the construction site at Kori on a freighter designed to carry heavy cargo. The ship, Tukkobi No 9 (2,000 tons), was built in Korea.

The steam generator is 20 meters long, 5 meters in diameter and weighs 300 tons. Hyundai Heavy Industry bought parts for the lower section of the generator from Westinghouse of the United States, and Hyundai built the upper section. The generator was assembled in Korea and cost a total of $4 million.

Korea Has 30,473 Researchers, an Increase of 8.6 Percent from Last Year

Korea has 18,434 (60.54 percent) research staff members, 7,417 (24.3 percent) technicians and 4,622 (15.2 percent) other research workers, a total of 30,473 researchers.

According to a report issued by the Ministry of Science and Technology [MOST], as of December 1981, the total number of researchers increased by 2,532 (8.6 percent) from last year's total of 27,941. Of these, 9,822 researchers are employed by research institutes (5,258 by national and public research organizations and 4,564 by nonprofit organizations), 10,184 are employed by universities and 10,467 by private industry.

The percentage of research staff members increased from 56.2 percent (15,711) last year to 60.5 percent (18,434), that of technicians decreased from 27.5 percent (7,682) to 24.3 percent and that of other research workers decreased from 16.3 percent (4,584) to 15.2 percent.

There are 3,417 with doctorates (18.5 percent), 4,777 (25.9 percent) with master's degrees and 10,240 (55.6 percent) with bachelor's degrees. There are 8,951 (48.6 percent) engineering majors, 3,025 (16.4 percent) agriculture majors, 2,892 (15.7 percent) physical science majors, 2,766 (15.0 percent) medical science majors and 800 (4.3 percent) researchers with majors in other fields.

These numbers amount to 0.48 researcher per 1,000 people in Korea, far lower than the ratio in advanced countries such as the United States (2.8), Japan (2.4), France (1.3),and West Germany (1.6).

MOER Selects 10 Sites Suitable for 5,940 MWe Tidal Power on the West Coast

It has been found that the entire West Coast of Korea is rich in tidal-power potential: 3,750 MWe of ocean tidal power and 2,190 MWe of coastal tidal power, a total of 5,940 MWe.

According to the tidal-power potential study conducted by MOER, 10 sites have been identified and selected as suitable candidates. The sites, including Karorim-man which has been selected as the most suitable site and where construction has begun, consist of four ocean sites and six coastal sites.

The potential power capacities of the coastal sites are 330 MWe for Inch'on-man, 810 MWe for outer Asan-man, 660 MWe for inner Asan-man, 180 MWe for Sosan-man, 330 MWe for Karorim-man and 540 MWe for Chamsu-man. The potential capacities for the ocean sites are 1,140 MWe for Songmo-do, 810 MWe for the outer side of Sin-do, 660 MWe for the inner side of Sin-do and 1,800 MWe for Unyo-do.

Although we have ample potential capacity for tidal power, the construction cost of $2,000 per kilowatt is too expensive at present compared to $1,200-$1,800 for hydroelectric power, $1,500 for nuclear power and $550 for oil-burning plants.

The government has concluded that the site at Karorim-man is the most advantageous one among the 10 sites with tidal-power potential. The government plans to complete the construction in Karorim-man during the sixth 5-year plan at a total cost of $590 million.

This tidal power plant will use the average tidal drop of 4.8 to 7.9 meters at the site. The plant will have a tidal basin of 120 cubic kilometers, a 2.1-km-long dike and 10 [tidal] locks.

Prior to the construction of the Karorim-man power plant, MOER awarded an engineering service contract worth 1.8 billion won to Sogrea Co of France, which built the Rance tidal power plant in France. The French company has completed a study that was begun in August 1980 and will submit an interim report.

MOER will decide on details of the construction plan based on the report, and the first tidal power plant in Korea will be built step by step.

Authority To Approve Technology Imports, Radiation Management and Service Contracts Delegated to Lower Government Agencies

MOST plans to delegate to lower agencies the authority to approve computer imports, management of radioactive materials and engineering service contracts with foreign companies.

MOST will delegate the authority to approve importation of the computers priced under $100,000 to the Korea Electronics Technology Institute. The authority to approve foreign service contracts worth less than $30,000 will be granted to the Bank of Korea.

KOSEF will handle recruitment of overseas scientists, travel support for international conferences and overseas training with government funds. A plan to delegate the management of radioactive materials to the Korea Atomic Industry Forum and the Korea Advanced Energy Research Institute [KAERI] is also under consideration.

The Korea Atomic Industry Forum will be in charge of inspection of isotopes and their production facilities, approval of import requests for radioactive isotopes and exposure control of those who work in a radioactive environment. KAERI will handle radiation measurement and monitoring.

Joint Venture of Korea Heavy Industry Co [KHI] Denied Because Separate Operation of Generating Equipment Is Unjustified

KHI planned a joint investment in power-generating equipment with a foreign company in order to insure the quality of products and to develop an export market, but the Ministry of Commerce and Industry [MOCI] has denied the request on the basis that the plan cannot be justified.

On 17 November [1981], MOCI decided to deny a request by KHI to share the manufacturing of power-generating facilities in a joint venture with a foreign company. The ministry concluded that such a move could disrupt the normalization of the company's operation and restrict development of foreign markets, and that the technology transfer and promotion of domestic production could be achieved by importing the technology.

To normalize the operation of KHI, the company must either replace 50 billion won from its domestic debt of 80.7 billion won with its own capital or it must win an agreement with creditors to delay its payment of borrowed capital and interest. The company needs 115 billion won in operating funds by 1985.

KHI has a total invested capital of 381 billion won, and at the end of October 1981 most of its plants had been completed or were in the final construction stages. Ninety-two percent of the plant construction is completed, and the company is expected to produce a profit by 1984.

Nuclear Power Facilities To Be Inspected by Koreans and Save on Nondestructive Tests

The Korea Institute of Manufacturing (KIMM) recently imported from the Southwest Research Institute (SWRI), a world-renowned authority on the inspection of nuclear power facilities, new technology on nondestructure testing such as the ultrasonic detection of damage. With the new technique, inspection teams staffed solely by Korean specialists will be able to monitor the safety of nuclear power facilities.

KIMM imported various advanced methods and succeeded in saving money and time for nondestructive tests of nuclear power plants and materials. The imported technology includes: an ultrasonic defect detection method whose sensitivity is 4-5 decibels better than the conventional methods; the Schreien technique that displays the ultrasonic beam on a TV screen; a manufacturing technique for partially expendable ultrasonic probes which are imported at present but will result in great benefits by not only replacing the imports but also by advancing domestic technology when produced locally; a technique to design and attach sonic lenses to ultrasonic probes to improve the signal-to-noise ratio and signal separation; a technique to measure the depth of a crack with the ultrasonic wave; a method to detect damage by pulsed current and the capability to design coils for the detection method; and a method to measure thickness with thin foils.

American specifications such as ASME and ANSI are used in Korea in most nuclear power plants in operation or under construction. For defense products, MIL or [Korean] national defense specifications are used. These specifications specify that the products meet ASNT Level III requirements in quality assurance programs as well as in nondestructive tests.

Kit To Measure Radiation Immunity of Thyroid Hormones Developed

KAERI has developed an epoch-making kit to measure the radiation immunity of thyroid hormones which uses a nonfixing antibody and is very sensitive. The kit can be used up to 3 times if frozen for storage, and costs 30,000 to 40,000 won per kit, far cheaper than imported ones (80,000-100,000 won).

Two versions of the kit were developed to measure the immunity in T3 and T4 thyroid hormones, respectively. The domestic development of the kits for measuring radiation immunity solved the problems of the quality deterioration during storage and high cost of imported kits; about 200 kits are imported a year.

The sensitivity and reproducibility of measured data are guaranteed through strict inspection of the kits. The kits enable scientific diagnosis of thyroid sickness by accurately measuring thyroid hormone levels.

When a *T3 or *T4 hormone tagged with radioisotope ^{125}I is introduced into a known amount of antiserum that contains [normal] T3 or T4 thyroid hormone, more *T3 or *T4 combines with the antibody if the antiserum does not contain enough T3 or T4.

Polyethylene glycol is added to separate the *T3 or *T4 that did not combine with the antibody, and its radioactivity is measured. The radioactivity level is then used to determine the level of T3 or T4 hormone in the antiserum by comparing the radioactivity with a standard curve.

A normal person has 0.9 to 1.5 mg of T3 thyroid hormone per milliliter of antiserum, according to the level table, and a patient with a low level of thyroid function has 0.2 to 0.5 mg per milliliter.

Korea-Germany Joint Seminar Held on Reactor Safety

Sponsored by MOST and the West German Ministry of Research and Technology, KAERI held a Korea-Germany joint seminar on reactor safety from 30 November to 2 December [1981] in the conference room of the institute.

At the seminar, 6 speakers, including Dr D. Leven, who is the program director of GRS (a West German company for securing reactor safety), and Dr H. Glubrecht, who is a professor at Hanover University, presented 15 papers on such subjects as "Research Results in West Germany on Reactor Safety and Their Applications" and "Site Standards for Nuclear Power Plants in West Germany." Eighteen Korean specialists, including Dr Yi Sang-hun, who is the director of the Nuclear Safety Division of KAERI, also presented papers.

NUCLEAR POWER MANPOWER DEVELOPMENT PLAN DESCRIBED

Seoul WONJARYOK SANOP in Korean Nov-Dec 81 pp 10-18

[Article by Sok Song-hwan, deputy director, Nuclear Planning Division, Korea Electric Co: "Nuclear Power Generation Manpower Development Plan"]

[Text] I. Introduction

It is an honor for me to have this opportunity to describe the manpower development plan of the Korea Electric Company [KECO] to support successful operation and construction of nuclear power plants.

I would like to focus on the recruiting of technical manpower and related problems that we have had to face in carrying out our company's nuclear power projects over the last 10 years.

II. Beginning of Nuclear Power in Korea

KECO began to prepare for nuclear power projects in 1965, with only five to six staff members, by collecting basic data for nuclear power, which had emerged throughout the world as a new energy source. At the time, only a few of the staff members had even a limited knowledge of nuclear power through overseas training. The introduction of a commercial nuclear power plant was considered to be a national project. Many discussions took place about which agency should be responsible for the project. In 1968 KECO was selected as the agency with primary responsibility. KECO set up a Nuclear Power Section with 25 members in the company's headquarters. Most of them had working knowledge of thermal power stations; their specialties are listed in Table 1.

III. Power Reactor Unit 1

In June 1970, KECO signed a contract with Westinghousse for the construction of Power Reactor Unit 1 on a "turnkey" basis. Since this was the beginning of the nuclear power industry in Korea, we had no choice but to depend entirely on a foreign firm for engineering services, supply of the equipment, construction and test operations. This is also why we included in the contract the training of all technical personnel.

Based on this contract, 66 technical personnel have been trained by Westinghouse and GEC (UK) during the 6 years 1972-1977. These people played central roles in testing and operating Power Reactor Unit 1 at Kori. Later in 1979 (right after the Three Mile Island accident), six operators were retrained by Westinghouse.

In Table 2, we listed the data on the personnel training for Power Reactor Unit 1.

IV. Power Reactor Units 2 and 3

After the oil crisis of 1973, Korea accelerated its plan for the construction of nuclear power plants. Thus, Power Reactor Unit 2 was ordered in November 1976 from Westinghouse and Unit 3 was ordered somewhat earlier, in May 1975, from AECL of Canada. These units were also ordered on a turnkey basis. The construction of the power plants is on schedule. Reactor Unit 2 will be completed in December 1982 and Unit 3 in October 1982. Most of the training of operators for these power plants has been completed.

Details of the personnel training for Reactor Units 2 and 3 are listed in Tables 3 and 4 respectively. For Reactor Unit 2, 38 technicians were trained by Westinghouse at the training centers in Zion and Pittsburgh. For Reactor Unit 3, power station operators were trained by Ontario Hydro-electric, and construction supervisors and designers were trained by AECL. The total number of people trained for Reactor Unit 3 was 77. Their training period was longer [than that for Reactor Unit 2], reflecting the cautious attitude in constructing a CANDU-PHWR for the first time [in Korea].

V. Domestic Training

Although we have trained supervisors for the construction and operation of Reactor Units 2 and 3 through overseas training, we need many more technicians and assistants. The extra manpower will be supplied through domestic training. For instance, the Korea Advanced Energy Research Institute (KAERI) offers many courses in nuclear power generation. KECO has sent many new employees to KAERI to take its basic courses in nuclear power. In Table 5, we summarize the training of KECO employees carried out at KAERI, the Korea Metal Research Institute, the Korea Electronic Data Processing Center and other domestic training centers.

In 1974, KECO set up its own training center at the construction site of the Kori Nuclear Power Plant. This center offers basic courses for new employees, as well as courses for power station operators. The technical personnel trained here are going through the final stage of training for the test operations of Reactor Units 2 and 3.

In Table 6, we show the composition of the test operations group for Reactor Unit 2 along with their training stages. The test operations group is in the process of moving from the fifth stage to the sixth stage of the training schedule. The supervisors who have been trained overseas are teaching the domestically trained operators their skills through on-the-job training.

VI. The Necessity of a Training Plan for Nuclear Technology Manpower

In order to establish a development plan for long-term power supply, KECO has been using the Wien Automatic System Planning computer program since 1976. KECO is studying the need for tens of nuclear power plants by the year 2000. The plan raises the problem of training the necessary manpower.

As of 1981, KECO has one nuclear power reactor in operation, eight reactors under construction and four reactors in planning stages. By 1991, there will be 13 reactors in operation, reaching a total capacity of 27,404 MW, or 40.9 percent of the total generating capacity. There are no further official plans for power source development, although our studies indicate that we will need approximately 30 power reactors by the year 2000.

With its accumulated experience and technical capability, KECO has changed its construction method for nuclear power stations from turnkey to a non-turnkey basis. The new policy has been applied to the construction of Reactor Units 5 and 6.

In the nonturnkey method, in which the buyer handles the construction, KECO hires a capable engineering firm and lets the firm manage and support the design and construction work. The nuclear steam supply system (NSSS) and the turbine generators are ordered separately from the manufacturers. Requirements for these major items of equipment dictate the design for the power plant. Then, auxiliary equipment and construction work are ordered as needed. KECO can now concentrate on the management of overall construction, the purchase of auxiliary equipment, the supervision of construction projects and quality assurance. (Of course, KECO receives the supporting services of an engineering firm, as stated before.) The remaining problem is how to recruit and train the necessary manpower. According to KECO's aggressive construction plan for nuclear power plants, we will start the construction of two new power reactors per year. Since KECO will be responsible for the overall management of the construction, the tasks to be carried out by KECO will increase enormously. This is the reason we have to come up with a systematic, long-range plan for manpower development.

VII. KECO's Personnel Requirements in Nuclear Power

We developed a model to estimate our manpower requirement in order to carry out KECO's plan for the construction of nuclear power plants. This model assumes that the construction of two power reactors of 900 MW class are initiated at one site every year. For this purpose, KECO must have 10 planners working on each project 3 years before any construction begins. If we assume that construction of a power plant takes 8 years, we need 80 people in the first year of construction. The needed manpower level will gradually increase to a total of 310 by the fifth year. The training for the operators of nuclear power plants must begin in the fifth year, and a full manpower level of 320 must be maintained from the seventh year onward. From the seventh year, the total manpower needed, including those for the construction work, reaches 540. The required manpower levels for construction and power generation are listed according to years of construction in Table 7.

As shown in Table 8, we can determine the long-term, technical manpower requirements by combining this manpower need with the construction plan for the nuclear power plants. At present, the total number of technical personnel working in the field of nuclear power is approximately 1,600, but we estimate that the number will reach 5,050 by 1991. We conclude, therefore, that KECO must recruit about 500 technical personnel every year and train them. Fortunately, sufficient college graduates are produced in our country with the technical knowledge necessary for the industry. The number of college graduates with technical backgrounds is listed in Table 9.

VIII. Recruitment Plan

The technical manpower needs in the nuclear power industry are met by the following three methods:

1. Hiring the graduates of the Sudo Technical High School, which is operated by KECO

2. Recruitment through open competition

3. Hiring engineers through the ROTC program

In addition, some students receive scholarships from KECO while in college and join the company after their graduation. Recently, the Korea Advanced Institute of Science and Technology opened a new Department of Nuclear Engineering. We are sending a large number of our employees to the department, and plan to hire other graduates of the department.

We need college graduates for all assignments related to the construction and operation of nuclear power plants. KECO, as a whole, is restricted to keeping the ratio of college graduates among its employees to under 40 percent. Such a low ratio will pose a difficult problem in carrying out nuclear power projects. We have not only asked our Manpower Development Division to assign a high proportion of college graduates to the nuclear power projects, but we are also improving the quality of employees who are high-school graduates by sending a substantial number of them (80) to the Ulsan Engineering Junior College.

IX. Technical Manpower Training Courses of KECO

In order to explain the training courses for technical manpower needed by KECO, the needed personnel are classified into three levels: elementary, intermediate and advanced levels.

Those on the elementary level carry out routine tasks explained in detail and assigned by their supervisors. Power plant operators, construction site foremen and other technical management personnel belong to this category. To qualify for the elementary level, new recruits first go through an orientation course for 4 weeks. The basic knowledge needed to carry out the company's business, such as the overview of the company, its business conditions, accounting rules and general technical knowledge of thermal power generation, are included in this course. When the recruits are selected to work in nuclear power projects, they attend a 5-week introductory course on nuclear power, in which they acquire some elementary, practical knowledge of nuclear power in addition to what they learned in school. Then, they are assigned to specific tasks and work on a normal schedule. Usually, it takes a new employee 2 years to be able to carry out his assignment by himself, while we must conduct continuous on-the-job training.

Those in the intermediate level can plan, judge and execute projects on their own. They can formulate business procedures by themselves, select technical specifications and execute design and engineering tasks. According to our past experience, it takes an employee about 5 years to reach this level, with frequent short training courses during the period. KECO has sent employees overseas for training in many fields. This overseas training provides the technical foundation necessary for professional engineers.

To successfully carry out our nuclear power projects, we believe that at least 25 percent of our technical manpower must be those in the intermediate level. Since it will take time to achieve such a proportion, this is becoming a serious problem in our rapidly expanding nuclear power projects.

Those who belong to the advanced level not only should have specialized knowledge in particular fields but should also have considerable understanding of the overall scope of KECO's nuclear power projects. They will manage the organization and projects at various levels and establish plans for various technical management functions. They will not only formulate and organize operating procedures, but will also manage and supervise the execution of the procedures. The development of advanced level manpower will depend more on personal elements, such as educational background, self-motivation, professionalism, and sense of responsibility, than on external training. Therefore, only a small fraction of the elementary level personnel is expected to reach the advanced level. In view of the scope of work at KECO, we believe that about 80 people at the advanced level are needed. We have now secured approximately 60 percent of this need. We have a serious shortage of advanced level personnel in the following fields: reactor core management, safety analysis, radiation chemistry, radiation shielding, earthquake analysis, stress analysis and simulated control program.

To solve the shortage of manpower, we have taken two measures. The first one is to invite capable, advanced level personnel from overseas for a short period. KECO is currently in contact with about 15 people in this class. The second, and more long-term measure, is to improve the current system of manpower management in order to accelerate the training of advanced level personnel.

PLAN TO PRODUCE NUCLEAR PLANT EQUIPMENT LOCALLY OUTLINED

Seoul WONJARYOK SANOP in Korean Nov-Dec 81 pp 3-9

[Article by Kim Sok-chin, executive director, Korea Heavy Industry Co: "A Proposal for the Domestic Production of Equipment and Materials for Nuclear Power Plants"]

[Text] I. Introduction

As is known, we have recorded an annual increase of 18 to 19 percent in electric power demand since the sixties, and the demand is expected to exceed 12 percent per year until the end of the eighties. Since our country is short on natural resources, we cannot depend on expensive petroleum as the basic energy source for power production. We have no choice but to use the only alternative energy source, nuclear power, the feasibility of which has been proven technically and economically.

Reflecting on these circumstances, the government has established a long-range plan for the development of electric power supply. According to the plan, one or two nuclear power plants will be built a year. By the year 2000, nuclear power is expected to provide 45 percent of the total power generating capacity, or 24 million KWe. This decision in turn indicates that the domestic production of equipment for nuclear power plants is a serious national task, because we cannot keep importing them.

II. Current Status of Domestic Production

The manufacturing of equipment and materials for nuclear power plants is a type of heavy industry that requires a wide range of technology and a tremendous concentration of capital. When we consider economical production, it is difficult to assure profitability by satisfying the needs of only one or two power plants a year in view of the immense technological and capital investments required.

On the other hand, if the manufacturing is centralized, unified and pushed aggressively, we can not only save a huge amount of hard currency but also provide an opportunity to elevate the domestic industrial standards to advanced international levels. It will also enable us to get into the international market. It is necessary, therefore, to centralize and aggressively pursue maximum domestic production while maintaining safety.

With this viewpoint, the government has first of all adopted a policy that will standardize power generating facilities, and has selected the Korea Heavy Industry Co [KHIC] as the sole, comprehensive domestic manufacturer of power generating facilities. As the second step, the government has begun to select manufacturers specializing in auxiliary equipment according to their category. At present, a survey, which is to be completed by the end of 1981, is being carried out to evaluate some 80 manufacturers of the following items: water treatment facilities, heat exchangers, pressure vessels, electric equipment, valves, fans and pipe.

For convenience, the equipment and materials for power plants can be classified into three cases:

Case I: Those that can be designed and manufactured mostly with domestic technology and with minor assistance from foreign technology

Case II: Those that must depend mostly on foreign technology for design and manufacture

Case III: Those that must be manufactured overseas

Equipment and materials belonging to Case I are purchased locally by the Korea Electric Co [KECO]. For those that belong to Case II, KECO will sign a supply contract with foreign companies that will provide technical assistance to KHIC or other domestic manufacturers. In order to increase the domestic production of the equipment and materials, KECO has been emphasizing the transfer of as much technology as possible to domestic firms in its contracts with foreign suppliers. Those that belong to Case III are items that cannot be manufactured locally at present and that foreign manufacturers will provide KECO through direct contracts. Our objective is to learn and accumulate the transferred technology so that we can gradually expand local production to change Case III items into Case II items and eventually into Case I items. We can see through attached Tables 2-1 A, B, C, 2-2, 3 and 4 that the domestic production of nuclear power equipment is progressing rapidly.

III. Plan for Domestic Production

Hardward Development--At present, most of the equipment and materials for major facilities are being manufactured locally on the basis of Case II, i.e., through technology transfer based on technical cooperation contracts. Actually, qualified Korean engineers fabricate the parts, which have either been supplied by the foreign contractors or manufactured locally according to the specifications for raw materials and processing required by the foreign contractors. By utilizing the experience gained through the construction projects for nuclear power plants Units 7 through 10, we should be able to substantially reduce our dependence on foreign technology on similar items that will be needed in future nuclear power plants. We plan, however, to continue to use foreign technology not only to develop our technology, but also to improve the quality of our products even after we have learned such advanced technology.

We plan to delay the timing of domestic production of items that require advanced precision technology or expensive investment in additional manufacturing and testing facilities. For instance, items that belong to this category are those in the nuclear steam supply system (NSSS) such as reactor control and rod drive mechanisms (CRDM), reactor internal structures, reactor coolant pumps (RCP), heating elements in the pressurizer, flux monitoring and power control instruments, as well as the rotating parts of turbine generators and forged blades. Our plan is to achieve total domestic production of these items by the end of the eighties.

The plan for domestic pr duction will be examined in detail to coordinate items and timing for production. See Tables 3-1 A and B.

Softward Development--For now, we are concentrating on the development of manufacturing techniques, but true domestic production must be supported through the development of technical knowledge. This must be accompanied by the development of software. For this purpose, we plan to participate in the designing of future projects in order to focus on the development of software technology. Our plan will be pursued in three steps:

1. Learning design technology	first step
2. Participation in the basic design of the NSSS and parts	second step
3. Participation in the critical design of the NSSS and parts	third step
4. Complete independent design of the NSSS

For the first step, we plan to send well-trained engineers to foreign manufacturers to learn the basic designs of the NSSS and its parts. After a substantial training period, the engineers will partially participate in the design of auxiliary systems such as the boron recycling system, the residual heat removal system and the chemical and volume control system. In the second step, in addition to learning the basic design of the NSSS and its parts, the engineers will participate in the actual design of the NSSS and its parts. In this way, we plan to increase the design capability of the engineers and develop their skill. During this period, we will be developing the capability to design the NSSS and its parts by ourselves. In order to achieve our objectives, we plan to strengthen the training of our engineers by sending them overseas as well as through technical cooperation with foreign manufacturers.

Productivity Improvement

Input Management Information System (MIS)--For rational and scientific management, we are going to import an MIS and use it for the management of manpower, finance, materials, sales, production and technical information. Of these, the production management system is one of the most important.

National [Standardized] Type--The types of nuclear reactors under construction in Korea are the PWR's manufactured by Westinghouse of the United States and by Framatome of France, and the PHWR by AECL of Canada. The turbine generators in the secondary systems were supplied by GEC and Parsons of the UK and Westingthouse of the United States. Each country enforces its own manufacturing codes and standards. Moreover, each company uses its own design, technical specifications and operating procedures. When we manufacture these parts, we must follow the technical standards of each country and the different technical specifications and manufacturing methods of each manufacturer within a country. These problems introduce serious obstacles to improvement of productivity and accumulation of technology. It is critical that we adopt standardized national types to prevent the dilution of technology and to accelerate the accumulation and development of technology.

Multiunit Contracts--To successfully achieve domestic production we must first secure a market. For instance, Framatome and Alsthom-Atlantique of France became world-class manufacturers of nuclear power facilities with the political support of the French Government. The French Government and its power company (EDF) placed 4 orders for a total of 50 power reactors, 34 units of the 900 MWe size, 16 units of the 1300 MWe size. The French manufacturers were guaranteed a sufficient number of long-term orders through a political decision, hence they could securely and safely invest in facilities, develop technology and manage manpower.

IV. Conclusion

In view of the current status of domestic production and the importance of comprehensive manufacture, I would like to emphasize some of the future activities of KHIC.

The Korean Government has already selected KHIC as the comprehensive manufacturer, and has made the important decision to select other specialized manufacturers according to their products. The basis to effectively pursue domestic production has been prepared by these decisions, but there are still a few problems to be examined and solved. They are:

Compensation for the excessive expenses for strict assurances and maintenance of quality

Support for the expenses to study and develop new technology

Domestic production of important raw materials

Improvement of capability to design an entire power plant

Closer cooperation among the regulatory agency, the power company, research institutions and manufacturers

Adoption and reinforcement of codes, standards and guidelines.

SK280447 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2223 GMT 24 Mar 82

[NODONG SINMUN 25 March article: "The Revolutionary History of the Respected Leader Comrade Kim Il-song Is Most Brilliant and Glorious History of Struggle of the Great Leader of the Working Class"--on publication by KWP History Institute of new edition of "Revolutionary History of the Great leader Comrade Kim Il-song" to mark Kim Il-song's 70th birthday]

[Text] The respected Comrade Kim Il-song is the greatest leader of the working class who devoted his whole life to the sacred cause of achieving the independence of the working people. On the 70th birthday of the respected leader, the most felicitious event in our national history, the History Institute under the direct control of the KWP Central Committee compiled and published the "Revolutionary History of the Great Leader Comrade Kim Il-Song."

This book comprehensively and systematically details the revolutionary history of the great leader who created the immortal chuche idea and has been brilliantly embodying this idea ever since he embarked on the road of revolution at an early age.

The revolutionary history of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song is the history of a genius of creation and construction who is performing epoch-making great miracles and exploits. This is the history of struggle by the legendary hero ever-victorious in any battle against the enemy and of the great leader who confidently pioneers not only the present era but also the bright future of the revolution. Thanks to this proud history, our nation has become a glorious country shining throughout the world and its history of struggle for the emancipation of mankind marked a most brilliant chapter.

The new book "Revolutionary History of the Great Leader Comrade Kim Il-Song" consists of 11 chapters narrating the glorious and brilliant history of struggle by the respected leader over 70 years.

The first four chapters deal with the revolutionary history of the anti-Japanese struggle period; chapters 5 to 8 the revolutionary history of the peaceful construction period, the fatherland liberation war period, and the period of struggle for postwar rehabilitation and for construction of the foundation of socialism; and chapters 9 to 11 the revolutionary history of the struggle to accelerate overall socialist construction and achieve final victory of socialism and chuche-orientation of the entire society.

This book is published at the initiative of and under the energetic guidance of the glorious party center. Thus, the great leader's revolutionary history is being compiled intensively and extensively in a scientific and systematic manner. Thus, our people now possess a priceless textbook on the revolution. This is the greatest honor, pleasure and happiness for all of us waging revolution by holding in high esteem the respected Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader.

1. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song organized and led the arduous and bloody anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, shouldering the destiny of the nation and the people, when the national ordeal was at its peak. He opened up a new era of history and achieved the sacred cause of national liberation.

"Revolutionary history of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song" describes extensively and systematically the revolutionary activities of the respected leader who grew up to be a great revolutionary and led the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle along the brilliant road of victory.

The book first narrates the brilliant revolutionary activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who pioneered the glorious chuche cause after he embarked on the road of revolution at an early age.

The respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song was born into a patriotic and revolutionary family at Mangyongdae which fostered his lofty patriotic ambition. Feeling the sorrow and pains of the ruined nation more acutely than others from his childhood, he grew up to be the great leader of the revolution.

The 1920's, when the great leader embarked on the road of revolution, was a dark age during which our people suffered the greatest national tragedy. The Japanese aggressors, occupying Korea in a brigandish manner, in an unprecedentedly enforced vicious manner the dark ages of terrorism and plundered everything our people possessed.

Deprivation of rights, contempt, oppression, starvation and rags were the life and destiny of our people who lost their nation. Our people resolutely rose in a struggle against the fascist colonial rule by the Japanese imperialists and demonstrated national courage and wisdom.

[SK280936] The anti-Japanese movement, however, had to experience bitter failures and many twists and turns because the persons who fancied themselves to be the leaders of the revolution were engaged in flunkeyism and reckless factional strife. The revolution was urgently demanding the appearance of a great leader of the working class, and the people were anxiously awaiting an outstanding leader who would save the fatherland, soaked in a sea of blood, and illuminate a bright ray for national resurrection.

It was at that time that the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song took the road of the revolution, bearing the destiny of the fatherland and the nation. This was an epochal event which brought about a new era in the history of the Korean communist movement and the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle.

The great leader, who came to the fore of the revolution, vigorously carried out the struggle for a new start of the Korean revolution. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The new crop of Korea's true communists learned much from the nationalist movement and the early communist movement. With a new revolutionary view of the world, they opted for a revolutionary road, entirely different from the road taken by nationalists and the early communists.

Based on his research and unique revolutionary practices, the great leader illuminated a new road for the Korean revolution which was unprecedentedly complicated. He formed the Down-With-Imperialism Union, the first genuinely communist revolutionary organization in our country, and put forward a fighting program clearly indicating the road for the independent development of the revolution. In the first period of his guidance of the Korean revolution, the great leader, with an extraordinary, unexceled intelligence, reviewed and summed up in an all-round way the revolutionary theory of the working class and the development of the revolutionary movement in the preceding period and founded the immortal chuche idea reflecting the fundamental demands of the revolution and the desires of the popular masses.

With the chuche idea, a man-centered view of the world and a revolutionary theory for the independence of the working people, created by the respected and beloved leader, Korea's National Liberation Movement and communist movement came to greet a new glorious period in which they advanced under the banner of the chuche idea, the great guiding ideology of the revolution, and communists and revolutionaries gained an invincible weapon enabling them to carry out the revolutionary struggle.

At the historic Kalun meeting, the respected leader published the immortal classic work "The Path of the Korean Revolution" embodying the great chuche idea and put forward the chuche-based line of our revolution. This enabled the Korean revolution to possess most scientific and revolutionary lines and strategies and to vigorously march along the road of victory.

Having energetically carried out the struggle to enlighten and organize the masses, encompassing youths, students, workers and farmers, in order to provide the revolution a firm chuche base, the great leader in early July 1930 formed the first chuche-type party organization of our country with a young communist nuclei of the new generation in Kalun. With the party organization as a foundation, he set up party organizations at all levels in many places and expanded them by accommodating young communists trained and refined in the revolutionary struggle.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's formation of the first party organization was an event which provided an epochal turn in strengthening the chuche revolutionary base and making preparations for founding a new revolutionary party.

Not until he stood in the van of the revolution, leading the Korean revolution, did our revolution make a new start and the glorious revolutionary cause of chuche begin. In the early days of the revolution, young communists and revolutionary people held in high esteem the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the genuine star of guidance which would bring victory to the Korean revolution and the unique center of national unity and cohesion. Reflecting their ardent desire that the leader be the bright sun of Korea, they came to call him Comrade Kim Il-song.

[SK290030] The book also describes the revolutionary activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who organized and waged the glorious anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement of our country to a new, higher stage.

In his classic work "On Organizing and Waging Armed Struggle Against Japanese Imperialism" published at the historic Mingyuegou meeting held in December 1931, the great leader put forward a strategic policy of waging the anti-Japanese armed struggle primarily in the form of guerrilla warfare.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught: We should wage an armed struggle with guerrilla warfare as the main component. Guerrilla warfare is an armed struggle method which can strike a blow at the enemy politically and militarily while sustaining its own efforts and which can annihilate an enemy superior in numbers and technology.

The policy to wage an armed struggle with guerrilla warfare as the main component is a unique and positive policy which can be set forth and implemented only by the great leader who possesses a firm chuche-oriented stance and excellent strategy and tactics to repel the aggressors and to rescue the nation with its own strength.

After the Mingyuegou meeting, the great leader founded the anti-Japanese people's guerrillas, genuine revolutionary armed forces of a chuche type, and strengthened and developed them into iron-like militant ranks. He also more firmly organized the independent armed forces of our revolution by actively pushing ahead with the task of expanding the party organizations and mass organizations.

Along with this, he established guerrilla bases in a wide area near the Tuman River and enforced democratic reforms in the guerrilla operation areas. Thus he firmly established these guerrilla bases as military strategic bases for the anti-Japanese guerrilla units.

The great leader waged a stubborn struggle to thoroughly maintain the independent stance of the Korean revolution while leading the anti-Japanese armed struggle. The great leader extensively exposed and smashed the Japanese imperialists' and the reactionary flunkeyists' schemes to destroy the revolutionary ranks from within. Thus he rescued the Korean revolution from a crisis.

The expansion and development of the anti-Japanese armed struggle into the country was a strategic policy to which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song consistently adhered. The great leader, who already had deep concern about the development of the revolutionary movement in the country in the early period of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, came to the area in (Tongsong) many times and gave on-the-spot guidance to the activities of the underground organizations in the country. Thus he wisely organized and led the movement of the anti-Japanese guerrillas into the country.

The historic Wangchaesong meeting was a very important and significant event in the struggle to move the anti-Japanese guerrillas into the country. At the meeting, the great leader set forth a policy to expand and develop the armed struggle into the country, established many guerrilla operation districts in the northern area of Korea and saw to it that all of the Korean people were united into single political force. Thanks to these activities of the great leader, the anti-Japanese revolution of our people was able to make rapid progress.

The book records the revolutionary activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who brought the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement of our country to a great upsurge on a nationwide scale in the latter half of the 1930's.

At the historic (Namudo) meeting, the great leader set forth a strategic policy to bring the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement of our country to a great upsurge on a nationwide scale and the detailed tasks to implement the policy.

This policy set forth by the great leader at this meeting was a most correct policy reflecting the inevitable demand of the development of our revolution, the prevailing situation and the lofty duties of the Korean communists to complete to the end the Korean revolution in a responsible manner.

After the meeting the great leader vigorously organized and led the task to prepare for the founding of the party on a nationwide scale and finally established a firm party organizational guidance system under which all party organizations in the People's Revolutionary Army and all local party organizations were rallied under the unified guidance of the party committee of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army.

[SK290331] Thus, although the party center was not yet declared, a way was paved to guarantee a unitary, uniform leadership of the overall Korean revolution through the party committee of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army [KPRA], and all preparations were made to declare the founding of the party at any time if conditions become mature.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song founded the Fatherland Liberation Association [FLA]--the first comprehensive, complete anti-Japanese united national front organization and the most powerful underground revolutionary organization--and expanded its organizational network deep into the homeland.

The founding of the FLA and the rapid expansion of its organizational network was a factor more firmly solidifying the mass foundation of the revolution by firmly rallying into one the anti-Japanese forces of the people and helping promote the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle nationwide.

By writing the immortal classic work "The Mission of the Korean Communists" to lead the overall Korean revolution to a continuous upsurge and by organizing and guiding the intensive study in the field by the KPRA, the great leader fostered all members of the association into competent military commanders who resolutely struggled under all adverse circumstances.

To lead the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle to a great upsurge and to rapidly expand the armed struggle into the homeland, the great leader established the Mt. Paektu stronghold--a new type of stronghold--and vigorously carried out military and political activities in the border area. In particular, he dealt an annihilating blow at the enemy by organizing and leading the historic Pochonbo battle. The brilliant victory in the Pochonbo battle was an event having great significance in developing the revolutionary struggle of our people.

The great leader victoriously organized and led the historic Korean march of the KPRA, the tactical offensive operation in the Musan District and a new tactical operation by a large military force in the area northeast of Mt. Paektu. While leading the KPRA's military operations, the great leader continuously defeated and annihilated the enemy, which was more powerful.

After embarking on a revolutionary road, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, holding aloft the banner of proletarian internationalism, aided the revolutionary struggle of the people of neighboring countries with blood. He also actively supported the revolution and anti fascist struggle of the peoples of various foreign countries.

The book describes the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's wise organization and leadership of the struggle to take the lead in greeting the great event of the liberation of the fatherland. In the early part of the 1940's the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song convened the historic Sohalbaryong meeting to cope with the rapidly changing situation and set forth a new strategic policy to take the lead in greeting the great event of the liberation of the fatherland.

While continuously dealing blows at the Japanese imperialist aggressors following this meeting by wisely organizing and leading the military and political activities of the small KPRA units, the great leader more firmly rallied the broad strata of the people and developed the KPRA into excellent cadre ranks by strengthening military and political training.

At the same time, he made pan-national preparations in various ways to mobilize all the people to a final, decisive war against the Japanese imperialists.

After completing a plan for a large-scale tactical operation to achieve the historic cause of the liberation of the fatherland, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in August 1945 issued a final offensive order to all KPRA units.

Because the great leader led the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle to a brilliant victory, our fatherland was liberated from the yoke of the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule of nearly half a century, and the broad road of building a new life opened ahead of our people. At the same time, a glorious revolutionary tradition--the historic root of the party and the revolution and the source of all victories--was provided.

[SK290603] The anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, which ushered in a new era of revolution under the banner of the chuche idea, greatly contributed to the struggle of the oppressed colonial peoples to achieve sovereignty and independence.

Indeed, the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song is the benefactor of national resurrection and a great leader who has led the development of history along the road of independence.

2. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has created our fatherland's new history of grandeur and prosperity by completing the anti-imperialist and antifeudal democratic revolution and by wisely organizing and leading the struggle for the socialist revolution and for laying a foundation for socialism in our country.

The book gives a systematic description of the revolutionary activities of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who, after liberating the fatherland, accomplished the anti-imperialist, antifeudal democratic revolution under complicated and difficult circumstances and led the fatherland liberation war and the struggle to lay a foundation for socialism to brilliant victory.

Only when the people who have been liberated from the yoke of the imperialists' colonial rule complete a democratic revolution and carry out a socialist revolution can they solidify national independence, achieve social progress and prosperity and finally free themselves from exploitation and oppression.

The book describes how the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song accomplished the anti-imperialist, antifeudal democratic revolution and established a people's democratic system in our liberated country.

Shortly after the liberation, the situation in the country was very complicated, and there were many difficulties and trials on the path before our revolution. The great leader who illuminated a correct way for the liberated, new Korea to go in such a difficult situation and who continuously led the Korean revolution to a single road of upsurge was none other than the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Various classic works which the great leader published in this situation on matters concerning the founding of the party and the government and the activation of the army and on progressive democracy in the liberated fatherland were programmatic guidelines which delineated clear struggle goals and a bright prospect for our people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: With the accomplishment of the historic cause of the fatherland's liberation, we are assigned a new struggle task. Based on our victorious achievements, we should continuously advance the Korean revolution and build a wealthy, prosperous and independent country through the independent efforts of the Korean people.

While organizing and leading the struggle to build a new democratic Korea, the respected and beloved leader paid close attention above all to the work of founding the party--the staff headquarters of our revolution. He founded a chuche-type revolutionary party on 10 October 1945 and strengthened and developed it organizationally and ideologically by repelling the obstructionist maneuvers of various factional elements.

The founding, strengthening and development of our party was a historic event providing a factor helping to achieve victory forever in the Korean revolution under the banner of the chuche idea.

Correctly solving the question of sovereignty was one of the questions influencing the achievements in building a new fatherland. In February 1946, the great leader formed the North Korean Provisional People's Committee, a new type power organ for creditably realizing progressive democracy. While closely rallying the broad strata of the people around the party and the government by vigorously carrying out a united national front movement, he successfully carried out land reform, the nationalization of key industries and other democratic socio-economic reforms. As a result, the colonial and semifeudalistic nature of the socio-economic system was completely eliminated in our country, and socio-economic relations were basically changed.

The great leader's establishment of the people's democratic system and a revolutionary democratic base in the northern half by brilliantly completing the anti-imperialist and antifeudal revolution in a short time was a historic contribution to firmly laying a foundation for founding an independent country in this land and for paving the way toward transition to the stage of the socialist revolution.

Next, the book describes the revolutionary activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in brilliantly carrying out the first period of the transition to socialism in our country. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The continuous transition from the anti-imperialist and antifeudal democratic revolution to the socialist revolution is the lawful process in the development of the revolution. To liberate the people from exploitation and poverty forever and to speedily accelerate socialist construction, we should move to the stage of socialist revolution immediately after completing the democratic revolution.

With the establishment of the North Korean People's Committee by the great leader, the northern half embarked on the road of performing the task of the transition to socialism.

[SK290906] In the first period of transition, he directed great attention to economic construction, put forward the unique line of building an independent national economy and wisely led the struggle to fulfill the First National Economic Plan in our country and the preparatory work for the socialist transformation of production relations.

He founded the DPRK, the only legitimate state of our country, on 9 September 1948 and increased its might in every way. Thus, he provided a powerful revolutionary weapon to accelerate socialist construction and the fatherland's reunification and made our country splendidly emerge in the international arena, side by side with the world's countries, large and small.

The book also describes the revolutionary activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in leading the fatherland liberation war against the U.S. imperialist armed invasion to shining victory.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The 3-year war enforced by the U.S. imperialists was a showdown determining the destiny of the fatherland and a severe trial for our republic and our people. The U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, accelerating war preparations, finally provoked a war against the northern half of the republic on 25 June 1950. As the U.S. imperialist armed invasion began, the great leader wiped out the armed aggressors in a decisive counterattack. He put forward wise policies to cope with the U.S. imperialist armed invasion in his historic speeches, including "let us wipe out the armed aggressors by a decisive counterattack!" and "all might for victory in war!" and vigorously organized and led the party and the people in the struggle for victory in the fatherland liberation war. He put forward chuche-based military strategy and tactics at each stage of the war and organized and directed the operations and battles of the people's army with a masterly hand, firmly ensuring victory on the front. He made the units of the people's army take control of the war from the initial stage of the couterattack and deal continuous blows to the enemies.

He enabled them to liberate Seoul, the stronghold of the enemies, only 3 days after the war erupted and to wipe out a large number of the enemies in a single blow, winning a brilliant victory in the Taejon liberation operation--an example of modern siege warfare.

The great leader crushed the initial offensive and the large-scale summer offensive by the U.S. imperialists. He smashed the rascals' attempt to launch a new offensive which they prepared as their last hope. The great leader enhanced the party's militant function and leading role in every way during the war and directed great attention to solidifying the rear areas, thus successfully ensuring war-time production. He actively advanced preparations for postwar rehabilitation and construction, foreseeing the victorious fatherland amid the flames of war.

Our people won a great victory in the fatherland liberation war under the wise leadership of the respected leader and gloriously safeguarded national sovereignty and revolutionary gains. We created the downfall of the U.S. imperialists by humbling the pride of the rascals, who took pride in being the strongest in the world. The brilliant victory in the fatherland liberation war is a feat performed for the fatherland and mankind by the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the ever-victorious iron-willed brilliant commander and great military strategist.

The book deals with the rehabilitation of the devastated national economy and the completion of the construction of a socialist foundation by him after the war. The situation was strained, and the nation underwent difficulties after the armistice. However, the great leader carried out the struggle for postwar rehabilitation with an iron will and firm chuche-type outlook without the slighest wavering.

He pointed to the basic direction and ways of the postwar rehabilitation and development of the national economy and laid down a unique line of economic construction giving priority to the growth of heavy industry with simultaneous development of light industry and agriculture at the sixth plenary meeting of the party Central Committee and wisely led the struggle for implementation of this line, thereby making our people carry out the vast tasks of postwar rehabilitation and construction in a short span of time. The great leader clearly showed the road to advance our revolution in his thesis "All Strength for Reunification and Independence of the Fatherland and for Socialist Construction in the Northern Half of the Republic!" announced in April 1955.

[SK291346] The announcement of the April thesis, which prescribed the general task of the construction of socialist foundation, was of great significance in advancing our revolution along the road of chuche. The great leader gave priority to preparing the revolutionary forces politically and ideologically to successfully carry out the construction of a socialist foundation. The great leader saw to it that class education was strengthened among the party members and working people and that chuche was firmly established in the revolution and construction. He developed and strengthened our party into a powerful combat detachment and closely rallied the party and people as one revolutionary force by vigorously waging the struggle to eliminate the remnants of factionalism, which historically had persisted in the party.

The socialist transformation of the outdated relations of production rural areas and in cities emerged as an urgent demand which could not be delayed. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The completion of the socialist transformation of the relations of production in cities and rural areas and establishment of a socialist system were the most important task in the construction of a socialist foundation which we should undertake during the 5-year plan period. He put forward a unique policy for the socialist transformation of the financial system prior to the technical transformation of the rural economy and wisely led the agricultural cooperativization movement. He also advanced and actively advanced socialist transformation of handicrafts and capitalist trade and industry.

As a result, the agricultural cooperativization was completed with flying colors in August 1958, and the socialist transformation of individual handcraftsmen and capitalist traders and industrialists was also successfully finished.

The overall victory in the socialist revolution in our country after the war and the establishment of a socialist system are a great demonstration of the justness and indomitable vitality of the chuche idea of the respected leader and his unique revolutionary line and policy. The great leader powerfully advanced the struggle for economic construction to lay the foundation for socialist industrialization. The situation in the nation was strained and still difficult even in the initial stage of the 5-year plan period to achieve construction of a socialist foundation.

He convened the plenary meeting of the party Central Committee in December 1956 to overcome difficulties and put forward aggressive policies to register a great upsurge in socialist construction. He vigorously inspired the masses in the struggle for socialist economic construction by mingling with them. As a result, a change took place on all fronts of socialist construction.

The flames of the chollima movement, the general line of our party, rose higher throughout the country.

With the revolutionary measures established by the great leader to effect a great upsurge in socialist construction and his vigorous encouragement of the struggle against passivity, conservatism and technological mysticism, continuous miracles were created throughout the country, the foundation for socialist industrialization was successfully consolidated and technical improvement of the national economy was vigorously advanced.

This was a brilliant history showing how the people led by the great leader can demonstrate their boundless strength and perform heroic exploits.

The book also describes the brilliant fulfillment by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song of the difficult and complex task of remodeling the ideology of the people after the establishment of the socialist system. With a deep insight into the significance of education on the revolutionary tradition and communism in reforming the people's ideology awareness, the great leader gave profound scientific and theoretical answers to this basic question. Thus, he encouraged our people to vigorously implement the work on education.

Thanks to the wise leadership of the respected leader, the work to reform the people--a most difficult and complex question--was brilliantly resolved. After the establishment of the socialist system, the great leader gave answers to questions of principle concerning party work under socialism by founding the chuche-oriented theory of party work commensurate with it. In February 1960 he fundamentally improved the party work system and method in line with the new circumstances in the course of his personal on-the-spot guidance to Chongsan-ri and Kangso County.

[SK300150] The Chongsan-ri method and spirit personally invented by the respected and beloved leader are the scientific and communist-type mass guidance ideology and method of comprehensively reflecting and systematizing our party's traditional work method and principle of guiding the masses based on the immortal chuche idea and a revolutionary mass line.

The great leader has victoriously completed the historic task of laying the foundation of socialism by more vigorously accelerating the great upsurge for socialist construction and the chollima movement. With the completion of the work of laying the foundation for socialism under the great leader's wise leadership, our country has developed into an industrial and agricultural socialist country which is provided with a solid foundation for socialist production relations and a self-reliant national economy.

The book describes the energetic activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in promoting the South Korean revolution and the fatherland's reunification and developing the world revolution. Since shortly after the liberation, the great leader, paying close attention to the South Korean revolution and the fatherland's reunification, has set forth the most correct struggle policies and methods at every stage. In April 1948, he convened a joint meeting of representatives of political parties and social organizations in North and South Korea and took practical nation-saving measures for achieving the fatherland's reunification.

During the postwar period, with acute insight into the situation created in South Korea, he clearly delineated the nature and basic role of the South Korean revolution and set forth many rational proposals for achieving the fatherland's reunification.

All these proposals and actions initiated by the great leader have driven the U.S. imperialists and their stooges into a corner and greatly encouraged the South Korean people in their anti-U.S. nation-saving struggle. In April 1960, the South Korean people overthrew the Syngman Rhee puppet government by vigorously staging the struggle against the U.S. imperialists and their stooges.

Paying close attention to strengthening and developing the movement of Koreans in Japan, the great leader formed Chongnyon in May 1955. In 1959, he opened the way for compatriots in Japan to return to their home country.

To accelerate the world revolution, the great leader has vigorously staged the struggle to smash the U.S. imperialists' wild desire for conquering the world and their maneuvers to provoke war. Thus, he has protected peace and democracy. He has carried out energetic activities to achieve the unity of socialist countries and of the international communist movement.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's achievements in eliminating all forms of exploitation and oppression forever from this land by leading our people on the road of socialism, in firmly protecting the country's sovereignty and in contributing to developing the world revolution will shine forever in history.

3. By wisely organizing and leading the struggle to expedite overall socialist construction and the complete victory of socialism in our country, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has more firmly solidified the foundation for completing the chuche cause and greatly contributed to vigorously accelerating the cause of independence against imperialism.

The book "The Revolutionary History of the Great Leader Comrade Kim Il-song" gives a comprehensive, systematic description of the energetic activities of the respected and beloved leader for our revolution and the world revolution after completing the work of laying a basic foundation for socialism.

The book describes the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary activities for overall socialist construction during the period from the fourth KWP congress to its fifth congress. During this period, the great leader, assuming a steadfast chuche stand, paid close attention to propounding and enriching a new scientific and revolutionary theory on socialist and communist construction.

Correctly propounding a theory on socialist and communist construction is a key to influencing the destiny of the work of building socialism and communism. They theory on socialist and communist construction in our era has been totally systematized and completed through the respected and beloved leader's profound ideological, theoretical revolutionary activities.

[SK300457] The theories on socialist and communist construction propounded by the great leader in his classic works on the transitional period from capitalism to socialism, on proletarian dictatorship and on the theses on socialist rural areas in our country as well as theories on the transitional period, proletarian dictatorship, complete and final victory of socialism, the attainment of the ideological and material goals of communism, the conduct of the three revolutions--ideological, technical and cultural--and socialist economic management, are programmatic guidelines for us to correctly follow in building a communist society and is a new, unique revolutionary theory--a product in developing and enriching the revolutionary theory of the working class on socialist and communist construction.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has led the struggle to comprehensively build socialism in our country to a brilliant victory. The great leader has concentrated on strengthening the independent force of our revolution in various ways.

Strengthening the party and firmly rallying the broad strata of the people around the party by indoctrinating and remodelling them is a key to achieving victory in socialist and communist construction. The great leader has enhanced the leading role of our party by regarding the work of establishing the party's unitary ideological system as a basic line for building the party and by helping to thoroughly implement this line. He has tightened blood ties between the party and the people by delineating the position and role of workers' organizations in socialist society and by thoroughly developing all workers' organizations into ones for ideological indoctrination.

He has provided a factor vigorously advancing the revolution and construction by setting forth a unique policy for revolutionizing society and making it a working-class one and by staging a vigorous struggle to indoctrinate and remodel all members of society into true chuche-type communist revolutionaries.

The great leader has vigorously forged ahead with the work of improving the system and method of guiding party, government, economic and cultural agencies. To solidify and develop the socialist system and to accelerate socialist and communist construction to the maximum, we should continuously improve this guidance system and method so that we can help the people become the true masters of the country and society and display their inexhaustible might and creative wisdom.

The great leader has helped enact a new revolutionary change in all agencies and in the work of functionaries by actively accelerating the struggle to thoroughly adopt the Chongsan-ri spirit and method in the work of party, government, economic and cultural agencies and to promote the party-mindedness, class awareness and popular nature of the people.

He has helped enact basic changes in guiding and managing the people's economy by staging a vigorous struggle to improve the work of managing and operating the people's economy after establishing the unique Taean work system and a new agricultural guidance system.

He has turned our country into a powerful socialist industrial state with a modern industry and developed agriculture by completing the difficult and complicated task of socialist industrialization in the very short period of 14 years by energetically leading the struggle to enact a new, great revolutionary upsurge in all sectors of economic construction after setting forth a chuche-oriented line for socialist industrialization.

He has changed the rural areas in our country into much more affluent, civilized socialist rural areas by setting forth and brilliantly materializing a unique ideology and theory on the question of socialist rural areas, thus opening the prospect for finally solving rural questions.

He has fostered the powerful national defense capability for resolutely repelling the aggressive maneuvers of any enemy and reliably safeguarding the security of the fatherland by making economic construction advance abreast with the construction of national defense to cope with the U.S. imperialists' brazen aggressive maneuvers and by thoroughly implementing the military line of self-defense.

Because the great leader has set forth the wise policy for comprehensive socialist construction in our country and has energetically led the struggle to implement this policy, our country has changed into a powerful socialist state which is independent politically, self-reliant economically and self-defending in the national defense sector.

[SK300952] The book comprehensively describes the revolutionary activities the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song carried out to expedite the complete victory of socialism during the period from the fifth congress of our party to its sixth congress. During this period, the great leader developed and enriched the theory on socialism and communist construction and set forth new struggle policies for expediting the complete victory of socialism in his report at the Fifth KWP Congress and in his classic works, including the theses on socialist education.

The great leader has designated the work of imbuing society with the chuche idea as the general mission of our revolution. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Our party--the revolutionary advance unit of the Korean working class and the working people--has set forth the militant program for imbuing society with the chuche idea--our party's revolutionary ideology--and is struggling to implement this program.

Imbuing society with the chuche idea is a sacred, historic task of completing the cause of communism. More than half a century has passed since our revolution was launched under the banner of independence. During this period, great progress has been made in the struggle to imbue society with a single idea, thus performing miracles in the domain of social development. These miracles could only be performed by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, a great ideological theorist and activist.

The policy of imbuing society with the chuche idea set forth by the great leader and the method of implementing this policy is the programmatic guideline comprehensively clarifying all theoretical and practical questions arising from brilliantly inheriting and completing the revolutionary cause of chuche and is an immortal, militant banner which our party and people should follow in expediting the complete victory of socialism and in building communism.

The situation in which our revolution has entered a new stage of development with the overall expansion and development of the three revolutions--ideological, technical and cultural--since the magnificent, historic advance began to imbue society with the chuche idea, urgently demands that the party be further strengthened and that a new change be enacted in party work. By taking epochal action to strengthen the party and enact a revolutionary change in party work with insight into this demand, the great leader has firmly solidified an organizational and ideological foundation to complete our revolutionary cause generation after generation and to strengthen and develop our party forever as a chuche party. Thus, a basic question influencing the future destiny of the party and the revolution has been brilliantly solved in our country.

Because the great leader has wisely organized and led the work of solidifying the political and ideological unity of the people along with the work of strengthening the party, society is overflowing with the chuche idea, and a basic change has been enacted in the ideological and spiritual trait of our people and in their work and lifestyle. Today, our people are firmly determined to protect and safeguard the great leader and the glorious party center politically and ideologically at the risk of their lives and share their destiny with the party to the end no matter what difficulties and trials they may encounter.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has been deeply interested in solidifying the state and social systems of our country. Because the great leader has personally formulated the socialist constitution--a chuche code--and because he has helped adopt various new laws based on this constitution, the state and social systems of our country have been legally solidified and a powerful legal weapon has been provided for the people to more vigorously forge ahead with the revolution and construction.

Because the great leader has taken various revolutionary actions to strengthen the people's government and enhance its role, our government has been strengthened and developed into a true people's government which much more successfully serves the working people.

The great leader has concentrated on vigorously accelerating socialist economic and cultural construction under the banner of the three revolutions. The respected and beloved leader has helped make great progress in freeing workers from arduous labor and in improving their working conditions by vigorously leading the people to carry out the three revolutions. He has helped matchlessly strengthen the country's economic might in the flames of great socialist construction. In particular, by designating the agricultural front as a major offensive front of socialist economic construction, he has placed the rural economic sector on a new scientific, technological foundation, By wisely leading the people to thoroughly adopt the chuche farming method, he has made the rural areas in our country successfully overcome the influence of the cold front. As a result, agricultural production has rapidly developed.

[SK301006] By designating the work of making the people's economy chuche-oriented, modern and scientific as a strategic line which should be consistently followed in socialist and communist economic construction following completion of the 6-year plan, the great leader has energetically organized and led the struggle to implement this line, thus raising economic construction in our country to a new, higher stage.

To accelerate cultural construction, the great leader has adopted the overall 11-year compulsory education system and the system for the state to completely nurture and educate children. By expanding a higher educational network on a large scale, he has fostered a large force of more than 1 million intellectuals. By taking various positive actions to develop the country's science and technology in a short span of time, he has helped readily and independently solve new scientific and technological questions.

By providing careful guidance to enact a great revolutionary change in all sectors of literature, he has helped develop our literature into a genuinely party-oriented and revolutionary one, thus ushering in the great heyday of chuche literature. To meet the requirements of the development of the situation, the great leader has improved guidance methods and developed the mass movement to a new, higher stage.

By initiating the three revolutions team movement to accelerate the three revolutions--ideological, technical and cultural--the great leader has sent three revolutions teams to all sectors and units. The three revolutions team movement is a new type of revolutionary guidance method which combines the political, ideological guidance and scientific, technological guidance which makes the upper unit assist the lower unit and which accelerates the three revolutions by mobilizing the working people. With the three revolutions team movement vigorously underway, new miracles have been performed and new innovations have been made one after another in remodeling men, in reforming techniques and in building culture.

The great leader has actively helped carry out the movement to win the red flag of the three revolutions and the movement to follow the example set by the heralded heroes, thus helping enact a great change in all fronts of socialist construction.

Because the great leader has set forth a unique policy to expedite the complete victory of socialism and because he has wisely organized and led the struggle to implement this policy, great achievements have been attained in the three revolutions--ideological, technical and cultural--and great progress has been made in the struggle to imbue society with the chuche idea.

The unique nature and invincible vitality of the idea of carrying out the three revolutions set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has become clear with each passing day because of the glorious party center's wise, outstanding and tested leadership of the struggle to materialize this idea.

The book comprehensively and profoundly describes the revolutionary activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the 1960's and 1970's on behalf of South Korean revolution, the fatherland's revolution and the development of the international communist movement and the world revolution. During this period, the great leader, in his classic works including those entitled "Let Us Strengthen the Revolutionary Forces in Various Ways To Achieve the Fatherland's Reunification," and "Let Us Prevent Division of the People and Reunify the Fatherland," comprehensively delineated the basic policy of the South Korean revolution, the task of implementing this policy and the basic program for the fatherland's reunification and the method of implementing this program. He took various revolutionary actions to expedite the South Korean revolution and the fatherland's reunification.

The Revolutionary Party for Reunification [RPR] was founded in South Korea with the chuche idea as its guiding ideology. Under its leadership, the people's revolutionary struggle has developed to a new stage.

[SK301228] By staging brave struggles against the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique, including the 3 June uprising in 1964, the August struggle in 1965 and later the Kwanju people's uprising, the South Korean revolutionaries and people dealt them a severe blow.

As a result of great advancement won in the struggle for the reunification of the fatherland, the north-south joint communique was announced, a meeting of the North-South Coordinating Committee was held and support for and solidarity with the cause of our people's struggle for reunification of the fatherland was further strengthened among the peoples of the world.

In this period the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song also gave all-round answers to questions of principle arising in the cause of anti-imperialism and independence and the international communist movement in his classical works such as "Let Us Further Strengthen Anti-Imperialist and Anti-U.S. Struggle," "The Nonaligned Movement Is a Mighty Anti-Imperialist Revolutionary Force of Our Times" and many others. He carried out energetic activities to intensify the anti-imperialist, anti-U.S. struggle and strengthen the unity and cohesion of the socialist countries and the nonaligned movement and saw to it that every support and encouragement was given to the national liberation struggle of peoples of colonial and neocolonial countries and to the struggle of peoples new emerging countries for the building of a new society.

All activities carried out by the great leader made a great contribution to accelerating the international communist movement and the world revolution. They enhanced the international authority and position of our party and our nation and extremely strengthened the international solidarity of our revolution.

In conclusion, it is recorded in the book that the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forward a new fighting program for our party and people at the Sixth KWP Congress. The great leader extensively summed up at the sixth party congress brilliant victories and proud achievements attained in the revolution and construction in the past. He elucidated concrete tasks of struggle to achieve the complete victory of socialism in our country, to further strengthen the party organizationally and ideologically and to accelerate the South Korean revolution, national reunification and the world revolution.

The new revolutionary lines and policy of struggle put forward at the Sixth KWP Congress are programmatic guidelines which our party and people should firmly adhere to in accelerating the chuche-orientation of the entire society and accomplishing the revolutionary cause of chuche generation after generation. They are powerful weapons ensuring victory in the revolution and construction.

Thanks to the energetic guidance by the respected leader in fulfilling the decisions and directives of the sixth party congress, revolution and construction are being advanced in an extremely rapid manner and an endlessly bright future is opening up before the Korean revolution.

The respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song is the great leader who devotes his whole life to the fatherland and people and who has made immortal achievements for history and mankind.

The long history of the revolutionary struggle of the working class does not know such a great leader as the respected leader who basically reformed the position of the fatherland and people in a short time and created miracles of the century in all fields of politics, economy, ideology and culture.

With the richness and greatness of the revolutionary achievements made in the course of long arduous and complex revolutionary struggle, the revolutionary history of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song is shining as a most glorious and brilliant history of the leader of the working class.

There are no such proud and happy people as ours who conduct the revolution in chuche Korea by holding in high esteem the respected comrade Kim Il-song as our leader who glorified the entire course of the long revolutionary struggle with brilliant victory, and under the leadership of the KWP. It is a most sacred and lofty duty and greatest honor of the revolutionaries and people in our era to learn and follow the revolutionary history of the great leader.

All party members and workers should firmly prepare themselves to be genuine chuche-type communist revolutionaries by deeply studying and comprehending the revolutionary history of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in a systematic and extensive manner.

The revolutionary cause of our people who advance and struggle by upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and under the party leadership will be ever-victorious and invincible forever.

KWP'S YIM CHUN-CHU SPEAKS ON KNA ANNIVERSARY

SK240920 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 22 Mar 82

[Report by Yim Chun-chu, member of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee and general secretary of the DPRK Central People's Committee, at central report meeting held at People's Palace of Culture in Pyongyang on 22 March to commemorate 65th anniversary of formation of Korean National Association by Kim Hyong-chik--read by announcer]

[Text] Comrades, we commemorate the significant 65th anniversary of the formation of the Korean National Association [KNA] in circumstances in which all people throughout the country have enacted a great upsurge in all sectors of the revolution and construction with endless loyalty to the party and the leader and lofty awareness of their cause.

The KNA was founded 65 years ago by Mr Kim Kyong-chik, an outstanding leader of the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement in our country and of the greatest anti-Japanese underground organization in our country prior to and after the 1 March people's uprising, which thoroughly assumed an anti-imperialist, independent stand and a pan-national nature. This association was a revolutionary organization which led the Korean National Liberation Movement.

Greeting the 65th anniversary of the formation of the KNA, our people proudfully recall the achievements attained by the KNA with endless respect and admiration for Mr Kim Kyong-chik, an indomitable anti-Japanese revolutionary fighter.

Comrades, the latter part of the 1910's when the KNA was formed was a period of national suffering when the tyrannical military rule of the Japanese imperialists occupying Korea reached its zenith and when our people were forced to suffer the status of colonial slavery. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Occupying Korea for nearly half a century, the Japanese imperialists maintained a barbarous colonial rule and brought immeasurable sufferings and misfortunes to our people. Spreading army troops, gendarmes, policemen, prisons and terrorist networks everywhere in Korea, the Japanese imperialist aggressors cruelly suppressed our people and maneuvered in various ways to exterminate the Korean people.

By occupying Korea and by maintaining an unprecedentedly outrageous colonial rule in all sectors, including the political, economic and cultural sectors, the Japanese imperialist aggressors hindered the independent development of Korean society and converted our country into a dark, murderous hell.

Having a matchlessly profound insight into the distressed situation in Korea and into the future of the Korean revolution, Mr Kim Hyong-chik earlier embarked on the road of struggle against the Japanese imperialists and occupied a central position among independent movement activists at home and abroad in energetically carrying out revolutionary activities. While instilling anti-Japanese patriotism and the spirit of national independence in advanced students and the working people at the initial stage of his revolutionary activities by organizing various organizations such as the colleagues' study association, a reading club and the Ilsin Friendship Association, he firmly solidified a foundation for forming an anti-Japanese underground organization by touring broad areas at home and abroad. Based on this foundation, he formed the KNA on 23 March 1917.

The aim of the KNA was to help all Korean people achieve the nation's independence by themselves and through their united efforts and build a truly civilized country. The aim of the KNA as clarified by Mr Kim Hyong-chik clearly reflected a thoroughgoing stand against imperialism--a stand for rejecting the toadyist ideology of seeking independence by clinging to foreign forces and for achieving the independence of the country through the people's independent efforts.

Mr Kim Hyong-chik taught that, to achieve the aim of the KNA, the broad strata of the people should be rallied and unanimously mobilized to the cause of the anti-Japanese liberation struggle and that the KNA should be firmly solidified.

[SK241425] He also taught that the era of struggle for hegemony in the orient between the Western forces and Japan was the best chance for the independence of Korea and that, therefore, taking advantage of this era the Korean people should drive out the Japanese imperialists with their own strength to achieve the independence of the country.

The aim of the KNA and ways for its realization advanced by Mr Kim Hyong-chik were a most correct struggle program which indicated a right direction for developing the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement independently on the basis of a deep analysis of the contradictions among the imperialist powers ever worsening in Asia and the obtaining situation. The formation of the KNA was a valuable fruition of the far-sighted plan of Mr Kim Hyong-chik to achieve the independence of the country with the nation's united strength and of the arduous struggle for its realization. It was also a historic event which planted a new vitality on the fatherland where the clouds of national ruin hung heavy and which instilled a hope for liberation and the zeal of struggle for liberation in the hearts of our people.

With the formation of the KNA, the Korean people were able to possess a powerful revolutionary organization, uniting into one all of the anti-Japanese forces which loved the country and the nation and leading the National Liberation Movement in a unified way on a nationwide scale. The anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement of our country was able to enter a new stage of development in which it vigorously advanced, relying upon the nation's own strength.

In a short period of 6 months after its formation, under the energetic guidance of Mr Kim Hyong-chik, the KNA expanded its organization to many places in north and south Pyongan Provinces, Hwanghae Province, Kyonggi Province and north and south Cholla Provinces and to Changpaek, Musong, (Yimkang) and (Samunpo) outside the country. At the same time, it vigorously organized and mobilized the popular masses into the anti-Japanese struggle by closely combining its legal and illegal activities and its political and military activities.

As the KNA organization was expanded and its activities strengthened, a new phase was opened in the work for the unity of broad anti-Japanese forces and the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement of the Korean people advanced more vigorously under the banner of the national independent struggle.

In the historic period when the national liberation struggle of our people had to change its direction from a nationalist movement to a communist movement, Mr Kim Hyong-chik became a pioneer in this period and energetically worked to strengthen and develop the KNA organization into a revolutionary organization deeply rooted among the proletarian masses.

Mr Kim Hyong-chik, who stressed the nationalist movement from the early period of his revolutionary activities, convened the (Chongsudong) conference in November 1918 and set forth a new policy, a guideline for KNA activities. Thanks to this new policy, the KNA organization was strengthened and developed into a revolutionary organization deeply rooted among the proletarian masses, including workers and peasants, and the broad anti-Japanese independence movement organizations were able to more actively wage their struggle under the guidance of the KNA organization.

Mr Kim Hyong-chik, who waged energetic activities to implement the (Chongsudong) conference policy, convened the historic (Kwanchon) conference in August 1919 and elucidated a new line based on his scientific analysis and summing up of the internal and external situation and the experience and lessons drawn from the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement.

Mr Kim Hyong-chik advanced a revolutionary policy for armed struggle which elucidated that under a changed situation the National Liberation Movement should advance along the road of proletarian revolution which can realize both the class demand of working masses and the national demand of the people and that, in order to favorably develop the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement, the armed struggle should be more vigorously waged.

The line and policies advanced by Mr Kim Hyong-chik, the outstanding leader of the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement, were a programmatic guideline which should be firmly maintained in the struggle to convert a nationalist movement to a communist movement. Based on the policy advanced by Mr Kim Hyong-chik, the KNA vigorously waged a movement to propagate and plant advanced ideology among the people.

[SK241440] Wherever he went, he established various types of schools and night schools, thus indoctrinating and fostering advanced ideologies among the children of working people such as workers and peasants and raising them as reliable workers for revolutionary struggle. With these schools and supporters' organizations as bases, he rallied the broad masses. The work of disseminating advanced ideologies, then, was carried out in relation to the struggle against national reformism [minjok kaeryangjuui] which had impeded the independent development of the National Liberation Movement.

Kim Hyong-chik, who had penetrated the reactionary nature and cancer of national reformism, sent letters to the KNA organizations in October 1921 and put forth his methods of struggle against national reformism at the historic (taepyong) conference in the autumn of 1923 for the purpose of keeping national reformism from infiltrating.

Because the struggle for exposing and analyzing national reformism had been strenously waged under the guidance of Mr Kim Hyong-chik, national reformism was dealt a severe blow and the advanced ideologies were instilled in the people with a greater tractive force. The KNA had also positively launched the task of rallying and leading broad circles of people, including workers and peasants and independence fighters, to the right path.

Thanks to the energetic activities of Mr Kim Hyong-chik, who had straightened out so many difficulties with an indomitable iron will, the broad masses of workers, peasants, youths, students, intellectuals, patriotic religious men and merchants and industrialists of small and medium-sized enterprises were awakened with the anti-Japanese patriotic ideology in spite of the Japanese imperialists' truculent suppression and surveillance. Mass organizations were organized and expanded in the northern part of the border area long the Yalu River, in various places throughout the country and in several places overseas where the Korean people lived.

In particular, with the historic (musong) conference held in August 1925 as a momentum, the Association for Promotion of Unity of the National Organizatios [minjok tanche yonhap chokjinhoe] was founded as a federation to unite independence movement organizations, which separately had been active in the Manchurian plain. The founding of the federation marked a great progress in the struggle for uniting the broad patriotic force.

The KNA's struggle for converting the national movement to a communist movement was more vigorously waged in close relation to the revolutionary armed activities.

Upholding the guiding principle for armed struggle illuminated by Mr Kim Hyong-chik, who said that (? the key) to achieving Korean independence was armed struggle against the Japanese imperialists, the KNA members positively struggled for realization of this principle.

Mr Kim Hyong-chik's ideology on armed struggle was one which reflected the new lofty demands of the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement on the basis of the profound historic summation of the preceding anti-Japanese movement. The ideology served as a firm guiding principle that indicated the fastest way to liquidating the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule and to achieving the country's independence.

The KNA members were raised as capable military cadres through various military schools including (Paldogang) (?social revolutionary school) in (Long Jiang) County under his guidance. Organizing and expanding new armed units within the independence army's armed units, they had vehemently waged military struggles by tearing down the Japanese imperialist police buildings or punishing their stooges. Such armed struggles made the Japanese imperialist aggressors and their stooges shudder and dealt a severe blow to the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule, thereby giving people confidence in victory and vigorously inspiring them to the anti-Japanese struggle.

[SK250024] In the course of repeated struggle, the KNA became a mighty clandestine revolutionary organization taking root deep among the masses. The National Liberation Movement in our country greeted a new brilliant era marking a turn into the communist movement based on the advanced ideology of the proletariat through armed struggle.

Indeed, the KNA made a great contribution to bringing to the entire people revolutionary awareness under the banner of national independence and to developing the Korean National Liberation Movement to a new stage.

The immortal achievements made by the KNA are the brilliant fruition of the efforts of Kim Hyong-chik, indomitable revolutionary fighter and an outstanding leader of the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement in our country who embarked on the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle from an early date, personally experiencing the sorrow and pains of the people without a nation, who inspired the national sense of independence, stressing that the only way to safeguard the nation's independence and dignity is to unite strength of the entire people and who waged energetic activities by overcoming various difficulties and trials.

The revolutionary road Kim Hyong-chik traversed was a succession of arduous struggles. However, no storm or trial nor the continuous repression by the Japanese imperialist hangmen could crush his burning patriotism and indomitable fighting spirit. The KNA, which was founded by Kim Hyong-chik's noble intention, was a beacon fire for 20 million fellow countrymen who were grieving over the national ruin and was a symbol of the vigorous spirit of Korea to raise the nation and open a new era by its own strength by fostering national wisdom and ability.

By founding the KNA and through its activities, Kim Hyong-chik showed a fine example of uniting clandestine revolutionry organizations amid tightly-guarded enemies and cruel repression and of waging an anti-imperialist national liberation movement.

Thanks to the outstanding leadership and energetic activities of Kim Hyong-chik, the noble revolutionary achievements of the KNA are deeply treasured by the people even today, vigorously inspiring our people's struggle to achieve the independent reunification of the fatherland.

The noble intention of national liberation which was so deeply cherished by indomitable revolutionary fighter Kim Hyong-chik, an outstanding leader of the anti-Japanese National Liberation Movement in our country and a great pioneer in changing the course of struggle from the national movement to the communist movement, has been brilliantly realized by the respected leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, standing at the van of the revolution in the gloomy days under the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule, opened up a road of independent development for the Korean revolution with the banner of the immortal chuche idea. He organized and led the armed struggle against the Japanese imperialists by founding the anti-Japanese guerrilla units. The anti-Japanese armed struggle was a great revolutionary struggle which brought the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle in our country and the communist movement to a new higher stage and was a national liberation war against colonial rule to recover national sovereignty and independence by driving out the foreign imperialists with chuche-type forces.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, legendary hero and ever-victorious and iron-willed commander, achieved the historic cause of national liberation by victoriously organizing and leading the unprecedentedly arduous and rigorous anti-Japanese armed struggle and opened up a broad road for construction of a new society to the Korean people.

Thanks to the great revolutionary tradition established by the respected leader during the bloody anti-Japanese struggle, our people could build the party, revolutionary government and revolutionary armed forces in a timely manner after the liberation, and could successfully carry out anti-imperialist and antifeudalist democratic revolutionary tasks in the northern half of the republic. Our people won the historic victory in the national liberation war against the armed invasion of the U.S. imperialists and registered miraculous renovation and brilliant successes in the struggle for socialist revolution and for socialist construction.

[SK250328] By accelerating the revolution and construction on the basis of self-reliance, our people, under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, have erected a powerful socialist country with an advanced socialist system, strong self-reliant national economy, brilliant national culture and invincible creativity on this land which for centuries was backward. Today, they have come to stand on the mountaintop commanding the final victory of socialism.

Thanks to the great leader, who stands in the forefront of the revolution, fundamental changes occurred in the position of our fatherland and people, a great new flourishing era of prosperity unprecedented in our history has been opened, and the final victory of the Korean revolutionay cause is firmly guaranteed thanks to the wise leadership of respected and beloved leader and party.

Comrades: The noble idea of the KNA has borne shining fruit in the northern half of the republic, but it has not been completely realized on a nationwide scale.

The tragedy of territorial division and national division begun in the 1940's by the outside forces continues even in the 1980's and owing to this, national misery and the pains our people suffer are growing with each passing day.

None of the Korean people who have lived as a single ethnic group of the same blood in a single land for 5,000 years of history will stand with folded arms in today's miserable situation or will eschew thinking of the nations future.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Today, nothing is more precious than reunification for our people and no task is more urgent than to reunify the fatherland.

From the beginning of the national division, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, regarding the reunification of the fatherland as the paramount task, has put forth the most correct policies and proposals for national reunification at each period of the development of the revolution and has wisely led our people in their struggle to implement them. He has made the prospect of national reunification all the brighter by putting forward the new national salvation proposal for reunifying the country through the establishment of a confederal state.

The proposal for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] put forward by the great leader is an independent and patriotic charter for reunification which illuminates the only way for the Korean people to pioneer the fate of the nation and people on their own under any circumstances. It is a fair and reasonable program for national salvation reflecting the national aspiration of the entire Korean people for national reunification and the demand of the times.

To reunify the fatherland through the establishment of a confederal state, all Korean compatriots in the north, south and abroad should firmly unite in a single great national reunification front under the banner of the national reunification, regardless of differences in ideas, systems, factions, and political views.

If all the compatriots in the north, south and abroad wage a powerful national movement for reunification in national unity just as our people in the past bravely waged the anti-Japanese struggle by rallying around the KNA or just as our people, who, rallying around the banner of the fatherland liberation, achieved the cause of the fatherland liberation after defeating the brigandish Japanese imperialists, they will frustrate any obstructionist maneuvers of the enemy and accelerate the historic cause of national reunification.

Today, the fundamental obstacle blocking our country's reunification is the forcible occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists and their policy of aggression. The U.S. imperialists have been illegally occupying South Korea for 37 years, practicing colonial rule and are now committing military provocations against our republic and staging war exercise more wickedly than ever before, while endlessly increasing their aggressive armed forces to achieve their ambition of invading Korea. Despite the strong protest and denunciation of our people and the progressive peoples of the world, the U.S. imperialists are now staging a large-scale military exercise racket called team spirit '82 by mobilizing the aggressive armed forces and the puppet army in South Korea, from the U.S. mainland, Japan and the Pacific region, turning South Korea into a dangerous testing ground for nuclear war, while straining the situation in our country to the extreme.

Instigated by the U.S. imperialists, the South Korean puppets are committing maneuvers for fascism, war, treason and division. These, too, are big obstacles to national reunification. Enforcing an antinational rule of military terror, the Chon Tu-hwan clique, hand in glove with the foreign aggressive forces, are frenzied in fascist suppression of the people and staging anticommunist confrontation rackets, and, with the false slogan of dialogue and reunification, are mocking the national aspiration for reunification, persistently pursuing a two-Koreas policy. All of these criminal maneuvers being committed by the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique are incompatible with peace and peaceful reunification of Korea, and they create only still bigger obstacles to national reunification. The way to break through the present difficulties facing the nation and to accelerate the cause of national reunification through dialogue and negotiation under this situation lies only in an early convocation of a joint conference of North, South and Overseas Korean politicians proposed by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland.

With the convocation of the 100-man joint conference, if the politicians of the north, south and abroad gather together to exchange views without reservation and take common national measures for national salvation, it will greatly contribute to opening the future of national reunification.

[SK250544] We express the expectation and conviction that the South Korean politicians concerned for the future of the nation will actively respond to our proposal for arranging a great conference for reunification, deeply conscious of the mission they have assumed before the country and the nation.

The South Korean ruling clique should abandon the foolish idea of participating in the negotiations for reunification where there is no room for it and should not prevent the politicians from participating in the conference. It should release all the unjustly arrested and imprisoned politicians, including Kim Tae-chung, immediately and unconditionally and should guarantee all the necessary conditions for their participation in the conference without delay. In addition, the South Korean rulers should make the U.S. imperialist aggressive troops withdraw from South Korea, practice democracy, abandon the policy of anticommunist confrontation and the two-Koreas policy and apologize to the nation for the brutal massacre in Kwangju.

The U.S. imperialists should stop instigating the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military clique, which is forsaken by the people, stop the aggressive war rackets without delay and should leave South Korea, taking all aggressive weapons, including their troops and nuclear weapons.

No force can stop the burning aspiration of our people for the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and the trend of the times.

Due to the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys for division, grave obstacles are placed on the road to national reunification. However, the vigorous struggle waged by the Korean people, positively supported by the progressive people of the world, will surely bring about our fatherland's reunification.

To realize the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland at an early date, we should strengthen our revolutionary forces further by accelerating the revolution and construction in the northern half of the republic.

To embody the revolutionary ideology of the great leader, we must, first of all, arm ourselves with the party's lines and policy and consolidate a steel-like unity and cohesion in our revolutionary ranks.

All the party members and working people should prepare themselves as chuche-type communist revolutionaries with an invincible revolutionary spirit, just like the young communists who upheld the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the dawn of the Korean revolution and struggled, sacrificing their youthfulness and lives without hesitation for the revolution. At the same time, we should tenaciously defend the glorious revolutionary tradition provided by the great leader in the course of the bloody anti-Japanese struggle, illuminate that tradition from generation to generation and thoroughly embody it all our lives.

Before long, we are going to greet the 70th birthday of the great leader of our party and people, Comrade Kim Il-song. All the party members and working people should make this year--the year marking the 70th birthday of the great leader and the 50th anniversary of the leader's founding of anti-Japanese guerrillas and the start of the armed struggle against the Japanese imperialists--a most brilliant one in the history of our fatherland by creating a new upsurge on all fronts of socialist construction with fervent loyalty.

By substantially launching the movement to win the red flag of the three revolutions and the movement to emulate the example of the unheralded heroes, we must fulfill the militant tasks assigned to us without fail and strive to fill the society with a lively and fresh revolutionary spirit.

In the midst of the enemy's maneuvers to provoke a new war, which are becoming more intense with each passing day, we must not relax our revolutionary vigilance even a moment but must watch every movement of the enemy keenly and work and live alert and always ready for mobilization, rejecting even the slightest relaxation or slackness.

We must vigorously follow the arduous and treacherous road of the revolution, without wavering and with firm faith in sure victory, cherishing the persistent spirit and noble will of Mr Kim Hyong-chik who, with firm conviction that the victorious day reverberating with shouts of "Long Live Independence" would surely come, tenaciously traversed the treacherous road of history.

The Korean people, who are vigorously advancing for the just revolutionary cause under the outstanding and tested leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, are invincible and only victory and glory await them in the future.

Let us all firmly unite around the party Central Committee led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and continue struggling vigorously to achieve national reunification and to consummate the cause of the chuche revolution.

Long live, Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and people!

Long live, the glorious KWP!

YI YONG-SU MARKS STUDENT UPRISING IN SOUTH

SK240610 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Report on speech by Yi Yong-su, chairman of the Central Committee of the Socialist League of Socialist Working Youth of Korea, at 24 March meeting of Pyongyang youth and students held at the League's central hall to mark the 18th anniversary of the March 1964 struggle of South Korean students]

[Text] The reporter said that the people greet the 18th anniversary of the 24 March uprising of the South Korean students in circumstances in which workers and students throughout the country have created a new revolutionary upsurge on all fronts of socialist construction under the leadership of the party to greet the 70th birthday of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the genius of the revolution and the sun of the nation, as the greatest festival of the people and in which the struggle to achieve the democratization of society and the country's independent and peaceful reunification has been steadily waged in South Korea by students and the people.

He said that the 24 March struggle of the South Korean students was the eruption of the resentment of the South Korean students and people against the U.S. and Japanese aggressive forces and the Pak Chong-hui puppet clique, which was hurriedly attempting to settle the aggressive and treacherous South Korea-Japan talks, and was a sacred, democratic nation-saving struggle against imperialism and fascism.

He said that the brazen collusion between the Japanese reactionaries, who were seeking an opportunity for reinvasion, and the traitors, who were attempting to leave South Korea as a twofold colony, enraged the South Korean students and people, finally leading to a March 1964 indignation meeting of students of the Liberal Arts College of Seoul University opposing South Korea-Japan talks and to a ceremony in which imperialists and traitors were burned in effigy. He then said that the flames of this struggle quickly spread to the whole of South Korea, including Pusan, Taegu and Kwangju.

He said that, courageously dashing to the streets in a nation-saving struggle like a raging billow and chanting slogans: "Immediately Stop the South Korea-Japan Talks," "Smash the Japanese Militarists," "The United States Should Take Off Its Mask," and "The Second Yi Wan-yong and the Dictatorial Regime Seeking National Division Should Withdraw," the students waged a massive struggle.

He went on to say: Perplexed by this, the Pak Chong-hui puppet clique tried to bestially suppress the fighters by declaring emergency martial law and by mobilizing scores of thousands of heavily-armed puppet army troops. However, it failed to thwart their raging, billow-like fighting spirit. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The patriotic and progressive struggle of students, which continued for more than 70 days from 24 March to 5 June, dealt great blows at the Pak Chong-hui clique and the U.S. imperialists. The 24 March uprising of the South Korean students dealt a fatal blow at the policy of dependence on outside forces pursued by the South Korean puppet clique and its maneuvers for treachery. It paralyzed the rascals' ruling order, drove the enemy into chaotic confusion and temporarily disrupted the criminal South Korea-Japan talks, thus dealing a telling blow at the Japanese reactionaries, who were running wild to fulfill their old dream of a greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere with the backing of the U.S. imperialists, and at their maneuvers for reinvasion.

Through fierce struggles over more than 70 days, the South Korean students and people further sharpened their political awareness, hardened themselves and greatly influenced the development of the movement against imperialism and fascism.

Availing himself of the significant occasion of commemorating the 18th anniversary of the heroic 24 March uprising, the reporter, on behalf of all the youths and students of the northern half of the republic, paid tribute to the South Korean students who had sacrificed their youthful, precious lives in the streets of resistance for the cause of national dignity and expressed noble respect to their bereaved families and all those who participated in the 24 March uprising.

He said that, although 18 years have passed since the righteous warriors of 24 March dyed the streets of resistance with blood, none of their desire for independence, democracy and reunification has been fulfilled.

[SK250809] He said that a more heinous and vicious fascist rule than the Yusin reactionary rule exists in South Korea because of the never-to-be-condoned treachery of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who has emerged as a new fascist maniac with the support of the U.S. imperialists. He said that Chon Tu-hwan is stepping up a policy of reliance on the United States and scheming to make South Korea the U.S. imperialists' colony and military base.

He said that, while accelerating efforts to increase military capabilities and arms in South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have staged large-scale war exercises there, leading the situation to the brink of war. He added that team spirit '82, which has continued since February, is a large-scale preliminary test war.

He said that traitor Chon Tu-hwan, not satisfied by leaving South Korea to his U.S. imperialist master and flattering and following the Japanese reactionaries, has paved the way toward allowing the latter to infiltrate South Korea politically, economically and militarily to their heart's content. He said that the South Korean puppet clique's talk about common destiny and its begging for $6 billion in loans stem from a military aim to invade the northern half of the republic by colluding with the Japanese reactionaries. He said all facts show that traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a pro-U.S. and pro-Japanese stooge who, maintaining his life line by relying on foreign forces, seeks a parasitic life by relying on two masters.

The reporter noted that since the usurpation of power through the wielding of bayonets, the Chon Tu-hwan ring--a group of stooges faithful to the U.S. imperialists and felonious Yusin remnants--has reacted to the righteous demand of the South Korean students and people with tyranny. He said that traitor Chon Tu-hwan's barbarous act of murdering the youths, students and people in Kwangju in May 1980 is an unprecedentedly brutal act of slaughtering his fellow countrymen. He said that since the Kwangju incident, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has created a whirlwind in arresting patriotic people, youths and students and has continuously increased suppressive forces. He said that this traitor has converted South Korea into a desolate graveyard of democracy plagued by murder and the most miserable living hell in the latter part of the 20th century.

He said that the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique has bloodily suppressed small meetings and demonstrations on campuses by mobilizing armed policemen. He noted that the rascals have recently punished or expelled thousands of students from the campuses throughout the country for leading the struggle against fascism and, on the pretext of taking disciplinary action on the campuses, have established a surveillance network through the use of monitoring equipment. He noted the horrible South Korean situation, in which students who seek truth are dragged to the court from the campus and are guillotined outside the classroom.

He said that the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military clique is persisting in every conceivable intrigue to perpetuate national division and obstruct the country's reunification in accordance with the two Koreas manuscript of the U.S. and Japanese reactionaries.

He said that after carrying out slanderous maneuvers by shouting the theory of reunification in the 2000's--not satiated by fanning confrontation between the north and south--and urging the people not to have any illusion about peaceful reunification, saying the only thing for the worth is confrontation, the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military clique has recently clamored about dialogue by proposing pilot projects. Saying that all these facts clearly show that the Chon Tu-hwan ring is a group of traitors, butchers of the people, war maniacs and enemies of reunification, he bitterly denounced on behalf of all the Korean students and people the Chon Tu-hwan ring's crimes of fascism, treachery, anticommunism and division after emerging as a second Yusin dictator.

Referring to the recent courageous struggle of the South Korean patriotic people and students to set fire to the U.S. cultural center in Pusan--one of the U.S. imperialists ideological and cultural aggressive agencies--and to scatter many leaflets everywhere in the city, denouncing the fascist suppression of the campuses, the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique, he said that this is the eruption of pent-up anti-U.S. feeling of the South Korean people and a manifestation of their strong will and patriotism to banish the U.S. imperialists and regain the people's dignity and sovereignty.

[SK250836] He said: Taking this significant opportunity commemorating the 18th anniversary of the 24 March uprising, I, in the name of all youths and students in the northern half of the republic, extend warm support and encouragement to the South Korean youths, students and people of all strata who are vigorously waging a just and patriotic struggle in defiance of the bloody suppression of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique.

He said that today the South Korean youths, students and people are faced with an urgent task of ending the colonial, military and fascist rule by the U.S. imperialists and their stooges at the earliest possible date and of achieving the democratization of society and the peaceful reunification of the country and continued: the South Korean youths and students should become the standard-bearer calling the people of all strata to struggle and a leader of the struggle and continuously fight until they will have ended the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist rule and established a genuine democratic government in the name of their fallen comrades-in-arms. At the same time, they should resolutely struggle for the abolition of fascist evil laws, including the notorious national security law, and all suppressive mechanisms and the release of all arrested and imprisoned youths, students, democratic figures and patriotic people.

The South Korean youths and students should struggle to dismantle all reactionary fascist organizations, including the student defense corps, and oppose forcible conscription for the puppet army. They should sternly block and frustrate the U.S. imperialists' and the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique's schemes to ignite a fratricidal war.

The South Korean youths, students and people should heighten their vigilance against the aggression and interference of foreign forces and resolutely struggle to restore the lost national sovereignty in South Korea. Noting that the U.S. imperialists are the source of the misfortune and suffering of the South Korean youths, students and people and basic obstacles hindering peaceful reunification of the country, the reporter said that the U.S. imperialists should renounce the foolish ambition to maintain South Korea as their colony and military base indefinitely, immediately stop powder-reeking war exercises and withdraw from South Korea without delay, taking along their troops and all lethal weapons, including nuclear weapons.

He said: The Japanese reactionaries should abandon their foolish delusion of holding the position of a secondary colonial ruler in South Korea and of invading Korea and Asia, capitalizing on the aggression of the U.S. imperialists. They should also refrain from instigating the military hooligans of South Korea to fascism and war.

Stressing that the reunification of the fatherland is the utmost national desire of all of the Korean people, including our youths and students, and a national task which cannot be delayed for a moment, the reporter said that the South Korean youths and students should devote their efforts, wisdom and patriotic energy for the rewarding struggle to establish the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and to glorify the nation's wisdom and prestige.

He said that the youths and students in the northern half of the republic should arm themselves with the revolutionary ideology of the great leader, resolutely safeguard and defend the respected and beloved leader and the glorious party center under all circumstances and more firmly prepare them as reliable successors of the revolutionary cause of chuche.

In conclusion, he said that all of us should firmly rally around the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the genius of revolution and the sun of the nation, and the glorious party center and vigorously struggle for the socialist and communist construction in the northern half of the republic, the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and the achievement of the revolutionary cause of chuche.

N. KOREAN DEFECTORS DISCUSS KIM CHONG-IL

[Text] North Korea has either executed or sent to concentration camps members of the "124 army unit," the notorious commando unit that made the abortive attempt to raid the Chongwadae presidential mansion on 21 January 1968.

Kim Yong-chun, who defected to the South last January, disclosed at a news conference yesterday that revolts within the commando unit prompted the Pyongyang regime to sentence the insurgents to hard labor in gold and coal mines. They were later freed from the mines and allowed to return to their homes only to be arrested again and interned in concentration camps, he said.

He disclosed that the former members of the "124 army unit" at the mines stole rifles and ammunition and revolted. The camps are surrounded with pits containing poisonous stakes to prevent prisoners from escaping, according to Kim.

Also answering questions at the news conference was Kang Hyong-sun, who defected to the South in July 1979.

The two former North Koreans said that concentration camps for political prisoners will probably increase with Kim Il-song's desperate efforts to transfer power to his son Chong-il. They said Kim Il-song constructed the camps to imprison those opponents who oppose his son's ascension to the leadership of North Korea.

Citing an example of Pyongyang's cruelty, they said when a certain security agent disagreed with Kim's policy, he and his entire family were branded as "national enemies" and sent to one of the camps.

Kim Yong-chun said he mistakenly came across a camp near his hometown mountain village of Onsong-gun in mid-May 1962 when he was looking for tree barks to make ropes. He said he learned from the villagers that the iron-fenced camp contained antiparty and antirevolutionary prisoners.

He said he received a vivid picture of the lives of those imprisoned in the camp, when he was touring the Onsong-gun area in 1978 with a mission.

SOCIALIST MEDIA HIT S. KOREA-U.S. 'WAR MANEUVERS'

SK120453 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0422 GMT 12 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 12 Apr (KCNA)--Newspapers of socialist countries continue to denounce the war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique, according to reports.

A recent issue of the Soviet paper IZVESTIYA in an article titled "War Exercises" said: Divisions of the South Korean puppet army attacked heights held by an imaginary "enemy" and South Korean dictator Chon Tu-hwan and U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger watched their operations.

The paper further said: The U.S. troops present in South Korea and the South Korean puppet army have annually staged such joint exercises as "Team Spirit 82." The equipment of the U.S. expeditionary forces in South Korea is being modernized and military supply to Seoul expanded.

Recently a U.S.-South Korea "joint communique" was signed in Seoul, in which the United States promised to cover the puppet regime with its "nuclear umbrella" and transfer military equipment worth $2,000 million to the latter instantly "in case of emergency."

The United States is deeply inveigling Japan into arming South Korea. Japan is assigned with the role of supplier of capital for the execution of the military program of Seoul.

Sober-mindedly considering that these dangerous preparations for war are a threat to security in the Asian continent and a grave obstacle to the peaceful and democratic reunification of Korea, the progressive public of the world is watching them with anxiety.

In an article titled "Military Alliance Tightened" a recent issue of the Bulgarian paper OTECHESTVEN FRONT pointed to the "14th South Korea-U.S. annual security consultative meeting" held in Seoul. It said: The 2-day "consultative meeting" reportedly reached an agreement that the United States would replenish the armoury of South Korea with its military equipment to counter an "emergency."

The military axis linking Washington and Seoul is being reinforced in a planned way with the accompaniment of sophism about "threat from the North." But the "consultative meeting" this year signified a new stage in the military relationship between the United States and South Korea. The paper exposed an aggressive plot woven at the "meeting."

Recent issues of the Czechoslovak papers ZEMEDELSKE NOVINY and LIDOVA DEMOKRACIE exposed the U.S. imperialists' scheme to increase their aggression forces in South Korea.

ZEMEDELSKE NOVINY pointed out that the U.S. defense secretary who flew into South Korea raved that the United States would keep its troops there, protect South Korea with a "nuclear umbrella" and step up arms buildup.

INTER-KOREAN AFFAIRS

DAILY SCORES S. KOREA-U.S. JOINT COMMUNIQUE

SK090514 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0434 GMT 9 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 9 Apr (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON 8 April brands the "joint communique" issued at the end of the "14th South Korea-U.S. annual security consultative meeting" as a document of aggression and war for further justifying the U.S. imperialists occupation of South Korea and perfecting preparations to invade the northern half of our republic and a document of treachery for plunging the fellow countrymen into the scourge of another war.

A signed commentary of the paper titled "War Document Endangering Peace in Korea" says: In the "joint communique" the U.S. imperialists, claiming that "security of South Korea" is "vital to the security interests" of the United States, reaffirmed their commitment to give "prompt and effective assistance" to the South Korean puppets in case of "armed invasion" from someone in the Korean peninsula. This is shameless indeed.

In the "joint communique" the U.S. imperialists announced that their drastic reinforcement of the aggression forces occupying South Korea is "practical proof" of their "firm determination to defend" South Korea and constitutes an "important contribution" to "peace" in northeast Asia and they will continue to ensure the "security" of South Korea with their nuclear umbrella. This is a revelation of their intention to bring more aggression forces into South Korea and launch without hesitation even a nuclear war to realise their aggressive design.

As shown by Weinberger's itinerary in South Korea and the "joint communique," his recent South Korean tour was a war junket for the provocation of another war, not for peace.

BULGARIAN PAPERS DENOUNCE TEAM SPIRIT

SK120931 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0816 GMT 12 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 12 Apr (KCNA)--Bulgarian papers denounced the "Team Spirit 82" joint military exercises of the U.S. imperialists aggression forces and the South Korean puppet army, according to a report.

A recent issue of the paper NARODNA MLADEZH in an article, pointing to the scope of the "Team Spirit 82" war exercises of the U.S. forces and the South Korean puppet army, says that the world has never seen such large-scale exercises.

Noting that bosses of the U.S. Defense Department worked out a detailed plan of aggression against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, it continues: The aim of the "Team Spirit 82" war exercises cannot be concealed with the propaganda that "they are for preventing war and defending South Korea" made by reactionary U.S. publications. Through the military exercises the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique try to create "two Koreas" and further heighten tension in the Korean peninsula.

Pointing out that the United States and the South Korean puppet clique are hard at work to cause a military clash and plunge mankind into a nuclear holocaust, the paper brands the "Team Spirit 82" military exercises as a wanton violation of the Korean armistice agreement.

A recent issue of the paper OTECHESTVEN GLAS in an article titled "The U.S. Defense Department's Far Eastern Programme" says that the U.S. forces and the South Korean puppet army are continually holding large scale joint military exercises against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the U.S. spy planes are ceaselessly infiltrating into the airspace of the northern half of the DPRK.

It says: Croaking about the "military supremacy of North Korea" and "threat from the North," the United States has shipped large quantities of military equipment and even nuclear weapons into South Korea. And Japan is trying to give huge "loans" to South Korea. All these acts of the United States, Japan and South Korea in the Far East evidently assume aggressive nature, it remarks.

'KCNA' REPORTS ON GENEVA REUNIFICATION CONFERENCE

SK130042 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1106 GMT 10 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 10 Apr (KCNA)--The conference of nongovernment organisations on reunification of Korea and human rights in South Korea was held in Geneva on 3 and 4 April, according to a report.

The conference was convened under the sponsorship of such nongovernment organisations in consultative status with the United Nations Economic and Social Council as the World Council of Peace, the Afro-Asian People's Solidarity Organisation, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the International Association of Democratic Lawyers, the World Federation of Democratic Youth, the World Federation of Trade Unions, the International Union of Students, the Women's International Democratic Federation, the World Christian Peace Conference, the World Federation of Scientific Workers and the International Liaison Committee for the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of Korea.

The conference was attended by Romesh Chandra, president of the World Council of Peace; Edith Ballantyne, chairman of the conference of non-government organisations and general secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; Damantang Camara, permanent secretary of the party of state of Guinea, president of the National Assembly and vice-president of the World Council of Peace; Francisco da Costa Gomes, marshal and ex-president of Portugal and chairman of the Portuguese Council of Peace and Cooperation; Nino Pasti, ex-general of the Italian Army in NATO: representatives of nongovernment organisations in consultative status with the UN Economic and Social Council and national organizations of various countries, prominent figures of political, public, academic, judicial and religious circles and R. Dafflon, member of the Federal Assembly of Switzerland and ex-mayor of Geneva, and many other representatives of political parties and public organisations and broad strata of Switzerland.

The conference was also attended by the delegation of the Korean Committee for Solidarity with the World People headed by its Vice-Chairman Kim Hyong-u.

Romesh Chandra, president of the World Council of Peace who was the chairman of the conference, made an opening address at the conference.

R. Dafflon, member of the Federal Assembly of Switzerland and ex-mayor of Geneva, made a congratulatory speech.

Abdul Aziz, vice-chairman of the Afro-Asian People's Solidarity Organisation and chairman of the Committee for Supporting Korea's Reunification, made the report on "The Reunification of Korea," the first agenda item; Amar Bentoumi, secretary general of the International Association of Democratic Lawyers, the report on "The Violation of Human Rights in South Korea," the second agenda item; and Edith Ballantyne, general secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the report on "The Korean Problem and World Peace," the third agenda item.

Then many representatives took the floor.

The reporters and speakers said that the reunification of Korea is an important question concerning peace and security in the world and that it must be achieved at an early date.

Recalling that the Democratic People's Republic of Korea was making constant efforts for the country's reunification, they stressed that the proposal for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Korea and the 10-point policy of the unified state put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea are fair and realistic ones most correctly reflecting the reality of Korea.

They noted that, for the realisation of the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea, the question of North-South dialogue must be properly solved and the proposal for convening the conference of 100 North, South and overseas Korean politicians recently made by the DPRK is one for a most correct dialogue under the present situation.

Stressing that the Chon Tu-hwan clique cannot be a party to a dialogue, they exposed the falsity of the "unification proposal" brought forward by it.

Referring to the reactionary nature of the present "constitution" and other evil laws and the fascist system of South Korea and the violation of human rights there, they called for ending all fascist laws and terror rule, releasing political prisoners and realizing the democratization of society in South Korea.

Saying that the cause of tension in Korea is the presence of the foreign troops in South Korea, they pointed out the South Korean armed forces were being built up with the backing of the United States and Japan.

The conference adopted a communique of the conference of nongovernment organisations on reunification of Korea and human rights in South Korea and a declaration on the violation of democratic freedom and human rights in South Korea.

It also adopted a letter to the United Nations secretary general demanding a prompt implementation of the resolution of the 30th session of the UN

General Assembly on the Korean question and a letter to the second special meeting of the UN General Assembly on disarmament concerning the question of forcing foreign troops out of South Korea and establishing a nuclear-free zone in the northeast Asian area including the Korean peninsula.

Lucio Luzzatto, chairman of the International Liaison Committee for the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of Korea, made a closing address.

PHILIPPINES ROMULO SUPPORTS ROK UNITY FORMULA

SK090856 Seoul YONHAP in English 0731 GMT 9 Apr 82

[Report by Pak Chung-chan]

[Text] Manila, 8 Apr (YONHAP)--Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo voiced support for South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan's unification formula proposed 22 January, and said it was a "constructive and positive step" towards Korean unification.

In an exclusive interview with the YONHAP News Agency Thursday, Romulo said the Philippines envisages an average annual growth rate of 6.5 percent for its economy during the 1983-1987 development plan period, and cited rural and community development and food processing as promising areas of Korean-Philippine cooperation during the period.

The veteran Philippine diplomat called on Japan to heed the aspirations of other East Asian countries to process their raw materials and increase exports, noting that Japan is in a position to help developing countries through the release of capital and technological cooperation.

On cooperation between Korea and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), Romulo said South Korea can play a larger role in the economic and industrial development of ASEAN on an "equitable and mutually beneficial basis." "Korea and the ASEAN countries could forge closer cooperation in trade, in efforts to build modern agro-industrial economies, and in the development of human resources and rural communities," he said.

Romulo also said he foresaw "ASEAN intensifying its habit of intra-ASEAN consultations and cooperation in the social, economic and political fields."

Asked about the prospects for resolving the Kampuchean question, which ASEAN has been addressing in recent years, Romulo said it would not be resolved until Vietnamese troops were withdrawn from Cambodia, and added that a durable solution would have to involve and satisfy the "legitimate interests" of all the parties concerned, including the Cambodian people, Vietnam, (mainland) China, Thailand and "other powers."

"I believe a coalition of the three anti-Vietnamese Khmer factions will be formed. The coalition, however, is not the solution per se to the conflict," Romulo said. "Hanoi's willingness to enter into meaningful negotiations and arrive at a durable solution to the problem of Kampuchea may be its best guarantee for peace, stability and economic progress."

TANZANIA NOT TO DEAL WITH SOUTH--Pyongyang, 9 Apr (KCNA)--The minister of interior of Tanzania held a press conference on 6 April, at which he said that the Tanzanian Government was planning to make the immigration regulations more stringent so that those carrying passports of South Korea, Taiwan and South Africa might find it hrader to enter Tanzania, according to a report. These new regulations, he said, will also affect those who carry passports of "emigrant" issued by South Korea, Taiwan and South Africa. Noting that South Koreans and Taiwanese enter Tanzania under the pretext of atending international conferences, the minister warned that the attempt to let "delegates" of South Korea and Taiwan attend conferences opening in Tanzania was motivated by "bad intention" to manipulate the stand of Tanzania towards South Korea and Taiwan by taking advantage of these conferences. He declared that Tanzania did not officially recognize South Korea and Taiwan and, accordingly, it could not have any dealing with them. [Text] [SK090444 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0400 GMT 9 Apr 82]

KOREAN CLIQUE SUPPRESSES STUDENTS--Pyongyang, 8 Apr (KCNA)--Frightened by the fire at the "U.S. Cultural Centre," the South Korean military fascist clique is clamping down even on the circle activities of students at universities and colleges for academic search, according to a report. Entering this month, the fascist clique started "investigation" of 172 circles registered at the Pusan University and is expelling patriotic students from various circles on the pretext of screening "seditious members." At the same time, the fascists are suppressing circle activities of students at the Industrial College in Pusan, making inspection of "problematic circles and members." The military hooligans are forcing new students not to join any circle, saying that at the Tonga University in Pusan many students are enrolled in the "ideological circle." DAILY STRESSES HUMAN RIGHTS OF SUSPECTS

[Editorial: "Correction of the Past Practice of Arrest Without Warrant"]

[Excerpts] Physical freedom is the fundamental basic right guaranteed by the constitution. Accordingly, limits to this freedom should be warranted by law. However, we have frequently seen suspects and witnesses being taken to investigation authorities without arrest warrants. This has caused people to demand that investigation authorities conduct investigations based on the law. As a result, the police and prosecutor's office have promised to conduct investigations with the spirit of respecting human rights. The recent prosecutors' decision to do away with the practice of arrests without a warrant and to summon suspects and witnesses in accord with warrants issued by the courts stems from the spirit of respecting human rights.

The new policy reflects further progress in protecting human rights. We appreciate the decision to do away with the past practice of ignoring the law in investigations. We do not object to the prosecutors' policy confirming the principle of investigation based on the law.

However, problems arise in implementing this policy. In criminal law de facto arrest has the same effect as that of imprisonment. This is proved by the fact that the reason for issuing a warrant does not differ from that for imprisonment. Therefore, we urge authorities to exercise discretion in issuing arrest warrants just as they do in cases of imprisonment.

An arrest differs from imprisonment because a warrant becomes invalid 24 hours after issuance. However, we cannot ignore the fact that coercive limits to physical freedom according to the law imposes a psychological burden on the person under arrest. After an arrest based on a justifiable warrant, the investigation of a suspect should not be coercive. Coercive investigations should also be corrected.

The human rights of suspects should be respected. Until a suspect is found guilty in court in accordance with the spirit of the constitution, he should be granted the right to insist he is innocent. In short, we hope that the prosecutors' policy of correcting the past practice of arrest without a warrant will mark a turning point in limiting coercive investigation and in stressing democratic investigation.

PREMIER URGES PUBLIC INVOLVEMENT IN MORAL REFORM

[Text] Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun said yesterday that the government will arouse public sympathy for the proposed moral reform drive and kindle the campaign so that it will be conducted nationwide on a voluntary basis.

In an interview with Mrs Chong Hui-kyong, principal of the Ehwa Girls' High School, the premier said that the drive should not be forced upon nor should it be spearheaded by the government. The interview was sponsored jointly by the KBS and and MBC television stations.

The drive should begin with each individual in their homes before being spread to society as a whole. "It should be conducted from easy things at hand. Those in the leadership should take the van," he said.

He said that 1982 should be the year when the foundation for the drive is established. In 1983, it should be conducted actively so that the drive will contribute to reforming the morality or the state of mind of the people by 1984. "Therefore, it is advised that we discard what we know is wrong and vigorously carry out what we know is right," he remarked.

In short, he explained, moral reform is to improve what we consider wrong. "That is to say we should rectify ill-conceived moral values which are harmful to us, our society and even to the nation," he said.

There are too many remnants of wrong moral values ranging from spitting on the street and throwing away refuge anywhere to shunning responsibilities and breaking law and order, he said. "We should let fresh moral values of the new era take root in the nation by reforming wrong ones," he said.

The reform, he said, should be carried out to prevent the repetition of undesirable past history, overcoming resulting pains and inconvenience.

He said the government has rectified "visible irrationality and injustices," rooting up absurdities committed by public servants, social injustices and wrongful habits since the inauguration of the Fifth Republic.

The premier said that if the moral reform drive is not successfully carried out, the future of the country will be "gloomy."

MORE SUSPECTS ARRESTED FOR CAMPUS DEMONSTRATIONS

SK090124 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 9 Apr 82 p 8

[Text] One more of the nine people sought by police for involvement in campus demonstrations and the riot in Kwangju, Cholla-Namdo, in 1980 was arrested in Seoul Wednesday, 2 days after the list was announced to seek public help for their arrest.

According to police, Choe Un-yong, 38, jobless, was detained at around 8:45 am at the house of Son Hun, 39, in Mukchong-dong, Chung-gu.

Choe has been sought by the police for his alleged leading role in the bloody riot in Kwangju in May 1980. Choe was said to have visited Son and asked for help but details about his hiding have yet to be announced.

Meanwhile, Yi Sang-hon, 23, a former sophomore at Kongju Education College, has been formally placed under arrest on charges of violating the national security law and the law on assembly and demonstrations.

Yi surrendered to the authorities last weekend at the persuasion of Rev Yi Pyong-ton of the Changsong Catholic Church in Kangwon-do. He was wanted by police as a member of Kumkang-hoe, a campus circle which allegedly led campus demonstrations in 1980.

In the meantime, Pusan police placed four persons under arrest on charges of violating the national security law and the law on assembly and demonstrations Tuesday. The four include Yi Ho-chol, 24, a graduate of Pusan National University, an alleged leader of campus demonstrations.

The three others are accused of concealing Yi Ho-chol. They are Ho Chin-su, 26; Sol Kyong-hye, 22, a primary-school teacher in Pusan; and Chong Kwin-yun, 22, a junior at Pusan National University.

They exchanged views on "general matters" of mutual concern, rather than the recent arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan, Cho said. Among the 18 were Rev Han Kyong-chik, Cho Hyang-nok and Hong Hyon-sol. Minister of Culture and Information Yi Kwang-pyo was also present. AID TO SMALL, MEDIUM BUSINESSES--The Finance Ministry plans to continue to increase its financial support to small and medium businesses to help them solve shortages of funds caused by the decline of domestic consumption these days. As an initial step to put it into practice, the ministry will release about 100 billion won in loans for the enterprises shortly, Finance Minister Na Ung-pae revealed yesterday. He was explaining the "latest economic trends and the direction of finance and banking policies in a meeting of the National Assembly Finance Committee. He said that businesses could enjoy a reduction of some 300 billion won in their financial burdens in the coming year thanks to the recent lowering of bank interest rates. He also told the house panel that the government would make positive efforts to bring in foreign loans on good terms in order to manage its funds for the businesses on a sound basis. The current price trend and the balance of international payments took favorable turns earlier than expected, but exports and marketability both at home and abroad are now slack, according to him. Kim said the government will continue to give priority to price stabilization, rational business management, the enhancement of financial structures and the gradual turning over of state-run and public enterprises to the private sector. The government will also increase funding for housing, medicare, education and other social development projects to promote harmony between different income groups. CHURCH TIES SEPARATE FROM PUSAN ARSON CASE

["News in Review" column by Cho Pyong-pil]

[Text] The people appeared to see the arrest of a Catholic priest with a mixture of shock and surprise, raising doubt as to why he had provided a hideout for Kim Hyon-chang, alleged plotter of the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan.

Also of much interest to them are other priests who did similar things for other fugitives on the wanted list, suspected of being involved in either the Kwangju riot or campus turmoil.

In the arson-related issue, "a storm center" is Father "Benedict" Choe Ki-Sik of Wonju diocese. He is director of the Catholic Education Center where he allegedly covered Kim for the past 22 months although he knew that Kim had been a "kingpin" in the Kwangju incident and pulled the wires behind the scenes in the Pusan arson.

What is believed to have placed Father Choe in a dilemma is that he also allowed Mun Pu-sik and Miss Kim Un-suk, masterminds of the arson case, to stay for 4 days at his center after they fled from Pusan.

Dispute over Fr Choe centered around the question as to whether he was really in a position to side with a suspect, who had perpetrated never-to-be condoned anti-state crimes, with impunity. On this issue, many people voiced criticism, saying, "Catholic priests are no exception to the application of the pertinent laws. All citizens are equal under the law." Especially, they argue that the priests were liable to due punishment legally if they were found to have played into the hands of subversive elements to the detriment of the national security interests.

In his testimony before the National Assembly Home Affairs Committee Friday, Home Minister So Chong-hwa made it clear that even clergymen don't have any nonliability privilege and therefore they would not go unpunished if they were involved in anti-state crimes. At the same time, he said that no one was above the law and any churches could not function as sanctuaries to harbor anti-national criminals.

His report explained the government's intention to criminally deal with any persons who commit acts harmful to national security regardless of their social positions.

He reported to the panel session that the number of persons who had made contacts with Kim Hyon-chang totalled 21, including priest Choe and four other persons already placed under arrest. Investigation is under way for 17 others.

According to a police announcement Thursday, Fr Choe gave 500,000 [won] to Kim obviously to help him flee from the police manhunt after he became aware of the fact that Kim had controlled both Mun and Miss Kim in the Pusan fire, to whom he also gave 80,000 won.

During the question-and-answer session, seven lawmakers from the majority and minority parties took the floor to question the government on how to dispose of the case concerning Fr Choe's providing shelter.

They also asked if the administration had any ideas of eliminating "underground circles" on campuses to nip subversive elements in the bud and if the case was not feared to cause a feud between the government and religious circles.

Minister So replied that it wasn't and should not turn into a confrontation between them under any circumstances, revealing that a religion has never been chosen as a target of an investigation.

He described the arson in Pusan as communist-style terrorism.

Commenting on Fr Choe's case, many citizens contend that his case should be separated completely from the Catholic Church, which they claimed has nothing to do with his individual action.

MORE THAN CRITICISM URGED OF JOURNALISTS--Cheju Island--Vice Minister of Culture and Information Ho Mun-to said yesterday the mission of journalists in the new era should be emphasizing "public guidance" making "criticism" and present a "guide post" for the future of the country. The vice minister said this in a speech at a seminar attended by a group of journalists at the Kal Hotel. If journalists devote themselves only to "criticisms," the nation cannot be assured of a bright future, he said. He said the Korean news media should have a firm sense of identity and selectively report news perspective of the future and prosperity of the nation. The Korean people view the world on the basis of the news chosen and provided by major news agencies from advanced Western nations, he said. Asked when the pension system will be worked out for journalists, Ho said the government will provide its support if each journalistic institution goes ahead with a plan to accumulate a pension fund with deductions from employees' salaries. DAILY ON U.S. DIPLOMAT'S MEETINGS WITH PARTY LEADERS

SK130558 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 13 Apr 82 p 2

[Article from column "News Behind News"]

[Text] The 12 April meetings with leaders of the ruling and opposition parties by Paul Cleveland, deputy chief of the U.S. mission in Seoul, has drawn people's attention because the visits have taken place in the aftermath of National Assembly testimony by former Vice Prime Minister Sin Pyong-hyon, who said there was pressure from U.S. legislators in connection with the import of U.S. rice, and after the U.S. Cultural Center fire in Pusan.

Cleveland, who arrived in Seoul 2 months ago, called on Kwon Chong-tal, secretary general of the Democratic Justice Party, on the morning of 12 April. Kwon and Cleveland discussed the rice import scandal and the Pusan arson. They reportedly agreed the incidents would not harm ROK-U.S. relations.

Cleveland also called on Yim Chong-ki, National Assembly floor leader of the Democratic Korea Party, at the National Assembly building. Cleveland reportedly said that 500,000 tons of U.S. rice was sold to Korea in 1980 because Korea sought U.S. cooperation in importing a million tons of Japanese rice and that there was no pressure whatsoever. Discussing the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center, he said that he was "concerned that universities, religious circles and opposition parties may be inhibited in the aftermath of the arson case." He also asked about problems and concerns of the opposition party. Yim reportedly told Cleveland that the policy of the opposition party is to enhance the political strength of the opposition party while maintaining social stability.

DAILY WELCOMES IOC PRESIDENT'S VISIT

[Editorial: "Samaranch's Visit in Seoul"]

[Text] The current visit of Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee [IOC], in Seoul is a boon to those officials entrusted with the organizing of the 1988 summer games. The nation, as a whole, is pleased to welcome him as his visit further encourages and spurs the ongoing preparations for the worldwide sports festival to be held in this country in 6 years.

The IOC president will observe firsthand the progress being made in building the sports complex to be opened for the 24th olympiad. The work has been proceeding smoothly so far and our preparations are likely to be complete well in advance. Still, the IOC leader's observation is expected to provide us with a proper guide to bringing our work to a satisfactory level.

We are still fresh with the bliss of winning the right to host the unprecedented event in this country because of its broad ramifications. But, of course, it is time for us to devote minute care and the utmost effort to assure the success of the 1988 event. To this end, no advice or suggestions will be disregarded. Mr Samaranch's visit has a big part to play in this regard.

His long career and rich expertise in sports will make his present tour of particular benefit to us in proceeding with the preparatory work. Although he succeeded Lord Killanin as IOC president 2 years ago, his athletic background in the international organization as well as his home country is strong and impressive. Since his election to the IOC in 1966, R. Samaranch has handled a wide range of affairs, including protocol, press and public relations. These outstanding credentials of his will help us in many ways in the course of readying Seoul for the 1988 games.

What especially impresses us is his devotion to protecting the olympics against political inroads, the tendency of which has been rising in recent years. The IOC president has been in contact with a number of national leaders throughout the world for that purpose.

Perhaps Seoul stands to benefit most from, or has the greatest need of, such exertion of an IOC leader. While this country is trying to make the 24th olympiad as open and as immune to politics as it can be, it alone can hardly overcome the potential impediments deriving from the geopolitical situation of Korea. We have had to face such difficulties whenever the nation played host to an international sports contest. A considerable number of countries have ignored our invitation apparently on the grounds of ideological differences.

This kind of political foray into sports should have no part to play in the Seoul olympics 6 years from now. One of the most significant aspects of the Seoul games will and should be its contribution to returning the world sports festival to its true place which stands for peace and friendship among different nations on the globe. In this respect, Seoul is one of the most appropriate venues to perform that task.

We believe that this point was given due thought by IOC members when they voted for Seoul as the venue of the 1988 summer games last September. We look forward to greater concern and efforts on the part of all IOC member nations during the years ahead for making the Seoul event truly conducive to realizing that principle. And we expect that Mr Samaranch will spare no efforts to see it come true.

FISHERIES COOPERATION SOUGHT WITH SOLOMON ISLANDS

SK130139 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 13 Apr 82 p 3

[Text] P. Salaka, minister of land, energy and natural resources of the Solomon Islands, flew into Seoul yesterday for a 5-day visit at the invitation of Kim Chong-su, administrator of the National Fisheries Administration (NFA), to discuss the expansion of a bilateral fishery cooperation between the two countries.

The visit is part of the NFA's efforts abroad to advance the nation's deep sea fishing industry, NFA officials said. On this occasion, the government will seek to renew a bilateral fishery agreement between Korea and the South-Western Pacific country, signed May 1980.

Under the agreement, Korean fishing boats have been able to fish for tuna in the Solomon's 200-mile economic fishing zone. Solomon declared a 200-nautical mile exclusive economic zone in 1978 in which the state has the right to exploit all living and nonliving resources, according to the NFA.

The Korean Government will pay a $130,000 fishing access fee to the Solomon Islands this year in return for fishing of tuna there, the NFA officials added.

The Solomon Islands is a group of volcanic islands with a combined area of about 11,500 square miles in the South-Western Pacific. The island country became independent from England in 1978 after 85 years of British colonial rule.

The Korean fishing fleet caught a total of 792 tons of tuna fish last year in the waters off the Solomon Islands, the NFA officials revealed.

Minister Salaka this time is expected to ask the Korean Government to set up a joint venture firm for processing the tuna fish in the Solomon Islands, the officials noted.

During his stay here, Salaka is also scheduled to make an inspection tour to such cities as Pusan and Chungmu. Prior to his Friday departure, he will visit Panmunjom Truce village.

TALKS ON TEXTILE EXPORTS--Seoul, 9 Apr (YONHAP)--South Korean Commerce-Industry Minister So Sok-chun and Karl Heinz Narjes, a member of the Commission of the European Economic Community (EEC), met here Thursday to discuss Korean textile exports to EEC members, but they failed to reach any agreement. Asking for favorable consideration on the basis of the multi-fiber arrangement III, So suggested that the EEC should increase textile imports from South Korea. So said that any decreased exports of Korean textiles to the EEC would damage Korea's international payments position and hurt the government program to liberalize trade. He pointed out that textile goods account for 40 percent of Korea's total exports to the EEC. Narjes reportedly responded that it was difficult for the EEC to increase Korean textile imports immediately, noting that textile industries presently constitute a major political issue involving employment policy in the EEC with 11 million jobless workers in member countries. Narjes also said it will take a long time to set up an EEC trade office in Seoul. Narjes arrived in Seoul Thursday for a 4-day visit at the invitation of the Commerce-Industry Ministry. During his stay, the EEC official is scheduled to pay courtesy calls on Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and other government officials to exchange views on matters of mutual concern, including two-way trade. CONSULTATIONS REQUESTED ON OVERSEAS DEALS--On 8 April, the Foreign Ministry sent official notes to the three economic organizations--the Federation of Korean Industries, the Chamber of Commerce and Industry and the Korean Traders Association--and the Korea Electric Power Corporation, asking them to hold prior consultations with the ministry when they enter into important business negotiations with foreign governments or firms. In the official notes, the Foreign Ministry warns: "In case the entrepreneurs go ahead with economic cooperation projects themselves from the narrow viewpoint, without any prior consultations with our embassies abroad, their activities might affect execution of our foreign policy." However, business circles have voiced their discontent, noting they understand the ministry's control over their negotiations with foreign governments, but it hs hard to understand why they should have prior consultations with the ministry on every business deal between entrepreneurs. They said that in normal business deals some business secrets are a necessity. [Text] [SK091418 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 9 Apr 82 p 2]

KIM IL-SONG RECEIVES LETTER FROM CHUCHE SEMINAR

SK122304 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2204 GMT 12 Apr 82

[Text] New Delhi, 11 Apr (KCNA)--A letter to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was adopted on 11 April at the international seminar on the chuche idea which was held in New Delhi on the occasion of his 70th birthday.

Greeting the 70th birthday of respected Your Excellency President, we extend warmest congratulations and greatest honour, carrying unanimous feelings of hundreds of millions of the people the world over, to you who fathered the immortal chuche idea and made great contributions to the peoples cause of independence, the letter says, and goes on:

Respected Your Excellency President's priceless lifetime of 70 years is shining resplendently with the lofty revolutionary spirit and immortal exploits of your excellency who has devoted your all for the freedom and happiness of the people. It is just for this reason why today the people taking the road of independence hold your excellency president in high esteem as the benevolent father of the people and the great teacher and regard it as a great pride to learn from your excellency president's immortal chuche idea and boundless lofty virtues.

As the attendants of the seminar stressed in unison, the chuche idea is a scientific world outlook which has originally clarified for the first time in history the position and role of man in the world and a correct guiding idea of our times which has given perfect answers to all theoretical and practical problems arising in the building of a new society in conformity with the independent aspiration and demand of the popular masses. The chuche idea which raises the dignity and value of man to the highest level and gives the popular masses the immutable truth that they are the masters of their own destiny and they have also the capacity for hewing out their own destiny is a great banner of emancipation of man and mankind.

With the creation of the chuche idea, the progressive thought of the mankind has come to reach the highest level of its development and a radical turn has been brought about in the struggle of the popular masses to advocate their independence. Today, learning from the chuche idea has become an irresistible trend of our era and the history of mankind is advancing with vigor along the track of independence indicated by the chuche idea. It is a stark historic reality of our times.

Your excellency has not only fathered the chuche idea in your early years but also embodied it splendidly in the building of a new society, thereby amply proving the validity and invincible vitality of this great idea and creating a true model of an ideal society which the progressive mankind has aspired for.

The experience of Korea constitutes a vivid example and precious wealth which inspire powerfully the struggle of the people for independence as it has been accumulated in the course of the most arduous and complex struggle waged under the banner of the chuche idea.

Respected Your Excellency President has always fought devotedly to advocate the independence of the world's people, develop the friendly and cooperative relations among them and safeguard world peace. Immortal will be the tireless efforts and great exploits made by your excellency president, a great standardbearer of the cause of independence against imperialism, for the liberation struggle of the oppressed people of the world, the development of the Nonaligned Movement and the consolidation and development of the new independent international relations.

The great revolutionary history and exploits of respected your excellency president will shine through ages, cherished deep in the hearts of the Korean people as well as the progressive people the world over and go down as an immortal monumental achievement in the history of the liberation movement of mankind for bringing about independence.

We solemnly pledge to constantly increase the ranks of the believers of the chuche idea and actively contribute to the carrying out of the independent cause of the world's progressive people.

Sternly condemning the manoeuvres of the imperialists and their stooges to perpetuate the division of Korea by cooking up "two Koreas," we fully support the fair and reasonable proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo newly clarified by your excellency president and express firm solidarity with the Korean people in their struggle to materialize it.

The letter sincerely wishes the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song good health and a long life.

INDIAN CHUCHE SEMINAR ADOPTS DECLARATION

SK130514 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0348 GMT 13 Apr 82

[Text] New Delhi, 11 Apr (KCNA)--A declaration was adopted at the international seminar on the chuche idea which was held in New Delhi from 9 to 11 April on the occasion of the 70th birthday of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The declaration reads in part:

The seminar was a great international festival commemorating the 70th birthday of the respected President Kim Il-song, the author of the immortal chuche idea and the great teacher of the world's people, as a joint auspicious event of mankind and a significant historical gathering for deeply studying the chuche idea and for demonstrating powerfully its great attraction and indestructible vitality.

The attendants of the seminar highly evaluated that the chuche idea of the great President Kim Il-song is the correctest guiding idea of our times which strikes tally with the demand and aspiration of the world's progressive people and blazes the path to human emancipation.

1. Our era calls for a new guiding idea designed to realise independence of the popular masses. Ours is an era of independence. Hundreds of millions of people who were once regarded as objects of history, as slaves of destiny have emerged as masters of the arena of history and of their destinies and are forging ahead under the banner of independence. A new era demands a new guiding idea.

The great President Kim Il-song who embarked upon the road of revolution in his early years shouldering the destiny of the people brilliantly carried out this task of the humanity by deeply penetrating the ardent independent intention and inexhaustible creative forces of the popular masses and creating the immortal chuche idea in the flames of the arduous struggle.

The creation of the chuche idea was the solemn historic declaration which announced the birth of a new era of human emancipation.

At the present historical stage in which the material conditions of the struggle for human emancipation have been created, we regard it as an immediate task confronting the human emancipation movement of chuche to awaken the people ideologically so as to believe in their inexhaustible strength and demand their position of masters.

2. The Chuche Idea is a Great Theory Illumining the Road Ahead of a New Era

The chuche idea gives the most scientific world outlook and a correct answer to the question of man's destiny by clarifying his position and role in the world.

The most important success brought about by the history of philosophy for thousands of years can be summarized in a word as the confirmation that the world consists of matter and that the world moves, changes and develops constantly according to its own law.

From this follow the questions: What position is held and what role is played by man, the highest product and most developed being in the constantly changing and developing material world. This is just the fundamental question of philosophical world outlook in our era when the popular masses have appeared as masters of the world.

As taught by the chuche idea, man is a social being that acts independently and creatively, purposefully and consciously. For his independence, creativity and consciousness man takes the position of master and plays a decisive role in the world. The world is dominated and transformed by man.

We are confident that the chuche world outlook giving an integral view on the world with main stress on man and in his relations with it is a correct world outlook clarifying most scientifically the real features of the world and is the most revolutionary world outlook illumining the road for the people to transform nature and society and hew out their destiny with their own creative activities.

The chuche idea clarifies scientifically not only the real features of the world but also originally the law-governed process of development of man's position and role in the world.

We hold that the chuche idea scientifically has made clear the law peculiar to socio-historic movement, the movement of the subject, and thus provided a great banner for the human emancipation movement in our era when the popular masses are hewing out their destiny independently and creatively on the strength of their independence and creativeness.

We admit that the original theory on three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural, set forth by the chuche idea constitutes a powerful weapon guaranteeing the victory of the human emancipation movement of chuche, for it has illuminated the road for the people freed from social subjugation to become full-fledged masters of the world out of the fetters of nature, old ideas and culture.

The chuche idea teaches that the human emancipation movement in our era should firmly maintain the independent and creative stands and carry through thoroughly the principle of independence, self-support and self-defence in order to realize its lofty idea successfully along a correct road.

The guiding principles of revolution and construction clarified by the chuche idea have been embodied in the revolutionary practice of the peoples in our era to convincingly prove their correctness and vitality.

The immortal chuche idea is a guiding banner which elucidates clearly the real features of a new world where the complete emancipation of man has been realized and inspires vigorously humanity to a bright future and an indestructible weapon which guarantees the victorious advance of human emancipation movement.

3. Let Us March Forward Vigorously Under the Banner of the Chuche Idea

The torch of chuche blazing up in Korea is illuminating throughout the world across the continents and oceans. Holding the chuche idea as our faith, we consider it as our honourable mission before the times and history to deeply study this great idea and widely disseminate it to the whole word.

We are convinced that the study and dissemination of the chuche idea is a sacred world-historic cause which inspires the people of each country to the victory of their cause of independence in conformity with the law governing the cause of human emancipation and contributes to strengthening international solidarity among the independent peoples and safeguarding world peace.

We, the believers of the chuche idea, will study and acquire the chuche idea with our own brains and actively propagate and explain this idea with our own efforts in conformity with the interests of the people and the specific conditions of our countries.

We shall not only study and disseminate the theory of the chuche idea but also extensively explain and propagate the experiences gained by Korea in the course of embodying the chuche idea, thereby showing vividly the invincible vitality of this idea.

Our just cause of studying and disseminating the chuche idea and inspiring the people to the road of independence is an international cause.

We take this opportunity to express firm solidarity with the peoples of all countries fighting for peace and democracy, national independence and social progress against all sorts of subjugation and inequality, aggression and war.

We send our full support and encouragement in the name of the seminar to the just cause of the Korean people to realize the independent and peaceful reunification of the country by founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo.

CABINET MEMBERS PLEDGE TO LEAD MORAL REFORM DRIVE

[Text] Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and all other cabinet members resolved yesterday to take the lead in the moral reform campaign regardless of "whatever difficulty and pain may lie ahead."

The resolution came during a cabinet session presided over by Yu.

The minister said they resolved so under the firm conviction that "the fate of the drive depends on the example to be set by the cabinet ministers and all other public servants."

"I hereby resolve to actively carry out the campaign for myself, my family and for my office to help make the drive a success," the written pledge said.

Meanwhile, the premier directed prior to adopting the resolution that all the cabinet members should do their level best to successfully materialize the moral reform drive.

He also called on the cabinet ministers to emphasize the need for the movement in every principal government occasions.

Noting that "visible and external" irregularities have been much reduced thanks to a series of administration renovation measures, Yu observed corruptive elements still have the potential to revive anytime.

"It was mainly because public servants and leading social figures were preoccupied with only a sense of privilege that national movements in the past failed to satisfy expectations," the premier pointed out.

Accordingly, he stressed, the moral reform which President Chon Tu-hwan conceived should be accomplished by all means.

DAILY NOTES GUIDELINES FOR MORAL REFORM DRIVE

SK150139 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 15 Apr 82 p 1

[Text] The government has decided to conduct campaigns, renovate administrative systems and launch crackdowns simultaneously for an effective performance of the moral reform drive.

The campaigns will be sponsored by the social purification panels organized at various levels of offices as well as by social organizations. They will be given active supports by the government, according to a detailed plan announced by the social purification commission yesterday.

The government hopes to have leaders in various social strata take the lead in the drive so that it can be spread over every aspect of the country.

The detailed plan gives guidelines for the conduct of nine major projects to be undertaken for the moral reform drive.

A "campaign consultation conference" will be held with the participation of 30 major organizations to discuss the conduct of various campaigns.

Government ministries will work out their respective programs to implement policies in accordance with the moral reform drive.

The Economic Planning Board (EPB) will produce plans to protect consumers and ensure fair trading and transactions while the Ministry of Home Affairs will work out effective ways and means of cracking down on criminals and violators of social order and discipline.

Projects to be undertaken by pertinent ministries include the establishment of traffic order, expulsion of substandard industrial products, reduction of energy consumption, observance of simplified family rituals, improvement of dietary pattern, establishment of order at athletic stadiums and gymnasiums.

The nine major subjects and their implementation plans are:

Honesty--a new view of value will be established and expanded, government pledges and policies will be carried out thoroughly. A campaign will be conducted to expel the tendency of mistrust.

Public order--emphasis will be placed on the establishment of street order by encouraging pedestrians to stop jaywalking and stressing defensive driving and observing traffic regulations. Rallies will be held to this end at cities by the end of June. Pleasant environments will be created at sites of tourist interest by wiping out decadent practices. Citizens will be encouraged to join the campaign to collect waste articles in May.

Creativity--Korea's beautiful traditions will be revived by encouraging families to have family precepts or mottos and increasing sense of respect for teachers. Classes for etiquette will be conducted at schools and worksites. Writing letters to parents in the countryside will be encouraged.

Responsibility--offices of public servants will be simply furnished. Telephones should be answered in a kind manner. People will be advised to go home straight after their work each day. Easy-going attitude among public servants will be eliminated.

Duty--campaigns will be launched to establish sound vocational ethics for those engaged particularly in the medical field, legal profession, journalism and the educational field.

Propriety--family rituals such as wedding ceremonies will be simplified. Consuming domestic products will be promoted. Also encouraged will be living a frugal life. Campaigns will be conducted to discourage tipping, gambling and encourage going Dutch.

Sense of being masters--consumer protection organizations will hold exhibitions of bad commodities. Measures will be worked out to adequately protect those who report substandard products.

National solidarity--people will be encouraged to be more friendly with their neighbors and help reedy people.

Home education--women's organizations will be advised to actively take part in campaigns designed to economize on the consumption of energy, to report low-quality products and to use domestic goods. Home education for children will be strengthened.

OFFICIAL VIEWS MORAL REFORM DRIVE

[Text] An Mu-hyok, chairman of the Social Purification Commission, warned yesterday that heads of offices and organizations who lack in a strong sense of responsibility toward the social renovation campaign or show inadequate renovative efforts will inevitably be purfied by others," saying that there will be no exceptions in the course of the campaign.

The government will not tolerate or allow inept public servants to remain in the government, he added in a news conference.

Announcing the basic directives for the moral reform drive, he pledged to do his level best in eliminating the negative elements in the way of implementing the nine major projects for the reform.

The nine projects adopted in a meeting of law-enforcement officials last week call for the promotion or maintenance of honesty, social order, creativity, responsibility, duty, discretion, sense of being masters of the nation, national solidarity and family education.

He said that spiritual education will be shored up for all public servants in a bid to oust deep-rooted irregularities still in officialdom, and to create the climate in which officials will work with a sense of conviction and responsibility.

He made it clear that officials who indulge in unfair dealings with enterprises or profit-making organizations, take bribes from civil petitioners, disrupt administrative order through influence-buying, and are guilty of profligate manners, will be removed from government service.

Not only corrrupt or inept officials but undedicated and irresponsible public servants without conviction and belief will also be relieved of their posts, An stated.

He also pledged that the government will eliminate all officials who do not put the needs of the people first and are caught using their powers of office over people unjustly.

The government will exert "extraordinary efforts" in carrying out the reform efforts in such areas as taxation, police, financing, license or permission affairs, construction and public sanitation, he went on to say, describing the fields as "relatively vulnerable" sections.

The committee will establish a "window for corruption report," he added.

He also remarked that the government is scheduled to promote a social atmosphere in which corruption offenders will be severely punished, while the honest and decent will be rewarded.

President efforts will be made to eradicate such chronic social evils as factionalism, fraud, decadence and extortion, An said.

If there are public servants who regard the reform drive as a short-lived one and expect the drive will weaken in the course of time, they are victims of self deception and would do best to take part in the national efforts to achieve moral reform, he said.

Meanwhile, the purification commission relayed a guideline which stipulates that ministries and agencies establish implementing schedules on their own and report them to the commission by next Wednesday.

The commission also told the ministries to form a watchdog task force to be headed by directors of the office of planning and management.

GOVERNMENT CRITICIZES CHURCH COUNCIL STATEMENT

SK200221 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 20 Apr 82 p 8

[Text] Government sources expressed "consternation" yesterday at the statement by a group named the Korean Christian Action Organization on the Pusan U.S. Cultural Center arson, which they said was "trying to justify a simple crime."

The sources, who wanted to remain anonymous, questioned if it was right for persons in clerical positions to advocate such an act of terrorism, noting that the incident caused one death and injuries to innocent people.

Particularly, they cited the recent Vatican declaration against activities of Catholic priests in support of any specific political ideology.

As for the case of Rev Choe Ki-sik of Wonju diocese accused of having harbored persons involved in the Pusan arson, including Kim Hyon-chang, and Mun Pu-sik, the sources said no clergymen could justifiably protect such criminal offenders with knowledge of their acts.

The request for the recall of the U.S. Ambassador in Korea and the commander of the U.S. forces in Korea, contained in the group's statement, "no doubt went beyond the proper realm of religion," they said.

"It was like seeking to have a U.S. ambassador or a military commander unfavorable to them removed from here and wishing to have others supporting their activities assigned here," they commented.

The sources noted "tints of flunkeyism" in the statement which said in part that the United States had allegedly lost the trust of Koreans for having "tolerated" government actions in the Kwandju incident in 1980.

They pointed out some likeness between the group's position and past activities of religious people in South Vietnam in the waning days of the republic when they sided with the communists in efforts to drive the Americans out of their country.

BRIEFS

STUDENT UPRISING CEREMONIES--Ceremonies were held in Seoul and other parts of the country yesterday for the 22d anniversary of the student-led uprising in the capital April 19, 1960, which led soon to the downfall of the then Syngman Rhee government. In Seoul, a ceremony was held at the graves in Suyuri of students who died during the uprising. Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chun-song spoke at the ceremony. He said the uprising against corruption and irregularities served as an occasion for paving the way for national development. Yi Chong-ho, administrator of the Office of Veterans Administration, and Mayor Pak Yong-su were also present. Ceremonies for the anniversary were also held at the campuses of Korea University and Seoul National University. [Text] [SK200238 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 20 Apr 82 p 8]

CREDENTIAL FROM FOREIGN ENVOYS--Seoul, 19 Apr (YONHAP)--South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan Monday received credentials at the presidential mansion Chongwadae from four foreign envoys assigned to Korea. The four diplomats are Ambassadors Balarabe Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria, Keba Birane Cisse of Senegal, Jioji Kotobalavu of Fiji and Petur Thorsteinsson of Iceland. With the exception of Thorsteinsson, the new envoys are based in Japan. Foreign Minister No Sing-yong was in attendance at the ceremony. [Text] [SKL90310 Seoul YONHAP in English 0259 GMT 19 Apr 82]

CHON RECEIVES ENVOYS CREDENTIALS--Seoul, Apr 20 (YONHAP)--South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan Tuesday received credentials from new ambassadors to Korea Ramiro Perez-Maura de Herrera of Spain, U Kyi-maung of Burma and Muhammad 'Ali Ahmed Al-Ansari of Qatar at the presidential mansion Chongwadae. The envoys from Burma and Qatar will concurrently serve as ambassador to Japan. Foreign minister No Sin-yong was also present at the ceremony. QUESTIONS ON BUSH ADDRESS--Yu Chi-song, president of the Democratic Korea Party (CKP), said on 17 April: It is difficult for me to understand the statement of Seoul Mayor Pak Yong-su, answering an interpellation at the National Assembly Home Affairs Committee on the recent Seoul subway accident. He should correct his idea that, although he is keenly aware of responsibility for the accident, he cannot resign because recovering from the accident is very urgent. Urging the Seoul mayor, as the person in charge of general supervision of subway construction, to resign and bear responsibility for the accident, he said: The National Assembly Committee should fully discuss the issue and determine who is responsible for the accident even by extending the committee meeting several days if it is impossible to settle the issue in a day. The attitude of the ruling party to convene the meeting of the committee for only a day in connection with the accident poses a problem because this produces an impression that it is doing a favor for those who are responsible. Referring to a plan for the speech by U.S. Vice President Bush at the National Assembly, he said: If he is provided with an opportunity to address the National Assembly on the grounds that he is the U.S. vice president, this will set a bad precedent. He then said that this issue should be handled with discretion. [SK180315 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 18 Apr 82 p 2]

STUDENT DEMONSTRATION BROKEN UP--Seoul, 17 Apr (AFP)--About 1,400 university students staged an anti-government demonstration outside a Catholic church in Seoul last night apparently in response to the tough stand taken by South Korean Roman Catholic bishops over the recent arrest of a priest for sheltering dissident fugitives. Police immediately dispersed the demonstrators after rounding up about a dozen of them. The students distributed tracts demanding that the government give full details of the mid-1980 anti-government rebellion in Kwangju. [Text] [OW170447 Hong Kong AFP in English 0436 GMT 17 Apr 82]

STRENGTHENING NATIONAL SPIRIT URGED--President Chon Tu-hwan said yesterday that the country, which is standing face to face with North Korean communists, would be able to survive only if it won in a struggle not only in the military field but in thought and ideology. Accordingly, the Academy of Korean Studies should become the cradle for education of the national spirit, ideology and thought to enable the people to win in ideological strife and warfare with North Korea," he said. The president made these remarks after he heard a briefing by Chong Chae-kak, director of the academy, on the education programs for this year at the academy. "To promote the education of the national spirit, ideas contributing substantially to the country are more urgent than vaguely conducted academic research," he said. He then asked the director to collect all materials concerning national spirit education, which are now being used by all state organizations, for close study of the propriety and effects of their contents, thereby working out the most effective ideas conductive to the nation. DJP CODE OF ETHICS--Seoul, 15 Apr (YONHAP)--In compliance with the government's ongoing anti-corruption campaign, the majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP) Thursday adopted a code of ethics for DJP lawmakers and the party's senior officials which requires the registration of their personal wealth. The code stipulates that the DJP assemblymen and senior officials register the wealth of themselves and their families with party headquarters from September 1 to 20, and report any changes in January of every year, a spokesman for the DJP said. The code also bans influence peddling and bribe acceptance by these officials, and asks them to "uphold dignity." [Text] [SK150946 Seoul YONHAP in English 0607 GMT 15 Apr 82]

OVER $32 MILLION IN FOREIGN INVESTMENTS APPROVED

[Text] A combined total of $32,852,000 worth of foreign investment projects in Korea has been recently approved, mostly for joint ventures with local concerns in such areas as chemicals, food processing, lubricants, precious metal products and services.

The approval was given yesterday by the foreign capital project review committee, a decision-making body in this area, comprised of related government officials of director-general level.

Along with this, the Ministry of Finance, to which the committee belongs, announced that seven foreign borrowing projects totaling $107,577,000 have been given the official go-ahead. Four other loan plans in the amount of $733.9 million got preliminary approval from the committee.

Among the seven loan projects formally approved, the biggest is $45 million, which will be provided by the Bank of America for helping finance the normal operation of Korea heavy industries construction company.

The loan due for the state-run Korea Electric Power Corporation's subsidiary is reportedly the first part of a $109 million package loan with the U.S. bank. It has been learned that the committee will soon take action on the disbursement of the remainder $64 million as well.

The government has long been opposed to cash loans like the one integrated machinery maker now pursues.

The approved part of the loan, repayable over the five years after three-year grace, carries interest floated at 0.675-0.75 percent above the London Interbank offered rate.

Some of the loans formally approved are $11,144,000 from Marubeni Corp of Japan to Korea Electric Power Corporation; $2,866,000 from Chase Bank AG of West Germany to Korea Steel Pipe Co; and $495,000 from Fonderies Magotteaux S.A. of Belgium to Hyundai Cement Co.

In the direct-investment area, the Dow Chemical Co of the United States is to invest an additional $30 million here for the production of chlorine (210,000 metric tons per year) and caustic soda (227,000 metric tons per year). Dow Chemical Korea, currently in operation here, is owned 100 percent by the U.S. company and the additional investment is designed to expand its production capacity.

Another U.S. company, Applied Magnetics Corp, will also invest $600,000 for the manufacturing of computer-use magnetic tape head (1,920,000 units per year).

From some of the approved joint ventures with local partners, BBC Brown Boveri Co of Switzerland will furnish $9.8 million or 49 percent of the total equity interest and Kun So Food Inc of the United States, $1,550,000 or 70 percent.

[Text] The government will not increase capital supply, which is prone to fuel inflation.

Deputy Premier and Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song confirmed this policy in answer to recommendations by the Federation of Korean Industries (FKI), on the ways of increasing domestic demand.

The economic forum made the reommendations when its chairman Chong Chu-yong and other high rankers called on the EPB chief, Finance Minister Na Ung-pae and Commerce-Industry Minister So Sok-chun, respectively, yesterday.

"The government is taking multilateral measures to enhance the flagging economy. But due to the structural problems facing Korean industry, our tools to treat the illness are limited," Kim was quoted as saying.

In this connection, he virtually turned down the federation's other requests including the invigoration of the housing industry and the improvement of farm and sea products' distribution channels.

"In case we release liquidity, we should no longer do it in the same ways as we did in the past," he said.

The nation's top economic administrator said that the next capital release would be centered on small and medium-sized industries.

"Supposing the government expands the capital supply, it would not effectively stimulate the national economy, because it is certain that enterprises would use it to repay their debts instead of spending it on new investments and operation."

Kim pointed to the deformed serialization of local industries explaining why the government intended to give favors to small industries in extending financial support.

"In advanced countries, the capital extended to big industries smoothly spreads to small industries. But the case is quite different in the Korean business climate," the EPB chief added.

"The economic pain is not suffered by Korea alone. Other countries including such advanced countries as the United States are in serious economic trouble," he pointed out.

He warned against the revival of speculative investment if the government reduced capital gains taxes.

"I don't think that the present tax system limits endusers' housing possession. Other countries including the United States, Japan impose heavier taxes on extra house sales," Kim noted.

Meanwhile, the finance minister said in a meeting with the business leaders the government would adopt a flexible policy to cope with fund shortages arising from the economic slump.

Recently, savings deposits increased and a penny-wise savings campaign was in full swing. The savings-oriented [word illegible] decreased domestic demand, brought about an economic slump and increased inventories, resulting in shortages of funds, the minister pointed out.

Na said the won-dollar exchange rates would be stabilized soon as the U.S. dollar was expected to fail to maintain its present strength.

The FKI recommended that the government equalize the distribution of financing among industries and expand financing support to enterprises producing commodities for the domestic market.

The FKI urged that the government increase the amount of currency in circulation to the extent that its increase would not cause hikes in commodity price.

In the recommendations, the FKI pointed out that the financial status of domestic-demand industries was declining due to the expansion of export support financing, causing unbalanced growth among industries.

SIGNS OF ECONOMIC RECOVERY VISIBLE

SK160918 Seoul YONHAP in English 0748 GMT 16 Apr 82

[Text] Seoul, 16 Apr (YONHAP)--The Korean economy showed signs of recovery in industrial output and the delivery of manufactured goods in the second month of this year, but the upsurge was still far from full-fledged revitalization, a top economic official said Friday.

Despite the slight pickup in the object-economy, the composite business index in February dropped 0.3 percentage points from January's level, continuing its five-month decline, Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song reported to President Chon Tu-hwan during a monthly economic briefing session presided over by the president at the Economic Planning Board.

The delayed economic recovery was attributed to declining orders for exports and industrial facilities such as machinery, and the sluggish domestic construction market, Kim said.

Although industrial and commercial construction permits granted in February increased by 2.4 and 9.1 percent, respectively, housing construction permits dropped by 18.2 percent, causing an overall decline of 2.8-percent in all construction permits, according to Kim.

Due to seasonal factors such as the payment of corporate taxes and the government's currency withdrawal policy, defaulted commercial bills rose from February's 0.07 percent to 0.09 percent in March, reflecting the acute cash shortage currently facing enterprises.

The across-the-board economic performance, however, showed improvement with an improved international payments position, a curbing of the increase rate of the total money supply and the stabilization of commodity prices.

CHON TOLD BUSINESS SLUMP CONTINUES

[Text] Business conditions have stayed in a slump despite the stabilization of prices and the improvement in the international balance of payments.

Deputy Premier and Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song diagnosed the health of the national economy in a monthly briefing session for President Chon Tu-hwan yesterday.

Bitten by the sinking operation rates of manufacturing industries, the coinciding composite index lost 0.3 percent in March from the previous month, Kim reported.

Moreover, the March leading indicators marched back by 0.7 percent, throwing cold water on the expectation of an "economic spring."

Leading indicators are barometers forecasting the business climate two or three months ahead.

The nation's top economic administrator based the chilly outlook on such developments as the continuous decline in LCS (letters of credit) arrivals and sluggish construction activities.

Kim reported the deficit in the nation's outstanding budgetary account shrank to 205 billion won as of March 31 from 344.4 billion won marked a year earlier. The decrease was due to the belt-tightening fiscal policy despite inactive collection of taxes.

Domestic tax collection, according to Kim's report, amounted to 1,048.2 billion won during January-March, representing 18 percent of the projected target for this year.

The percentage was down 3.1 percent from 21.1 percent registered in the corresponding period of last year. The EPB chief pointed out, however, that the drive to stabilize prices had gained further steam.

Wholesale and consumer prices in the year's first three months, the EPB chief elaborated, scored gentle 1.4 percent and 2 percent increases, respectively, over December 31 last year.

As against the same period of last year, the January-March wholesale and consumer prices were up 9.8 percent and 9.6 percent, respectively.

Amid price stabilization, the financial supply situation has worsened with curb market interest rates rising and dishonored check issuance rates soaring, according to Kim's report to the chief executive.

Illustratively, the report said that interest rates on curb loans had moved up to 2.3-2.4 percent in March compared with 2.1-2.2 percent in the preceding month.

The international balance of payments, according to Kim, has improved considerably thanks to decreased import bills, bolstered by stable raw material prices.

The report showed that the red ink in the current account had declined to $441 million compared with $1,306 million registered in the like period of last year.

High interest rates on the international market, Kim pointed out, had eclipsed the progressive performance in the invisible trade sector including construction exports.

Illustratively, the non-trade account suffered a $148 million deficit in March alone, he reported.

The export increase rate has continued to dip since last November.

Korean export increases in the year's first three months, Kim noted, reached only 5.7 percent over the same period of last year.

The percentage compares with 6.1 percent in Taiwan, 1.5 percent in Japan, 2.3 percent in Singapore and 2.7 percent in Hong Kong.

Foreign exchange holdings as of March 31 stood at $6,249 million, almost the same level as one year before.

GNP EXPECTED TO INCREASE--Seoul, 15 Apr (YONHAP)--Korea is expected to experience a 6.1 percent rise in its Gross National Product (GNP) this year, which will be characterized by stabilized commodity prices and an improved international payments position, the Korea Development Institute (KDI) said Thursday. The KDI predicted the country's wholesale and consumer prices will rise by 6.5 and 8.4 percent, respectively, and the deficit of international payments will be reduced to 2.6 billion U.S. dollars. In addition, world trade will increase by four percent and Korea's exports are expected to easily reach 24 billion dollars in 1982. The KDI anticipates the GNP will grow 4.3 percent in the first half of 1982 and 7.5 percent in the latter half, while exports will be worth 10.8 billion in the first six months of 1982 and 13.2 billion in the second. The KDI said these trends will continue in 1983 as the GNP grows by 7.1 percent, wholesale and consumer prices increase by 4.3 and 5.1 percent, respectively, and trade deficits decrease to 1.6 billion dollars. World trade in 1983 will increase 5.5 percent from 1982 and Korean exports will jump 20.8 percent to 29 billion dollars. KDI based its optimistic economic forecast on the world economy's slow but steady recovery, stemming chiefly from the price stabilization of major raw materials and crude oil. GROUP TO TOUR MIDEAST, AFRICA--Seoul, 20 Apr (YONHAP)--Two South Korean Labor Ministry officials embarked on a tour of six Middle Eastern and African countries Tuesday to inspect the working and living conditions of Korean laborers now in the region. ECONOMY SLUGGISH, EXPORT SECTOR WEAK--Seoul, 13 Apr (YONHAP)--The Korean economy began to show signs of slow recovery in March but no full-fledged business boom is expected in April, according to a report on the monthly activities of major industries released Tuesday by the Federation of Korean Industries (FKI). The report showed the composite business index in March stood at 92 points, 1.5 points higher than the previous month, due largely to a 2.6-point rise in industrial output, a 2.2-point gain in domestic demand and a 1.4-point drop in inventories. The composite business index is forecast to reach 92.7 points in April, 0.7 points over March's level, because demand for housing construction, soft drinks, steel, electronic products and machinery is expected to increase slightly due to seasonal factors. The slow business recovery is attributable to sluggish exports caused by diminishing demand in world markets, protectionist policies in foreign countries, and the weakening international competitiveness of Korean products. The arrivals of export letters of credit, which have been falling in amount since last October, dropped by 7.9 percent in March compared with the same period last year, indicating that no sharp business jump would occur in April, the FKI report said. FIRMS REDUCE OPERATIONS--Many small- and medium-sized companies have turned out to be cutting down the operation hours of their factories and to be closing their doors due to financial difficulties and lackluster sales performance caused by the lingering business slump. According to the Korea Federation of Small Businesses [KFSB] yesterday, companies, which reduced their operation hours in February, numbered 3,076 or 20.3 percent of the total 15,176 small-sized companies surveyed. The number of companies which suspended business operations reached 568 or 3.7 percent of the total small companies surveyed and a total of 45 small companies including 25 companies in February turned out to have quit business this year. In February, the number of companies in normal operation stood at 11,507 or 75.8 percent of the total companies surveyed. The normal operation rate in February this year is up 0.4 percentage point over last January's 75.4 percent and down 0.9 percentage point from 76.7 percent in December last year, respectively. More than 50 percent of the companies surveyed said that the financial pinch and the lackluster sales performance caused such an operation curtailment of small companies, reflecting a decrease in demand on the domestic market. FOREIGN INVESTMENTS INCREASED--Seoul, 14 Apr (YONHAP)--Foreign investments in Korea are rising, reflecting the government's liberalization policy and the country's economic stabilization. A government report released Wednesday showed that foreign investments in the first three months of this year reached 18.9 million U.S. dollars in 13 projects on an approval basis, double the amount registered in the same period last year. In addition, foreign investment projects now under deliberation total 63.6 million dollars in 14 projects. An increasingly large number of foreign investors are showing interest in the country's medical, food and service industries. Medical projects represented the largest portion of foreign investment with 22.9 percent or 4.4 million dollars. Investment sources became more diversified as the number of foreign investors from Britain, West Germany, the Netherlands and Switzerland increased conspicuously, according to the report. In order to attract as much foreign investment to Korea as possible, the government is planning to extend the number of domestic business areas in which foreigners can invest from the current 427 to 700 beginning in July. The report said the government will also allow projects to be completely financed with foreign money if they contribute to the country's technological development and the diversification of foreign investment sources. ROK, SOLOMON ISLANDS RENEW FISHERY AGREEMENT

[Text] Korea and the Solomon Islands yesterday renewed a fishery agreement, which ended January 11 this year, to pave the way for furthering the fishery cooperation between the two nations.

The renewed agreement, which will be in effect through January 11 next year, was signed yesterday between Hwang Chong-yun, chairman of the Korea Deep Sea Fisheries Association (KSDFA) and P. Salaka, visiting minister of land, energy and natural resources of the Solomon Islands at the world trade center Korea building.

Minister Salaka came here Monday for a five-day visit at the invitation of Kim Chong-su, administrator of the National Fisheries Administration (NFA).

Under the bilateral fishery agreement, the Solomon Islands will allow Korean fishing boats to catch up to 1,300 tons of tuna fish this year in its 200-mile economic fishing zone.

Last year, Korean fishing vessels were permitted to catch 1,500 tons of tuna fish in the waters off the South-Western Pacific country, but, caught only 792 tons.

In return for fishing for tuna there, the Korean Government will pay a $130,000 fishing access fee to the Solomon Islands this year.

The Solomons proclaimed their 200-nautical mile exclusive economic zone in 1978 in which the state has the right to exploit all living and nonliving resources.

The nation signed a government-level fishery agreement with the Solomon Islands in May 1980, and the bilateral fishery accord is subjected to annual renewal.

The Solomon Islands, which was liberated from England in 1978, is a group of volcanic islands with a combined area of about 11,500 square miles in the South-Western Pacific.

While here, Salaka is scheduled to tour such port cities as Pusan and Chungmu. He will return home Friday.

JAPANESE EFFORTS TO CORRECT LOPSIDED TRADE URGED

SK200139 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 20 Apr 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Japan's Trade Surplus"]

[Text] Last week the Japanese had a rare state guest in the person of French President Francois Mitterrand, the first head of state from Paris ever to visit their country in the history of bilateral relations for more than a century.

His visit obviously prompted an air of exhilaration. But the Japanese at the same time should have sensed how great is the impact of their lingering trade friction with major partners, France included.

Despite all the cordiality and pompousness displayed, it was reported that the French president was shrewd enough to mount a "political blitz" against the host government, asking it to expedite effective action to curb its trade surplus or face political isolation.

Indeed Mr Mitterrand, who will host a summit of seven Western industrialized powers including Japan in June, was acting not only for his nation but apparently on behalf of the ten-nation European community, which suffered a gross deficit amounting to $12 billion in trade with Japan last year.

Probably more formidable complaints and pressure are from the United States which, flooded by Japanese goods ranging from automobiles to electronic items, saw its trade imbalance worsen last year to mark $16 billion in the red, a figure up 50 percent from the previous year's and feared to reach $20 billion this year if it is left unchecked.

Through a series of bilateral and multilateral negotiations, the U.S. and West European nations have strongly demanded swift Japanese action to correct the aggravating trade pattern, warning that otherwise they would have to resort to rigid protectionism against Japanese exports, which would also have political bearing on Japan's standing in the world community.

For one thing, already afoot in the U.S. Congress are various moves to effect legislative steps against the inundation of Japanese goods, which has been blamed as contributing to the American business slump in some sectors and the consequent rise in unemployment.

In the face of these backlashes, the Japanese Government has adopted a package of measures including the easing or removing of 67 nontariff import barriers last January, an action ostensibly aimed at opening its market to imports mainly from the U.S. and West Europe and thus lessening trade frictions.

Nonetheless, the steps so far taken fell quite short of overseas expectations, giving rise to a suspicion as to whether they merely made up "disguised protectionism" in view of a host of both visible and invisible labyrinthine barriers still in force against imports of foreign goods to Japan.

A notable trait of the on-going trade friction is that Japan appears to be engrossed in its deals with the U.S. and European community nations--a development which in a sense is understandable because of the stake involved in terms of the huge volume of its trade with the advanced countries, which in turn exercise mighty political influence.

For all that, what about similar trade problems Japan has with other nations, a situation which forced Taiwan to retaliate by imposing a partial import ban on Japanese goods last February?

Korea, for one, has been stricken with a chronic trade imbalance with an aggregated deficit running to $22 billion in the 16 years since 1966. Last year alone, the figure in the red reached $2.9 billion, registering an adverse balance of two of one.

Despite their lip services to a remedy, including the dispatch of a few purchasing teams to Korea, the Japanese have failed to open up their market to Korean products under the grace of rigid import barriers.

Such a situation calls for prompt and sustained efforts by the Japanese to correct the lop-sided trade, at least in proportion to the degree being paid to advanced countries. Furthermore, it should be fully reflected in managing the issue of boosted economic cooperation, now pending between the two neighboring nations.

ROK, SRI LANKA TO FORM ECONOMIC COOPERATION BODY

SK140112 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 14 Apr 82 p 7

[Text] Korea and Sri Lanka are scheduled to form their bilateral private-level economic cooperation committees in the near future, according to the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industries (KCCI).

The move is based on the signing and exchange of cooperative memorandum between the KCCI and Sri Lanka Chamber in April in 1978, emphasizing the private-level ties to enhance economic cooperation between the two countries.

Yesterday, a four-member Sri Lanka trade mission arrived here to meet Korean Chamber leaders on the formation of the bilateral committees.

Led by C.P. de Silva, chairman of the Aitken Spence Co, the visitors will also meet a few Korean businessmen on their individual trade ties.

They all share the view that there are much room to expand the trade and economic ties between Korea and Singapore as they share a number of comparative superiority in many fields.

So far, Korea-Sri Lanka trade has been sluggish. Korean exports to Sri Lanka reached only $34 million last year.

Meanwhile, the 1981 Korean imports from Sri Lanka amounted to a further shallow $500,000, according to an available tally. Textile and fertilizer have been Korea's major export items to Sri Lanka.

Korean imports from Sri Lanka have concentrated on tea and coconut.

The KCCI said that the envisioned joint meeting of their bilateral committees was expected to facilitate joint ventures combining Korean technology and Sri Lanak resources.

Korean construction firms, the chamber added, are also expected to play a massive role in the Sri Lanka's various development projects ahead.

HEAVY INDUSTRY EXPORTS--Seoul, 16 Apr (YONHAP)--Despite the overall sluggishness of South Korean exports, a sharp rise is expected in the country's credit exports of heavy industry equipment such as ships and industrial plants, industry sources reported Friday. The sources aid foreign contracts worth 1.37 billion U.S. dollars have already been signed this year for Korean-made machinery and equipment, and negotiations are underway for an additional 2.34 billion. South Korea's original estimate for credit exports this year was 1.7 billion dollars. Last year, the country exported 1.31 billion worth of goods in credit sales. The increase in credit exports, however, is expected to create an acute shortage in the government fund financing such exports. Government sources said that because of the shortage, an additional 200 billion won (285 million dollars) will be released during the latter half of the year. KIM IL-SONG RECEIVES MESSAGE FROM GUINEA'S PRESIDENT

[Text] Pyongyang, April 20 (KCNA)--The great leader comrade Kim Il-song on April 16 received a message of thanks from comrade Ahmed Sekou Toure, secretary general of the Guinean Democratic Party, president of the Guinean Revolutionary Peoples Republic and foremost leader of the Guinean revolution, who was leaving our country after visiting it to celebrate his 70th birthday.

The message reads in full:

Leaving your beautiful country we deem it our happy obligation to express deepest thanks to the revolutionary people of New Korea and you who have truly personified the real worth and quality of the Korean nation and its profound desire for more than half a century for the very warm hospitality accorded our delegation representing the Guinean peoples revolution and all other delegations which came across oceans and continents to join the Korean people in celebrating your 70th birthday.

We witnessed with pleasure that the people of all walks of life in your beautiful country are united in ideology and action and were struck with admiration at their extremely deep, unanimous trust in you.

We, therefore, cannot but emphasize particularly that we felt afresh your noble human traits and lofty virtues and the true and deep concern and warm love shown by you for the entire people, the younger generation in particular.

Indeed, sitting at your right side on the platform, we saw with deep emotion you shedding tears when the Korean brothers in Japan and their sons and daughters paid homage and expressed thanks to you in praise of the precious exploits you have performed by restoring the dignity of the Koreans wherever they reside and by giving strength to all the freedom- and progress-loving people.

All delegations in the days of their visit learned a lot of things from the celebrations of the people prepared by activists of the Workers Party of Korea, which were marked by very high and perfect organization and marvellously high artistic representations.

Social, economic and cultural practice is a realistic manifestation of theory. All the foreigners who attended the auspicious functions in Korea were struck with wonders by the level of the organization, order and passion, in a nutshell, the unanimity of action achieved by the Korean people under your leadership.

Invincible is a people organized and educated ideologically and possessed of a firm faith in the struggle for progress.

The Korean people serve as a model for all the peoples who aspire after independence and desire to substantially and effectively exercise their sovereignty.

The enormous exploits and merits of the Korean people in the course of the revolutionary struggle are results of the selfless efforts made by chiefs of the organizations of the Workers Party of Korea at all levels.

Leading personnel of working peoples organizations render dependable services for their fatherland by bringing to materialization the peoples desire for progress and, especially, their ability to produce and correctly manage the national wealth in accordance with the teachings of the great leader.

We congratulate all the leading cadres who are faithful to the Korean revolution and the great leader of the Korean people and who form an integral unit with the leader.

We congratulate the heroic Korean people on their excellent successes. These successes patently reflect their desire for progress in all realms of social life.

The path of genuine self-sustenance, substantial independence and national reunification chosen by your people has inspired and is inspiring the struggle of all the Koreans for the building of an eternal, new socialist society.

Socialism is a historical cause aimed at guaranteeing equality for all peoples, irrespective of sex and color, and establishing political, economic and socio-cultural relations based on justice and democratic progress.

In this respect, socialism is a gain of the people. This gain cultivates in people energetic mentality and daring attitude toward creative labour that are an indispensable quality to an independent people in developing independently and harmoniously so that they may free themselves from all conservative and reactionary ideological trends.

Socialism, the universal purpose of all peoples today, sets itself the goal of building a new society within the framework of each country and of establishing a new order in all fields of the relations existing among all nations on the global scale.

People have grown to be powerful forces as they became conscious of the exploitation by the imperialist and colonialist powers; the victory of these forces has already become inevitable, since the working masses of all strata in all countries of the world aspire after progress, transcending the racial, color and national differences.

We are glad to see such a new society in Korea as a reality; this is a reality of democratic happiness, a reality of justice for all people and a reality of economic, technical and cultural progress for the entire people.

This reality presents itself as pride of all the men and women in Korea including leading functionaries of the state, working people of factories and construction sites, women in the fields of agriculture and stockbreeding, artists, researchers, armymen and youth. This also serves as an attraction to people faced with criminal manoeuvrings of the reactionary forces at the present time.

One must not wait for progress, sitting idle, but must win it. Accordingly, freedom and independence are a gain to be won by each people in order to finally free themselves from exploitation and oppression.

Only when a people raise it as the goal of their activity to earnestly express their independent will can this goal constantly unite as one the thinking of all people, people in all walks of life, and achieve their unity in action.

In our message of greetings to the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea we said:

"The might of a revolutionary party finds expression in its capacity to support creative initiatives, effect democratic freedom in conformity with the interests of each people, keep away obstacles to the collective freedom and interests of people and their balanced development, study the reality and organize people so as to make the state structure a lever for bringing into full bloom the individuality of all citizens without discrimination."

A revolutionary idea requires a historic line of development for completely organising people for a concerted action and constantly adapting an organisation and its programme to the changes taking place in consequence of daily activities.

A revolutionary idea is not invariable.

A revolutionary idea, in the course of its development, constantly indicates the revolutionary practice to be conducted in all fields of the life of the people and human activities. It is also constantly enriched by the new knowledge and experience gained in the practice of people and man. Dogmatism is the chief enemy of this idea. By making man ignorant, it divests an idea of its meaning and prevents man from having his own strategy, that is, an overall and profound strategy for social emancipation.

Hence the constant necessity of analysing the realities in such a way as to coordinate the attitude for transforming the living conditions qualitatively in conformity with the specific circumstances characterising life of the people and propel their activities.

The brilliant successes, the sum total of the activities of the Workers Party of Korea and the glorious Korean people, attest to the validity of the political line shaped on the basis of Chuche philosophy, namely, the political line indicated and very faithfully implemented by you.

The Korean people depend on their own strength.

They believed themselves and they are clearly conscious of their own inexhaustible capacity.

They were liberated from the foreign rule and became possessed of idea and means for their complete liberation.

They smashed the challenge of the imperialists who asserted that the Asian and African peoples would never attain technical maturity, technical knowledge and capacity to develop their countries.

They are standing at the head of the world in the agricultural domain.

In the arts, too, Korea has surpassed the imperialist countries by far.

She can be a model in the emancipation of the women.

And all the youth, freed from all shades of mysticism, receive education in ideology, science, technology and arts, under the care of the party and the state.

The new society has reared full-fledged men of new type, conscious, high in the sense of responsibility and competent.

We feel obliged here to solemnly and openly confirm that the noble feats of the great leader, the founder of new Korea and great servant, lie in dedicating his whole life to the building of an independent, self-sustaining and prosperous state and establishing a society of new form and to the strengthening of the true and excellent militant relations between the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea and all countries and peoples who love peace, justice and progress.

We extend warmest congratulations to our great comrade Kim Il-song, the founder of the Workers Party of Korea, thinker, energetic activist and great leader, and declare our revolutionary solidarity with him.

The Guinean peoples revolution is following with deep concern and unbounded trust the struggle of the Korean people for peaceful reunification and peace, the basic conditions for constant progress and equilibrium of the whole of society.

The proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo is a just strategy to be firmly adhered to in the course of this unity of the Korean people.

All governments have their idea, their viewpoints, and their political, economic, social and cultural customs and they have commonness, responsibility and capacity to shape present and future.

Progress of history is rather a leaping progress in its content calling upon each people striving to carry their hope into reality, conquer nature and satisfactorily guarantee their happiness to preserve their unity and personality and exercise their sovereignty, than a leaping progress in speed.

History teaches us that when a people have the leadership suited to their progress they are always placed in a mobilized posture and become sincere.

Therefore, the role of the political leadership is very important in the development of a nation.

We highly appreciate the great political quality possessed by you, the effective leading role played by you and the boundless modesty displayed by you.

You meet three urgent demands simultaneously:

1. You stand at the head of the people to lead the onward movement of the people aimed at progress, and predict and prepare a new stage of development.

2. You share weal and woe with the people and find yourself among them to concretely and steadily improve their living conditions.

3. You stand behind the people to assign the honor and fruit of the feats accomplished by you for the people wholly to them.

What is clear to all the unbiased observers is that you are one in body and spirit with your people, you represent the Korean people and you are among the Korean people, all the Korean men and women.

Grandly celebrating your 70th birthday, the Korean people and all the world people congratulate you upon your undying brilliant feats and ardently wish you good health and a long life so that you may indicate ideologically a bright road to the world revolution and lead the world people to victory in their very proud and noble struggle against the force of evil and for the victory of democratic justice and social progress within the framework of world peace and solidarity.

For the great political quality and personality of yours recognized by the world, your victory, the victory of the working Korean people is certain.

Through their creative labor the Korean people have displayed courage and decision in laying the ideological and material foundation for social and democratic progress in conformity with their requirements.

The Korean people enjoy trust and respect from all the people of the world and militant support and active encouragement from the nonaligned countries and all the revolutionary countries on all continents.

We assure you in the name of the Guinean revolution that the African people who continue advancing hand in hand toward the sun of progress, particularly the Guinean and Korean peoples, will remain faithful to the revolutionary idea and practice for the victory of the sacred cause of the world people.

Long live the Workers Party of Korea!

May the most esteemed great leader enjoy good health and a long life.

Long live international cooperation for peace.

DPRK DAILIES OBSERVE LENIN BIRTH ANNIVERSARY

SK220504 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0439 GMT 22 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang April 22 (KCNA)--Papers here today dedicate editorial articles to the 112th anniversary of the birth of V.I. Lenin, the outstanding leader of the working class.

In an article titled "112th Anniversary of Great Lenins Birth" NODONG SINMUN says: Lenin was an outstanding thinker and theoretician who provided the working class with a powerful weapon in its struggle to overthrow the old society and build a new world.

Lenin who was active in the period of imperialism when the contradictions of the capitalist society grew most acute put forward Leninism reflecting the mature demand of social development and the desire and aspiration of the people.

Leninism was a mighty weapon of struggle and a banner of victory held in the hands of the working masses including the Russian working class and peasantry.

What holds an important place in Lenins doctrine is a theory of imperialism.

His scientific exposition of the essence and historic position of imperialism and the inevitability of its fall dealt a decisive blow at the advocates of imperialism.

Defending the Marxist theory of the dictatorship of the proletariat and developing it, Lenin expounded its historic necessity and duty.

Lenin was an outstanding organiser and leader of the revolutionary struggle of the Russian working class.

While staunchly fighting against opportunists and reformists of all brands, he laid the organisational and ideological foundation of a revolutionary party of the working class, propounded its strategic and tactical principle and founded the Bolshevik Party, a party of the working class, in Russia and developed and strengthened it.

What is conspicuous in the exploits of Lenin as a great practician is that he organized and led the October Socialist Revolution to victory.

The victory of the October Socialist Revolution made the first breach in the stronghold of imperialism. It was a great event which ushered in an era of revolutionary turn from capitalism to socialism and a victory of Lenin's idea.

After the victory of the revolution, Lenin led the Bolshevik Party and the army and people to crush the imperialist armed interventionists and domestic reactionaries who made an attack to obliterate the infant Soviet state in its cradle, and to defend the gains of the revolution and wisely led the Soviet peoples struggle to build socialism, pulling through manifold difficulties and trials.

Lenin was an outstanding leader who brought about the historic start of the revolutionary cause of the Russian working class and led it to victory and a communist revolutionary fighter who devoted his life to the cause of the liberation of mankind.

After his death the Soviet people realized the socialist industrialisation and agricultural collectivisation, carrying forward his cause and thus built a socialist system free from exploitation and oppression on the vast Soviet land.

Upholding the decision of the central committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union to significantly greet the 60th anniversary of the formation of the Soviet Union, the Soviet people are now energetically striving to fulfil the 11th five-year plan set forth by the 26th party congress and making strenuous efforts to defend peace and security against the U.S. imperialists policy of aggression and war in the international arena.

Our people sincerely rejoice at the successes made by the fraternal Soviet people.

The Korean and Soviet peoples are class brothers who are fighting shoulder to shoulder against imperialism and for the victory of the cause of peace, socialism and communism.

Our people treasure the friendship and solidarity with the fraternal Soviet people.

The traditional Korean-Soviet friendship which was forged in the flames of arduous revolutionary struggle and has withstood grim trials of history is excellently developing in the interests of the two peoples.

Our people will as ever vigorously fight against imperialism and for peace and democracy and for national independence and the victory of the cause of socialism in firm unity with the peoples of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries and nonaligned countries and all the progressive people of the world.

[Text] Pyongyang, 19 Apr (KCNA)--In his speech at a banquet arranged in honor of Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song pointed to the friendly and cooperative relations between Korea and Romania.

He said: Both as socialist countries, Korea and Romania have forged firm ties of friendship on the principle of independence and international solidarity, and these traditional relations of friendship and cooperation have been daily strengthening and developing through the common struggle against imperialism and for victory in the cause of peace, socialism and communism.

At present it is an important factor for frustrating the anti-communist, anti-socialist row of the imperialists and easing the international tension and consolidating world peace that socialist countries carry out revolution and construction more successfully and give full play to the superiority of the socialist system and strengthen cooperation and unity among them.

Korea-Romania relations based on independence are an example of relationship among socialist countries, because of our common cause of maintaining independence, our mutual trust and brotherhood have deepened, and the friendly relations between our two parties, two countries and two peoples have been established on a solid basis. WORLD CHUCHE GROUP MARKS KIM IL-SONG BIRTHDAY

[Text] Pyongyang April 22 (KCNA)--The International Institute of the Chuche Idea recently published "COLLECTION OF TREATISES CELEBRATING 70TH BIRTHDAY OF PRESIDENT KIM IL-SONG," according to a repot.

The institute writes in the preface of the book:

President Kim Il-song took the road of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle in his early years and founded the Chuche idea.

The Chuche is based on the philosophical principle that man is the master of everything and decides everything; this philosophical principle is an original one completely distinguished from earlier philosophies.

On the basis of this principle, the president completed the integral system of idea, theory and method of Juche which is called Kimilsongism.

The validity and vitality of the Chuche idea are realistically proved through the revolution and construction in Korea, particularly by the conversion of Korea into a model state of socialism and communism.

The Chuche idea also is a banner of the nonaligned movement and of the struggle of the world people against imperialism and for independence.

Proceeding from this, studies of the Chuche idea picked up momentum in many countries of the world.

Today the studies of the Chuche idea are energetically conducted in over 100 countries of the world and the International Institute of the Chuche Idea was formed as a permanent organisation.

With the understanding of the Chuche idea deepening and support to it growing, respect for and trust in President Kim Il-song, the founder of the Chuche idea, is becoming deeper.

The International Institute of the Chuche Idea publishes the collection of treatises, warmly congratulating President Kim Il-song on his 70th birthday and wishing him a long life.

The 16 treatises include "Great Victory of the Chuche Idea" by Shuhachi Inque, professor at Rikkyo University, "Chuche Philosophy and Educational Problem" by Tametomo Mitsui, honorary professor at Tokyo Municipal University, "On On-the-Spot Guidance of President Kim Il-song and Chongsan-Ni Method" by Ryosho Hayashi, professor at Teisho University, "On Three Revolutions in Koreas Socialist Construction" by Atsushi Motohashi, professor at Yokohama National University, "On Strategy of Economic Development in Korea" by Akira Sato, professor at Kansaigakuin University, "Basic Idea of On Some Theoretical Problems of the Socialist Economy" by Shiro Sukihara, president of Konan University, "Revolutionary Power in DPRK" by Noriaki Ouchi, assistant at Tokyo Municipal University, "Korean Constitution and Chuche Idea" by Masao Fukushima, former professor at Waseda University, and "The Chuche Idea and Socialist Labour Law in Korea" by Naoshi Miyajima, professor at Gakushuin University.

WORLD CHUCHE INSTITUTE DIRECTOR EXTOLS KIM CHONG-IL

SK201534 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1507 GMT 20 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 20 (KCNA)--T.B. Mukherjee, director of the board of the International Institute of the Chuche Idea and president of the Asian Regional Institute of the Chuche Idea, held a press conference in Pyongyang on April 18. He came to our country to celebrate the 70th birthday of the great leader comrade Kim Il-song.

It is my highest honour and pride to have attended celebrations of the 70th birthday of the great leader comrade Kim Il-song and met him again, T.B. Mukherjee said, and continued:

Respected comrade Kim Il-song whom the Korean people attend and follow as their real father is a great person leading the world revolution.

From the first moment when I met him I deeply felt in my heart that he is the great leader of the world people.

He is a great leader with lofty personality and noble virtues, devoting his whole life to the people.

The world does not know such a person as the great leader who is possessed of all good qualities, values man most and boundlessly loves people, devoting 70 years of his life to their happiness.

The Chuche idea is a great guiding idea of our era which leads the struggle of the peoples of Asian and African countries, of the Third World countries in particular, against imperialism, colonialism, racism and all forms of domination and subjugation along the straight road of victory.

The great leader comrade Kim Il-song made a historic policy speech at the recent joint meeting of the central committee of the Workers Party of Korea and the Supreme Peoples Assembly of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea.

In this historic speech he put forward an original idea of making the whole world independent and gave a perfect elucidation of the position, role and tasks of the non-aligned movement in the struggle for this goal.

He taught that when the non-aligned movement strengthens unity and cohesion and wages a powerful struggle, the independence of the whole world will be realised earlier.

T.B. Mukherjee said:

The revolutionary cause of the great leader comrade Kim Il-song is being successfully carried forward by the dear leader comrade Kim Chong-il who personifies most perfectly the Chuche idea and lofty communist virtues.

TEXT OF MOZAMBIQUE PRESIDENT'S BANQUET SPEECH

SK141645 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1549 GMT 14 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 14 Apr (KCNA)--Comrade Samora Moises Machel, president of the Mozambique Liberation Front Party (Frelimo) and president of the People's Republic of Mozambique, spoke at the banquet arranged by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on April 13 in honour of the party and government delegation of the People's Republic of Mozambique.

Follows the full text of the speech:

Esteemed Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. Esteemed comrade leading cadres of the WPK and the CPRK Government, comrades.

Allow me to offer my heartfelt thanks to you for the warm words you said to us. I feel honoured to extend warmest fraternal greetings to Comrade Kim Il-song, leader of the Workers Party of Korea and the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and to the Korean people, on behalf of the Central Committee of the Mozambique Liberation Front Party, the Government of the People's Republic of Mozambique and the Mozambican people. These greetings are an unequivocal manifestation of friendship and solidarity forged between the Korean and Mozambican peoples.

The Pyongyang citizens who are always cheerful and enthusiastic, received us with the warm feeling of friendship which unites us. On all the faces of men and women citizens I could see the pride and joy of meeting close friends. We also saw on the faces of the youth and children the smile of socialism which is not a hope for the future but has already blossomed out as a reality.

Pyongyang, which had been reduced to ashes by the war, spread before us with a more beautiful and pulsating and more novel look. The great city of Pyongyang, the pride of the Korean people and symbol of their might, courage, talent and labour, again received us warmly and kindly. We who become brothers on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, have been reunited today here in socialist Korea, a fraternal country where the people live enjoying the benefits of advanced socialism to their hearts content.

We still remember the cordial and warm hospitality we were accorded in 1978 when we visited your country for the third time.

Today we revisited Korea to offer our congratulations to Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people and our comrade-in-arms and great friend of the Mozambican people. We are here today also to express our admiration and gratitude for the excellent work the Korean experts are doing in our country. We are here today to seek more effective means of making still closer the happy cooperative relations already existing between us, so as to meet the wishes of our two peoples.

Comrade president, when we talk about the DPRK today, we must talk about the founder and guide of the DPRK, the great hero and leader whose name will shine forever with the history of the Korean people.

In your activities, Comrade President Kim Il-song, we find a lofty and gallant epic of the Korean people, which sings of the struggle for independence and reconstruction of the country and the struggle for socialism. In the former days of the anti-Japanese armed struggle for national liberation you were a sagacious strategist who skillfully mobilized the broad masses in the struggle for the country's liberation against foreign aggression and occupation.

Today, despite the imperialist occupation of the south of Korea and all sorts of manoeuvres, you, Comrade Kim Il-song, have developed the war-ravaged Korea into a powerful and advanced socialist country.

You are wisely leading the struggle for the reunification of Korea.

Comrade president, our people look up to you as a leader who has converted a backward country where once starvation and poverty prevailed, into one with no traces of backwardness, despite the difficult and disadvantageous conditions. The Workers Party of Korea under your leadership showed clearly that man is able to become the motive force in the building of socialism when he believes in his strength and wisdom. The Democratic People's Republic of Korea has become today an impregnable fortress of socialism because of its potentials and talented people.

It is our privilege to take part in the celebrations of the 70th birthday of Comrade President Kim Il-song. The more we are conscious of the reverence of the Korean people for you, the greater our privilege becomes, greater than that the Korean people enjoy in your embrace. Comrade President Kim Il-song, permit me to have first the honour of extending, on behalf of the Central Committee of the Mozambique Liberation Front Party and the government, warm congratulations to you on your birthday, the greatest jubilee of the Korean people.

Comrade president, we are now confronted again with the danger of war. The hope that the people will be able to live permanently a peaceful life is gradually disappearing. Today imperialism is employing strength, threat, blackmail and aggressive means under all kinds of pretexts everywhere the people demand freedom, independence and progress.

Imperialism directed by the extremely reactionary circles is trying to replace dialogue and detente with aggression. Our two countries are in constant confrontation with the enemy.

Our Mozambique has become victim of unceasing attacks of South Africa, a shock-brigade of imperialism in Africa and the fascist system of our time.

The Pretoria racist, expansionist and hawkish regime is waging an undeclared war against Southern African countries to detract by means of strength the people from the road of independent development they have chosen. They invaded and occupy the People's Republic of Angola and unlawfully occupied Namibia by instigating their stooges. They are also stepping up their acts of invading Zambia, Zimbabwe, Botswana and Lesotho and destroying them economically.

Along with the economic sabotages and economic blockade being carried out by all Western countries in our country, South Africa is invading us militarily through the armed bandits it has recruited and trained with its money, weapons and equipment. In this struggle the socialist countries and all peaceloving forces are with us. And we are apprehensive of the obstinate stand taken by the imperialists who are attempting to prevent the Korean people's efforts to accomplish their legitimate desire to reunify the divided country from being achieved.

We denounce all splittist moves of the imperialists to get an international ratification of "two Koreas." We support the legitimate efforts being made by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to reunify the country. Particularly, we support the proposal put forward by President Kim Il-song at the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea.

The star of freedom shining in Cuba and Nicaragua will not disappear. In Nicaragua situated in the heart of the Caribbean Sea, the banner of freedom is flying high. This banner is soaked with the sweat and blood shed by the fine sons and daughters who have won a victory in the fight against the Somoza dictatorship.

As a banner of the freedom fighters, this banner gives confidence to the Salvadorian people aspiring after justice and dignity.

The sun shedding light of freedom over the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the People's Republic of Mozambique should be made to reach out to the land of West Sahara, the land of patriotic martyrs, thus enabling the people of this liberated country, the 51st member state of the Organisation of African Unity, to rebuild the country destroyed by the seven-year war.

The Non-Aligned Movement is a genuine force that strives to ease tensions in international relations tending toward the cold war by the NATO member states. In fact, our movement came into being as an anti-colonialist and anti-imperialist manoeuvres to shackle our countries to aggressive military treaties.

Imperialists are manoeuvring to stop the flow of history and check the process of the ever-intensified liberation struggle by means of war. We cannot tolerate tendencies to capitulationism and defeatism within this movement. Imperialism is our enemy. Therefore, we must fight against it on all fronts.

It is no intervention to support the people's righteous struggles being conducted to overthrow colonialist, fascist, racist and dictatorial regimes. It is an adherence to the principles and mission of our movement. Supporting the peoples in their struggle against the regimes engrossed in occupation and war is no interference in their internal affairs. It is, in essence, a sacred duty of the non-aligned countries, champions of freedom, democracy and peace.

Mozambique and Korea should march in firmer unity in order to crush imperialist intervention against our movement and frustrate the attempts of such agents as South Korean puppets to infiltrate into it.

Comrade president, the friendly and cooperative relations formed between us are a great gain which our peoples should further consolidate. Consolidating such relations means developing them to a higher stage and making the cooperation between our two peoples a model of relations between socialist and non-aligned countries.

This is not a mere hope, but has become a firm determination already confirmed in our hearts because of the commonness of the past struggle and because of the commonness of the present conviction to consolidate the mutual friendship still further. The prospect of our friendship and cooperation is very optimistic.

Looking forward confidently to the bright future spreading before us, I propose to raise a toast to the long and healthy life of our respected Comrade Kim Il-song, to the strengthening of fraternal relations of friendship between the Mozambique Liberation Front Party and the Workers Party of Korea, to the friendship and solidarity between the peoples of Mozambique and Korea, and to the victory of the socialist revolution. Struggle continues. Thank you.

SEKOU TOURE SPEAKS AT PYONGYANG BANQUET

SK151539 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 15 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 15 Apr (KCNA)--Comrade Ahmed Sekou Toure, secretary general of the Guinea Democratic Party, president of the Guinea Revolutionary Peoples Republic and foremost leader of the Guinea revolution, made a speech at the banquet arranged by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, on April 14 in honor of the Guinea party and government delegation.

He said: Each time I meet the great leader Comrade President Kim Il-song and your people, I gain priceless experiences and get more awakened ideologically, because we can learn from your people organization, discipline and great creative capacity to bring their dream to reality.

Contacting your heroic people, we keenly feel that the idea propounded by you is most judicious. This idea is thoroughly applied in all spheres of the Korean peoples life and work. This idea not only correctly reflects the will of the popular masses but also performs an important role in helping them play their part more creditably as the master of their destiny.

The chuche idea explicitly teaches that the popular masses are the master of their destiny and the people are the master in solving all their problems including international and internal problems. In other words, by applying the chuche idea we can conquer nature, transform our mode of production and life, clear away the antiquated legacies, eliminate the exploitation of man by man and create a true independent life.

You have built Korea today, namely, a new Korea, a new society, which the entire Korean people had dreamed of for so long years. This is worthy of being proud of with high honour. This also serves as a paragon for all peoples in their struggle for independence.

This morning we heard with deep attention the policy speech made by the great Comrade President Kim Il-song.

This policy speech of comrade president is precious teachings to us.

All the proposals for national reunification put forward by you are most justifiable. This is why all peoples of the world who love peace, justice and progress unreservedly support your national reunification proposals.

This morning you also referred to the foreign policy, which, I think, reflects the correct home policy shaped by you.

In Korea we witnessed that all her people are closely united, ideol gically and politically, around the Workers Party of Korea headed by you.

It must be noted that your people, men and women, young and old, are all happy and equal.

On the faces of all the Koreans could be read the unanimous trust in the Workers Part of Korea, deep reverence for the great leader and unshakable unanimous determination to strive for state construction and national reunification.

The entire Korean people express deep reverence for the great leader with their profound political faith. This results from the tremendous feats performed by you, esteemed comrade president, and the struggle you have waged to steadily strengthen the peoples power as we see it today.

As your political line is correct, Korea is throwing so bright rays all over the world today. Therefore, the peoples of all the countries enjoy support from you in the struggle against imperialism, colonialsim and neo-colonialism and they express active support and solidarity for your struggle.

We know well of your stand toward all peoples of the world struggling to achieve social progress.

Therefore, we believe that all the policies and lines indicated by you will certainly bear fine fruit. Because they are based on the will of the people and in full accord with your reality.

The cooperative relations between Korea and Guinea will continue to develop in the future.

Such cooperation will be further cemented not only between the two countries but internationally as well.

We will also strengthen our cooperation in the international arena, particularly in the nonaligned movement, and thus help toward cementing a good atmosphere of cooperation in the nonaligned movement.

All the successes registered in Korea and the new society built in Korea are a paragon for the peoples of the world.

If all the countries build such a good new society as Korea, they will display a great might internationally. In other words, this will make a big contribution to the establishment of a new international order in all fields, political, economic, and cultural.

From the philosophical point of view, all men have the ability to make progress, but this does not mean that all the leaders are competent. Only the leaders who serve and struggle for the people can be called competent leaders.

The Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea organized such grand functions on the occasion of the 70th birthday of respected comrade president. This is entirely just, because the feats performed by respected comrade president are world-historic and very tremendous.

The Guinean people highly appreciate the shining exploits accomplished by respected comrade president.

I would like to reiterate my wholehearted wishes for the good health and many, many years of long life of the great leader Comrade President Kim Il-song, my intimate friend, brother and comrade-in-arms, and for the great victory in your revolutionary cause and your noble cause of national reunifcation.

ZAMBIAN PRESIDENT ADDRESSES PYONGYANG BANQUET

SK151038 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1009 GMT 15 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, 15 Apr (KCNA)--His Excellency Kenneth David Kaunda, chairman of the United National Independence Party of Zambia and president of the Republic of Zambia, made a speech at the banquet arranged by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, on April 14 in honour of the party and Government delegation of the Republic of Zambia.

President Kenneth David Kaunda said: The Zambian people know that Comrade President Kim Il-song has done great things not only for the Korean people but for man the world over.

Since my last visit, our two countries have developed and maintained very close and warm relations. These have been strengthened by the various agreements which have been signed since then. As a result of these agreements, we are now receiving Korean experts who are helping us in the development of our country in various fields. I am happy to report you, comrade president, that we are extremely satisfied with the work your experts are doing in our country.

Let me therefore take this opportunity to say how grateful we are to you and your country for sending to us these experts who are doing a commendable job.

Comrade president, I am happy to note that Zambia and the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea have identical views on many international issues. On the question of freedom, independence, social justice and fair play, we in Zambia wish to express our appreciation to you and your great country for the support which you have continued to give to the freedom fighters of Namibia and South Africa.

We appreciate more the various kinds of assistance that you are giving to the freedom movements and to some frontline states. This assistance is increasing our capacity to withstand the enormous pressure which South Africa through her military and economic power is exerting on us.

Zambia and your great country are members of the Non-Aligned Movement. The Non-Aligned Movement is a great force for world peace.

The Non-Aligned Movement is a force that must play an increasing role in maintaining world peace. To have such an influence, the members of the movement must be truly non-aligned. They must at all times and cost if necessary, resist any attempt to influence the direction of the movement. For Zambia, I can assure you that we are truly committed to the principles which have always guided the Non-Aligned Movement.

In any conflict between nations, we support the principle which states such disputes should be resolved peacefully and through negotiations. We in Zambia know this to be your views on such matters. It is for this reason that we welcome wholeheartedly your call for the peaceful reunification of Korea. In this regard, we have taken great interest in your latest proposal of how you see the reunification can come about.

Comrade president, tomorrow is a great day for you, the Korean people and for us all. We are happy to come and join you and all our Korean brothers and sisters in celebrating your 70th birthday. On behalf of the leadership of our party UNIP, the Zambian people and indeed on my own behalf, I wish to convey to you our congratulations and best wishes.

We wish you many more years of good health and prosperity so that we can all benefit from the wisdom that has enabled the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea to be such as a success story.

The fact that the birthday has attracted so many dignitaries and millions of Korans bears testimony to the admiration with which the Korean people and friends all over the world have for you. The fantastic organisation of the celebrations, the glamour and splendour accompanying the event are a monumental example of the appreciation the Koreans have for what you comrade president have done for your great people.

They appreciate dearly your invaluable role in the liberation of your country, socialist reconstruction of Korea and your tireless efforts in finding ways and means of independently and peacefully re-unifying your country.

Your 70th birthday has coincided with your re-election as president of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea for the 7th term of office. I take this opportunity to congratulate you most sincerely for the honour bestowed upon you by the Korean people.

The fact that they have re-elected you for the 7th term of office simply shows that your people are overwhelmed with your leadership and the achievements the country has already scored under your stewardship.

I hope that the splendour of the birthday celebrations and the confidence with which the people of Korea have shown in re-electing you for a 7th term of office will be crowned with further victories in socioeconomic construction of your fatherland.

It is equally our sincere hope that your 70th birthday celebrations and new presidential mandate will consolidate further our already very cordial relations and that our two countries will continue to play a progressive role in helping those peoples of the world still struggling for their national independence and sovereignty.

With these few words, comrade president, I wish to reiterate our happiness in joining you and your great people in the celebrations and to wish you many more happy returns.

Distinguished guests, brothers, sisters and friends, may I now ask you to join me in a toast to the good health and long life of His Excellency Comrade President Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, to the excellent relations between the people of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea and of Zambia, and to the fraternal ties between UNIP and the Workers Party of Korea.

HANMINTONG ADOPTS '82 ACTION POLICY

SK291110 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1020 GMT 29 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 29 (KCNA)--The tenth Central Committee meeting of the Japan headquarters of the "National Congress for the Restoration of Democracy in South Korea and the Promotion of Unification" ("Hanmintong") was recently held in Shizuoka Prefecture, according to the April 1 issue of "Minjok Sibo," a newspaper of Koreans under the influence of the "ROK Residents Association in Japan" ("Mindan") published in Japan.

The meeting summed up the general work conducted since the end of February last year and adopted an action policy for 1982.

The action policy says:

1. It is a pressing task facing us at present to overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan fascist dictatorial "regime", establish a democratic coalition government and realize democracy.

We should concentrate all forces on overthrowing the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist dictatorial "regime."

To have Kim Tae-chung and all other detained personages released is an important task of the movement for democracy.

We will do our best to develop the joint struggle with all democratic forces at home and abroad and form an anti-dictatorial, united democratic front based on it.

2. It is a task prerequisite to the victory of the struggle for democracy to stop the aid of the United States and Japan to the Chon Tu-hwan fascist dictatorial "regime."

We consider that the U.S. aid to the dictatorial "regime" is a hostile act against our nation and strongly demand its immediate discontinuation.

We will also further intensify the struggle against Japans renewed invasion of South Korea.

We will struggle to check 6,000 million dollars of "aid" to the Chon Tu-hwan fascist dictatorial "regime" and the scheduled "South Korea-Japan foreign ministers talks."

3. Dark clouds of war which may break out at any moment are hovering over the Korean peninsula today.

We denounce the U.S. administration and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist dictatorship for their arms buildup and war policy and strongly hold that they should discontinue arms buildup and immediately withdraw nuclear weapons.

4. National unification is the greatest task of our nation.

Division must no longer be tolerated. Unification must be achieved on a national independent and democratic basis as early as possible.

5. We should strengthen ties with democratic organizations and democrats of broad circles in Japan to win more support to our movement.

6. We will actively struggle to defend our sacred basic rights, decidedly opposing the political suppression of "Hanmintong" and Koreans in Japan.

FOREIGN GROUPS DEMAND KIM TAE-CHUNG RELEASE

SK291121 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1037 GMT 29 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 29 (KCNA)--Public organisations of various countries are strongly demanding the immediate release of Kim Tae-chung and all other democratic figures of South Korea, according to reports.

The Bulgarian Committee for Solidarity With the Peoples of Asia and Africa recently made public a statement supporting the letter dated March 31 of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland of Korea to the governments, political parties, organisations of all countries and international organisations of the world.

Noting that Kim Tae-chung who was given an illegal sentence is still held in a prison ward where man can hardly live, with his elementary human rights mercilessly trampled underfoot, it said:

The Bulgarian Committee for Solidarity With the Peoples of Asia and Africa and the entire Bulgarian public circles resolutely support the struggle of the Korean people and efforts of the world public circles to have Kim Tae-chung released without delay and his life and human rights guaranteed.

The Bulgarian people sincerely support the struggle of the entire Korean people to force the U.S. troops to withdraw at once from South Korea and reunify the country in a peaceful and democratic way.

The Guyana Committee for Support of Koreas Reunification, the Guyana-Korea Friendship Society, the Guyana Committee for Peace and Solidarity, the Guyana Workers Union, the Guyana Socialist Youth Movement and the Guyana Union of General Workers recently issued a joint statement in Georgetown denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan gang of murderers' fascist suppression of Kim Tae-chung and other South Korean democratic figures.

It said:

The Chon Tu-hwan gang of murderers must immediately revoke the illegal penalties passed upon Kim Tae-chung and other democrats, release them without delay and ensure them freedom of all political activities.

The South Korean authorities must immediately abolish all sorts of fascist evil laws and fascist ruling system binding people hand and foot and guarantee all democratic rights including freedom of activities of political parties and public organisations and freedom of the speech.

An appeal expressing solidarity with the struggle for democracy in South Korea, which was adopted at the sixth meeting of the Japan-Korea Central Youth Solidarity Committee held recently in Tokyo strongly demanded the restoration of Kim Tae-chung to his original status, the immediate release of all political prisoners, the discontinuation of the "Team Spirit 82" war exercises and the withdrawal of all nuclear weapons from Northeast Asia.

It strongly opposed 6,000 million dollars of military "aid to South Korea," the resumption of the "Japan-South Korea regular ministerial meeting" and the visit of Japanese Prime Minister Suzuki to South Korea.

CHOE TOK-SIN VISITS VARIOUS N. KOREAN PLACES

SK301555 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1509 GMT 30 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 30 (KCNA)--Mr Choe Tok-sin, former "foreign minister" of South Korea, former commander of an army corps of the South Korean "ROK Army" (lieutenant general) and former leader of the Central Headquarters of Chondoism, visiting homeland from the United States to congratulate the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on his 70th birthday has gone round various places of the homeland.

After inspecting the Korean Revolution Museum he said that the great President Kim Il-song has built the North into a paradise today with his rare wisdom and wise leadership, though the homeland was divided after the liberation and the internal and external situation was difficult and complicated. Our President Kim Il-song is, indeed, a great statesman and a great leader peerless in the world.

On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic Korean People's Army, Mr Choe Tok-sin went to the cemetery of revolutionary martyrs.

After going round the cemetery, he said:

It is a great honor for me to lay a bouquet in memory of Kim Chong-suk, an anti-Japanese heroine, on the significant day marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Korean People's Army by the great President Kim Il-song.

By consigning the revolutionary martyrs who fell in the sacred struggle for the homeland and people to this cemetery, the president let them live an eternal life.

After enjoying the scenery of Mt. Kumgang, Mr Choe Tok-sin said:

Mt. Kumgang has been splendidly built as a recreation site for the working people and has become widely known as a world-famous scenic spot, as the great president liberated the fatherland and has enforced correct policies.

He met and had a talk with Chondoists.

MINDAN PAPER BACKS PRIEST'S SHELTERING ARSONIST

SK300842 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0812 GMT 30 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 30 (KCNA)--The April 21 issue of "Minjok Sibo," a newspaper of "Mindan"-lining compatriots in Japan, carried an editorial defending the action of religionists in protecting students who set fire to the "American Cultural Centre" and a participant in the Kwangju popular uprising, according to a KNS report from Tokyo.

The editorial noted that the fascist clique arrested and detained a conscientious priest for the reason that he gave shelter to patriotic students who set fire to the "American Cultural Centre" and a participant in the Kwangju popular uprising and mobilized its subsidized press media in malicious smear campaign against Roman Catholicism. This is "an intolerable suppression of religion," it remarked.

Pointing out that the anti-American sentiments expressed through the fire at the "American Cultural Centre" are deeply connected with the Kwangju incident, the editorial recalled as a ground that the Kwangju massacre by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique was actively supported by the United States.

It is inevitable that the anti-U.S. struggle will expand along with the struggle against the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique in South Korea, the editorial said, and continued:

Many priests, religionists and people offered shelter to those involved in the Kwangju struggle. This was because they highly praised the Kwangju struggle as a patriotic one and bitterly hated those who committed the massacre and forces who backed the atrocities.

The United States must immediately stop backing the Chon Tu-hwan group of terrorists, military hooligans, and comply with the just demand of the South Korean people for freedom, democracy and unification.

'KCNA' NOTES SUPPORT FOR KOREAN REUNIFICATION

SK301025 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1009 GMT 30 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 30 (KCNA)--Full support to the Korean peoples cause of national reunification is being expressed in foreign countries, according to reports.

A mass meeting supporting the statement dated February 10 of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland was recently held in Georgetown under the sponsorship of the Guyana Committee for Support of Koreas Reunification.

A portrait of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and a portrait of Guyanese President Linden Forbes Sampson Burnham were set up on the platform of the meeting place.

Speeches were made at the meeting.

Speakers pointed out that the great leader of the Korean people Comrade Kim Il-song put forward most reasonable and just policies for the reunification of the country and is wisely leading the struggle for their implementation and scathingly denounced the ever more unscrupulous criminal "two Koreas" plot and new war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascist clique.

Noting that the proposal advanced by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland to convene the joint conference of 100 North, South and overseas Korean politicians is a most reasonable and positive step for accelerating the reunification of the country, they expressed full support to the proposal.

A statement was adopted at the meeting.

A meeting of solidarity with the Korean people striving for the peaceful reunification of the country was held recently in Oslo under the sponsorship of the Norway-Korea Friendship Association.

A portrait of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was placed on the platform of the meeting hall.

Speaking at the meeting, the chairman of the Norway-Korea Friendship Association stressed that the U.S. imperialists must give up the reckless play with fire and the scheme to perpetuate the division of Korea and withdraw from South Korea without delay.

He said:

The Norwegian people will as ever actively support and encourage the just and valiant struggle of the Korean people for the realization of the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and the ten-point policy of the unified state advanced by President Kim Il-song.

A letter to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was adopted at the meeting.

The Malta Labour Party, the Central Committee of the Women of the Malta Labour Party and the Socialist Youth League of Malta recently made public a joint statement in support of the Korean peoples cause of national reunification.

The proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo advanced by President Kim Il-song of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea is a most fair and aboveboard one for the reunification of the country, it stressed.

Meanwhile, the Central Committee of the Women of the Malta Labour Party and the Socialist Youth League of Malta recently issued a joint statement supporting the February 10 statement of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland.

The April issue of the Cuban journal "Prisma" in an article titled "The DCRK is a Symbol of Reunification" introduced in detail the proposal for founding the DCRK and the ten-point policy to be pursued by the confederal state and condemned the South Korean authorities for opposing the realistic proposal for reunification, which enjoys the support of the world people.

BULGARIAN MAGAZINE SCORES S. KOREAN REUNIFICATION PLAN

SK301540 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1503 GMT 30 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 30 (KCNA)--A recent issue of the Bulgarian magazine "International Life" published an article titled "Hollow Trumpeting" exposing the hypocrisy of the "unification proposal" brought forward by the South Korean puppet clique, according to a report.

The magazine says that the proposal for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forward by Comrade Kim Il-song, president of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, has evoked widespread repercussions at home and abroad for its justice and realistic nature.

But, the magazine adds, the South Korean authorities came out with a "unification proposal" utterly devoid of sincerity. It does not mention at all the withdrawal of the U.S. troops or the abolition of the South Korean military fascist rule, the most important and essential problems.

The magazine further says:

The "Consultative Council for National Unification" advertised by the South Korean puppets would involve not representatives of the common people but representatives of those who have perpetrated brutalities, while the representatives of the people suffer in fascist prison as ever.

The military clique came out with a "proposal for general election" without any feasibility, turning their faces away from the proposal for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, a short cut to reunification.

As to the signing of an "agreement on the basic relations between the North and the South" brought forward by the South Korean puppets, it is aimed at building higher the wall between the North and South and dividing Korea into "two states" and "two nations" for good (and for all).

The "argument for unification in the 2,000" trumpeted by the puppets is also intended to freeze the country's division under the signboard of unification.

Saying that for Korea's reunification the U.S. troops must be withdrawn from South Korea and the South Korean society be democratised first of all, the magazine stresses that the reunification of Korea must be realized on the three principles of independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity advanced by the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea.

RALLIES DENOUNCE 'FASCIST SUPPRESSION' IN SOUTH

SK301108 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1034 GMT 30 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 30 (KCNA)--Mass meetings are taking place in the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea in denunciation of the Chon Tu-hwan group's fascist suppression of South Korean people and students.

At a mass meeting held in North Hwanghae Province Han Chang-man, chairman of the provincial peoples committee, and representatives of people of all walks of life said that on March 18 South Korean students and people set fire to the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan and scattered many anti-U.S., anti-fascist leaflets. This was a bold action against the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, the sworn enemy of democracy and reunification, and a just patriotic struggle to establish an independent, new society where there is neither aggressor nor quisling, they remarked.

They pointed out that the Chon Tu-hwan clique detained students including Mun Pu-sik and Kim Un-suk who, it claims, are the "prime movers" of the "arson" and Kim Hyon-chang on charges of "wirepulling" them behind the scene and, furthermore, arrested and is brutally persecuting conscientious Christians including priest Choe Ki-sik on the pretext that they offered refuge to them.

At a Kaesong mass meeting vice-chairman of the municipal peoples committee Pak Mun-chan and representatives of various circles emphasized:

If it does not want to meet such miserable end as that of its predecessor who met his doom while faithfully executing the U.S. imperialists policy of colonial enslavement, the Chon Tu-hwan clique must stop at once the treachery, immediately and unconditionally release the illegally arrested patriotic people and students and step down from power without delay.

They declared: The U.S. imperialists must withdraw from South Korea forthwith, taking along their aggression forces and all destructive weapons including nuclear weapons before they are driven out by the sweeping anti-U.S. struggle of the South Korean people.

'ANTIGOVERNMENT STRUGGLE' SAID GROWING IN S. KOREA

SK031024 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1016 GMT 3 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 3 (KCNA)--The flame of the anti-U.S., anti-"government" struggle of the South Korean people has kept spreading since it flared up around the arson at the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan in March.

Over 1,400 students staged an anti-"government" demonstration in Seoul on April 16.

On April 22 students of Kangwon University in Chunchon, South Korean Kangwon Province, rose up in an anti-U.S. struggle, burning the U.S. flag and, on April 26 and 27, hundreds of students in Seoul staged street demonstrations, braving brutal suppression by the puppet police.

The anti-U.S., anti-"government" struggle daily growing among the South Korean people of all strata is the eruption of the pent-up resentment at the U.S. imperialists, the chieftain of aggression and root cause of all misfortunes and sufferings, and at the fascist clique of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, their lackey.

Before setting fire to the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan, the patriotic students scattered leaflets in different places, which read: "The United States and Japan are exploiting us, pretending to aid our country economically," "We condemn U.S. neo-colonialism" and "Away with America!" They earnestly appealed: "Let us raise the torch of the anti-U.S. struggle by setting fire to the American Cultural Centre."

The students at Kangwon University, South Korea, burnt the hateful U.S. flag in their anti-U.S. struggle, chanting the slogans "Praise to the arson at the American Cultural Centre in Pusan!" and "Yankees, go home!"

The South Korean students and people are holding aloft slogans against the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, the lackey of U.S. imperialism and traitor, together with anti-U.S. slogans.

What is noteworthy in their anti-U.S., anti-"government" struggle is that it is daily expanding and developing with the active support and encouragement of people of all strata.

When the fascist clique arrested and persecuted the students who participated in the arson at the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan and a churchman who sheltered them, the Standing Committee of the South Korean Catholic Bishops Council made public a statement on April 16 denouncing this outrage. On April 17, "The Korea Christian Action Organization," a joint organisation of South Korean Catholicism and Protestantism, issued a statement saying that "the arson at the American Cultural Centre is a matter of course" and strongly demanding that the U.S. ambassador in Seoul and the commander of the U.S. imperialist aggressor forces occupying South Korea be recalled home.

Things have gone to the extent where students of Kangwon University, South Korea, sprayed gasoline on the stars and stripes and burnt it in token of their protest against the aggressive crimes of the U.S. imperialists and students in Seoul held a "prayers meeting" and a street demonstration every day to support the righteous struggle of the patriotic students who set fire to the U.S. imperialists tool of ideological and cultural aggression and religionists and protest against the fascist clique's support of them.

'NODONG SINMUN' PLAYS EDUCATION TAX IN SOUTH

SK020944 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0839 GMT 2 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 2 (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today in a commentary brands the "educational tax" imposed upon people by the Chon Tu-hwan clique from May 1 as a heinous predatory tax under the cloak of "education."

Noting that traitor Chon Tu-hwan waxed eloquent about "improvement of educational conditions" and "normalization of education" in enforcing the "educational tax," the author of the commentary says: This is nothing but a specious slogan.

It continues:

The "educational tax" is a product of a sinister scheme of plunder without an equal for squeezing a colossal amount of funds from the people.

What is more serious is that the Chon Tu-hwan clique intend to collect the "educational tax" not for the education of the younger generation but for the purpose of filling the gap in the growing military spending.

As everyone knows, the Chon Tu-hwan clique sharply increased the military appropriations in the puppet governments "budget" for this year, as they did last year, now they are at work to fleece the people additionally for larger appropriations to arms buildup.

The new "educational tax" levied by the puppets will have a grave effect on the peoples living.

According to rumours afloat in the South Korean public circles, the "educational tax" will lead to a 5-10 per cent rise in market prices and a 50 per cent jump in the "property tax" imposed upon the people in such rather big cities as Seoul and Pusan.

The raise of school fees by the puppet clique deny a large number of children of the poor access to school in South Korea.

The institution of the "educational tax" showed once again that traitor Chon Tu-hwan's talk about "welfare society" and "liberation from poverty" is a sheer lie and that he is the sworn enemy of people sucking the blood of the people to the last drop.

The South Korean people and students will bring a sledgehammer of revenge on the head of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, a truculent fascist dictator and robber of the people, with their united struggle.

S. KOREAN DETAINEES' FAMILIES, DOCUMENT SCORE WALKER REMARKS

Statement by Detainees' Families

SK030439 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0351 GMT 3 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 3 (KCNA)--"Minjok Sibo," a "Mindan"-lining Koreans paper published in Japan, on April 11 carried a statement issued by families of detainees in South Korea in March in denunciation of the outburst let out by U.S. Ambassador in South Korea Walker at a news conference.

We can hardly repress indignation, the statement said, at the outburst of Walker in mid-February at a news conference, where he made public his "views" on the South Korean question, insulting the dissidents striving for the democratisation of the South Korean society as "insolent greenhorns" and contending that Chon Tu-hwan was "supported" by the people.

We cannot but wonder what amount of knowledge of the South Korean situation Walker had to freely let out such words, it being less than one year since he came to South Korea. It is a foolish talk looking down upon our whole nation.

With no reasoning can he atone for it. Walker should openly apologize to our people and promptly leave for home.

Document Denounces Walker

SK040423 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0341 GMT 4 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 4 (KCNA)--"New Korea Times," a Koreans paper published in Canada, on April 17 carried the first part of the secret document sent by personages devoted to the Movement for the Democratization of South Korea under the title "Secret Report From Seoul. South Korean Situation Viewed by Democratic Forces."

It denounces U.S. Ambassador to South Korea Walker who, making public his "comprehensive view" on the present South Korean question at a news conference in mid-February, insulted the personages fighting against the military fascist clique as "impudent fellows" and ranted that traitor Chon Tu-hwan was "popular" among the South Korean workers and he had achieved "big success" in "removing oppression."

The document continues:

Walkers utterances supporting Chon Tu-hwan were a high-handed piffle inconsistent with common sense.

He openly supported Chon Tu-hwan like a colonial governor praising the capacity of the head of natives to control them or like the boss of a gang crying up the head of a smaller group under him.

We do not know on what statistics Walker based himself in uttering those remarks. But we want to ask him how he could hear the expression of free will from the South Korean people who are under despotic oppression now.

We want to ask Walker if he thought of the possible consequences of his claim that the South Korean people support Chon Tu-hwan.

Referring to the protestation of Walker that the South Korean economy was "developing," delivered out of the stagnation of the 1970s, the document refutes it, saying:

"The Chon Tu-hwan 'regime' itself admits the stagnation of the economy and the sufferings of the South Korean people."

Uncovering the ugly colour of Walker, the document says:

In 1970, 1971 and 1972, that is, in a few years when Pak Chong-hui was plotting "Yusin," Walker was the most frequent attendant at "international symposiums of politics" held in South Korea to support the plot, where it was stressed that South Korean "security is facing a crisis."

We know well that the attendants at those "symposiums" were accorded lavish hospitality by the dictatorial "regime."

We know that they were paid a sizable reward, beside expenses for double trip and boarding fees.

We know well that Walker had been deeply connected with South Korea from long ago.

With his appearance, South Korea is suffering a loss, far from getting help in democratisation.

JAPAN-BASED 'LOTTE' ENTERPRISE EXPANDING IN ROK

Premier Was Lotte Executive

Tokyo ZAIKAI in Japanese 9 Mar 82 pp 30-34

[Article by Hirobumi Murata: "New South Korean Prime Minister Is Former Chairman of 'Lotte Korea'; Lotte President Takeo Shigemitsu Is Betting on 'Bridge Operations' Between Japan and ROK"]

> [Text] Japanese-South Korean relations are about to enter a new phase with such issues as the [ROK proposal for a] 6-billion dollar credit from the Japanese Government. During this period, the Yu Chang-sun cabinet has emerged under the Chon Tu-hwan government. Prime Minister Yu previously served as the chairman of "Lotte Korea," which is led by Lotte President Takeo Shigemitsu. Shigemitsu has had a friendly relationship with Yu for 30 years and is beginning to advance energetically into South Korea from the base of his Japanese enterprise.

Rapid Growth of Lotte in South Korea

Recently, Lotte President Takeo Shigemitsu has been spending all of his time in Korea. If you try to catch President Shigemitsu in Japan, his secretary usually replies that he is "on a business trip to Korea."

When I visited Shigemitsu in the president's office of the Lotte head office in Nishi Shinjuku, the first thing he said was:

"Sales of the Korean Lotte group have grown to 900 billion won. This is far ahead of the Japanese Lotte group."

Converted to yen, 900 billion won is 300 billion yen. In comparison, the Japanese Lotte group of 10 companies, centered around the main enterprise, Lotte Confectionery with its candy and food product business, had total sales of only 200 billion yen. The Korean business is 50 percent greater than the Japanese.

Shigemitsu established the business in Korea in 1967, the same time that Lotte Confectionery was established. In 1980, 14 years later, "Lotte Korea" outdid "Lotte Japan" for the first time. Now there is a difference of 100 billion yen in sales.

"The sales of the Korean Lotte group have jumped 30 or 40 percent every year. Doing business is very interesting. The Japanese business has grown by only 5 or 6 percent, or at the most, when we try hard, by 10 percent," says Shigemitsu.

Shigemitsu's speciality is "offense." This is easy to see if we examine the gum business, his main business in Japan. Young Shigemitsu began manufacturing chewing gum in 1948 on a small scale when he was only 24 years old.

At that time, there were 300 or 400 gum dealers. He crawled up out of their midst and beat out Harris, the largest dealer at the time. Now he controls close to 70 percent of the market.

The ROK seems to have given great satisfaction to this aggressive manager, President Shigemitsu.

Indeed, during the 15 years in which he has been working in the ROK, Shigemitsu has started one new venture after another. In addition to his main business of food products, he has expanded into service businesses such as hotels and department stores, distribution, and even petrochemicals. Recently he has been attempting to get into the banking business.

He has acquired 25 percent of the stock of the Pusan Bank, the largest of the country's 10 regional banks, emerging as the largest shareholder.

In addition, he is the caretaker of the Sinhan Bank, a city bank being established by resident Korean businessmen from Japan. "Because of rapid growth, there is a chronic shortage of funds in the ROK. Bank management also is very interesting."

Shigemitsu has also attracted attention in connection with Korean professional baseball, which will begin on 27 March. He is the owner of the "Lotte Giants," one of the six new teams. The team will be located in Pusan, the second largest city in South Korea.

Pusan is at the heart of South Kyongsang Province, the region where Shigemitsu was born. It is also the site of a Lotte factory, so it is a place with many personal associations.

"We are now in a fight for battle positions in Korea," says Shigemitsu. He is continually picking out new businesses.

The ROK grew rapidly under the high-growth policy of former President Pak, and industrial groups referred to as "zaibatsu" appeared. The largest of these, the "Hyundai Group," had sales of 4.8 trillion won (about 1.6 trillion yen) in 1981, boasting a size close to 10 percent of the GNP.

Other groups such as "Lucky," Sunkyung, and Samsung are in the 4-trillion-won range.

Comparatively, "Lotte Korea," with 900 billion won, is about one-fifth the size of Hyundai. There are said to be 34 major business groups in South Korea. Among these, "Lotte Korea" ranks about 15th.

The large conglomerates such as Hyundai and Lucky have achieved large sales figures with their heavy and chemical industries. In contrast, Lotte is involved mainly in consumer-oriented businesses such as food products and department stores. Its strenuous efforts in this area can be given high marks.

Lotte's strength is in its ability to take into Korea a business that has succeeded in Japan. The major companies of "Lotte Korea," Lotte Confectionery (chewing gum and cookies) and Lotte Chilsung Beverage Company (soft drinks), were built by applying management know-how gained from experience in Japan. Another thing that should not be overlooked is its ability to obtain financing in Japan. It has latent assets such as 100,000 tsubo of landholdings and a strong credit rating with the banks because of its debt-free operations.

Chairman Masatsugu Nishigawa of Lotte's main bank, Daiichi Kangyo Bank, says: "Shigemitsu is an excellent idea man and we can observe Lotte's business operations without worrying."

Shigemitsu will use the management know-how accumulated in Japan and Lotte's ability to obtain financing to exercise the strength of his "Japanese-South Korean bridge business."

Lotte's position was greatly promoted by the emergence of Prime Minister Yu in January of this year.

Yu Chang-sun had served as the chairman of the three pillars of "Lotte Korea"--Lotte Confectionery, Lotte Chilsong Beverage, and Lotte Samkang--right up until he became Prime Minister.

Meeting South Korean Prime Minister Yu

"With Mr Yu in our company, I was able to do business in Korea without any worries," says Shigemitsu. He seems to have placed complete trust in Prime Minister Yu.

Prime Minister Yu was born in 1918 in South Pyongan Province, in what is now North Korea (DPRK). After receiving his education in the United States, he joined the Bank of Korea, the central bank of the ROK.

Shigemitsu was born in 1922 near Ulsan. He dropped out of agricultural school and came to Japan by himself at the age of 16. He studied hard, graduated from Waseda Technical High School (now the science and engineering department of Waseda University), and started the gum business.

Prime Minister Yu and Shigemitsu met a long time ago.

It was 30 years ago when Yu Chang-un first met President Shigemitsu working hard in his gum-manufacturing business in Hyakunincho, Shinjuku, in Tokyo.

President Shigemitsu was hardly 30 years old at the time. Yu was just a little over 30. Yu had the position of president of the Tokyo branch of the Bank of Korea.

"Harris is number one in the Japanese gum business right now, but I am going to overcome it. Then when I have succeeded in Japan, I am thinking of starting a business in my mother country." Yu was deeply impressed by the enthusiastic words of President Shigemitsu, so typical of a young manager. They agreed to "work together."

This was how the friendship between these two men began. They must have gotten along, because they often went drinking together in Shinjuku bars and restaurants.

After returning to Korea, Yu held many important positions, including president of the Bank of Korea, minister of commerce and industry (the counterpart of MITI in Japan), and a joint post as minister in charge of the Economic Planning Board and deputy prime minister.

When Yu became deputy prime minister, former President Pak, who had come out of the military, had total political power. He failed to take action to transfer power from the government to the people, and took steps to extend the the military government.

Former President Pak had made a public commitment to transfer power to the people, so his policy was criticized. At that point, Yu resigned from the post of deputy prime minister.

With the extension of the military government, a new political stage was being reached, and it was a time for changes among top government officials. However, Yu's resignation was a silent protest against former President Pak.

This background must have attracted the attention of Chon/Tu-hwan. The emergence of Yu as Prime Minister may have been ideal for the Chon government, which was attempting to break with the old customs of the Pak government and move ahead.

Shigemitsu is known for his skill in creating a network of the right people. He also has a good reputation in Korea as a "manager with political power."

Shigemitsu demonstrated this political strength not long ago when he invested 15 billion yen to tie up with the Mitsui group in Yosu Petrochemical. Shigemitsu took great interest in this petrochemical enterprise, which was begun as a joint operation between the South Korean Government and the Mitsui group. Shigemitsu felt that it was necessary to get on the bandwagon of heavy and chemical industry in order to further expand his business, which previously had centered on daily consumer products--mainly food.

It was customary for the South Korean Government to sell its stockholdings in order to promote the growth of domestic private enterprise, and Shigemitsu had his eye on the Yosu Petrochemical business.

He succeeded in purchasing the government stock, in spite of protests from the administrative organ involved (the Ministry of Commerce and Industry) that "Lotte is Japanese capital." It is reported that Shigemitsu had influence over Chongwadae (the President's Office), who had the decision-making authority on industrial policies.

By this means, Shigemitsu obtained 40 percent of the stock in Honam Petrochemical, a manufacturer of synthetic resins (polypropylene, polyethylene), and became the major shareholder. The Japanese share (50 percent) was held by three Mitsui companies--Mitsui and Co, Ltd, Mitsui Toatsu Chemicals, and Mitsu Petrochemical Industries.

A Management Philosophy Which Eschews Family Management

Looking at Shigemitsu's management methods, we can see a stern approach totally devoted to business. Shigemitsu's management philosophy was developed through his experience of being born in South Korea, going to Japan, succeeding in spite of difficulties, and then expanding the business in his mother country.

In the large South Korea conglomerates, such as Hyundai and Samsung, it is common for management to be concentrated in one family.

The Korean custom is for the family to join in supporting its superior members and forming family networks with the superior people in the lead. Blood ties mean a great deal in this society.

In spite of these customs, Shigemitsu takes the approach of business first, without the restrictions of family ties.

Shigemitsu is one of six children. His brothers participated in Shigemitsu's business in South Korea, but they became estranged one after another until the only one left is Sin Ch'un-ho (Shigemitsu's Korean name is Sin Kyok-ha).

Shigemitsu's brother-in-law was once involved in the management of the Lotte Hotel, the largest hotel in South Korea. However, he was later removed from the management, reportedly because of a lack of ability.

It is Shigemitsu's policy not to rely on family, but to actively seek out talented people from outside the family circle.

Because Shigemitsu has the experience of management in Japan, he has been able to advance his business without being restricted by Korean customs.

In fact, it may be that there are no people in Shigemitsu's family with a talent for business management. He himself is serving as the president of 10 of the 17 companies in the Lotte group in South Korea.

"I am not a one-man operator. I delegate a great many things to subordinates," says Shigemitsu, denying charges of one-man management.

However, the point is not whether he pushes his will onto his employees, but whether he allows them to do as much as they can.

His pattern of management in Korea was to put people from outside the family circle into important executive positions in his companies. Yu Chang-sun, who has just become Prime Minister, had the job of coordinating these executives.

The Lotte Shopping Center, built in downtown Seoul, demonstrated Shigemitsu's philosophy of trusting business acumen rather than family.

As Shigemitsu stated in an interview with the editor of this magazine (p 34), this shopping center has attracted as many as 230,000 people in one day.

The Lotte Shopping Center has had a great impact on the distribution industry in the city of Seoul.

Previously, there were three major established department stores in the city--Hwasin, Midop'a, and Sinsegye. Midop'a is affiliated with Tamaya of Fukuoka, and Sinsegye is affiliated with Mitsukoshi. They are supplied with products from these Japanese stores.

These famous department stores have been losing cusomters to the Lotte Shopping Center built nearby. Hwasin is having business difficulties, and a nearby shopping center, Cosmos, is in a business slump.

In South Korea, there has always been a custom of criticizing the goods and obtaining a discount before making a purchase. The price can be changed by bargaining. Scenes of this sort can be observed at the Namdaemun market in Seoul.

Shigemitsu went ahead with the construction of his department store as if attempting to cut off this custom of shopping. The Lotte Shopping Center has had a great appeal for the people of Seoul, perhaps because of its selection of high-fashion clothing and the increase in personal income [there].

Shigemitsu's success is threatening the existence of other companies. This has led to feelings of frustration and the hurling of criticism that "Lotte is Japanese capital. Japanese capital has landed on our shores."

This is the dilemma of Mr Shigemitsu, who was born Korean but became a Japanese businessman. Therefore, it seems that the only approach that remains for him is to pursue the path of business logic.

Abandoning Petrochemicals and Attempting To Win With His Own Specialties

Shigemitsu has succeeded in hotel management as well as in the department store business.

At present, among the large hotels in Seoul, the Hyatt (affiliated with Fujita Industries), the Plaza (with investment from Marubeni), and the Silla (a joint venture between Nissho Iwai, Koizumi Industries, and the Samsung conglomerate--to be operated by the Hotel Okura] are Japanese-South Korean joint ventures. Other large hotels include the Ambassador and the Garden.

At present, there are 18,547 hotel rooms in the city. A rush for high-class hotels is about to begin in preparation for the Asian conference in 1986 and the World Olympics in 1988.

Hilton has joined with the Daewoo conglomerate and is going ahead with construction. The oil-producing country Saudi Arabia is planning to construct a hotel and has applied for the approval of the South Korean Government. The number of hotel rooms in South Korea is expected to grow to 30,000 by the time of the Olympics 6 years from now.

Shigemitsu sounds confident: "Hotel sales have grown by 30 percent compared to last year." Lotte is doing well in distribution and service industries such as hotels and department stores, in addition to its main line of food products. But it has some weaknesses.

Honam Petrochemical showed losses of 4.6 billion won (1.5 billion yen) in the first half of last year alone. Since this is a 40-billion-won (12 billion yen) enterprise, this was a severe blow.

Vice Prysident Katsu Uchida of the partner, Mitsui and Co, says: "Cheap petrochemical products are coming in from the United States and Canada, and demand inside South Korea also is falling off." Shigemitsu frankly admits that "it's tough going." Until now, even when things were difficult for petrochemicals, he always said, "It's all right. Things will get better." He had never made a defeatist statement before.

This will lead to a change in policy for Shigemitsu's business in South Korea. Shigemitsu had the ambitious idea of using petrochemicals as a step to equality with the great existing conglomerates. This idea has suffered a setback and will likely be held in abeyance. Ultimately, he will probably avoid investing in petrochemicals and will perform on the old stage of food products and services, where his talents can be put to best use.

Interview With Lotte President

Tokyo ZAIKAI in Japanese 9 Mar 82 pp 34-37

[Interview with Takeo Shigemitsu, President of Lotte, by Chief Editor Seiji Ono: "I Will Touch off a Lotte Whirlwind in Korea"]

[Text] A Specialized Fire Department

Ono: The fire in the Hotel New Japan, with 32 deaths, was a major disaster. I understand that the executive managing director of Lotte Korea died in the fire. Is that true?

Shigemitsu: Yes. Apparently, he had come to Japan as part of a team of observers. There was no communication with the head office. After the accident, a customer informed us and there was a great commotion. It was a very sad thing.

Ono: Yes, it was terrible. Because of this disaster, caused by human neglect, fire-prevention facilities in hotels became an issue. You have the largest hotel in South Korea. Are fire-prevention measures sufficient in the Lotte Hotel in South Korea?

Shigemitsu: It is simply hard to believe that there were no fire detectors in the New Japan. I am a nervous person, and I am more concerned about safety measures than most people. When there is harm to human life, it is a terrible thing. Because it is something that is done by human beings, it is difficult to achieve 100-percent effectiveness. But in its fire-prevention system, I believe our hotel is the most advanced in the world.

Ono: As examples, what about the sprinklers, or fire detectors, or smoke exhaust facilities that became issues after the New Japan fire?

Shigemitsu: Of course, they are installed. But human lives cannot be saved with these things alone. I believe that the South Korea Lotte Hotel is the only hotel in the world with the facilities we have. There are three large, especially ordered gondolas, each with a capacity of 20 persons, to carry people back and forth between a station on the second floor and the roof. There are also helicopters on the roof, so that even if a fire started on the lower floors, if a person could make it to the roof he would be saved.

We also have our own firefighting organization at the hotel. I believe this also is a world first. This was organized with active firemen recruited away from their regular jobs. There are nine of them in all. It is arranged so that within 2 minutes they will rush to the site of trouble from a central control room if there is anything wrong in the hotel. The central control room is set up with an observation panel, and the fire-prevention situation in each room can be carefully monitored. It is a system that can detect even small problems right away.

Ono: What if the firemen fell asleep? (laughter)

Shigemitsu: It wouldn't be possible for them to sleep on the job. There are two observation panels, a main one and a secondary one. They watch each other so they cannot fall asleep. (laughter) The hotel walls block off each room completely, so it is hard for fire to circulate. The noxious gas caused by fires is more frightening than the flames. We have a system especially ordered from a Japanese manufacturer that will automatically close vents when an unusual amount of smoke occurs. Also, gas masks are placed in each room.

Fires are started not only by guests. When employees are finished with their jobs, they are required to go through such procedures as indicating what time they turned off a gas valve, and put their seal on a form. Then the person directly responsible must make the rounds and check three times during the night. He must also affix his seal on a form to indicate what time he made the check. If he forgets this, he will be severely reprimanded. By such means, we have taken all the measures that could be imagined. Even so, I still worry. (laughter)

230,000 Customers a Day

Ono: If all hotel managers took such pains with fire prevention, the recent disaster would probably not have occurred.

Let's return to a discussion of business. In South Korea, you are doing business in many fields besides your main business of confections. You are involved in hotels and department stores in Seoul, the Yosu Petrochemical Company, and recently the formation of a professional baseball league in South Korea, which has been attracting a lot of attention. What is the total amount of sales for all of Lotte's interests in South Korea?

Shigemitsu: Well, let's see. In Korean currency it was about 900 billion won last year. In yen, that is 300 billion yen in sales. It has grown at a rate of 30 to 40 percent each year.

Ono: So it has completely surpassed Lotte in Japan. I understand that the growth rate of the Korean economy has fallen off considerably in comparison with previous years. What are the prospects from now on?

Shigemitsu: It's a little better now than last year, but overall the Korean economy faces very rough times. The growth rate for the South Korean economy last year was 4 or 5 percent. This year I have high hopes that it will be 6 or 7 percent. In the food products industry, it was low in the last half of last year, especially in November and December. But things began picking up this year, so we feel a little better. The department store business is doing well overall, but the biggest growth was in the Lotte Shopping Center.

Ono: What was the rate of growth of the shopping center?

Shigemitsu: In January and February alone, growth was close to 40 percent compared to last year. South Korea's inflation rate right now is 14 or 15 percent, so even considering that, we still had a growth rate of 24 or 25 percent. The Lotte Hotel is doing a little less well than the shopping center, but it has grown by about 32 to 33 percent compared to last year.

Ono: That's a pretty high rate of growth. About how many customers come to the shopping center in a day?

Shigemitsu: The daily average is 50,000 or 60,000. I believe it was at Christmas time that we had a record high of 230,000 customers in one day. Of course, this was not all at once. It was from 10:30 in the morning to 8:00 at night. In size, the sales floor is about one-third the area of a Japanese department store. It was like having the population of a small city crowd into a space of about 7,000 tsubo. (laughter) It was like a terrible rush hour, like potatoes being washed. It was like getting on a crowded train car. (laughter)

Individual consumption is not growing by 20 or 30 percent. We are in a period when the class of people who usually go shopping in ordinary markets are shifting to supermarkets and large stores. I believe we were successful because of the good location in the center of the city and the skillful use of the marketing methods of Japanese department stores, with fixed prices.

No Profit in Baseball

In Korea right now, it is rumored that there is a movement among the Korean businessmen who are Japanese residents to establish the Shinkan Bank. You are also a member of the preparatory committee. I hear that you are very interested in bank operations.

Shigemitsu: I am not directly involved in management as an officer; I am just one of about 100 investors. At present, the interest rate for loans in South Korea is 15 or 16 percent. At one time, it was close to 20 percent. Compared to Japan, where there is tight financial order, in Korea bank management is a very promising field.

Ono: There is also talk that you have formed a pro baseball team known as the Lotte Giants and are entering the baseball business.

Shigemitsu: I do not dislike baseball, but when I get involved in something, I tend to become totally absorbed. I'm afraid that might happen, and so I will not be directly involved. (laughter) The professional baseball league is made up of six teams. My Lotte Giants will have a franchise in Pusan.

I have a Lotte team in Japan, too, but baseball requires large expenditures. Mr Taisha (Yoshinori Taisha, president of Nippon Ham) seems to have gotten overly involved. (laughter) In Nippon Ham's case, they sell [a product having] one name, Nippon Ham. So the team provides very good advertising for the product. Lotte has many different kinds of gum and chocolate, so our team team does not have as much advertising value for us. (laughter)

Ono: You are developing a wide range of businesses in South Korea. Are there big differences in management techniques, compared to your main business of confections?

Shigemitsu: Frankly, the most difficult business is our main line of confections. (laughter) From my experience, most manufacturers of food products go to a certain point with a certain line and do not expand beyond it. In comparison, hotels and department stores seem rather easy. (laughter) This is an oversimplification, but you could say that business depends mainly on such factors as location and service, so there are few large fluctuations. In South Korea we can still expect some economic growth, so it is a little better than in Japan. But I believe that will be the case for only 7 or 8 more years.

Ono: What country are you looking at next? Don't you have a new target?

Shigemitsu: Well (laughter), I am thinking about a number of things. However, I am getting old, and it is not easy to obtain the financing. (laughter)

Prime Minister Yu a Friend for 30 Years

Ono: To change the subject, the chairman of Lotte in Korea, Yu Chang-sun, just became the new Prime Minister. How long have you been friends with Prime Minister Yu?

Shigemistu: I believe we met in about 1950. At the time, Lotte still had only 400 to 500 employees, and when we first met he had come to Japan for the first time as branch president of the Bank of Korea. Therefore, our association goes back around 30 years. He was in Japan for about 3 years. After he went back to Kora, he advanced steadily to become president of the Bank of Korea, minister of commerce and industry, and minister in charge of the Economic Planning Board. Then he submitted his resignation to Pak Chong-hui, president at the time, and left government service. After a year as a "masterless samurai," he became the first chairman of Lotte in South Korea, and he worked for us in that capacity for 14 or 15 years.

Ono: What sort of person is he?

Shigemitsu: In a word, he is a very rational person. Therefore, he never makes unreasonable demands. Also, he has very good management skills. He is known in South Korea as a top economic expert because of his long experience in banking.

Ono: When he changed his position from Lotte Korea chairman to Prime Minister, did he talk it over with you?

Shigemitsu: No. He was not expecting it this time, and it was an urgent request from the South Korean Government, so I suppose he had to accept on the spot.

Ono: Since he is an economic expert, what sort of measures will he take for the South Korean economy?

Shigemitsu: I do not know about specifics. However, he understands the situation in Japan very well, so I believe he will understand the Japanese position better than his predecessors. Japanese-South Korean relations got a little shaky over the problem of the South Korean Government's asking Japan for 6 billion dollars. Because Yu has become Prime Minister, however, I expect that this problem will be worked out somehow during the first half of this year.

Ono: As soon as he became Prime Minister, he did such things as lower the interest rates. He acts very decisively.

Shigemitsu: The biggest problem faced by South Korea right now is domestic interest rates. Another problem is the imbalance in international payments, caused by pressure from oil. Payments for oil alone reach 4 or 5 billion dollars a year. He is now working hard to cover this cost somehow in 3 or 4 years. There is also the problem of repaying foreign loans. It will be very difficult for a while to relieve the strains in the South Korean economy.

Ono: When you go to South Korea, will you meet with Prime Minister Yu?

Shigemitsu: When I went 10 days ago, he had just taken the post of Prime Minister. It was a confused time and he was very busy, so I talked with him for only 10 minutes. He is an expert at running the economy, and the South Koreans have high expectations for Prime Minister Yu. For the time being, however, I believe he will act cautiously.

Ono: It seems that an economic expert has finally emerged to help rebuild the South Korean economy.

GOVERNMENT TO BUILD NUCLEAR FUEL PROCESSING PLANT

Seoul HANGUK KYONGJE SINMUN in Korean 29 Apr 82 p 2

[Article: "Localization of Nuclear Fuel In Its Entirety By the Late 1980's: Government To Set Up a Korea Nuclear Fuel Company Next Month"]

[Text] Beginning with the late 1980's, nuclear fuel needed at home will be localized. The government has decided that a Korea nuclear fuel company (tentative designation) will be set up in a joint venture between the Korea Electric Power Corporation (KEPC) and the Korea Advanced Energy Research Institute (KAERI), and that a nuclear fuel processing plant will be built by the end of 1988 in partnership with modeling and processing enterprises in such advanced countries as the United States and France, thereby implementing the full localization of nuclear fuel beginning with the late 1980's. According to the localization plan for nuclear fuel announced by the Ministry of Energy and Resources on 28 April 1982, both the KEPC and the KAERI will set up a W250 million-scale Korea nuclear fuel company sometime in May with an investment ratio of 76 to 24. With this projected company as a base, a company will be formed in a partnership with a foreign firm with an investment ratio of 51 to 49 to build a nuclear fuel processing plant.

The proposed plant, which will be built to localize the modeling and processing of nuclear fuel for light-water reactors, will be initially capitalized at W18.4 billion and be provided with W8 billion in long-term loans, plus $37,255.000 in foreign loans. Under the localization plan for nuclear fuel, a total of W53.1 billion (based on the 1981 invariable price) will be invested, and approximately 200 tons of nuclear fuel will be produced annually to meet the requirement of some 10 light-water reactors.

The proposed plant will handle the overall consumption phase of the nuclear fuel cycle--the reconversion of enriched uranium (from UF_6 to UO_2), the production of pellets and the assembly of nuclear fuel compounds, and will constitute an epoch-making momentum for the development of nuclear energy.

No detailed plan for a partnership with a foreign firm has been revealed, but it has been disclosed that modeling and processing firms in the United States and France are hopeful. A foreign firm for a partnership will be selected by the end of 1983. The construction of the proposed plant is scheduled to begin in July 1985.

Meanwhile, the government is also pushing ahead with the installation of comprehensive facilities to cope with an increase in nuclear energy wastes in technical cooperation with Belgium. The facilities will make it possible to reduce the quantity of waste and to permanently dispose of wastes now temporarily stored at the power station site.

The nuclear fuel cycle implies the 4 stages of refinement, conversion, enrichment, and modeling and processing, the process through which uranium ore must go to be utilized as nuclear fuel for nuclear power stations. The final product (nuclear fuel) produced at a modeling and processing plant is disposed of as waste after going through the burn-up process. However, some wastes will be reproduced as nuclear fuel after again going through the enrichment process.

The nuclear fuel produced at this proposed plant can be utilized in many fields, including the medical one. It is disclosed, however, that there is no plan right now to utilize nuclear fuel for any other purpose than generating nuclear energy.

CHONG CHUN-KI SPEAKS ON SCIENCE POLICY

SK290510 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Text] A report meeting commemorating the 30th anniversary of the publication of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's immortal work "For the Development of Our Nation's Science" was held on 28 April in the Academy of Sciences. Placed in the front of the meeting hall was the portrait of the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song. The slogans reading "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" and "Long live the glorious KWP!" were hung in the meeting hall.

Comrade Chong Chun-ki, vice premier of the State Administration Council and president of the Academy of Sciences, Education Committee Chairman Choe Tae-pok and other personages concerned attended the meeting together with scientists and teachers of colleges. The meeting began with the playing of "Song of Gen Kim Il-song." Comrade Chong Chun-ki made a commemorative speech.

The reporter stressed: The historic speech "For the Development of Our Nation's Science" made by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on 27 April 1952 at a meeting of scientists was a programmatic document which summed up experiences and achievements of our party in developing the chuche-type science and technology, enabling us to systematically solve the scientific and technical problems in the postwar economic construction and for victory in the war, and put forward the brilliant path for organizing and mobilizing scientists in this work.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: We should continuously and vigorously struggle to establish chuche in the domain of science. We are in need of science which is required for developing our country and which serves our revolution and our people.

He noted: The respected leader's teaching for making science thoroughly serve our nation's revolution and construction is a programmatic guideline which the party and the state of the working class should firmly adhere to in developing science. The great leader, directing great attention to building our own scientific research base, promoted organization of the Academy of Sciences, the supreme sanctuary of science in our country, during the arduous fatherland liberation war period. This is a brilliant achievement of the respected leader.

The reporter pointed out that the respected leader put forward in his historic speech the policy for closely linking scientific research work with practical implementation in the national economy and for making science a base for development of the national economy. This was a just policy which scientifically prescribed the status and mission of science in economic construction and was a revolutionary line enabling the national economy to rapidly and continuously develop.

He said: In his historic speech, the respected leader not only put forward the mission of chuche science and the basic direction of scientific research, but also extensively advanced the basic principles which we should adhere to in developing science. Under the great leader's wise leadership, the ranks of scientists and technicians, as well as scientific research bases, have been consolidated and great successes were marked in scientific research work. Our science, which progressed one by one from the wasteland after liberation, developed today into a chuche-oriented and modern science credibly ensuring the endless prosperity and growth of the powerful industrial socialist country. We can be proud of this.

He noted: Today our science is in its golden age due to the energetic guidance of the glorious party center and is vigorously advancing toward a new victory. Pointing to tasks the scientists face today, the reporter stressed that all our people should actively contribute to the nation's scientific and technical development and to implementing the cause of the chuche-orientation of the entire society by accelerating the three revolutions--ideological, technical and cultural--upholding the report of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the Sixth KWP Congress and his policy speech at the joint meeting of the party Central Committee and the Supreme People's Assembly.

METHODS OF ESTIMATING PROJECTIONS OF GNP

Seoul PUKHAN in Korean Dec 81 pp 86-105

[Article by Yi P'ung, chief research officer, International Economic Research Institute: "Methods of Estimating North Korea's GNP"]

[Text] I. A New Method of Estimating North Korea's GNP

In the case of a "closed" economy, the gross national product is an aggregate of the final products and services produced in a designated period of time (usually a year); it is the difference between an aggregate of all the goods and services produced and that of all the intermediate products employed in the whole process of production. Therefore, in order to estimate the GNP of North Korea, it is above all imperative to know the following: the production units by which the aggregate of all the produced goods and services is calculated; and the channel of distribution through which the aggregate of all produced goods and services is disposed of in North Korea.

In the North Korean economy, too, most of the goods and part of the services are produced by business enterprises. Government organizations do not produce goods but produce part of the services. As in other socialist countries, farming on individually operated land is allowed in North Korea; so part of the goods are produced by individuals. Part of those goods produced by individuals are consumed by the individuals themselves and the remainder is either sold to consumers in the market, which is called farmers' market,(1) in which prices change according to [the relationship between] supply and demand, or sold at designated prices to the state-operated purchasing agencies. Meanwhile, the individual's business activity in the farmers' market is a kind of service; therefore we know that part of the services are also produced by individuals. In North Korea, such activities of individuals of producing goods and services are called "individual sideline accounting."(2)

In North Korea, a business enterprise is called "an entrepreneurial establishment."(3) Entrepreneurial enterprises are classified into two types--the state-operated enterprise and the cooperative enterprise--according to the type of ownership of the means of production. The state-operated enterprises, in turn, are classified into: the production enterprises in which goods and productive services(4) are produced, the nonproduction enterprises in which nonproductive services,(5) except for the distribution of goods, are produced, and the distribution enterprises which are charged with distributing goods[6] --a kind of nonproductive service. The production enterprises, in turn, are classified into: the industrial enterprises, construction enterprises, transportation enterprises, postal and communications enterprises, and agricultural enterprises. The agricultural enterprises are classified into: the state-operated farms and ranches which produce goods; the agricultural machines manufacturing plants and the irrigation management plants in which services are produced and supplied to the state-operated farms and ranches as well as to the cooperative farms. In order to distinguish the state-operated enterprises from the distribution enterprises, the former is called "general state-operated enterprises" in this paper. The cooperative enterprises include cooperative farms, industrial cooperatives, and fishery cooperatives. Most of the goods produced by these cooperatives are purchased by the state. As for those goods not purchased by the state: in the case of cooperative farms, some of them are sold at the farmers' market; in the case of agricultural and fisheries cooperatives, some of them are sold directly to consumers; and the remaining part of the goods produced by these cooperatives is given to members of cooperatives as "wages in kind." Thus the cooperative enterprises, like individual producers and the state-operated enterprises, produce not only goods but also the services called "the business through cooperatives."[7]

Goods and services produced by the state-operated enterprises are distributed and disposed of in the following five ways:

First, the intermediate goods and part of the transactions and communication services produced by many state-operated production enterprises are put into the currently active production process of other state-operated production enterprises through the state-operated distribution enterprises or the channel of direct transactions. Part of the end goods produced by many state-operated enterprises are purchased by other state-operated enterprises as investment goods. The pattern[8] of prices of those goods and services transacted in this way includes the wholesale price that consists of the production cost[9] and the profits obtained by the state-operated enterprises; and the industrial wholesale price[10] that consists of the production-cost, the profits earned by the state-operated enterprises, and the income from transactions. Therefore, the total value of the intermediate goods, investment goods and services transacted through this process of distribution consists of the production cost, profits earned by the state-operated enterprises and the income from business transactions.

Second, part of the goods produced by the state-operated enterprises are either put, through the state-operated distribution enterprises, into the process of producing the public services of the government organizations as the intermediate goods or purchased as investment goods required for the investment plans of government organizations. The price of the intermediate goods and the investment goods transacted in this way is the wholesale price in its pattern. Therefore, the total value of the intermediate goods and investment goods transacted in this process of distribution is made up of the production cost and the profits earned by the state-operated enterprises.

Third, part of the goods produced by the state-operated enterprises is either sold as intermediate goods or investment goods to the cooperative enterprises and individual producers, or sold to individual consumers, through the state-operated distribution enterprise. The pattern of the price of the intermediate goods and final goods transacted in this way is the retail price that consists of the wholesale price, income from transactions, and commercial surcharge. The commercial surcharge(11) consists of the distribution cost and profits earned by the commercial enterprises,(12) which are one of the state-operated distribution enterprises. The total value of the intermediate goods and final goods transacted in this process of distribution consists of the production cost, the distribution cost of the commercial enterprises, the income earned by the state-operated enterprises, the income of commercial enterprises and the income from business transactions.

Fourth, part of the services produced by the state-operated production enterprises and the services produced by the state-operated nonproduction enterprises are sold to the cooperative enterprises, individual producers, and individual consumers through [the channels of] direct transactions. The freight charge or price,(13) which is a pattern of the price applied in such dealings, consists of either the production cost and the profits earned by the state-operated enterprises, or the production cost, the profits earned by the state-operated enterprises, and the income from business transactions. Therefore, the total value of the services transacted through such a distribution process is made up of the production cost, the profits earned by the state-operated enterprises, and the income from business transactions.

Fifth, part of the services produced by the state-operated agricultural enterprises, such as farm machinery stations, irrigation management stations, seedling farms, seed processing plants, agricultural experimentation stations, study farms, and veterinary epidemic prevention stations, are put directly into the production process of the cooperative farms. In order to return for the services thus produced, the cooperative farms pay for the costs of labor, intermediate goods, and the wear and tear expenses of the fixed assets. Therefore, the total value of the services transacted in this way consists only of the production cost of the services, the prime cost.(14)

The goods produced by the cooperative enterprises and the individual sideline businesses are disposed of in the following three types of distribution:

First, part of the goods produced by the cooperative enterprises and individual sideline businesses are sold, in the form of consumer goods, investment goods or intermediate goods, to individual consumers, other individual producers, or other cooperative enterprises through [the channels of] farmers' markets or direct sale activities. The pattern of the prices of the goods transacted in this way is that of the market prices set forth through supplies and demands.(15) Such a market price as this consists of: the intermediate goods that are put into the process of production and sale of the goods being sold, the part remunerating the wear and tear expenses of fixed assets, and the part attributable to the residual income of cooperatives and individual producers. Therefore, the total value of the goods transacted in this distribution process consists of intermediate goods, depreciation expenses, and the residual income of the enterpriser. The residual income of enterprisers may consist of the "opportunity" expenses for the labor put in, that is, the wages and profit: and the amount may be shown in the negative number.

Second, part of the goods produced by the cooperative enterprises and individual sideline businesses is either put, in the form of intermediate goods, into the production processes of the state-operated enterprises and the government organizations, or purchased in the form of investment goods required in [the implementation of] the investment plans of the state-operated enterprises and government organizations. The patterns of the prices of the intermediate goods and investment goods transacted in this way is that of the purchase price designated by the government, which also consists of, like the market price, the part remunerating the intermediate goods put in the production process of the goods, the part remunerating the wear and tear expenses of the fixed property, and the part attributable to the residual income of the cooperatives and individual producers. Therefore, the total value of the intermediate goods, investment goods transacted in this distribution process, too, consists of the intermediate goods expenses, depreciation expenses, and the residual income of the enterprisers.

Third, part of the goods produced by the cooperative enterprises and individual sideline businesses is sold, through the state-operated distribution enterprises, to individual consumers, other individual producers, or other cooperative enterprises in the form of consumer goods, investment goods, or intermediate goods. The pattern of prices of the goods transacted in this way is that of the retail price which is calculated by adding income from transactions and sales margin to the purchase price which is regarded as the production cost from the viewpoint of the state-operated distribution enterprises. Therefore, the total value of the goods transacted in this process of distribution consists of the intermediate goods expenses of the cooperatives and individual producers, the depreciation expenses, the enterpriser's residual income, the distribution expenses and profits of commercial enterprises, and the income from transactions.

The services produced by the governmental-political organizations, such as defense, law and order, and the management of public facilities, are supplied gratuitously to consumers, individual producers, cooperative enterprises, and state-operated enterprises. However, the total value of the services produced by the governmental-political organizations consists of the production cost of the services, that is, the expenses for the intermediate goods put in (government consumer goods), the wear and tear expenses of fixed assets and labor expenses.

In the above, regarding the goods and services being produced in North Korea, we reviewed nine kinds of distribution processes between production units--five of them regarding the state-operated enterprises, three of them regarding the cooperative enterprises and individual producers, and one of them regarding the governmental-political organizations.(16) The gross national product, that is, the total value of all the goods and services produced in North Korea in a set period of time, consists of the total value of the goods and services transacted in those nine kinds of distribution processes, the total value of the products consumed by individual producers, the total value of the products paid, in the form of the wages in kind, by the cooperative enterprises to their member workers, and the total value of the products in stock. The total value of the products consumed for home use consists of the intermediate goods put in, the wear and tear expenses of fixed assets and labor expenses; and the value of the products in stock consists only of the production cost. The expenses for the labor which are put in the products consumed for home use are to be included in the enterpriser's residual income of individual producers; and the wages in kind paid to member workers of cooperatives are to be included in the enterpriser's residual income of the cooperative enterprises.(17) Therefore, the components of the gross national product of North Korea are: the production cost of the products of general state-operated enterprises; the profits earned by the general state-operated enterprises; the income from business transactions; the distribution expenses of the commercial enterprises; the profits earned by the commercial enterprises; the intermediate goods expenses, depreciation expenses, enterpriser's residual income, the income from business transactions, the distribution expenses of the commercial enterprises, and the profits earned by the commercial enterprises--all in connection with the products of the cooperative enterprises and individual producers; and the intermediate goods expenses, depreciation expenses, and wages in connection with the products of the governmental-political organizations.

The distribution expenses of the commercial enterprises are nothing but the production cost paid to produce the services called commercial activities. Therefore, it may be regarded as the production cost which is a component of the gross national product, just as the production cost of the general state-operated enterprises may be regarded as such. The production cost consists of the intermediate goods expenses, depreciation expenses, wages, and the social insurance premium paid by enterprises to the governmental-political organizations.(18) The profits earned by the commercial enterprises and those earned by the general state-operated enterprises make up the gross profit. The gross profit of the state-operated enterprises consists of the profit of the state enterprises paid to the governmental-political organizations and the retained profit of the state-operated enterprises.(19) The residual income of the enterprisers, in the case of the cooperative enterprises, consists of the wages paid to member workers of the cooperative enterprises, the cooperative income tax paid to the governmental-political organizations, and the retained profit of the cooperative organizations.(20) The residual income of individual enterprisers corresponds to: the household income which consists of the wages paid to ordinary workers and office workers working for the state-operated enterprises and governmental-political organizations; and the cash and wages in kind paid to the member workers of cooperative enterprises. Therefore, the gross national output(21) of North Korea consists of the intermediate goods expenses, depreciation expenses, household income, social insurance premium, income from business transactions, profits earned by the state enterprises, the cooperative income tax, the retained profit of the state-operated enterprises, and the retained profit of the cooperative enterprises.

There are two ways of estimating North Korea's gross national product on the basis of components of its gross national output reviewed in the above. In terms of production, North Korea's gross national product may be calculated, as indicated in its definition, by deducting the intermediate goods expenses from the gross output. In terms of distribution, North Korea's gross national product can be calculated by adding up the depreciation expenses, household income, social insurance premium, income from business transactions, profit of the state enterprises, cooperative income tax, profit earned by the state-operated enterprises, and the retained profit earned by the cooperative organizations.

North Korea's gross national product may be calculated in terms of expenditure. As can be seen in the process of distributing goods and services which are reviewed above, the gross national product of North Korea may be calculated by adding up the following: household expenditure for consumer goods produced by enterprises and individual producers; home consumption by individual producers; the disbursements by governmental-political organizations for purchases from enterprises and individual producers of intermediate goods, labor, and the wear and tear of fixed assets; and the outlays of enterprises, individual producers, and governmental-political organizations or investment goods and [goods] in stock.

In this way, North Korea's gross national product, too, may be calculated in terms of production, distribution, or expenditure. However, because of the scarcity of statistical data caused by [the fact that North Korea is] an extremely closed society, all these three theoretical methods may not be employed in actual calculations. The approach from [the calculation of] production may be adopted only when the output and the intermediate goods cost can be figured out with regard to all production units in North Korea or all the goods and services produced in North Korea. However, enough statistical data are not available to us. The approach from [the calculation of] expenditure is not a method that is entirely unusable, such as the approach from production, because those statistical data on the [annual] budget expenditure of North Korea and the household expenditures--though they are only indirectly calculable--are available to us. Nevertheless, a satisfactory calculation of North Korea's gross national product in terms of expenditure is not likely so far as those statistical data on the home consumption of individual producers and the expenditure of enterprises and individual producers for investment goods and the goods in stock are not available to us.(22)

Computation of the gross national product of North Korea by means of the approach from distribution is regarded, as things stand now, as a method that may produce the most satisfactory estimation of the gross national product, although such a method as this, too, is subject to a limited amount of data. But, since the economy of North Korea, too, is not an entirely closed one, the factor incomes from overseas receipts should also be calculated and added to the gross national product in terms of distribution. A gist of this new formula of calculating North Korea's gross national product may be expressed in the following diagram:

Gross national product = Household income
+ (Social insurance premium + income from business transactions + profits earned by the state enterprises + income tax of cooperative organizations)
+ (retained profits of the state-operated enterprises + retained profits of the cooperative organizations)
+ depreciation expenses + the factor incomes from overseas receipts
= Household income + income of governmental-political organizations + retained income of enterprises + depreciation expenses + factor incomes from overseas receipts

II. The Process and Outcome of the Calculation of Gross National Product of North Korea

1. Calculation of Household Income

The best way of calculating the household income is to figure out separately and add up all of the following: wages of ordinary workers and office workers; salaries of military personnel; residual wages paid to member workers of cooperative farms and other cooperative enterprises,(24) and the residual income of individual enterprisers. However, North Korea has never made public any statistics or data sufficient enough to allow such a calculation as this. Nevertheless, it would be possible to calculate the household income if one makes the best use, under various hypotheses, of the available data about the differences between the wage scale of North Korea and that of the Soviet Union--in terms of average monthly wages per worker of North Korea's economically active population, cooperative farm workers, general workers and office workers and that of the Soviet Union's industrial workers and collective farm workers.

First, salaries of military personnel may be calculated because the data on the number of soldiers and the annual salaries per soldier are available.

The number of people economically active can be calculated by deducting the number of servicemen, students, homemakers, the elderly and handicapped people from the population 14 years of age and older. The number of civilian employees is to be determined by adding the number of people economically active to the number of those people eligible for labor mobilization among those people economically inactive. Then the income of general workers, office workers, cooperative member workers, and individual enterprisers can be figured by multiplying the number of civilian employees by the per person wage of general workers and office workers. The calculation, in this way, of the income of civilians in employment is based on the following assumptions: one, unemployment is almost nonexistent in North Korea in view of its social system or the apparent shortage of labor force that necessitates [forced] mobilization of labor; and two, wage levels of a member of the cooperative member organizations, as individual enterpriser, general worker, or office worker, are identical.

Third, [TN: Sic] these assumptions are unrealistic when we take into account the expressed concern of the North Korean authorities about the disparity existing in the wage levels of general workers, office workers, cooperative farm members.[25] So, after figuring out the differences in wage levels in North Korea on the basis of comparable data about the Soviet Union, we may go on to calculate the size of income of the civilians employed. Thus, by adding up the income of the civilians employed thus calculated and the pay of soldiers, we may calculate the household income.

(1) Number of Civilians Employed: Data used in calculating the number of civilians employed in North Korea are given in summary in Table 1.

Source: Based on the data acquired or compiled by the research organizations of the ROK.
Note: Figures in parentheses are presumed ones. As for the mid-year population figures, they are computed by applying the annual population growth rate of 2.3 percent worked out for the period 1977-80 by the research organizations in the ROK. The economically active population figures are computed by applying an annual increase rate of 3 percent as presumed by the research organizations of the ROK. The number of civilians employed occupying in the mid-year population figure of each of those years during the period 1973-76 is calculated; then the average of those rates, which turned out to be 45 percent, is applied in figuring out the number of civilians employed.

The number of the civilians employed for the 1960-72 period is based on figures of the economically active population and of those workers eligible for labor mobilization as provided by the research organizations of the ROK. In North Korea, those economically inactive people among those who are above the age of 14 are eligible for labor mobilization and able to earn wages.[26] Therefore, these people who are eligible for labor mobilization are also to be included in the category of the civilians employed. The research organizations in the ROK devised two ways of estimating North Korea's labor force eligible for mobilization: one, to include 80 percent of homemakers, 50 percent of the elderly and handicapped, and 30 percent of students above the age of 14; and the other, to include 50 percent of homemakers, and 30 percent of the elderly and handicapped. In this paper, the second way is followed, because, in estimating the income accruing from labor mobilization, the inflated income figured out by multiplying the wages of general and office workers, who earn more than ordinary workers mobilized, by the number of those eligible for labor mobilization should be adjusted downward.

The number of civilians employed during the 1973-76 period, too, is the very figure estimated by the research organizations of the ROK for each year of the period; that is, the figure calculated by multiplying the number of population of each year, which includes all the people above the age of 14 except for military personnel, by the percentage of the civilians employed that occupied in the number of population of the year of 1971.

As for the 1977-79 period, the amount of data available was not enough to enable the use of the above-cited method. So, the percentages of the civilians employed occupying in the mid-year population of each year during the 1973-76 period are figured out first; 45 percent turned out to be the nearest average of those figures thus calculated. Thus the number of civilians employed during the 1977-79 was calculated by multiplying the mid-year population of each year of the period by 45 percent.

(2) Average Monthly Wage per Worker: North Korea announced that the monthly average wage of workers, office workers, and technicians was raised by 31.5 percent to become 70 won by Cabinet Ordinance No 70 dated 1 September 1970; and later, this fact was confirmed. In 1972, it was announced that the average monthly wage was 70 won.[27] Based on this, it is presumed that the average monthly wage was 70 won in 1971 also, and that the average monthly wage of 1970 was approximately 59 won, the weighted average of monthly average wages that prevailed prior to the raise cited above.

The yearly series of monthly average wage per general worker, or office worker shown in Table 2 are calculated by means of the following wage increase rates: for the 1970, 1971, 1972 period, the wage increase rate calculated on the basis of the monthly average wage; for the 1960-69 period, the wage increase rate which North Korea either made public or estimated; and for the 1973-79 period, the wage increase rate calculated by means of the 1979 monthly average wage 80 won,[28] estimated by the Naeoe T'ongsin.

(3) Civilian Employees' Income: The (C) column of Table 3 shows the civilian employees' income which is estimated by multiplying the monthly average wage per general worker or clerical worker by the total number of civilian employees. However, most of the civilians employed, except for the general workers and clerical workers, are members of cooperative farms.(29) Therefore, as mentioned earlier, if the difference in income between members of cooperative farms and general workers or clerical workers is big enough so that North Korean authorities may take an issue out of it, the figures given on the (C) column should be readjusted. However, North Korea has never made public the data needed to calculate the income difference.

Thus, in order to make up for the inadequacy of available data, we set forth an assumption that the relative gap of income for industrial workers, collective, or cooperative farm members is identical during the same year between the Soviet Union and North Korea.[30] Then we estimated the income gap in North Korea by making use of the data of the Soviet Union. Table 4 shows a result of such calculations. Using the rate of income margin for cooperative farms shown in this table and the unadjusted income of the cooperative farm members, the amount of decrease in the income of cooperative farm members is to be calculated. The process of this calculation is shown in summary in Table 5. The income for civilians employed shown on column (E) of Table 3 is the amount resulted from the subtraction of the income margin for cooperative farm members from the figures shown on column (C).

(4) Household Income: The household income calculated by adding the adjusted income of civilians employed shown in Table 3 is shown in Table 6.

2. Estimates of Income of Governmental-Political Organizations

It would be ideal if we could calculate the income of the governmental-political organizations of North Korea by adding up the following, which are figured out separately: the income from business transactions, profits earned by state-operated enterprises, income tax from cooperative organizations, and the social insurance premium paid by enterprises. However, the circumstances surrounding the data do not permit this. Nevertheless, North Korea has long been making public the gross amount of socialist accounting receipt the largest proportion of which is accounted for by the income of the governmental-political organizations. The socialist accounting receipt refers to the income of governmental-political organizations earned through socialized enterprises. It includes: the income that is not to be regarded as the income of governmental-political organizations, such as the income of health organizations, trade organizations, and irrigation organizations; the property income; the customs income; [various] fees; and carryovers. Therefore, if we can figure out the percentage of socialist accounting receipt occupying in the income of governmental-political organizations, we may be able to estimate the income of governmental-political organizations, although it may not be satisfactory enough.

(1) Components of Socialist Accounting Receipt: It was only in 1957 and 1958 that North Korea made public components of its socialist accounting receipt.

Table 7 shows the gross amounts, as well as components, of socialist accounting receipts of both 1957 and 1958. But, the percentage of social insurance premiums which is a kind of governmental-political organizations' income occupying in socialist accounting receipt is not shown here. And, even the percentages of other governmental-political organizations' income, such as the income from business transactions, profits earned by state-operated enterprises, and the income tax from cooperative organizations, do not show an even trend. However, the percentage of the gross amount of the income from business transactions, the profit earned by state-operated enterprises, and the income tax from cooperative organizations occupying in the socialist accounting receipt was 75.48 in 1957; 77.86 in 1958; and 76 86 for the average of both years. When the percentage of social insurance premium is taken into consideration,(31) the percentage of governmental-political organizations' income occupying in the socialist accounting receipt was roughly 80 percent in in estimate. Therefore, one way of figuring out the income of governmental-political organizations is to multiply the socialist accounting receipt by 0.8.

Sources: Based on the data obtained by the research organizations of the ROK regarding the budgetary revenue of North Korea.
Note. The socialist accounting receipt for 1958 is the amount obtained by subtracting the resident tax receipt and the assistance income from the gross budgetary revenue.

Another way of estimating the income of governmental-political organizations is to estimate it for each fiscal year, instead of employing the method cited above, in which the percentage of governmental-political organizations' income occupying in the socialist accounting receipt is estimated in the same way for each of the years reviewed. In order to employ this method, it is imperative to find out how the percentage of each component of the income of governmental-political organizations occupying in the socialist accounting receipt has been changing.

The percentage of the income from business transactions was made public also for 1961, 1962, and 1965; according to the estimates of research organizations of the ROK, it was approximately 55 to 57 percent. It seems to have been increasing in light of both the trend shown during the period from 1961 to 1965 and the judgments made by the research organizations of the ROK.

Meanwhile, according to the explanations given by North Korea, while the economic activities of state-operated enterprises were expanded either absolutely or relatively in comparison with the enterprises of cooperative organizations, the percentage of the profits earned by state-operated enterprises occupying in the socialist accounting receipt seemed to have been increasing gradually and the percentage of cooperative organizations seemed to have been decreasing gradually.

However, as shown in Table 7, the percentage of the income tax from cooperative organizations was much smaller in comparison with the income from business transactions or the profits earned by state-operated enterprises. Therefore, the percentage of the gross amount of the income from business transactions, the profits earned by state-operated enterprises, and the income tax from cooperative organizations occupying in the socialist accounting receipt seemed to have increased gradually. Furthermore, as mentioned above, the percentage of the income of governmental-political organizations occupying in the socialist accounting receipt seemed to have increased gradually, because the percentage of social insurance premiums was small also.

(2) Income of Governmental-Political Organizations: Table 8 shows the figures of the incomes of governmental-political organizations which are calculated by multiplying the socialist accounting receipt by the percentage of the income of governmental-political organizations occupying in the socialist accounting receipt--while identifying the pattern of gradual increase of the percentage--for each of the years listed in the table. The table also shows the figures of the incomes of governmental-political organizations which are calculated by multiplying socialist accounting receipt by 0.8 equally for all the years listed in the table. The percentage of the income of governmental-political organizations occupying in the socialist accounting receipt, which is used to calculate the figures of the income of governmental-political organizations, was computed on the basis of the following two assumptions:

First, the percentage of the income from business transactions occupying in the socialist accounting receipt for all the years, except for 1961, 1962, and 1965 during which the percentages were made public, was presumed to have increased by the yearly average increase rate figured out from the difference between the percentage of the year of 1965 and that of 1961.

Second, it is presumed that one-half of the balance of the socialist accounting receipt from which business transactions income is subtracted constitutes state enterprises profit, cooperative organizations income tax, and the social insurance premium paid by enterprises. The reasons why these assumptions are taken are as follows: as shown in Table 7, in 1957 and 1958, the percentage of state enterprises profits and the cooperative organizations income tax occupying in the socialist accounting receipt was approximately 18.8 percent, while the percentage of other incomes than the state enterprises profits and cooperative organizations income tax was approximately 23.1 percent. However, it was presumed that the total of social insurance premium paid by enterprises, state enterprises income, and the cooperative organizations income tax would be near to a half of the socialist accounting receipt exclusive of the business transactions income.

Notes: In (B), the percentage for 1960 was regarded as the same as that for 1957-58 and thereby was transferred from Table 7. The percentages in parentheses are calculated by applying 0.004452, the yearly average increase rate figured out from the difference between the percentage for 1965 and that for 1961. In the actual computation in (B) and (C), calculation was done down to the sixth decimal place.

8. (E)=(A) X 0.8
   Estimates of governmental-political organizations income I [TN: Sic]

Table 8 shows that there is no big difference between the estimates of the income of governmental-political organizations calculated by means of a more complicated method of figuring out on the basis of assumptions cited above and those calculated by means of a simple method of figuring. The reason is that the percentage of the income of governmental-political organizations for each year listed on the column of Estimate I is not much different from 0.8, which is applied equally for the percentage of governmental-political organizations' income. Therefore, either the Estimate I or Estimate II may be used, if the purpose is simply to figure out the governmental-political organizations' income.

However, it would be better to use Estimate II in the case when the estimated retained incomes of enterprises is to be calculated as in the case cited below. Calculation of the retained incomes of enterprises requires the estimation of state enterprise profits and cooperative organizations' income taxes for each year. The reason for this is that we had better use the data of socialist accounting receipts for 1958 rather than the data used in Estimate I--the content of the consolidated socialist accounting receipts in 1957 and 1958, especially the percentage of cooperative organizations' income taxes. Again the reason for this is that the percentage of cooperative organizations' income taxes occupying in the socialist accounting receipts was greatly reduced, as shown in Table 7--7.78 percent for 1957 dropped to 1.82 percent for 1958. The percentage of cooperative organizations' income taxes, although it grew somewhat afterwards, as mentioned above, gradually decreased; so it is presumed that its percentage changed little from the level of 1958.

3. Estimates of Retained Income of Enterprises

When we deduct the state enterprises' profits and cooperative organizations' income taxes--these are to be paid to the budget of the governmental-political organizations--from the profits earned by the state-operated enterprises and the enterprises of cooperative organizations, we find retained incomes of enterprises there. North Korea has never made public the scale of retained incomes of enterprises. Thus, in order to figure out the retained incomes of enterprises, we must first calculate the percentages of the retained incomes of state-operated enterprises and state enterprises' profits and the percentages of the retained incomes of cooperative organizations and the income taxes of cooperative organizations. Then we must figure out for each year the incomes of state enterprises and the income taxes of the cooperative organizations on the basis of the time sequence of the socialist accounting receipt and the content of the socialist accounting receipt for the year of 1958. Then we must multiply these figures by the percentages computed on the first stage. We can use only this indirect method of calculation.

However, the percentage of the profits, which would be retained, occupying in the total profits of state-operated enterprises and cooperative organizations enterprises is not made public in detail. Thus, the estimation of the retained income of enterprises is not to be made so accurately as that of household income or income of governmental-political organizations.

According to some researchers' quarters, the rate of payments to the central governmental-political organizations are as follows: various kinds of cooperatives, exclusive of sidelines of cooperative farms and the fishery cooperatives, pay 10 percent of the profit settled at the time of closing accounts; cooperative farm stores pay 15 percent of the profit settled at the time of closing account; fishery cooperatives pay 2 or 3 percent of the income from sales; banks and insurance organizations pay 50 percent of gross profit; and the large-scale sidelines operated by ordinary state-operated enterprises or the daily necessities stores pay 10 percent of the profit settled at the time of closing accounts.(32) Sources of this information and the year for which this information is available are not known. Even if we accept this information to be true, we only know that the rate of income tax for cooperative organizations is approximately 10 percent; and there is no way of telling the percentage of the state enterprise profit, which general state-operated enterprises pay, occupying in their total profit. Therefore, we used the Soviet Union's data to figure out the percentage. In the case of the Soviet Union, the portion of the profit of state-operated enterprises in 1967, which was paid to the government's budget, reached 62.4 percent.(33)

In light of North Korea's explanation about the use of the profits of enterprises, the following calculation does not seem to be too far from the correct one: to figure out the ratio between the retained profits of cooperative organizations and the income taxes of cooperative organizations at 9 to 1; and to figure out the ratio between the retained profits of state enterprises and the profits of state enterprises at 37.6 to 62.4. According to North Korea's explanation, the reason for collecting the profits of state enterprises is that there is need of reasonably distributing and utilizing the profits earned by state-operated enterprises for the benefit of the dimension of the whole country.(34) Thus, most of the funds needed for expanded reproduction in the state-operated enterprises are to be appropriated as the expenditure for capital construction of the state, one of the expenditure items of the budget. But, if we assume that the investment rate of North Korea, a country less developed than the Soviet Union, is higher than that of the Soviet Union, it is much possible that the proportion of the profits retained by the state-operated enterprises of North Korea is lower than that of the Soviet Union. Therefore, there would be a low possibility of underestimating the actual retained profits of state-operated enterprises of North Korea, if the retained profits are figured out on the basis of the data of the Soviet Union. Meanwhile, North Korea explains that only the lesser part of the profits of cooperatives is collected as the cooperative organizations' income taxes, while most of the profits earned by cooperatives is used for the expanded reproduction in the cooperatives and the fund for the common consumption of the members of the cooperatives.(35) This is not incompatible with the estimation that 90 percent of the profits of cooperative organizations is retained.

Table 9 shows the retained income of enterprises which is calculated on the basis of: the percentage of the income taxes of cooperatives occupying in the retained profits of cooperative organizations--as figured out in the above; the percentage of the profits of state enterprises occupying in the retained profits of state-operated enterprises--as figured out in the above; the time sequence of the socialist accounting receipt in Table 8; and the components of the socialist accounting receipts for 1958 as figured in the above.

4. Calculation of Gross National Product

In order to calculate North Korea's gross national product, we may figure out the net national product first by adding up the household income figured out in the above, the income of governmental-political organizations, retained income of enterprises, and overseas net receipt factor income; then we may apply the depreciation rate that has been figured out to the net national product.

However, as for the overseas net receipt factor income, there is no data for this whatsoever. Unlike other items, the overseas net receipt factor income had better not be considered in calculating the net national product; doing so would eliminate further errors. The methods that would be difficult to justify had better not be used in this case. The reason for this is that in North Korea, where there are not much overseas economic activities, both the overseas receipt factor income and the overseas payment factor income are expected to be small; and the difference between these two incomes would be even less.

North Korea has never made public the percentage of the depreciation amount occupying in the gross national product. The only disclosure was made in 1957 to the effect that the depreciation amount in industry reached 3.7 percent of the cost of gross national product.(36) Assuming that the same rate persisted in the period 1960-79, we cannot be sure whether the application of the same depreciation rate to the gross national product may overestimate or underestimate North Korea's gross national product. The reason for this is that while the production cost of industrial goods includes the cost of intermediate goods, the income from business transactions and the sales margin are not included in there, and that it is impossible to determine which is greater--the percentage of depreciation amount occupying in the added value created in the industrial sector and the percentage of depreciation amount occupying in the cost of industrial products. Anyhow, in the light of the fact that the ratio of depreciation amount occupying in the gross national product of the Soviet Union in 1959 was approximately 5.7 percent,(37) we would not underestimate North Korea's gross national product, if we figure the percentage of the depreciation amount occupying in the gross national product of North Korea at the level of 3.7 percent.

Table 9 [TN: Sic] shows, as estimated in the above, the household income, the income of governmental-political organizations (Estimate II), the retained income of enterprises, the time sequence and the ordinary currency value of won of North Korea's gross national product which is computed on the basis of a depreciation rate of 3.7 percent. It then shows the per capita gross national product of North Korea computed on the basis of all this. Table 10 [TN: Sic] compares the author's estimate of North Korea's gross national product with figures computed by other sources.

As shown in Table 10, the author's estimate is rather higher than the existing ones of others. Some may question if the author overestimated the actual value of North Korea's gross national product. This question would not be answered satisfactorily unless the fundamental statistical data of North Korea's economy are made public sufficiently. However, if those assumptions taken under circumstances beyond our control for the reason of lack of available data were appropriate, there are two reasons that the author may assert that his estimate figures are most closer to actual real figures.

First, as pointed out above, the author's estimate does not have any errors that were made by existing estimates.

Second, North Korea once announced that its per capita national income was 500 won in 1966.(38) I like to point out here that only the author's estimate of North Korea's per capita gross national product is compatible with this 500 won figure. North Korea's conception of national income calls for the balance of the aggregate value of all goods produced in all economic sectors other than nonproductive sectors minus the value of intermediate input and depreciation amount.(39) Therefore, national income or per capita national income as conceived by North Korea should be smaller than the ordinary conception of gross national product or per capita gross national product which includes the added value in nonproductive sectors and depreciation amount. However, North Korea's per capita gross national product of 1966, which is calculated on the basis of existing estimates shown in Table 10 or on the basis of other existing estimates, is lower than the national income of the same year. Only the figure of the author's computation--572 won--is slightly over the officially published figure.

III. Conclusion

In the above, I presented a method of estimating North Korea's gross national product, calculated on the basis of the phase of distribution, expressed in terms of ordinary currency value of won, and the actual figures computed on the basis of that method.

Regardless of the method of estimating, the time sequence of North Korea's gross national product expressed in terms of ordinary currency value of won is not much of use by itself. For example, in order to obtain the economic growth rate of North Korea, it is imperative for us to obtain even the commodity price index of North Korea. And, if one wants to compare the gross national product of North Korea with our country or any other country, one must know at least the exchange rate between the purchasing power of North Korean currency and that of the third country's currency. However, no data have been available so far to us regarding the commodity price index of North Korea and the exchange rate between the purchasing power of North Korean currency and that of the third country's currency. Therefore, we must be very careful if we try to estimate North Korea's economic growth or relative economic strength by means of the gross national product of North Korea computed above in this paper.

4. In North Korea, they understand that material richness and national income are not created by state management, education, science, arts, public health, management of public facilities, commerce, passenger transportation, and postal services serving the people; therefore, they call these the economic activities in the nonproductive field. On the other hand, they understand that national income is created by transportation of goods, postal services serving production, packing, selection, and custody--all services directly related to the process of producing goods; therefore, these are included in the economic activities in the productive field. In general, the "cost" in the North Korean concept includes expenses of all intermediate input materials which include productive services, depreciation expense, wage, and the social insurance premium paid by enterprises to the central government organization.

15. In the case of the Soviet Union, when the prices of the goods being transacted in the collective farm markets are higher than the prices of the goods of the same kind being transacted in the state-operated stores, the government renders control to set the price ceiling. In case of North Korea, nothing is known about this.

16. One can guess that there is a process of circulation of goods and services through black markets even in North Korea, in addition to these nine lawful processes of circulation. However, there is no way of knowing the value added that is produced through black market transactions: it is not to be considered in estimating the gross national product of North Korea.

17. This means that the expenses for all products are to be applied to the total amount of product of the enterprises of cooperative organizations from which the wages in kind are subtracted.

18. Part of the social insurance premium is paid by the beneficiary. Ibid., Vol 2, p 8.

19. See "Net income of enterprises" on p 325 of Ibid., Vol 1.

20. Ibid.

21. In North Korea and other socialist countries, the total amount exclusively of material production is called the global social product. Ibid., Vol 2, p 133.

22. In order to understand the reason why it is unsatisfactory to estimate the gross national product of North Korea on the basis of the phase of expenditure, see Ch'oe Chu-hwan, "Calculation of GNP of North Korea: Approach on the Basis of Expenditure," in T'ONGIL CHONGCH'AEK, Vol 4, No 1, 1978 pp 46-66; and the author's article, "A Method of Estimating GNP of North Korea--Development of New Methods and Criticism on Existing Methods," in KONGSANKWON KYONGJE TONGHYANG, Vol 1, No 3, May 1981 pp 1-20.

23. Regarding the existing method of estimating GNP of North Korea on the basis of the phase of distribution and the errors of that method, see the author's article cited above, pp 10-15; Pukhan Yon'guso, "North Korea's Economy," Seoul: Pukhan Yon'guso, 1977 pp 261-326; Kim Yong-kyu, "North Korea's Method of Computation," in T'ONGIL CHONGCH'AEK, Vol 6, No 3-4 (1980) pp 150-175.

24. This is part of residual income of enterprises of cooperative organizations. It is not such an income as would be decided by a certain wage rate, like the wage of general workers.

25. See "Decision of Enlarged Session of Political Committee of the Central Committee of North Korea's Workers Party, dated 7 January 1963."

26. Based on the data obtained by research organizations of the ROK.

27. Choson Chungang T'ongsinsa, "Choson chungang yon'gam" or "Korean Central Yearbook," P'yongyang: Choson Chungang T'ongsinsa, 1971, p 248; 1972 ed, p 351; 1973 ed, p 280; and 1974 ed, p 244.

28. In its 6-Year Plan that went into effect in 1971, North Korea announced that the monthly average wage will be raised up to 90 won in 1976. In 1975, it again said that the monthly average wage will be at the 90 won level. But, it seems that this did not happen. If, in 1976 or afterwards, the monthly average wage was raised up to 90 won, one cannot think of any special reason why North Korean authorities did not publicize the increase in workers' income. Choson Chungang T'ongsinsa, Yearbook cited above, 1975 ed, p 406.

29. According to the data obtained by the research organizations of the ROK, the number of members of cooperative farms occupied over 42 percent of the population employed, while others employed occupied less than 14 percent of the population employed.

30. In the case of North Korea, which introduced the cooperative farm system later than the Soviet Union, there is a great possibility that North Korea will have greater income difference in the same year. Therefore, even on the basis of such an assumption as this, discrepancies in estimation would be lessened, if the income of civilians employed be underestimated rather than be estimated without that.

31. According to the revenue of North Korea's budget for the year of 1949, data of which were obtained by research organizations of the ROK, the social insurance premium occupied 3 percent of the total budget revenue.

LET US GO FORWARD TO ATTAIN TO THE END THE CHUCHE REVOLUTIONARY CAUSE THAT BEGAN UNDER THE 'T.D.' BANNER

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 2-10

[Text] It is the 55th anniversary of the formation of Down-With-Imperialism Union [T.D.--T'ado Chegukchuui Tongmaeng] that marked a new beginning of the Korean revolution.

It was a historic proclamation heralding a new start of our revolution that in October 1926 the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song had formed the Donw-With-Imperialism Union under a farsighted plan to energetically move the Korean revolution forward, a revolution laden with twists and turns, under the banner of sovereignty.

With the formation of the Down-With-Imperialism Union our people came to have a genuine communist revolutionary organization of their own and launch their struggle on the principle of independent stand and attitude, and the Korean revolution came to embark on the road of glory to attaining the lofty chuche cause.

From the time of formation of the "T.D." the Korean communist movement and the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle came to chart the road to majestic development under a genuine vanguard organization, and our party and revolution began striking their deep, viable roots.

That the great leader Comrade KimIl-song, breaking all the extant conceptions, had illuminated for the first time the road of sovereignty, the road of the "T.D." was truly a historic event that brought about a basic turnaround in our revolution.

Our people, by dynamically moving forward following the banner of sovereignty, the flag of the "T.D." held aloft by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, had been able to chart the one road of victory and glory breaking through the most formidable trials and barriers in modern history.

The Korean revolution, making its start by striking its viable roots in the "T.D.," had won great victories on the road of attaining the cause of national liberation, class liberation, and has today reached the high stage of comprehensively realizing the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people under the slogan for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

The chuche revolutionary cause which, charted in the Paektu forests, has walked a road of glory, is being hastened more energetically today by the consummate, tested leadership of our party, and on the road ahead for it an infinitely bright future looms.

Our people, looking back with high pride on the glorious history of the past 50-plus years, are reaffirming more firmly their resolve of loyalty to attain to the end generation after generation, forever loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the guidance of the party, the chuche cause which began under the banner of the "T.D."

The Chuche Cause Is the Most Sacred Cause of Our Era

Our people's revolutionary cause, the chuche cause, is the great communist revolutionary cause of our era charted by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

A hundred and several score years have passed since the working class entered the stage of history and the communist movement began. In that period the labor movement and the communist movement have steadily developed on a worldwide scale, and great strides have been made in the sacred struggle for national liberation, class liberation. Our people's revolutionary cause, the chuche revolutionary cause, because of its lofty idea and objective, is radiating radiant rays for the human liberation cause.

The chuche revolutionary cause is the most sacred cause which, holding the immortal chuche ideology as the guiding principle and brilliantly embodying it, goes forward to comprehensively realize the sovereign rights of the nation and the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people and brilliantly work out the communist future, the supreme ideal of mankind.

The entire journey in which our revolution was charted and developed has been a process of embodying the chuche ideology in the realities, a travel of rewarding struggle for the comprehensive victory of the chuche ideology. Chuche is the life of the Korean revolution, and chuche and our people's revolutionary cause are inseparably linked together as one. Precisely this is why our people proudly call the Korean revolution the chuche revolutionary cause.

Embodying the immortal chuche ideology and comprehensively realizing the independent stand and attitude of the masses of working people on the loftiest plane is where the inherent revolutionary nature of the chuche cause is, where its greatness is.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"All revolutionary struggle may be regarded, in a word, as struggle to cast off class or national enslavement, as struggle of the masses of people to protect their independent stand and attitude." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 6, pp 273-274)

Greatness of a revolutionary cause lies in how deeply it reflects and embodies the independent aim and demand of the masses of working people.

Man is a social being holding his independent stand and attitude as life. Independent stand and attitude is the inherent social attribute of man intent on casting off enslavement and constraint in all forms and living as the master of his own destiny. From his independent aim and demand it is the mode of living of man to struggle to protect and realize his independent stand and attitude.

Mankind has yearned over a long period of time for an independent and creative life. But in the class society such aim and aspiration of mankind could in no way be realized and it had remained a mere dream.

Of course the thinkers championing a variety of contemporary forces had interpreted this way or that way the question of the destiny of social beings.

Certain people claimed that it was possible to seek true human living by recognizing "the providence of god" and becoming the servants of "god" while others claimed that human destiny was preordained and as such, could not be changed or cast off. All such views had reflected the interests of the exploiting class.

Even in the case of progressive thinkers who sympathized with the plight of the oppressed and exploited masses of people and sought a way out for their freedom, liberation, and happiness, had been unable, because of failure to precisely understand the inherent attributes of social beings, to present it as the basic question of revolution to comprehensively realize the independent stand and attitude of the masses of working people and go forward to correctly solve it.

The centuries-old aspiration of mankind to find a true road to providing an independent and creative life for social beings was reserved for brilliant realization by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who has founded the chuche ideology and charted the chuche revolutionary cause.

The chuche cause charted by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song illuminates the true road to national liberation, class liberation, human liberation, and teaches the road to comprehensively realizing the independent stand and attitude of the masses of working people on the loftiest plane.

The greatness of the chuche cause is none other than the greatness of the chuche ideology. The immortal chuche ideology is a man-centered world view and a revolutionary theory aimed at realizing the independent stand and attitude of the masses of working people. The chuche ideology is a great revolutionary thought which, placing the masses of people, the subject of history, at the center of the world, goes forward to comprehensively embody their independent aim and demand.

The chuche cause--because it is a cause which, holding the immortal chuche ideology as the guiding principle, goes forward to embody it--most thoroughly protects the aspiration and interest of the masses of working people and goes forward to brilliantly realize them.

The chuche cause, giving it prominence as the basic objective of revolution to realize the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people, brilliantly realize the task of liberating them from racial and class domination and enslavement, and deepening revolution in all aspects of social life, makes people genuinely enjoy a truly independent and creative life. Making the masses of working people become the genuine master of society and nature and enjoy an independent and creative life to the heart's content free from any constraint in their ideomental life and in their material and cultural life is precisely where the intrinsic characteristics of the chuche cause are.

The greatness of the chuche revolutionary cause also lies in that it is a lofty cause going forward to carry out the revolutionary struggle relying on the inexhaustible strength and creative positiveness of the masses of working people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"The masses of people are the master of revolution and construction and are in direct charge of them. The success or failure of revolution and construction depends, in the final analysis, on how the creativity of the masses of people is mobilized." ("Answers to Questions Posed by Foreign Journalsits," Vol 2, p 25)

The masses of working people are the subject of history and the driving force for social development. It is the masses of people who transform nature and develop society; it is also the masses of people who create material wealth and develop culture. Apart from the masses of people there could be no society, and without the role of the masses of people there could be no advance of history.

Consequently, in order to successfully carry out revolution and construction, it is imperative to ceaselessly enhance the position and creative role of the masses of people who are in direct charge of them. Only then will it be possible to energetically move the revolutionary struggle and construction tasks forward, maximally promoting the consciousness and revolutionary fervor of the masses of people as befits the master.

In what position to place the masses of working people and how to enhance their role is one of the basic questions influencing the success or failure of the revolutionary struggle.

The chuche revolutionary cause, breaking the outdated viewpoint considering the masses of people merely as the targets of history, views them as the genuine master making history, as the basic driving force for revolution and construction, and goes forward to carry out the revolutionary struggle and construction tasks, maximally enhancing their role.

In bygone days many people used to regard that it is an illustrious emperor or a select minority collective who shapes history and inspires social progress while viewing the masses of people as no more than enervated beings meekly obeying its will and demand.

Even in the case of people who had spoken about the strength of the masses of people, because of failure to have a correct understanding of man's position and role in the world, they were unable to correctly resolve the basic way to push ahead with revolution and construction, enhancing the creative wisdom and role of the masses. They had examined the role of the masses of people on a limited scale within the confines of given objective conditions, material condictions. From this, they had frequently considered technical job performance factors more important than the role of the masses of people in revolution and construction.

As revolutionary practice shows, by such method it is impossible to highly inspire the creative positiveness of the masses of people and in consequence, to successfully carry out the difficult and complex revolutionary struggle.

Only in the chuche revolutionary cause being guided by the immortal chuche ideology has it become possible to maximally enhance the position and role of the masses of people as the master of revolution and construction, precisely solve the question of the basic way to promote their revolutionary fervor and creative positiveness to the hilt and go forward to correctly embody them.

The chuche revolutionary cause, starting from the chuche revolutionary principle that the master of the revolution and construction is the masses of people and that the driving force for revolution and construction also resides in the masses of people, ceaselessly enhances the creative role of the masses and makes them go forward to independently, creatively solve all questions arising in remaking nature and society. Precisely herein lies one of the important characteristics of the chuche cause.

The greatness of the chuche cause also lies in that it is a world historic cause infinitely faithful to the sovereignty cause of the people of the world.

The revolutionary struggle of the working class is conducted on a nation-state basis. The revolution of each country is nationalist and at the same time constitutes a part of the world revolution.

In consequence, the revolutionary struggle of the working class is struggle to realize the aim and demand of the people of each country, and it is closely connnected with the struggle of the people of the world to attain their sovereignty cause. The revolutionary struggle of the people of each country is in the relationship of supporting and complementing each other and converges into the one stream known as the world revolution.

Inasmuch as the chuche revolutionary cause is a cause to comprehensively realize the chuche ideology which is a great revolutionary theory aimed at realizing the independent stand and attitude of the masses of working people, it is a cause equally faithful to the national duty and international duty of the working class.

Our people have energetically moved our revolution forward by brilliantly embodying the chuche ideology and through it, made immortal contributions to the revolutionary cause of the people of the world struggling for their independent stand and attitude.

The extraordinarily many-sided and infinitely abundant experiences and achievements our party and people have scored on the road of attaining the chuche cause constitute precious revolutionary heritages for the cause of national liberation, class liberation, human liberation, and inspire the fighting people to struggle and victory. Thus our people's revolutionary cause constitutes a genuine model for uniquely charting the road of revolution in the varying developmental stages of subordinate colonial states from the liberation struggle to socialist, communist construction.

In this manner the chuche cause is a great revolutionary cause which is making immortal contributions that will be eternally shining in the history of the human liberation struggle, attaining precious achievements and experiences which have universal significance in successfully solving all questions presented by the revolution and construction of our era.

Great Leadership for the Attainment of the Chuche Revolutionary Cause

Under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song the chuche revolutionary cause which started from the "T.D." has come far along the road of victory and glory for the past one-half century.

The road the Korean revolution has walked has been a rugged one without parallel in history, an unfamiliar one never before walked by anyone.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who formed the Down-With-Imperialism Union under a farsighted plan to move our revolution forward under the banner of sovereignty in that formidable period when the fate of the nation had hung in the balance, provided a firm guarantee for the victorious forward movement of the chuche revolutionary cause by enunciating the chuche-oriented line of the Korean revolution and solidly organizing a core unit of the revolution with a large number of fresh communists of the younger generation.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, by organizing armed ranks with communists of the younger generation as the core and declaring a great anti-Japanese war on robber Japanese imperialism and leading it to victory, had developed our country's national liberation movement onto a new higher stage and attained the historic cause of fatherland restoration, putting an end to the history of national sufferings.

The victory of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle and the realization of national liberation organized and led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song--this was a historic event that opened up a turning point for a new turnaround on the road of attaining the chuche revolutionary cause in our country.

After liberation the Korean revolution, on account of the peculiar internal and external situations surrounding it, had to clear a difficult and complex road. Our people, in a very backward position stemming from the Japanese imperialist colonial rule, and even worse, in a state of the country dichotomized into the North and South and direct confrontation with U.S. imperialism, the mastermind of world reaction, had to launch the struggle to build a new society.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, based on the historical roots of our revolution, the glorious anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition even in such difficult and complex environment, brilliantly attained the party-founding, nation-founding cause and successfully completed the task of the anti-imperialist, antifeudal democratic revolution.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, rehabilitating the destroyed economy on empty ground in a short period of time after the war, erected the most superior socialist system in this land and brilliantly accomplished the historic task of socialist industrialization.

The establishment of the socialist system and the realization of socialist industrialization in our country were a great historic event that solidly provided socioeconomic conditions and material foundations for the attainment of the chuche revolutionary cause. With victory of the socialist revolution and brilliant realization of the historic task of industrialization, came to be provided in the northern half of the republic sound self-reliant economic foundations making it possible to establish the most superior social system where the working masses are the master of everything and everything serves the masses of working people and to comprehensively guarantee an independent and creative life for the working masses. Thus our country, which had even lost its identity in the backward ranks of history in bygone days, has been transformed into a dignified, energetic socialist power self-dependent in politics, self-supporting in economics, and self-reliant in national defense.

Under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song our revolution through the awesome struggle for independence, sovereignty, socialist construction has scaled the high peak overlooking the comprehensive realization of the tasks of the three revolutions--ideological, technological, and cultural--and the complete victory of socialism near at hand.

The prideful one-half century journey from the time the beginning of our revolution was marked to the present represents prideful chronicles of having added luster to national sovereign rights, dinity, and glory, embodying the lofty idea of sovereignty under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Truly, the energetic leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song who, personally shouldering all the heavy burdens of revolution, has sagaciously led our people at the helm, has been the decisive guarantee for all of the victories of our revolution. Apart from the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song the dignity and ever-victorious might of our party as well as the infinitely growing and prospering socialist fatherland and the independent, creative life our people enjoy today are absolutely unthinkable. Everything beautiful and dear in this land has all been provided by the sagacious leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and by the indefatigable effort exerted by the leader.

The chuche revolutionary cause which began early on in the "T.D." and has walked the road of victory and glory, is more dynamically moving forward today on a new higher stage under the consummate, tested leadership of our party.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Our party is General Staff of the Korean revolution, the organizer and inspirer of all victories of our people. The victory or defeat of the Korean revolution and the destiny of our people entirely hinge on our party." (Booklet "Summing-Up Report on the Work of the Central Committee to the Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party," p 110)

Our party is a guiding force leading the entire people confidently along the one road of victory and glory, assuming full responsibility for all questions large and small of the Korean revolution and for today's life and tommorow's destiny of our people.

It is by our party that great blueprints for revolutionary transformations of our country are prepared and that the heroic feats of our people make history.

Today our party, holding it as its lofty mission to attain to the end the revolutionary cause charted by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, is energetically leading the struggle for the attainment.

Most important in the leadership of our party for the attainment of the chuche cause is that, resolutely protecting the revolutionary thought of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, it is going forward to brilliantly embody it in all areas of revolution and construction.

The process of building socialism, communism is essentially a process of struggle to defend and embody the thought of the leader who has first charted the road of revolution.

Our party, presenting it as a basic question bearing on the destiny of the Korean revolution to protect, defend, and thoroughly embody the revolutionary thought of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, is sagaciously leading the way in making none but the leader's revolutionary thought, the chuche ideology, firmly prevail in the whole society.

Our party has formalized the revolutionary thought of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song into a system of the thought, theory, and method of chuche and enunciated that the leader's revolutionary thought is a great revolutionary thought representing the entire historical epoch of our time and the communist future. Thus the greatness and unqiueness of the respected and beloved leader's revolutionary thought and its historical position have come to be more graphically delineated and it has become possible for it to radiate radiant rays as the guiding thought of revolution not only today but eternally in the future as well. This constitutes a great event in the developing history of advanced thoughts of mankind and another great service rendered in the history of the revolutionary struggle of the working class defending and carrying forward its leader's thought and cause.

The program set forth by our party for converting the whole society to the chuche ideology has epochal significance in resolutely defending the great leader's revolutionary thought and attaining the chuche revolutionary cause to the end. With the militant program set forth for converting the whole society to the chuche ideology, the basic strategic goal and basic way to attain the chuche cause have come to be graphically enunciated and brighter prospects opened up on the road ahead for our people to attaining the chuche revolutionary cause.

By the energetic ideotheoretical activities and positive struggle of our party going forward to comprehensively embody the great chuche ideology the treasure chest of the chuche ideology is being ceaselessly enriched and the farsighted plan and intent of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song are being more admirably embodied in the revolutionary struggle and construction tasks.

Also important in the leadership of our party aimed at attaining the chuche revolutionary cause is that it is resolutely protecting, defending, and brilliantly carrying forward and developing the revolutionary tradition, which is the cornerstone and historical roots of our party and revolution.

To carry forward and develop the revolutionary tradition is a principled demand arising in attaining to the end the revolutionary cause charted by the leader and a basic question influencing the destinies of the party and the revolution.

The party of the working class, only when defending, brilliantly carrying forward and developing the revolutionary tradition, can attain the leader's revolutionary cause generation after generation to the end.

Our party, which is going forward to brilliantly attain the great leader's revolutionary cause, presenting the question of carrying forward and developing the revolutionary tradition as a vital question influencing the destiny of the revolution, is sagaciously leading the way in thoroughly protecting, defending, brilliantly carry forward and developing the politicoideological purity of the revolutionary tradition achieved by the leader.

Our party, comprehensively and profoundly enunciating all the theoretical and practical questions arising in carrying forward and developing the revolutionary tradition and by leading the way in defending and developing, the purity intact, the anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition achieved by the great leader, is making it possible for the chuche revolutionary cause to move forward, drawing endless energy and nutrients from its viable roots.

With indoctrination in the revolutionary tradition broadly and deeply conducted by the tested leadership of the party, the Paektu revolutionary spirit is dynamically prevailing in the entire party and the whole society, and all party members and working people are stepping up revolution and construction with the Anti-Japanese Guerrillas style work method.

To thoroughly defend and further consolidate like bedrock the politicoideological unity and resolutionary solidarity of the whole party and the entire people achieved by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song constitutes an important part of the content of our party's leadership to attain the chuche cause to the end.

To thoroughly consolidate the unity and solidarity of the revolutionary ranks based on the leader's revolutionary thought is the most crucial question arising throughout the period of attaining the revolutionary cause. Under conditions that the revolution takes on a long term nature and arduousness, only if the unity and solidarity of the ranks is defended from generation to generation is it possible to attain the revolutionary cause to the end.

Our party has always directed priority attention to firmly defending and consolidating airtight the unity and solidarity of the whole party and the entire people based on the chuche ideology and ceaselessly strengthened this task.

Our party, presenting the conversion of the entire party to the chuche ideology as the precondition, as the basic key to the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, is energetically leading the way in tightly grasping, as the main line of party work, the task of establishing the unitary ideology system within the party and ceaselessly deepening it. Thus our revolutionary ranks have been thoroughly organized into the ranks of genuine chuche-oriented revolutionaries infinitely loyal to the party and the leader, and the unity of ideological will and solidarity of the whole party and the entire people have come to be further consolidated airtight on a new higher stage.

Today the unity and solidarity of our party and people is becoming the most pure and solid crystallization because it is deeply rooted in the immortal chuche ideology and based on the purest and cleanest of loyalty to the party and the leader.

Within our party is firmly established an orderly work system and work method capable of brilliantly realizing the leadership of the party, along with a revolutionary discipline and order, and is prevailing the revolutionary ethos of all party organizations and party members moving in union in accordance with the intent of the party. Thus the entire party and the whole society have been solidly consolidated as monoaxial revolutionary ranks moving forward firmly united around the party and the leader under the revolutionary guidance of the Party Central Committee. This constitutes the source of invincible strength capable of thoroughly defending and attaining the chuche cause to the end under the leadership of our party.

By the leadership of our party which is launching all tasks in a big way with extraordinary revolutionary launching power, setting forth a ceaseless high goal and magnificent strategy, an unprecedented upsurge is being brought about in all areas of socialist economic and cultural construction and a great change is occurring in the historic task of remaking the economy and culture in accordance with the demands of chuche.

Amid the dynamic march of speed battle our chuche-oriented self-reliant eocnomic foundations have been incomparably strengthened, countless monumental creations of the workers party era have sprouted, and the heyday of chuche arts has been ushered in. Thus the might of our country has been solidly consolidated into the invincible in all of the political, economic, and military areas, and a powerful ideological and material guarantee provided in the struggle of our people for the attainment of the chuche cause.

On the road of attaining the chuche revolutionry cause the 1970's has been a historic period filled to the brim with events of profound significance indeed.

In the period a revolutionary turnaround has occurred in party work and party activity under the tested leadership of the party, and people's ideomental features and society's face have changed beyond recognition.

The entire party and the whole society are filled to overflowing with the enthusiasm of loyalty to the party and the leader; amid the march of speed battle the revolutionary cause of our people has advanced at an extraordinarily fast pace; a new era of unprecedented national prosperity and growth has come to be unfurled in this land of the fatherland.

Today our party glories as a militant party possessing invincible might and leadership art in victoriously charting the road ahead for the times and the revolution, assuming full responsibility for the destiny of our people, and thanks to the tested leadership of the party, our people's revolutionary cause, the chuche cause, has come to move forward confidently toward a brighter future.

Our party's sixth congress held last October constitutes a new milestone in the struggle for the attainment of the chuche cause.

The historic Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party, summing up with high pride the brilliant victories and achievements scored by our party, unfurled bright blueprints for our people to attain the chuche cause to the end. Through the Sixth Party Congress the authority and prestige of our party has become even more enhanced and the unity and solidarity of the whole party and the entire people extraordinarily strengthened.

Today our party, because of the immortal achievements it has compiled before the fatherland and the people, commands the absolute trust and support of the entire people.

Such absolute trust of our people in the party is an indeflectible revolutioanry creed formed in the course of clearing the formidable road of struggle together with the party to attaining the chuche cause and consolidated through living experience. The party believes in the people, and the people absolutely trust and follow the party, and the party and the people, becoming one, dynamically move forward--this is the revolutionary feature of our society, and precisely herein lies a firm guarantee for the ultimate victory of the chuche revolutionary cause.

Let Us Go Forward to Attain the Chuche Revolutionary Cause to the End, Following the Guidance of the Party

The chuche revolutionary cause which began under the banner of the "T.D." is dynamically moving forward on a new higher level under the sagacious leadership of our party.

Our people take great pride and self-esteem in the foundations for the ages they have laid breaking through trials and barriers, for the attainment of the chuche cause. But our struggle has not yet ended, and before us still remain heavy and crucial revolutionary tasks.

Loyally upholding the magnificent program set forth by the historic Sixth Congress of the KWP, we must achieve the independent reunification of the fatherland and the complete victory of socialism at the earliest possible date and energetically advance the historic cause for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

We cannot afford to stop the struggle until ultimately attaining the glorious chuche revolutionary cause nor can we step aside from the road of revolution as long as imperialism remains.

In order to attain to the end the chuche revolutionary cause which began under the "T.D." banner, we must dynamically move forward forever loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the guidance of the party.

Forever loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is where the true road to victoriously moving our revolution forward and winning its ultimate attainment is.

Just as in the early period of the anti-Japanese revolution Korea's young communists loyally attended the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song unswervingly amid trials and adversities, however formidable, we must acquit ourselves fully of our loyalty to the respected and beloved leader wherever, whenever, to the end.

In order to possess loyalty to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, loyalty turned into creed, we must hold a revolutionary leader view. Only if we hold a correct revolutioanry leader view can we, undaunted whatever the trial and adversity, engrave loyalty to the great leader in our hearts as a firm revolutionary creed.

Day in and day out of the unprecedentedly arduous anti-Japanese revolution wherein at every step of the way they had to cross the death line and cut their way through the enemy's ranks Korea's young communists were able to fight with but one heart of loyalty, undaunted even amid such formidable trials. This they could do because they held a genuine revolutionary leader view.

All of our party members and working people, emulating that lofty mental world of the late anti-Japanese revolutionary fighters, must forever loyally revere the great leader with the purest and cleanest of hearts and struggle, giving their all, to attain the chuche cause charted by the leader.

To firmly insure the leadership of the party is a most important guarantee for going forward to brilliantly attain the chuche cause, following the road charted by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"The thought and leadership of our party get embodied under the revolutionary guidance of the Party Central Committee, and revolution and construction, too, only under the precise guidance of the party can move forward along the straight road of victory and get completed to the end." (Ibid., p 111)

The leadership of the party for revolution and construction gets realized through the Party Central Committee, and the revolutionary guidance of the party is aimed at none other than thoroughly embodying the thought and leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song partywide and societywide.

By dynamically moving forward following the tested leadership of the party in the future just as in the past we must go forward to unswervingly defend the chuche character of our party and hasten the ultimate victory of our glorious chuche cause.

In order to struggle to the end for the attainment of the chuche cause under the leadership of the party, we must hold a resolute stand and firm creed to share life and death, joys and sorrows alike with the party, completely entrusting all destinies to the party.

Only if our creed to share destiny with the party is thorough and firm can we struggle to the end for the victory of the chuche cause, following the guidance of the party.

The political creed of a revolutionary to dedicate himself to the party and the revolution must be forever unswerving whether in a smooth environment or in a period of difficult trials. If the revolutionaries are to walk the arduous road of revolution resolutely throughout their lives, they must be pure ideologically and their political creed must be firm. Today the political creed which our party members and working people must engrave in their hearts is lofty loyalty intent on firmly believing and following none but the party and the leader and dedicating their lives to the cause of the party and the leader.

All party members and working people, with a view to protecting and defending the absolute authority and prestige of the party in every possible way, must go forward to stoutly fight on the one road of revolution our party teaches, unshaken in the slightest wherever, whatever winds may blow.

We must learn by experience, thoroughly protect and defend, and keep ceaselessly adding luster to the precious achievements scored by the tested leadership of our party day and day out of providing a decisive turnaround in attaining the chuche cause under the slogan for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

It constitutes a historic event in strengthening and developing ours into a forever chuche-oriented party and attaining the chuche revolutionary cause ultimately that the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party has been thoroughly consolidated. This is the most precious achievement our party and people have scored on the road of attaining the chuche cause. It constitutes a basic question in further strengthening the might of our party and winning the ultimate victory of the chuche cause to protect the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party like the apple of the eye. To the party members and working people, there is no task more important than to resolutely guard and consolidate this precious gain from generation to generation.

All party organizations and functionaries, loyally upholding the guidelines for converting the entire party to the chuche ideology, must thoroughly organize the party ranks into the quintessential ranks of the revolution infinitely loyal to the party and the leader and go forward to conduct party construction, party activity thoroughly in accordance with the demands of the thought, theory, and method of chuche.

Putting it up front as a strategic task which must be tightly grasped perpetually in party construction to consolidate the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party even more solidly like bedrock, we must go forward to energetically launch the task to even more thoroughly establish partywide and societywide the unitary ideology system of the party as well as a steely discipline and revolutionary order under which the entire party moves in unison.

All party members and working people must more thoroughly establish the revolutionary ethos of resolutely protecting and defending the party and unconditionally accepting and carrying through the decisions and directives of the party to the end.

At the same time, it is imperative to consolidate the unity and solidarity of the party another notch based on the chuche ideology and make the entire party and the whole society think and move in unison in tune with the wavelength of the party.

As long as there is the presence of the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song leading revolution and construction along the ever-victorious one road, as long as there is the presence of our party possessing invincible might, as long as there is the presence of our people infinitely loyal to the party and the leader, our revolutionary cause shall always be victorious.

THE IMMORTAL ACHIEVEMENT THAT HAS CHARTED A NEW MARCH ROUTE OF THE KOREAN REVOLUTION

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 11-15

[Article by U Tal-ho]

[Text] In the long period of over one-half century from the time the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song formed the Down-With-Imperialism Union marking the beginning of the Korean revolution, our people have walked the one road of victory and glory.

The entire journey of our revolution filled to the brim with historic events without parallel and changes of the century has been a prideful travel in which it has triumphed and advanced, holding the immortal chuche ideology as the guiding principle and comprehensively embodying it in our revolutionary practice along the glorious road charted by the "T.D."

Our revolution which began its historic march under the "T.D." banner is today dynamically moving forward on a new higher stage of converting the whole society to the chuche ideology.

Our people, commemorating in a meaningful manner the 55th anniversary of the formation of Down-With-Imperialism Union, look back with a great national pride and self-esteem, with deep emotions on the immortal revolutionary achievements of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and are filled to the brim with a firm resolve to attain to the end the chuche revolutionary cause which began with the formation of the "T.D."

The formation of Down-With-Imperialism Union by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a great event that charted a new march route of the Korean revolution.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"The formation of Down-With-Imperialism Union, the first genuine communist revolutionary organization in our country, was a historic proclamation heralding a new start of our revolution. From the time Down-With-Imperialism Union was formed, the revolutionary struggle of our people came to be waged based on the principle of independent stand and attitude; and precisely from that time on, the glorious roots of our party began to be struck." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 7, p 258)

The Down-With-Imperialism Union formed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was the first genuine communist revolutionary organization in our country.

From the time the Down-With-Imperialism Union was formed the revolutionary struggle of our people came to usher in a new era of a great historic turnaround.

The Down-With-Imperialism, by loyally attending the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader, as the sun of the nation, and loyally upholding the sagacious leadership of the leader, went forward to chart a new march route of the Korean revolution. Precisely herein lies the immortal achievement compiled by the Down-With-Imperialism Union for the Korean revolution.

The leader plays the decisive role in the course of history and the revolutionary struggle of the working class.

The illustrious leader of the working class is the supreme brain behind the revolution and the center for unity and solidarity. The destiny of a nation and victory or defeat of the revolution depend on whether or not they have a sagacious leader to attend. The history of the communist movement shows that the masses of people, only if they attend an illustrious leader, can chart a straight road of victory for the revolution otherwise they cannot escape failures, twists and turns.

In the early 1920's, when the fate of the country and the nation hung in the balance, our people had launched various kinds of struggle against the Japanese imperialist colonial rule. Mindful patriots and angry people had vigorously launched into the anti-Japanese struggle, shouting "long live independence!" The workers had gone on strike, the peasants had disputed the tenancy system, and the youth and students, goin on strike, had stepped forward to resist the Japanese imperialist colonial rule. But to our people there had been no leader to lead their struggle along a correct road and no center for uniting even though they had wanted to unite, and on account of this, they had been condemned to repeat miserable failures and heartrending sacrifices in all struggles.

Immersed in flunkeyism and dogmatism, the activists of the early communist movement had indulged in empty words instead of thinking of leading the revolutionary struggle of the people and made it an occupation to wage factional fights. Organizing factions such as the M.L. faction, the Tuesday faction, and the North Wind Society faciton into 3-man parties and 5-man factions and up to their ears in expanding their spheres of influence and in seizing "leadership right," they had split the communist movement every which way, driving the revolution into great chaos.

Thus our country's early communist movement and national liberation movement, for want of the leadership of an illustrious leader had failed to set a clearly defined goal or to unite the masses of people and launch through goal consciousness the sacred task of national liberation, class liberation.

Our country's early communist movement and national liberation movement had left behind the incisive lesson that only if our people loyally attended an illustrious leader and received the sagacious leadership of the leader could they win victory in the revolutionary struggle, avoiding all kinds of failures, twists and turns. To loyally attend a great leader and receive the leadership of the leader was a crucial question bearing on the destiny of the revolution, and our people had been thirsting for the emergence of an illustrious leader.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, personally shouldering the urgent demands of the times and the destinies of the fatherland and the nation, positioned himself at the helm of the revolution and formed the Down-With-Imperialism Union on 17 October 1926 with Korea's genuine communists of the younger generation. Precisely from that time on our people who had been anxiously waiting for a sagacious leader amid the misfortunes of a ruined country began to loyally attend the great leader for the first time, and in our country a new era was ushered in that the revolution triumphs and advances under the leadership of the leader.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union, the first genuine communist revolutionary organization in our country, was a genuine revolutionary political organization for realizing the leadership of the respected and beloved leader, holding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary thought, the immortal chuche ideology, as the guiding principle.

With the Down-With-Imperialism Union formed under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the Korean revolution became able to dynamically move forward along a correct road with a most correct guiding principle.

To have a correct guiding thought in the revolutionary struggle of the working class is the key question influencing the victory or defeat of the revolution. The revolutionary struggle of the working class, only if it has a guiding thought illuminating the road ahead for the times and a correct struggle program based thereon, can victoriously move forward without any tilting, twist and turn.

A correct guiding thought of the revolution in our country came to be most precisely enunciated by the immortal chuche ideology founded by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The immortal chuche ideology founded by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a great thought giving the most revolutionary, scientific world view, a unitarily correct guiding principle for revolution and construction.

With the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song founding the immortal chuche ideology, a new guiding thought and forming the Down-With-Imperialism Union, a revolutionary organization for the realization, our people came to have a revolution's vanguard organization for the first time in their history of struggle.

Thus the fresh communists of the younger generation and the masses of people were able to dynamically move our country's revolution forward on a new track, thoroughly armed with the chuche-oriented revolutionary world view, the unitary guiding thought of the Korean revolution, free from the influence of factionalism, flunkeyism and dogmatism which had inflicted great harm on the Korean revolution.

The program of the "T.D." set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song based on the immortal chuche ideology was an imperishable revolutionary banner brightly illuminating the road ahead for our revolution.

The "T.D." program, reflecting our country's socioeconomic circumstances and class relations, and the aim of the masses of people, set it forth as an immediate struggle task to crush Japanese imperialism and achieve the liberation and independence of Korea, and laid it down as the ultimate future task to build socialism, communism in Korea and then, striking down all of imperialism, build communism worldwide.

With the great program of the "T.D." set forth our people became able, with a most correct goal of struggle and way of struggle, to mount a dynamic march toward achieving independence, sovereignty and attaining socialism, communism.

With the Down-With-Imperialism Union formed under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song our people came to chart a new march route of the Korean revolution solidly united around the respected and beloved leader.

If the revolutionary struggle of the working class is to victoriously move forward, it is imperative that it have a correct guiding thought of the revolution and at the same time that there be the solid unity and solidarity of the revolutionary ranks with one thought centered around a great leader.

From the time the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song formed the Down-With-Imperialism Union our people, overcoming the fragmentation of revolutionary forces and loyally revering the great leader as the sun of the nation, as the salvation star of liberation, came to be solidly united around the leader into one political force of unity and solidarity.

The young communists and patriotic people, who had learned by experience with all their hearts the uncommon wisdom, consummate leadership, and noble character of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, came to believe firmly that only by loyally upholding the sagacious leadership of the respected and beloved leader could the Korean revolution dynamically move forward along a straight road of victory.

So it was that the young communists of the younger generation and mindful patriots had converged on where the respected and beloved leader was, crossing the death line from various areas of the country and from overseas tens of thousands of li away, completely entrusted to the leader the destinies of the fatherland and the nation and their own destinies, and firmly resolved to fight, dedicating themselves to the revolutionary cause charted by the great leader.

Thus, as the young communists and patriotic people who, holding a clear revolutionary leader view and firmly united with one ideological will, had deeply engraved in their hearts faithfulness to the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as revolutionary creed and ethics, the unity and solidarity of our revolutionary ranks came to be achieved on a most solid basis, and it became the source of invincible strength dynamically pushing the Korean revolution onto a new march route.

Through the formation of the "T.D." the first ranks of chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries infinitely faithful to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song came to emerge and powerful chuche-oriented revolutionary forces to be provided for steadily moving the chuche revolutionary cause forward. From that time on the conversion of our revolutionary ranks to the chuche ideology began and the glorious roots of our party to be struck.

Rooted in the "T.D.," the first communist revolutionary organization in our country, came into being subsequently an anti-imperilaist youth league, the Korean Communist

Youth League, and with the young communists nurtured and tempered there as the nucleus, the Korean Revolutionary Army and the Anti-Japanese People's Guerrillas were founded and the heroic anti-Japanese armed struggle came to be energetically launched, and amid the flames of that majestic struggle came to be thoroughly laid the organizational ideological cornerstone for the founding of the party.

It was because of the presence of the communist core unit nurtured and tempered in the course of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle that in a timely manner after liberation it was possible to found our party and establish the people's administration and brilliantly carry out the historic task of strengthening and developing the revolutionary armed forces.

Indeed, with the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the helm of the revolution forming the "T.D." our people, holding the immortal chuche ideology as the guiding principle and solidly united around the leader, came to brilliantly usher in a new era of the Korean revolution.

With the Down-With-Imperilaism Union formed under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the Korean revolution also came to embark on a new march route moving forward based on the principle of independent stand and attitude.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"... from the time we were into the latter half of the 1920's, Korea's young communists who had been newly brought up went in among the masses of working people and on an independent stand relying on their strength, began launching the strggle for national liberation and class liberation." (Ibid., p 258)

The independent stand which believes in the strength of the people of one's own country and carries out the revolution of one's own country with one's own strength is a basic stand which the communists must tightly maintain in the revolutionary struggle.

The revolutionary cause of the working class is conducted on a nation-state basis. Therefore, the basic duty of the working class of each country is through and through commendably conducting its country's revolution. The master of the revolution is the people themselves of the country concerned and so is the internal force of the country concerned which is the decisive factor in the victory of the revolution. Therefore, if the working class is to independently carry out the revolution of its country, it must rely on the strength of the masses of people firmly on the independent stand with a heightened awareness of being the master of the revolution.

At that time the Korean revolution had to carry out the task of national liberation and the task of class liberation simultaneously, and that was an arduous and complex revolution which had to chart an unfamiliar road never before walked by anyone.

Such concrete conditions of the Korean revolution had urgently called upon our people to give up dependence on others and launch the revolutionary struggle with their own strength, becoming its master themselves.

But the activists of the early communist movement, immersed in the ideas of dependence on outside forces and in flunkeyism as they were, instead of believing in the strength of the masses of people and going in among the masses of people and organizing and mobilizing them to launch the revolutionary struggle, tried to fight revolution depending on the strength of others, and every one of them went around to get the approval of anyone. The early communist movement, on account of such extreme flunkeyism, was unable to independently move our revolution forward or to escape bitter failures. Only by overcoming such grave weaknesses and limitations of the early communist movement and solving all questions on our own relying on the strength of our own people was it possible to steadily move the Korean revolution forward along a road of victory.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, based on his scientific analysis of the incisive lessons of the preceding nationalist movement and the early communist movement, had charted a new road of revolution altogether unlike the nationalists or the early communists.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, with his uncommon wisdom and scientific insights putting forward the great thought that he who is the master of his destiny is himself and that the strength to work out his destiny also resides in himself, enunciated the truth that one must go in among the masses and struggle relying on their strength and that one must solve one's questions oneself.

The road of independent struggle charted for the first time by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a genuine road of revolution that made it possible to victoriously move forward the Korean revolution which had been going through formidable trials, a most correct road making it possible for oppressed and mistreated people to achieve national and class liberation with their own strength.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union was an independent revolutionary organization moving the Korean revolution forward relying on the strength of our people precisely with the immortal chuche ideology held as the guiding principle.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union was neither an organization formed with the approval of anyone nor an organization moving according to the directive of anyone.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union formulated the revolutionary struggle line, strategy and tactics self-dependently on the independent stand and went forward to solve with its own strength all questions arising in the revolutionary struggle, highly displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance.

With the Down-With-Imperialism Union energetically launching politicoideological indoctrination work among the broad masses and raising their independent consciousness, the broad masses of people with confidence in the justness and victory of their cause went forward to dynamically fight, displaying infinite devotion and sacrificial spirit on the road of the gloriosu revolutionary struggle led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Thus, with the Down-With-Imperialism Union formed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song an end was put to the history of suffering of our revolution which had been going through failures, twists and turns on account of the factional flunkeys who had made it an occupation to engage in factional fights, merely looking to others without their own opinion and belief, and our people came to dynamically take to the Korean revolution's new march route, independent development road, holding their destinies in their own hands.

Truly, formation of the Down-With-Imperialism Union became a historic proclamation heralding the new start of the independently developing Korean revolution loyally revering the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader and following the glorious chuche banner.

In the past period of more than one-half century from the time the great leader Kim Il-song organized the Down-With-Imperialism Union and charted the chuche revolutioanry cause, our revolution has dynamically moved forward along the one road of victory, and a basic turnaround has occurred in the status of our fatherland and people.

The Korean revolution, which began with the "T.D.," steadily advancing while clearing an arduous and formidable road, brilliantly carried out social revolution in two stages in our country, and its dynamic march toward communism is being accelerated, and in this prideful journey our people have become a most dignified, prideful people.

The brilliant victories and prideful achievements scored by our people in revolution and construction constitute vivid testimony to the greatness and invincible vitlaity of the immortal achievements compiled by the Down-With-Imperialism Union which marked a new beginning of the Korean revolution.

Our revolution charted under the "T.D." banner has today entered a new higher stage of converting the whole society to the chuche ideology following the guidance of our party.

Conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology is a continuation of our revolutionary cause which began in the "T.D." and a struggle on a new higher stage to attain the chuche revolutionary cause.

By loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and more dynamically launching into the struggle to realize the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology under the leadership of our party, we shall go forward to attain generation after generation to the end the chuche revolutionary cause charted at the "T.D."

THE 'T.D.' IS THE GLORIOUS HISTORICAL ROOTS OF OUR PARTY

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 16-20

[Article by Chang Mun-son]

[Text] Some 55 years have passed since the time the glorious roots of our party began to be struck with the formation of the Down-With-Imperialism Union.

Our party, deeply rooted in the Down-With-Imperialism Union and firmly settling down and ceaselessly absorbing nutrients therefrom, has vigorously grown up, and strengthened and developed into a revolutionary, militant party confidently leading the chuche revolutionary cause to victory, into an authoritative, dignified party commanding the absolute trust of the people.

Our people, as they commemorate in a meaningful manner the 55th anniversary of the formation of Down-With-Imperialism Union, are deeply engraving in their hearts the infinite pride and self-esteem of moving forward following the guidance of the glorious party, loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who, forming the "T.D.," has been leading the Korean revolution only along the one road of victory, and are filled to the brim with a firm resolve to attain the chuche revolutionary cause to the end, thoroughly protecting and defending, brilliantly carrying forward and developing the historical roots of our party.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union which, loyally attending the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader, held the immortal chuche ideology as the guiding thought, is the glorious historical roots of our party.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"From the time the Down-With-Imperialism Union was formed, the revolutionary struggle of our people came to be waged on the principle of independent stand and attitude; and precisely from that time on, the glorious roots of our party began to be struck." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 7, p 258)

Where the revolutionary party of the working class has struck its historical roots and what kind of a tradition it carries forward constitutes a crucial question influencing the destiny of the party and the victory or defeat of the revolution. The revolutionary tradition of the party of the working class is created by the leader who has first charted the road of revolution, and its beginning is marked by the first revolutionary organization formed by the leader. The leader charts the revolutionary cause of the working class, forms a revolutionary organization for the attainment, and through it, goes forward to lead the revolution. In the process, infinitely precious revolutionary heritages come to be created, and deep, viable roots of the party and the revolution to be struck.

The glorious historical roots of our party began to be struck from the time the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, whom our people had waited for thousands of years in history and come to loyally revere, organized the Down-With-Imperialism Union and proclaimed before the whole world a new beginning of the Korean revolution. It is only 36 years since our party was founded but it is more than one-half century since it began striking its historical roots.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union, which was formed on 17 October 1926, was the first communist revolutionary organization loyally attending the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader and a political weapon for realizing the leadership of the great leader for the Korean revolution.

Only with the formation of the Down-With-Imperialism Union did the Korean revolution begin to move onto a new stage of independently devloping under the chuche banner, creating a prototype capable of founding, strengthening and developing a chuche-oriented revolutionary party, and the glorious roots of our party began to be struck.

What makes the Down-With-Imperialism Union the historical roots of our party lies above all in that it was a genuine communist revolutionary organization which set forth a most precise struggle program that must be tightly grasped in going forward to attain the chuche revolutionary cause.

What kind of a struggle program a revolutionary organization sets forth is a stamp defining the character of the organization and one of the basic questions bearing on the victory or defeat of the revolutionary struggle. If a revolutionary orgnaization of the communists is to become a genuine revolutionary organization and brilliantly accomplish its historic mission before the revolution, it must necessarily have a correct struggle program.

The early communist movement in our country had no clearly defined principle and struggle program, and the self-styled "revolutionaries," immersed in flunkeyism, dogmatism, factionalism, obstructed the revolutionary movement and inflicted grave harm on it.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union was a genuine communist revolutionary organization of a new type basically different from the early communist movement whether in terms of struggle objectives and tasks or practical activities.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, by enunciating the unique struggle program of the "T.D." based on the immortal chuche ideology, created for the first time in history a prototype of our party's struggle program, model of a great struggle program for class liberation, national liberation, human liberation.

The struggle program the Down-With-Imperialism Union set forth was a struggle program which for the first time precisely defined the immediate task and ultimate goal of the Korean revolution based on a scientific analysis of the peculiarities of our country's social development at that time and our people's urgent aspirations.

The program of the "T.D." graphically enunciated that the immediate struggle task of the Korean revolution lay in striking down Japanese imperialism and achieving Korea's liberation and independence. At that time Japanese imperialism, bent on sustaining the capitalistic, feudalistic exploitation institutions, was the main obstacle standing in the way of our country's social development. Therefore, without striking down Japanese imperialism and crushing the colonial rule of the scoundrels it was impossible to regain national sovereign rights nor was it possible to achieve national independence.

In its program the Down-With-Imperialism Union also set it forth as its ultimate goal to build socialism, communism, the supreme ideal of mankind and then, striking down all of imperialism, build communism worldwide. It is absolutely impossible to completely realize the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people by achieving Korea's liberation and independence alone nor could it be said that Korea's communists have fully acquitted themselves of their historic mission. If a society is to be built where the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people will have been completely realized, it is imperative to continue to move the revolution forward and build the communist society. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, reflecting this basic demand of the revolutionary struggle to realize the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people, had defined it as the ultimate goal of the "T.D." to build communism in our country and then worldwide.

This struggle program of the Down-With-Imperialism Union was a unique revolutionary line that had brilliantly embodied the immortal chuche ideology in the Korean revolution, and a great revolutionary program that had enunciated the ultimate goal of the chuche revolutionary cause. By the struggle program of the "T.D." the ultimate goal and immediate task of the Korean revolution came to be graphically enunciated for the first time, both were organically bonded together, and the strategic stage of the Korean revolution and the strategy and tactics for the anti-imperialist national liberation revolution were scientifically enunicated.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, setting forth in the 1930's based on the struggle program of the Down-With-Imperialism Union the anti-Japanese armed struggle line and the anti-imperialist united national front line and guidelines for party founding and sagaciously leading the struggle for the realization, expanded and developed the chuche revolutionary cause onto a new stage.

Indeed the struggle program of the Down-With-Imperialism Union was a great program that starting from the basic objectives of our revolution, had comprehensively reflected the basic demands of a program our party about to be founded must put up front. This constitutes an important part of the content defining the revolutionary character of the Down-Wiht-Imperialism Union and precisely herein lies part of the ground for the Down-With-Imperialism Union being the glorious historical roots of our party.

What makes the Down-With-Imperialism Union the historical roots of our party also lies in that from the time the "T.D." was formed the organizational ideological cornerstone for the founding of our party began to be laid.

To soundly lay the organizational ideological cornerstone prior to the founding of the party is an indispensable requirement in founding the revolutionary party of the working class and strengthening and developing it. If the revolutionary party of the working class is to be founded, it is imperative of necessity to ideologically awaken the advanced elements among workers and peasants and organizationally unite them. Only the party founded on a soundly laid organizational ideological cornerstone can insure the purity of the ranks, achieve the unity of ideological will, and brilliantly realize the leadership of the party for the revolutionary struggle. Therefore, solidly consolidating the organizational ideological cornerstone constitutes none other than viably nurturing the roots of the party.

With the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song forming the "T.D." with young communists of the younger generation came to be provided already from the dawn of the Korean revolution the organizational ideological cornerstone for the revolutionary party about to be founded.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union, unlike all preceding organizations, was a revolutionary organization formed with Korea's young communists personally brought up by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, starting from the historical lesson of our country's early communist movement, formed the Down-With-Imperialism Union with fresh revolutionaries of the younger generation thoroughly armed with the chuche ideology, uncontaminated by any of the outdated ideas such as flunkeyism and dogmatism, and through them, went forward to ceaselessly expand the strength of the organization among the workers, the peasants, the advanced youth and students.

The newly brought up young communists such as members of the Down-With-Imperialism Union were inherently different and distinct from the bigoted nationalists or the self-styled "revolutionaries" immersed in factional flunkeyism to the marrow of their bones, who all had inflicted immense harm on the Korean communist movement and national liberation movement in their time.

Fresh communists of the younger generation who had grown up in the "T.D." were Korea's genuine chuche-oriented revolutionaries who, thoroughly armed with a revolutionary leader view, vowed to struggle to the end to attain the chuche revolutionary cause. Loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the leader of the Korean revolution, as the center for unity and solidarity, they resolutely protected and defended the great leader and went forward to fight, unhesitatingly offering their youth, their lives on the glorious road of revolution.

The ranks of genuine chuche-oriented revolutionaries that had begun with the "T.D." were ceaselessly expanded subsequently amid the flames of the arduous anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle and with them as the backbone, our party came to be founded on viable roots after liberation.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union had thoroughly established within the revolutionary ranks the unitary ideology system based on the chuche ideology and firmly achieved the unity and solidarity of ideological will of the communist ranks.

The unity and solidarity of ideological will based on the leader's revolutionary thought constitutes the life of the revolutionary party of the working class. Therefore, one of the important questions in founding, consolidating, and developing the party is bringing about the unity and solidarity of the ranks of the communists as one, based on the leader's revolutionary thought.

Formation of the Down-With-Imperialism Union became a great starting point of the historic task to dye our revolutionary ranks one color with one thought, the chuche ideology.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union was a revolutionary organization of a new type formed, and conducting aciivity, based on the revolutionary thought of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and as such, the young communists absolutely espoused only one thought, the chuche ideology, and holding the chuche ideology as the unitary guiding principle, struggled for the realization.

The chuche ideology-based unity and solidarity established within the Down-With-Imperialism Union under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song became the viable roots of our party's unitary ideology system and a source of powerful ideomental strength of the Korean communists and revolutionaries.

What makes the Down-With-Imperialism Union the historical roots of our party also lies in that from that time on a basic guarantee was provided for thoroughly building the mass base for founding our party.

To thoroughly organize the mass base constitutes a basic requirement in founding a genuine revolutionary party of the working class firmly rooted in the broad masses and in strengthening and developing the party into a militant organization possessing invincible might. One of the important causes why the Korean Communist Party founded in 1925 was unable to sustain its very existence precisely lay in that it did not have a mass base. It is evident that a party which has failed to strike roots among the masses could never be mighty nor could it sustain itself for long. If the party of the working class is to correctly accomplish its lofty mission, it must necessarily be linked to the broad masses in kindred ties. Precisely this being so, it constitutes one of the important conditions for founding a revolutionary party that the communists should go in among the masses, indoctrinate them, and unite them.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union organized and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was formed with the workers, the peasants, the youth and students from among the masses of people, and Korea's genuine, young communists always enjoyed the absolute support of the masses of people and shared life and death with them.

It was one of the most important action principles of the Down-With-Imperialism Union to go in among the broad masses of people, indoctrinate them, awaken them, and thoroughly unite them around the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, after forming the Down-With-Imperialism Union, personally leading the organization's members went in among the masses of people and energetically launched mass political indoctrination work. The great leader, by sagaciously leading the organization's members in thoroughly arming themselves with the working class viewpoint and the revolutionary mass line and establishing a revolutionary work method and people-oriented work style, enabled them to positively organize and mobilize the broad masses in the revolutionary struggle and ceaselessly expand and strengthen the ranks of the communists among the masses.

All the revolutionary struggle conducted under the guidance of the "T.D." was a process of brilliantly embodying the revolutionary mass line established by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the revolutionary work method, people-minded work style based thereon. Precisely in this process was created a prototype of our party's traditional mass leadership principle and method. This constitutes the viable roots that have made it possible for ours to become a revolutionary party enjoying the positive support of the masses, a might party becoming a harmonious whole with the masses.

The Down-With-Imperialism Union formed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was thus a genuine communist revolutionary organization which provided the preconditions for founding a chuche-oriented revolutionary party in our country and a prototype of the party about to be founded.

Truly, the Down-With-Imperialism Union, the genuine communist revolutionary organization formed in our country for the first time, has become the glorious historical roots of our party, an eternal source of vim and vigor throughout the historical period of attaining the chuche revolutionary cause.

The glorious roots that began striking from the time of formation of the Down-With-Imperialism Union were made even more viable throughout the course of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle and became a precious resource for founding, strengthening, and developing the chuche-oriented revolutionary party after liberation. It was because of the presence of these historical roots that our party could be founded in a timely manner even in such complex and difficult postliberation environment and that it could have been strengthened and developed into a most militant, revolutionary, vibrant invincible party today.

The lofty chuche revolutionary cause set forth by the "T.D." has come far indeed under the sagacious leadership of our party by winning early on the victory of the social revolution in two stages and brilliantly carrying out the historic task of socialist industrialization.

Today our party, by setting forth the great program of converting the whole society to the chuche ideology and leading to brilliant victory the struggle for the realization, is advancing the chuche revolutionary cause that began at the "T.D.," on a new higher level.

Our party,which sprouted from the viable roots of the "T.D." and has grown up and strengthened amid formidable trials and awesome struggle, has developed into a great party possessing every-victorious invincible might.

Our party has been thoroughly consolidated organizationally, ideologically today more than ever. The entire party is solidly united around the Party Center, all party members and party organizations think and act in accordance with the intent of the party, and a revolutionary work system has been thoroughly established within the party.

The unity and solidarity of our party and the masses of people has also been strengthened extraordinarily. Today in our country the party believes in the people and the people follow the party, and the party and the people, literally becoming one, are energetically moving revolution and construction forward. It is becoming our people's indeflectible revolutionary creed to infinitely trust and follow our party and completely entrust all their destinies to the party.

Thus today ours has strengthened and developed into a most authoritative and dignified, militant and revolutionary party and is confidently leading the chuche revolutionary cause to brilliant victory.

It is an indispensable requirement in attaining the chuche revolutionary cause generation after generation to the end to resolutely protect and defend, brilliantly carry forward and develop the glorious historical roots of our party, the revolutionary tradition.

The entire party members and working people must deeply research and study the glorious revolutionary tradition of our party which has struck its roots from the Down-With-Imperialism Union personally organized and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. In particular, they must learn from the lofty mental world of the young communists who, loyally attending the great leader, had protected and carried through the revolutionary thought of the great leader and protected and defended the great leader politicoideologically and with their lives.

By holding the great pride and self-esteem of living and working loyally attending the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the guidance of the glorious party and by brilliantly realizing the program set forth by our party for converting the whole society to the chuche ideology we must go forward to attain the chuche revolutionary cause to the end.

THE GREAT PROGRAM OF THE 'T.D.'--THE IMMORTAL BANNER OF THE KOREAN REVOLUTIOLN

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 21-25

[Article by Pak Ch'ung-pae]

[Text] Some 55 years have passed since the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, forming the Donw-With-Imperialism Union, proclaimed the great program of the "T.D."--the immortal banner of the Korean revolution.

The entire journey of our revolution from that historic day when a new start of the Korean revolution was proclaimed to the present has been a travel of glory of the program of the "T.D." being brilliantly embodied, a journey of victory.

Our people, by moving forward holding aloft a great struggle banner precisely like the program of the "T.D.," had been able to attain the historic cause of fatherland restoration, usher in a new era of colonial national liberation, an age of a new upsurge in the anti-imperialist, anti-U.S. imperialist struggle, and dynamically move forward along the straight road of national liberation, class liberation, human liberation.

The road of glory our revolution has walked over one-half century proves positively that the program of the "T.D." is indeed an immortal banner which always inspires our people to struggle and victory.

To have a correct struggle program in the revolutionary struggle of the working class is one of the crucial questions that must be solved with priority in order to win victory in the struggle. The working class, only if it has a scientific and revolutionary struggle program, can establish precise strategy and tactics and launch the revolutionary struggle through goal consciousness.

To have a correct struggle program which would illuminate the road ahead for the revolution and inspire the masses of working people to the revolutionary struggle arose as an even more important question in our country's revolution especially at that time.

In the early period of Japanese imperialist occupation our people had resisted it, launching the righteous army struggle and the independence army movement, the nationalist movement and the communist movement but for want of the correct leadership of an illustrious leader, for want of a struggle program illuminating the road ahead for the revolution had been condemned to repeat only bitter failures and heartrending sacrifices.

Those who had clung to extant theories and experiences, had insisted on taking to the road of bourgeois revolution like the capitalist countries of Europe and America while others, shouting slogans of socialist revolution, had gone every which way. Thus the early communists, self-styled Marxists immersed in extreme flunkeyism, by putting forward their wild arguments without taking into consideration the realities of Korea, had created great chaos for our revolution, inflicting immense harm on it.

Life had clearly shown that with any of the extant theories or conventional experiences it was impossible to precisely illuminate the road ahead for the Korean revolution.

On account of the Japanese imperialist colonial rule a large number of very complex and difficult questions had been confronting the Korean revolution.

In our country, which was a colonial semifeudal society, national and class conflicts had been intricately intertwined. In consequence, the Korean revolution from the beginning had to chart an unfamiliar road never before walked by anyone.

To precisely enunciate how the Korean revolution should take to what road became a most pressing demand for coping with the chaotic situation confronting our revolution and putting the communist movement and the national liberation struggle on the right track.

This pressing demand confronting the times and the revolution came to be brilliantly resolved with the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the helm of the revolution forming the Down-With-Imperialism Union, the first genuine communist revolutionary organization in our country and proclaiming its program.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"We set it forth as the immediate task of the Down-With-Imperialism Union to strike down Japanese imperialism and achieve Korea's liberation and independence and defined it as the ultimate goal to build socialism, communism in Korea and eventually build communism worldwide, striking down of imperialism."
[No bibliographic reference given]

The great program of the "T.D." was the most scientific and revolutionary chuche program, the first of its kind in the revolutionary struggle of our people, an immortal revolutionary banner that has led the arduous and complex Korean revolution along the one road of brilliant victory and glory.

If the program of the party of the working class is to become a militant banner, an immortal revolutionary banner for the revolutionary struggle, it must graphically enunciate the goal of the revolutionary struggle and the way of the attainment. Setting forth a correct struggle goal and enunciating a precise way of the attainment is where the greatness of a struggle program inspiring and energetically leading the masses of working people along the one road of the revolutionary struggle is, where its invincible vitality is.

The program of the "T.D.," above all by clearly setting forth the immediate task and ultimate goal of our revolution, became an immortal banner which illuminated the precise direction in which our people should move.

To enunciate a clear goal of the revolutionary struggle is an important demand for launching the revolutionary struggle through goal consciousness. Only if the struggle goal is precise can the masses of working people positively launch into the struggle with a firm faith and dynamically move forward along a straight road without tilting, twists and turns,

In the program of the "T.D." set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was graphically enunciated above all the immediate task of our revolution to strike down Japanese imperialism and achieve national liberation and independence.

In our country which was a colonial semifeudal society, the first target of the people's struggle was the Japanese imperialist aggressive forces. The Japanese imperialists were our national and class enemies who, completely turning our country into their colony, had harshly oppressed and exploited our people such as the workers and the peasants, and were the main obstacle standing in the way of social development, the root cause for all of the misfortunes and sufferings of our people.

From this, it was the vital demand, the priority task of our revolution to crush the Japanese imperialist colonial rule and regain national sovereign rights. Only by striking down the Japanese imperialists was it possible to realize the tasks of national liberation and class liberation in our country and successfully solve the difficult and complex questions confronting the Korean revolution.

The program of the "T.D." which had presented it as the immediate task to strike down the Japanese imperialists and achieve national liberation and independence, because it had precisely reflected the basic demands of our revolution and the earnest wishes of our people, became a great banner of revolution inspiring the broad masses of people to struggle and victory.

In the program of the "T.D." was also graphically enunciated the ultimate objective of our revolution which was to build socialism, communism in Korea in the future.

To crush the imperialist colonial rule and achieve national independence constitutes a great turning point in the struggle to realize the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people. In order to admirably insure a truly independent and creative life for the masses of working people, it is imperative to build the socialist, communist society, continuing to move the revolution forward along with remaking the outdated social system.

The road of capitalism is a road of exploitation and oppression, subordination and ruination, and the road of socialism, communism, is the true road of doing away with class exploitation and racial oppression once and for all, of insuring freedom and liberation for the masses of people, of achieving complete national independence and prosperity.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, by defining it in the "T.D." program based on a scientific analysis of the basic demands and historical course of the revolutionary struggle for realizing the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people, as the ultimate objective of our revolution to struggle to build socialism, communism, most precisely illuminated the bright road ahead for the Korean revolution.

The "T.D." program that had graphically enunciated the objectives of our people's struggle, organically bonding together the immediate task and ultimate objective of the Korean revolution was a source of invincible strength indeed which made it possible to successfully carry out the tasks of national liberation and class liberation in our country and move forward confidently toward socialism, communism.

The "T.D." program, by setting forth at the same time the thought for striking down all of imperialism and building communism worldwide, had energetically encouraged and inspired our people to the struggle for ultimately attaining the historic cause of the working class, being faithful to both the national duty and international duty of the revolution.

The revolutionary cause of the working class is nationalist and at the same time internationalist. The revolutionary struggle of the people of each country is in a relationship of supporting and complementing each other and joins the stream of overall world revolution. This is the demands of the law of overall world revolution. Therefore, in order to admirably attain the historic cause of the working class, one must energetically push ahead not only with one's own country's revolution but with world revolution as well, tightly bonding together one's national duty and international duty.

The "T.D." program became a guiding principle which must be strictly adhered to by our people in winning brilliant victory in our country's revolution solidly united with the revolutionary peoples of the world and at the same time in energetically moving the overall world revolution forward.

The "T.D." program thus illuminated brightly the march route ahead for our people and always urged on our revolution to straight victory.

The great program of the "T.D." also became an immortal banner of the Korean revolution because it had graphically enunciated the basic way of most successfully attaining the lofty objectives of our revolution.

If a program illuminating the road ahead for the struggle of the working class is to become a militant banner leading the masses of people to victory, it must precisely enunciate its goal as well as the way of the attainment. Only then is it possible to correctly organize and mobilzie the broad masses in the revolutionary struggle and dynamically move the revolutionary struggle forward with their revolutionary fervor and creative positiveness.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set it forth in the "T.D." program as the basic way of attaining the lofty objectives of our revolution to develop revolutionary organization among the broad masses, arming them with the advanced thought of the working class.

The basic way of carrying out the revolution enunciated by the "T.D." program was above all thoroughly arming the masses of working people with the revolutionary thought of the working class, the immortal chuche ideology.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"It is people who conduct revolution and construction. This being so, if victory is to be won in the revolution, people must hold a correct revolutionary world view, and what is important here is for people to hold the thought and viewpoint of responsibly carrying out the revolution and construction of their country on a stand befitting the master." ("Answers to Questions Posed by Foreign Journalists," p 205)

As everyone knows, it is the masses of people who make history and develop society. But this absolutely does not mean that the masses of people can be drawn into the revolutionary struggle spontaneously. Only when they are armed with a genuine revolutionary world view and convinced of the correctness of their cause, can the masses of people positively launch into the revolutionary struggle and display great strength. Therefore, all revolutionary struggle begins with the task of arming the masses with a revolutionary world view and awakening them in terms of class. As a matter of fact, the masses who are neither armed with a genuine revolutionary thought nor awakened in terms of class, cannot play a big role in the revolutionary struggle.

To arm the masses of people with the genuine revolutionary world view of the working class, the immortal chuche ideology and awaken them in terms of class arose as an even more urgent question on account of the complexity and arduousness of our revolution at the time.

Only by thoroughly arming the masses of people with the chuche ideology was it possible to keep them from being contaminated by the factional fights and wild sophistries of the factional flunkeys and deeply implant in them an awareness befitting the master of the Korean revolution and energetically move our revolution forward along the road of sovereignty, enhancing the revolutionary fervor of the masses of people.

Having elucidated the profound truth of the chuche ideology that the master of the Korean revolution is the Korean people themselves and that only if our people launched the revolutionary struggle on a stand befitting the master could they win victory in the revolution is where the greatness of the "T.D." program and its invincible vitality are.

The "T.D." program had also enunciated the question of expanding revolutionary organization among the masses of people and organizing powerful revolutionary ranks as an important way of successfully carrying out our revolution.

Revolution is a task for the sake of the masses of people, a task which the masses of people themselves must carry out. Revolution can never be carried out by the strength of a couple of people alone but can be successfully carried out only by the organized, united strength of the masses of people. The masses who are not organized and united cannot display great strength in the revolutionary struggle.

The "T.D." program calling for developing revolutionary organization among the masses of people and uniting the broad masses as one became a powerful weapon which made the Korean revolution move forward with the strength of our people themselves, creating a strong chuche-oriented revolutionary force.

The "T.D." program, by thus thoroughly arming the masses of people with the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary thought, the immortal chuche ideology and creating a strong chuche-oriented revolutionary force solidly uniting them as one, became a powerful driving force energetically pushing the Korean revolution.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"From the time the Down-With-Imperialism Union was formed, the revolutionary struggle of our people came to be waged on the principle of independent stand and attitude; and precisely from that time on, the glorious roots of our party began to be struck." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 7, p 258)

With the proclamation of the great program of the "T.D." our people, solidly united with one ideological will around the great leader of revolution Comrade Kim Il-song and with the revolutionary banner of the immortal chuche ideology held high, were able to dynamically take to the road of sovereignty; and precisely from that time on the Korean revolution began a new march.

The great program of the "T.D." embodying the immortal chuche ideology, because of its scientific nature and revolutionary character, has displayed its great traction power and invincible vitality throughout the journey of our arduous and complex revolution.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, developing the "T.D." program, set forth the chuche-oriented revolutionary line at the Chialun Conference and based thereon, organized and launched the armed struggle against the Japanese imperialists, and further concretizing it in the 10-point program of Fatherland Restoration Society, led the anti-Japanese armed struggle to a new upsurge.

The heroic anti-Japanese armed struggle organized and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a struggle under the banner of chuche of the Korean communists and the Korean people to strike down the Japanese imperialist colonial rule and win national sovereign rights and national independence, oppose exploitation and oppression and realize the class liberation of the oppressed working masses. The victory of the anti-Japanese armed struggle was a brilliant victory of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's immortal chuche ideology, a victory of the unity of ideological will and revolutionary solidarity of the revolutionary ranks centered around the great leader.

The historic anti-Japanese armed struggle developed our country's anti-Japanese national liberation movement onto the highest stage, and in the process, a chuche-oriented force capable of dynamically moving the Korean revolution forward in the future was thoroughly organized and the glorious revolutionary tradition of our party created.

The "T.D." program set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, brilliantly embodied in the program of our party and the platform of the government of the republic after liberation, energetically inspired our people to struggle to successfully carry out the tasks of the anti-imperialist, antifeudal democratic revolution and socialist revolution in our country and accomplish the historic task of socialist industrialization in a short period of time.

Truly, the historic journey of the Korean revolution over one-half century from the time of proclamation of the "T.D." program to the present has been a travel of victory and glory in which immortal achievements that will be shining for centuries to come have been compiled in the struggle for national liberation, class liberation, human liberation under the sagacious leaderhsip of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The great program of the "T.D."--the immortal banner of the Korean revolution--is today brilliantly continued in the militant program set forth by our party for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

The program for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology is a great communist construction program for realizing in our country the ultimate objective of our revolution enunciated in the "T.D." program.

In the militant program of our party for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology is reflected the revolutionary conviction and stern will of our party intent on attaining to the end the chuche revolutionary cause charted in the Paektu forests, by thoroughly remolding people, society, and nature in accordance with the demands of the chuche ideology.

Today all party members and working people see the bright future of our revolution in the sagacious leadership of our party, firmly confident of the ultimate victory of the revolution.

All party members and working people, emulating the lofty examples of the young communists who, loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the sun of the nation day in and day out of the history of our dawning revolution had fought offering their youth, their lives to realize the "T.D." program, shall positively launch into the struggle to realize the militant program set forth by our party for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

Invincible is the struggle of our people dynamically moving forward to attain the chuche cause, loyally attending the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the guidance of our party.

THE REVOLUTIONARY LEADER VIEW OF THE YOUNG COMMUNISTS WHO HAD GROWN UP IN THE 'T.D.'

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 26-31

[Article by Sim Sang-chin]

[Text] The infinite faithfulness to the great leader and the party being highly displayed among our party members and working people today dates back to the lofty revolutionary leader view of the young communists who had early on grown up in the "T.D." Because it is based on such deeply rooted revolutionary leader view, the loyalty of our people is the sincerest and the warmest, and eternal loyalty which is carried forward from generation to generation.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"The new generation of Korea's genuine communists found incisive lessons in the preceding nationalist movement and the early communist movement and, with a new revolutionary world view, chose a road entirely different from that of the activists of the nationalist movement or the early communist movement." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 7, p 258)

The purest and cleanest of loyalty, the genuine revolutionary leader view of the young communists toward the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a brilliant example our party members and working people must learn from. Today it still is an unextinguishable torch of the heart which, with great influencing power, makes the hearts of all members of society burn with warm loyalty to the great leader and the party.

All party members and working people, learning from the revolutionary leader view highly displayed among the young communists who had grown up in the "T.D.," must deeply engrave in their hearts fiathfulness to the great leader and the glorious party as a firm creed, as lofty ethics.

The revolutionary leader view is the most correct opinion and viewpoint toward the position and role of the leader in the revolutionary struggle of the working class, and the posture and stand of loyally attending the leader with a true heart.

The opinion and viewpoint toward the position and role of the leader, and the posture and stand of attending the leader constitute the two sides of the revolutionary leader view.

One of the major parts of the content of the revolutionary leader view is a most correct opinion and viewpoint toward the absolute position the leader occupies and the decisive role the leader plays in revolution and construction.

The leader is the supreme brain behind the masses of working people, the subject of history, and the center for unity and solidarity.

The revolutionary cause of the working class is charted by the leader and comes to walk the road of victory and get attained under the leadership of the leader.

The destiny of a nation and the victory or defeat of the revolution depend on whether or not they attend a sagacious leader; and the greatness of a nation is determined by the greatness of the leader.

That the leader of the working class occupies the absolute position and plays the decisive role in the revolutionary struggle is a truth that has been proved to the hilt by the histories of the Korean revolution and the international communist movement.

When one properly establishes the revolutionary leader view, mastering this truth of the revolution, one can go forward to loyally attend the leader with an indomitable conviction, whatever the trial and adversity.

The other side of the intrinsic content of the revolutionary leader view is holding the most correct posture and stand of loyally attending the leader with a true heart.

What is called the most correct posture and stand of attending the leader is none other than the faithfulness of the revolutionary soldiers to the leader.

Such two sides of the revolutionary leader view are inseparably linked together.

The opinion and viewpoint toward the absolute position the leader occupies and the decisive role the leader plays in the revolutionary struggle of the working class enunciate the theoretical basis of faithfulness to the leader. Only by deeply learning by experience the position and role of the leader in terms of principle is it possible to properly hold the posture and stand of loyally attending the leader with a true heart.

On the other hand, only if one holds the most correct posture and stand of loyally attending the leader with a true heart, can one hold a correct opinion toward the position and role of the leader in the revolutionary struggle and firmly establish the revolutionary leader view.

The revolutionary leader view is the basic framework which makes it possible to promote on the loftiest plane all the ideomental characteristics of a genuine revolutionary. This is so because the revolutionary leader view constitutes the core of the revolutionary world view. The world view of the communist revolutionaries is formed with the revolutionary leader view as the core and promoted based thereon.

The leader view is the basic standard characterizing the viewpoint and attitude toward the revolution and the touchstone separating genuine revolutionaries from spontaneous elements. He who has firmly established the revolutionary leader view acquits himself fully of his duty as a revolutionary, never bending his revolutionary creed and integrity whatever difficult situation may prevail, but he who has failed to establish the revolutionary leader view wavers in the face of but a small barrier and comes to fall by the wayside as a renegade in a formidable period of revolution. This is a stark truth shown by the practice of our revolution and the international communist movement.

Historical experience eloquently proves that when one holds the correct posture and stand of attending the leader, thoroughly armed with the revolutionary leader view, one comes to devotedly struggle for the sake of the party and the revolution, for the sake of the working class and the people, and highly display positiveness and initiative in work.

The revolutionary leader view is not formed spontaneously. The revolutionary leader view is formed on the basis of a scientific understanding and historical experience of the decisive role the leader plays in the revolutionary struggle.

It constitutes a starting precondition for forming the revolutionary leader view to deeply understand in terms of principle the theory on the absolute position and decisive role of the leader in revolution and construction. The revolutionary leader view stands on a scientific understanding of the decisive role the leader plays and on historical experience gained amid practical struggle.

The genuine leader of the people who moves the times and guides the historic cause is not one whom someone has wished into being nor one who has proclaimed himself as such.

A great leader of the working class founds a precise guiding thought reflecting the law of the course of history and the urgent demands of the times and sets forth a scientific revolutionary theory, strategy and tactics and goes forward to lead the revolution to victory by uniting the masses of working people as one political force and organizing and mobilizing them in the revolutionary struggle.

People come to engrave it in their hearts as a creed through historical experience amid practical struggle that only on the road of fighting following the leadership of a sagacious leader is it possible to win the victory of the revolution and completely realize the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people.

The young communists who had grown up in the "T.D.," based on the precious historical experience gained in their bloody struggle, loyally revered the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the sun of the nation, as the great leader of the revolution leading the Korean revolution along the one road of victory. This is a solemn historical fact characterizing the revolutionary leader view of the young communists.

While early on searching among the youths who had gathered at the "Hwasong Uisuk" school for like-minded comrades ready to share life and death on the road of revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song selected outstanding youths from among them and thoroughly prepared them politicoideologically. With his farsighted plan for independently developing the Korean revolution under the banner of the chuche ideology the respected and beloved leader formed in October 1926 the Down-With-Imperialism Union, the first genuine communist revolutionary organization in our country, and proclaimed its great revolutionary program before the whole world.

This was a majestic declaration heralding a new historic march of the Korean revolution. This was also a torch, a beacon brightly illuminating the road ahead for our revolution.

From that time on our people who had been anxiously waiting for a sagacious leader amid the misfortunes of a ruined country at last came to attend the great leader, and the sunbeam of the revolution, the sunbeam of chuche guiding the times began shining brightly over the heads of the trampled fellow countrymen.

Coming to loyally attend at the helm of the revolution the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song for the first time in the long history of five millennia, our country's anti-Japanese national liberation movement and communist movement came to usher in a new era of a winning, advancing revolution, putting an end to the bitter history of failures, twists and turns.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"The correct leadership of the leader is an important guarantee for the victory of the revolutionary struggle and construction tasks." ("A Collection of Documents on the Visits of the Great Leader Comrade Kim Il-song to Foreign Countries," pp 66-67)

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, with his profound clairvoyant insights seeing through the law of the course of history, the urgent demands of the times, and the historic duty of the working class more clearly than anyone else, has founded the unitarily precise guiding thought representing the times, and awakening the masses of people and thoroughly uniting them into one revolutionary force with his tested leadership art, always led their struggle to victory.

With the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song setting forth his unique thought and theory, consummate strategy and tactics amid the storm of the revolutionary struggle and personally leading the masses of people at the helm of the revolution along the one road of glorious struggle, our people have loyally attended the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as genius of the revolution, as the great leader.

All people who had been concerned for the destiny of the country and the nation and groping in search of a genuine road of revolution, gathered where the respected and beloved leader was from various areas of the homeland and from overseas tens of thousands of li away. Embraced in the bosom of the great leader they learned the truth of genuine revolution for the first time and grew up as new workers of the revolution, as reliable revolutionary soldiers.

To look back, our people who had been thrashing about immersed in sea of blood in bygone days under the dark cloud of the Japanese imperialist rule, had neither a leader to lead their fight, though they wanted to fight, nor a center for uniting themselves, though they wanted to unite. Moreover, the hot-blooded youths and patriotic people, disillusioned by the machinations of the factional flunkeys, had been thirsting for the sun of the nation to illuminate the road ahead for a new struggle.

The young communists such as Ch'oe Ch'ang-kol, Ch'a Kwang-su, and Kim Hyok, too, even though they had embarked on the road of struggle holding great aspirations at one time, were among those roaming around at the crossroads for want of a genuine leader. Only when they were embraced in the bosom of the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song did they learn for the first time the truth of chuche that only by believing in and relying on the strength of the masses of people was it possible to win victory in the revolution, and came to embark on the road of the sacred struggle to realize the independent stand and attitude of the masses of people.

From the arduous period when the glorious chuche cause was taking its first step forward, the young communists through their life experience of bygone days riddled with twists and turns regarded it the supreme glory, the greatest happiness to have come to loyally attend the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the guiding star of the revolution, as the great sun of the nation. They had firmly believed that to loyally attend the respected and beloved leader until sun and moon disappeared and follow him to the end of the world, to forever acquit themselves fully of their loyalty to him was the unitary road of saving the fate of the trampled nation and attaining the cause of fatherland restoration.

Already in the first period of charting the unfamiliar road of our revolution, the young communists, out of their wishes for the respected and beloved leader to become the guiding star of the revolution to save the destinies of the country and the nation, loyally adored him as the most respected Comrade One-Star [il-song], as Comrade One-Star Kim. Through the revolutionary struggle learning by experience with all their hearts the greatness of Comrade Kim Il-song, young general in his 20's, they loyally attended the respected and beloved leader as the leader of the revolution, as the center for unity of the revolutionary ranks.

Thus the young communists had firmly believed through the blood lessons left behind by the early communist movement and through their own practical experience that only when loyally attending the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song and going forward following his leadership could they attain the historic cause of fatherland restoration. So it was that they went forward to loyally attend the respected and beloved leader as the sun of the nation, as the salvation star of liberation.

The young communists had engraved in their hearts faithfulness to the great leader as the immutable revolutionary creed, as the loftiest revolutionary ethics is also where the important characteristics of their revolutionary leader view are.

The revolutionary leader view calls for engraving in the heart infinite loyalty to the leader as a creed and ethics.

Only when one loyally reveres and attends the leader with a revolutionary creed and lofty ethics can one begin to say that one has established the revolutionary leader view.

Faithfulness to the leader, only when it is engraved in the heart as a firm revolutionary creed, can become the sinerest and the purest, and eternal loyalty which is free from wavering and change of heart, whatever winds may blow. Such sincerity and unchangeability are the indispensable two sides in engraving faithfulness to the leader as a creed in the heart.

The loyalty of the young communists to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was the absolute flowing from a rock-hard revolutionary creed unwavering whatever the adversity.

The clear stand of the young communists in attending the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song was based on a rock-hard creed that apart from him the Korean revolution was unthinkable and that defending the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song was none other than defending the Korean revolution.

In the course of loyally attending the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song at the helm of the revolutionary ranks and clearing the road of brambles of the formidable struggle, the young communist had learned by experience with all their hearts the great leadership of the leader personally shouldering the heavy burdens of the revolution and intredpidly clearing the prevailing difficult situation and steadfastly leading the Korean revolution along the one road of of victory. So it was that the young communists had found the reward of living in loyally upholding the farsighted plan and lofty will of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and never for an hour, never a moment had thought of their own existence apart from the great leader.

To live and struggle solely for the sake of the leader, assimilating the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary thought into their flesh and bone--this was altogether the whole of their living, their indeflectible revolutionary creed.

The loyalty of the young communists, because it was based on such firm creed, had never vacillated, whatever the storm, whatever the thunder and lightning.

The young communsits, because they had engraved in their hearts such warm loyalty as a creed, never minded traveling a thousand-li road where the enemies were bullying around, and unhesitatingly jumped into sea of fire, sea of blood. And they were able to loudly insiste to the last moment of life that one must loyally uphold the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song and stoutly fight on the road of glory taught by the leader.

That in that arduous period when there was not yet the party or the government and it was not known when the revolution would win, the young communists had struggled, offering their youth, their lives on the one road of revolution was not by any means because they had looked forward to any reward or honor to be bestowed on them at a later date nor because someone had told them to. They had only struggled with rock-hard convictions that as long as the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was leading the Korean revolution, as long as there was the presence of the leader, our revolution would inevitably win. Because they had deeply engraved in their hearts rock-hard convictions that it was glory to live, glory to die on the road of revolutionary loyally attending the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, they were able to carry through unconditionally to the end, displaying incomparable heroism and sacrificial spirit, whatever the adversity, the revolutionary line and guidelines laid down by the respected and beloved leader, the revolutionary duties assigned them by the leader, even as they had to overcome the multilayer barriers and trials with their lives.

The young communists had defended with their lives the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song from the suppression of the Japanese imperialists and reactionary military clique and from all kinds of stratagemical machinations of the nationalists and factional elements, and resolutely protected the leader's revolutionary thought from the encroachment of the leftist and rightist opportunists.

They had displayed burning revolutionary enthusiasm and indomitable fighting spirit, loyally upholding the great leader's teachings, in order to heuristically teach the masses of people and unite them in revolutionary organization, and courageously struggled, going through sea of fire in order to prepare for the anti-Japanese armed struggle.

The young communists had not only engraved in their hearts faithfulness to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as a firm revolutionary creed but had regarded it as the loftiest revolutionary ethics.

The leader is the benefactor and protector of the political life of the masses of working people. Because this is so, to acquit themselves fully of their loyalty to the leader who is the benefactor and protector of their political life is the duty and deserved ethics of people who fight revolution.

The revolutionary leader view calls for engraving in the heart infinite loyalty to the leader not only as a revolutionary creed but also as revolutionary ethics. Only if faithfulness is engraved in the heart as revolutionary ethics, can it become the sincere and solid.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, even as he was deeply burying in his heart all the pains and vexations he was personally going through, never for a moment forgot the pains of the people and comrades and bestowed extraordinary love and concern on them. Again, bestowing on them political life incomparably more precious than physical life, he looked after them to forever keep adding luster to it, ceaselessly leading them.

Loyally attending as the benefactor of their political life the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song who, founding the precise guiding thought representing the times, had provided through it the chuche-type blood, ideomental food for the communist revolutionaries and, having various revolutionary organizations formed, had through the organizations brought them up as genuine revolutionary soldiers, the young communists had completely entrusted their own destinies in his bosom.

Even though their ages and their character were different nor were their life backgrounds identical, wherever, whenever their hearts pulsated in unison solely for the sake of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The young communists firmly believed through their practical life experience that the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song was indeed the genuine leader of the people who, personifying on the loftiest plane great love for the fatherland and the people from the first days he had embarked on the road of revolution, was looking after them with familial feelings.

Indeed this great love of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's was not only a basis of unity which had united as one Korea's communists and people roaming unable to find a road to take but was a source of invincible strength which had made it possible for all of them to stoutly race forward along the one road of revolution, overcoming hunger, savage cold, death.

The hearts of the young communists had always burned with infinite respect and adoration for the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song, benefactor of their political life and affectionate, genuine leader of the people. So it was that their loyalty hot as fire had never cooled even in rain or snow, in storm.

It is the feature of the communists, Korea's genuine revolutionaries, who hold their revolutionary ethics infinitely dear and refuse to mess up their revolutionary ethics even at the sacrifice of their lives.

The young communists who had grown up into genuine chuche-oriented revolutionaries amid the implicit political trust and love of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, had regarded it unsurpassed joy, glory to fight revolution loyally attending the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the leader, and held it their revolutionary duty, ethics to acquit themselves unswervingly of their loyalty to him forever free from change of heart. Undaunted by whatever vicious machinations of appeasement and deception by the enemies they had defended and added luster to the precious political life bestowed on them by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and courageously fought on to the last moment of life for the sake of the revolution, for the sake of the respected and beloved leader, unyielding to whatever evil deeds and tortures of the enemies.

The young communists had also planted the seeds of loyalty among the broad masses of people so as to make them loyally revere, with the one heart of infinite respect and adoration, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation and legendary hero, and led them by pratical examples.

Truly the young communists are the genuine model, shining mirror of the chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries who have fought heroically loyally attending the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader from their immutable revolutionary creed and lofty ethics holding the clearest revolutionary leader view in the most formidable period of charting a path never before walked by anyone.

Because already in the first period of the Korean revolution had grown up in the bosom of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song the ranks of young communists engraving in their hearts such clear revolutionary leader view, such lofty revolutionary ethics, and loyalty turned into a creed, so were possible to grow up from the deep and viable roots numerous anti-Japanese revolutionary fighters infinitely loyal to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, heroes of the Fatherland Liberation War, thousands and tens of thousands of nameless heroes and unsung heroes. And today it has become possible for the ever-victorious ranks of loyalty, growing up like exuberant sunflowers into a great army scores of millions strong, to write a new chapter in the history of the chuche cause and for our revolution to make a long drive taking advantage of victory.

To engrave in the heart faithfulness to the party and the leader as a creed constitutes a basic question in the revolutionary struggle of the working class, the struggle for the attainment of the chuche cause, which influences its destiny.

The chuche-oriented communist revolutionary holds the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary thought as his creed and holds it as his lofty duty to devote himself, body and mind, altogether to the struggle for the attainment of the chuche revolutionary cause charted and still being led by the leader, to acquit himself inifinitely of his loyalty to the great leader and the party from generation to generation.

In order to acquit himself fully of his mission and duty, the chuche-oriented communist revolutionary must even more thoroughly arm himself with the revolutionary leader view.

What is most important here is making all party members and working people, by not only mastering in terms of principle the truth about the decisive role of the leader in the revolutionary struggle of the working class but deeply understanding it through the historical experiences and lessons of our revolution and the international communist movement, loyally live and work on the one road of revolution with infinite loyalty to the great leader and our party.

All party members and working people, emulating the brilliant example of the lofty revolutionary leader view displayed by the young communists at the dawn of the Korean revolution, shall go forward to even more thoroughly prepare themselves as revolutionary soldiers infinitely loyal to the great leader and the glorious party.

A CONGRESS OF GLORY THAT HAS PROVIDED THE TURNING POINT FOR A GREAT TURNAROUND IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF OUR PARTY AND REVOLUTION

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 32-38

[Article: "On the Occasion of the First Anniversary of the Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party"]

[Text] It is the first anniversary of the Sixth Congress of the glorious Korean Workers Party.

The Sixth Party Congress, convened at a time when the might of the party had been strengthened more than ever and a firm guarantee provided for carrying forward the leader's revolutionary cause from generation to generation, has taken its shining place in history as a congress of deep significance adorning extraordinarily anew the annals of the development of our party and revolution.

The Sixth Party Congress held amid the great concern and attention of the people at home and abroad as a historic festival without parallel in terms of its scale, significance, and influencing power had even more glorified the history of our party and provided the turning point for a great turnaround in the development of the party and the revolution.

The Sixth Congress of the KWP was a congress of glory loyally attending unswervingly as the great leader of the party the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song, founder of our party and the chuche revolutionary cause, and a congress of great unity proudly demonstrating before the whole world the invincible politico-ideological unity of our people united airtight around the party.

The Sixth Party Congress was also a congress of the victor brilliantly summing up the immortal achievements scored by our party in the 1970's and a congress of all-out march opening up a new stage of the struggle for strengthening and developing the party forever into a chuche revolutionary party and ultimately attaining the chuche revolutionary cause.

Today's prideful realities wherein through the struggle to carry through the decision of the party congress the might and authority of our party is being further enhanced and a ceaseless upsurge is being generated in revolution and construction eloquently prove that the Sixth Party Congress of the KWP was indeed a historic event constituting a new milestone in the strengthening and development of our party and the political life of our people.

A party congress constitutes one of the most crucial of the dramatic events that comes to occur in the course of development of the party and the revolution.

In the past period 6 party congresses had been held in our country and every one of them had brought about a new historic turnaround in the development of our party and revolution. The past party congresses from the historic inaugural congress proclaiming the founding of our party before the whole world to the Fifth Party Congress had been great events emblazoned on the road of strengthening and developing our party and attaining the chuche cause. The Second Party Congress held soon after the founding of the party, summing up the historic victory scored in the anti-imperialist, antifeudal democratic revolution, had inspired our party members and working people in the transitional period toward socialism to a new political and labor upsurge, and the Third Party Congress, summing up the immortal achievements scored by our party in postwar rehabilitation and reconstruction and socialist remaking of production relations, had unfurled bright prospects for accomplishing socialist basic construction. And the Fourth Party Congress, summing up the great victory scored in brilliantly accomplishing the task of socialist basic construction by the great Chollima March, had demonstrated the invincible unity and solidarity of our party achieved through the antifactional struggle, and the Fifth Party Congress, summing up the brilliant victory of socialist industrialization and set forth a militant program to hasten the nationwide victory of the revolution, consolidating the industrailization achievement and further strenghtening and developing the party. Thus all the past party congresses had each opened up a turning point for a new turnaround in consolidating the brilliant achievements scored by our party and people and developing our party and our revolution another notch higher.

The Sixth Congress of the KWP held in October of last year was a great event of extraordinary significance in the history of our party and revolution.

The immortal service rendered by the Sixth Party Congress in developing the party and the revolution lies in that it has provided an important turning point in thoroughly consolidating the organizational ideological cornerstone capable of strengthening and developing ours forever into a chuche party.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"A major achievement scored in party work in the period under review is that the organizational ideological cornerstone capable of attaining our revolutionary cause to the end and of strengthening and developing ours forever into a chuche party has been solidly consolidated. This bespeaks that in our country the basic question influencing the destiny of the party and the revolution has been brilliantly solved." ("A Collection of Documents on the Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party," p 94)

The Sixth Party Congress, by summing up the prideful victory and precious experience scored in the struggle and activity of our party in the 1970's and taking epochal measures aimed at thoroughly consolidating the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party, has provided a firm guarantee for strengthening and developing ours forever into a great chuche party.

The greatness of a party is significantly determined not only by the immortal achievements scored by the party in the past but also by how bright its future is. A great party--this is not by any means a title accorded just because its history is long nor a glory endowed just because the party is big in size. The long history of the communist movement shows that when a party moves forward confidently toward a bright future, the people can go forward to attain the revolutionary cause, filled to overflowing with firm convictions and fighting spirit and the party can display its might even more as a vanguard unit of the working class.

If the party of the working class is to become a great party with a bright future, it must not only correctly perform its role as general staff of the revolution under the sagacious leadership of the leader, its founder, but must preserve the revolutionary character forever as the party founded by the leader and carry forward generation after generaiton and attain the leader's cause.

The question of carrying forward generation after generation and attaining the leader's cause is, in the final analysis, a question bearing on the destiny of the revolution, which depends on how the party goes forward to preserve its innate revolutionary character.

If the party shouldering the destiny of the revolution is to preserve its character forever as a party founded by the leader and go forward to correctly work out its future, it must always hold the leader's revolutionary thought as the guiding principle, make the party filled to the brim with it, and go forward to consolidate like bedrock the unity of ideological will of the party. Put another way, it must forever preserve the character as a party founded by the leader and thoroughly consolidate the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party.

The crucial historic turning point provided by the Sixth Party Congress in strengthening and developing ours into a chuche-oriented revolutionary party lies precisely in that it has made our party go forward to forever defend the revolutionary banner of the chuche ideology and even more thoroughly consolidate the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party so as to make it possible to strengthen the unity and solidarity of the party based on the chuche ideology.

To a revolutionary party, it is a key question in strengthening and developing the party to consolidate its organizational ideological cornerstone, and this is a vital question arising from the period of founding the party. As historical experience shows, a party founded with thorough ideological, organizational preparations can fully perform its role as general staff of the revolution even if the situation is complex and the struggle is arduous, but a party founded without sufficient preparations not only cannot satisfactorily accomplish its mission but cannot sustain its very existence. The communist party organized in our country in 1925 had to end its existence, torn asunder because it had been a mere union of various factions without any organizational ideological cornerstone.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, based on a scientific analysis of the historical lessons and experiences of our country's early communist movement and the international communist movement, had attached extraordinary significance, during the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle period, to creating a sound organizational ideological cornerstone for the founding of a party, and even after the founding of our party, has sagaciously led the way in ceaselessly strengthening the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party.

Under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song our party in the period from the inaugural congress to the Third Party Congress to the Fourth Party Congress had thoroughly consolidated the unity and solidarity of the party, liquidating the historically hardened factional filth, and in the post-Fourth Party Conress period to the Fifth Party Congress, brilliantly carried out the task of establishing the unitary ideology system of the party, doing away with all kinds of "assorted demons" such as the bourgeois ideas, feudal Confucian ideas, revisionist ideas, dogmatism and flunkeyism.

In particular, the past 10 years from the Fifth Party Congress to the Sixth Party Congress shine as a historic period in which under the leadership of our party its organizational ideological cornerstone has been consolidated even more thoroughly on a new higher level. Our party, as it was into the 1970's, had set forth the unique guidelines for converting the party itself to the chuche ideology with a view to thoroughly consolidating the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party so as to make it possible to forever carry forward the chuche cause charted by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Our party had graphically enunciated that the basic key to converting the whole society to the chuche ideology lay in converting the entire party to the chuche ideology and that this constituted a basic question influencing success in all party activity and party work. With the guidelines laid down for converting the entire party to the chuche ideology, it became possible for the KWP to go forward ever more tightly grasping the revolutionary banner of the chuche ideology, more solidly organize its ranks into the ranks of genuine chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries, strengthen and develop itself into a revolutionary party where the thought, theory, and method of chuche unitarily prevail in all areas of party construction and party activity. Thus our party has come to complete its face as a chuche-oriented party both in name and reality, and it has become even more evident that ours is a party unswervingly moving forward along the road of chuche, a party building the communist society where the chuche ideology will have been embodied. This means that in our country the question of the destiny of the party and the revolution has been brilliantly solved. Precisely herein lies the most prideful success scored in the development of our party in the 1970's from the Fourth Party Congress to the Sixth Party Congress.

The Sixth Party Congress, analyzing and summing up the brilliant successes and immortal achievements, extraordinarily rich and many-sided struggle experiences scored in party construction and party activity during the period under review, confirmed the correctness and great vitality of the unique guidelines adopted by our party with a view to strengthening the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party, and clarified the revolutionary stand to consolidate the might and combat strength of our party into the ever more invincible by going forward tightly grasping the guidelines of the party. The party congress expressed great joy and satisfaction that our party had brilliantly solved the question of thoroughly consolidating the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party, a basic question influencing the destiny of the party and the revolution, and completely supported and approved the correctness of the revolutionary guidelines for strengthening and developing ours into an ever-victorious militant party.

The party congress also set forth the unique party construction guidelines for consolidating like bedrock the party ranks and the revolutionary ranks by more thoroughly establishing the unitary ideology system partywide and commendably conducting work with people, for brilliantly carrying forward the glorious revolutionary tradition of our party, for ceaselessly improving the system and method of party work, etc. All these outstanding theories and guidelines constitute infenitely precious ideotheoretical heritages for the bright future of our revolution and a programmatic guiding principle which will make it possible to forever preserve the character of our party as a revolutionary party founded by the leader and attain the revolutionary cause of the working class to the end.

The Sixth Party Congress by the organized will of the entire party thoroughly organized a strong central guidance organ of the party which would make it possible to carry forward from generation to generation the leader's revolutionary cause, loyally upholding the leadership of the leader. Thus it has become possible for the entire party to become invincible militant ranks vivacious and united airtight, moving in unison under the unitary guidance of the Party Central Committee, and to further strengthen and develop into a mighty guiding force capable of breaking through any trial, however formidable, and going forward to complete our revolution to the end. This was an event of infinitely deep significance for the bright future and destiny of the revolution.

Precisely this being so, the entire party members and people of the whole country from the veteran revolutionaries who had come through the arduous anti-Japanese revolution and longtime functionaries to the younger generation were filled to overflowing with stirring emotions and joy because their most cherished aspirations brilliantly came true at the Sixth Party Congress, and more firmly reaffirmed their resolve to go forward to brilliantly attain the revolutionary cause following the leadership of our party.

Truly, the Sixth Congress of the KWP was a historic congress of greatest significance that opened up an infinitely bright future for the struggle to go forward to attain the chuche revolutionary cause, thoroughly consolidating the organizational ideological cornerstone capable of strengthening and developing ours forever into a chuche party.

The immortal service rendered by the Sixth Congress of the KWP in the developing revolution lies in that it has dynamically inspired the whole party and the entire people to all-out march toward the ultimate victory of the chuche cause, unfurling a bright blueprint for the unending prosperity and growth of the fatherland.

The Sixth Party Congress, summing up the brilliant victories and precious experiences scored in revolution and construction during the period under review, set forth a great struggle program which our party and people must tightly grasp with a view to attaining the chuche cause.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"The Sixth Party Congress will take its shining place in the history of our party as a congress of victory that has demonstrated the comprehensive triumph of the chuche ideology and the invincible might of our party, as a conggress of glory that has firmly guaranteed the victorious advance of our revolution and the attainment of the chuche cause." (Ibid., p 121)

To struggle to attain the revolutionary cause charted by the leader, energetically stepping up revolution and construction is one of the basic questions arising in accomplishing the historic mission of the party of the working class and one of the principled questions in ceaselessly adding luster to the glorious era of ours ushered in by the chuche ideology. The historical experience of the international communist movement shows that depending on how this question is solved the future and destiny of revolution are influenced.

The Sixth Party Congress, by opening up bright prospects for solving this crucial question, has rendered an immortal service in ultimately attaining the chuche revolutionary cause.

It has particularly important significance in going forward to win the ultimate victory of the revolutionary cause that the party congress has graphically formalized it as the overall duty of our revolution to convert the whole society to the chuche ideology and precisely indicated the road to the realization.

It is an indispensable requirement in winning the victory of the revolutionary cause that the party of the working class should dye the whole society one color with one thought. But up to now no one else has ever put forward the question of dyeing the whole society one color with one thought.

Our party, which holds the great chuche ideology as its unitary guiding thought and holds it as its supreme mission to win its ultimate victory, has set forth the guidelines for dyeing the whole society one color with the chuche ideology, early on formalizing the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary thought as a monoaxial system of the thought, theory, and method of chuche, and dynamically struggled for the realization.

The Sixth Party Congress pridefully summed up the great victory and success scored by our party during the period under review in attaining the chuche revolutionary cause, holding aloft the guidelines for converting the whole society to the chuche ideology, and opened up a bright road ahead for a more thorough realization of the guidelines.

One of the great services rendered by the Sixth Party Congress precisely lies in having firmly guaranteed the ultimate victory of the chuche cause by graphically enunciating once again the revolutionary stand of our party to go forward energetically grasping the guidelines for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology as unswervingly as in the past. The party congress has energetically proved that defending and thoroughly embodying the chuche ideology is the most precise road to attaining the chuche revolutionary cause and clearly indicated the road to thoroughly remolding nature, society, and social beings based on the chuche ideology and realizing the independent stand and attitude of the country and the people. Thus our party and people have been able to vigorously embark in unison on a new all-out march route toward the attainment of the chuche cause with a brighter goal and firm faith in victory.

The party congress, also setting forth the basic task of socialist economic construction in the 1980's and new 10 major prospective targets with a view to hastening the cause for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, illuminated the road to successfully laying sound material and technical foundations consistent with the completely victorious socialist society.

The bright blueprint unfurled by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his report to the Sixth Party Congress is a great struggle program unprecedented in terms of the height of its goal and the enormity of its task. This constitutes a milestone in great strides to turn our country into a developed, world-class economic power and a programmatic guiding principle which makes it possible for our fatherland and people to enter a new era of unending growth and prosperity.

The basic task of socialist economic construction in the 1980's unfurled by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the magnificent 10 major prospective targets for the realization energetically inspire all party members and working people to vigorously launch in unison into brilliantly realizing them, highly displaying exuberant fighting spirit and revolutionary fervor with rewarding hopes for tomorrow and mount a new all-out march in every area of socialist construction.

All this bespeaks that the Sixth Party Congress was a congress of a new all-out march that has made our party and people more dynamically move forward along the bright road to conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, a historic congress positivley proving the invincible vitality and absolute truth of the chuche ideology and firmly guaranteeing the attainment of the chuche revolutionary cause.

The party congress, also by confirming that the principled stand tightly maintained by our party during the period under review in the struggle for the independent peaceful reunification of the fatherland was altogether correct and by setting forth a new fatherland reunification proposal, opened up brighter prospects on the road ahead for the struggle of establishing our people's national sovereign rights on a nationwide basis.

The proposal for establishing the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his report and the 10 major administrative guidelines for the confederal state to implement have evoked the unanimous support and approval of the entire Korean people and progressive peoples of the world and are becoming the banner of struggle energetically inspiring the south Korean people and overseas compatriots to the sacred fatherland reunification war.

The Sixth Party Congress, analyzing and summing up the brilliant achievements and precious experiences scored by our party in the past period in the sphere of international relations, also enunciated an outstanding strategic line for strengthening the unity of the anti-imperialist sovereignty forces and expanding and developing the nonaligned movement as well as the basic idea of the external policies of our party. Thus it has given great faith and courage to the peoples taking to the road of independent development opposing imperialism and colonialism, domination ism, and illuminated the bright road to urging on the world revolution to a new upsurge, strengthening the unity and solidarity of the international revolutionary forces.

Thus the Sixth Congress of the KWP constitutes a historic congress that has opened up the turning point for a great turnaround in the struggle to ultimately attain the chuche cause, more energetically stepping up revolution and construction on a new higher level.

In the one year from the historic Sixth Congress of the KWP to the present our party and people, by dynamically fighting on along the bright road indicated by the party congress, have further demonstrated the might of our party and brilliantly advanced the history of our people, adding a page of new miracles and feats.

Amid the awesome march to carry through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress the three revolutions--ideological, technological, and culture--are being stepped up more energetically, and a great success is being scored in the task of remaking nature, society, and social beings in accordance with the demands of the chuche ideology.

As a result of the struggle dynamically launched to carry through the decision of the party congress, above all a new turnaround is occurring in the ideomental features, work habit, and way of life of all party members and working people. All of our party members and working people, thoroughly arming themselves with the chuche revolutionary world view, are devotedly struggling, giving their all, solely for the sake of the interests of the party and the revolution, for the sake of the interests of the society and the people.

The entire party and the whole society are filled to overflowing with the enthusiasm of loyalty to the great leader and the party and dynamically move forward to attain the chuche cause loyally revering the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the guidance of the party--this is becoming the lofty ideomental feature of our party members and working people today.

Every day of the struggle of our people for socialist economic construction aimed at carrying through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress is a day of continuing leap forward and in all areas are occurring fresh miracles and innovations. With our party members and working people, who have received the magnificent 10 major prospective targets of socialist economic construction unfurled by the party congress, continuing to race forward with gale force in the spirit of the speed battle joined to the chollima in loyal response to the militant slogan of the party "Let Us Mount an All-Out March to Carry Through the Decision of the Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party!" today in our country great monumental structures are being erected one after another glorifying the chuche era and awesome Mother Nature remaking projects are proceeding at a dazzling speed. Likewise, fresh miracles are occurring in the struggle to chucheize, modernize, and scientize the people's economy, and our chuche-oriented, self-reliant economic foundations are being ceaselessly strengthened.

In the course of the all-out march to carry through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress the combat strength of party organizations has been strengthened another notch higher and a new turnaround is occurring in party work. All party organizations are conducting activities as vivacious, militant organizations, and the great-leader-style work method, the work method in manner of the Anti-Japanese Guerrillas, has been more thoroughly established partywide. Thus today the leadership authority of our party has been further enhanced into the absolute.

Truly, through the all-out march movement to carry through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress a new great upsurge is occurring in the task of remolding man, society, and nature, and our party and people are glorifying even more brilliantly the new era of national growth and prosperity. Today's prideful reality bears vivid testimony to the greatness and invincible vitality of the line and guidelines set forth by the Sixth Party Congress.

Today our party and people are faced with the heavy yet glorious task to hasten the complete victory of socialism and the independent reunification of the fatherland and attain our revolutionary cause to the end by continuing to go forward, based on the victories and achievements already scored, to brilliantly realize the magnificent militant task laid down by the Sixth Party Congress.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"All of our party members and working people with ever higher revolutionary enthusiasm and exuberant fighting spirit must launch as one person into the struggle to carry through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress." (Ibid., p 118)

Today's all-out march movement to carry through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress is a prideful struggle to embroider the glory-filled history of our party with new brilliant feats and a sacred struggle to highly demonstrate the glory and dignity of chuche Korea.

Brilliantly carrying through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress is where a firm guarantee for achieving the complete victory of socialism and the independent reunification of the fatherland and hastening the ultimate victory of the chuche revolutionary cause is.

In order to successfully carry through the decision of the party congress, above all it is imperative to firmly establish partywide the revolutionary ethos of unconditionally, thoroughly protecting and carrying through the decisions and directives of the party.

To establish the revolutionary ethos of unconditionally carrying through the decisions and directives of the party constitutes a basic question in brilliantly realizing the leadership of the party for revolution and construction.

All functionaries and party members, with the firm faith that when acting as decided and directed by the party, there is nothing that cannot be done, must accept the line and guidelines, decisions and directives of the party as absolute truth, as supreme command, and must go forward to unconditionally, thoroughly execute them without the deflection of a fraction of an inch.

Whether or not the all-out march to carry through the decision of the party congress could be dynamically mounted depeends on how party organizations and functionaries organize and command the battle to suit the heightened spirit of the masses.

Party organizations and guidance functionaries boldly planning and ably commanding all tasks and energetically launching political work is precisely where an important key to energetically accelerating the all-out march to carry through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress is.

The functionaries of all branches, all units must boldly plan in a big way and ably, spiritedly organize and command all tasks. At the same time, they must briskly launch political work at every place where the masses are, and putting their shoulders to difficult and busy corners, lead by personal example the masses to ceaseless innovation and feat.

To firmly insure the leadership of the party constitutes a basic guarantee for brilliantly carrying through the decision of the Sixth Party Congress and hastening the ultimate victory of the chuche cause.

Apart from the party the transformations of the century achieved in revolution and construction and our people's happiness of today and hopeful tomorrow are unthinkable.

We must thoroughly consolidate the organizational ideological cornerstone of the party and turn the might and combat strength of the party even more invincible, and go forward to ceaselessly strengthen and develop ours into a chuche revolutionary party. Tightly grasping it as the basic line of party construction to establish the unitary ideology system of the party, we must more thoroughly establish the unitary ideology system partywide and societywide and firmly insure the leadership of the party for the revolutionary struggle construction tasks.

The revolutionary cause of our people struggling for socialism, communism under the leadership of the party is just and our victory is always a foregone conclusion.

Let one and all, by loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and solidly uniting around the glorious party and by more stoutly fighting following the magnificent blueprint unfurled by the Sixth Party Congress, go forward to hasten the ultimate attainment of the chuche revolutionary cause.

THE DEEPENING AND DEVELOPING SOCIALIST CONSTRUCTION AND THE TASK OF FACTORY PARTY COMMITTEES

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 39-44

[Article by Pak Pong-chu]

[Text] Today in our country there are factories and enterprises everywhere and where there are factories, factory party committees are active. At every factory, at every enterprise where the working class is collectively working, there is a party organization and the party committee is briskly moving; because of this, the base of our party is being consolidated more solidly and the economic tasks of various kinds facing the party are being successfully carried out. This is the brilliant fruition of the sagacious leadership of our party which, defining a factory committee as the supreme guidance organ of the relevant unit, has been energetically leading the way in improving the task of factory party committees.

To further enhance the militant functions and role of factory party committees is an important policy our party is pursuing. This policy of our party's constitutes a programmatic principle for enhancing the combat strength of the party and bringing about a new upsurge in production and construction to suit realistic demands of socialist construction.

By loyally upholding the policy of the party and further improving the task of factory party committees we must positively contribute to solidly organizing the party ranks and stepping up the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

Factory party committees occupy a very important place in strengthening our party and stepping up socialist construction.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Today most important in party work is strengthening factory party committees and enhancing their guidance functions. Only by enhancing the role of factory party committees is it possible to thoroughly unite party members and working people around the Party Central Committee, arming them with the policies of the party and successfully carry out the revolutionary tasks facing factories and enterprises."
("On Building the Korean Workers Party," Vol 3, p 179)

Factory party committees are the infrastructure of our party directly rooted in the working class.

The working class is the main force unit of our party and the leading class of our revolution. Ours is precisely a revolutionary party of the working class, a militant party struggling to accomplish the historic mission of the working class. Therefore, in order to consolidate the class position of our party and satisfactorily accomplish the mission and duty of the party, it is imperative to strengthen organizational political work among the working class, thoroughly awaken it in terms of class, and continue to raise the ratio of members of the working class in the organizational composition of the party.

It is none other than factory party committees which directly solve this crucial question arising in thoroughly organizing ours into a revolutionary party of the working class. Factory party committees, holding it as the basics to enhance the class awareness and revolutionary fervor of the working class, organize and conduct all tasks, and accepting advanced elements of the working class into party membership and strengthening work with party organizations, work with party members, nurture core elements of the party and solidly organize the party ranks. This shows that only by enhancing the role of factory party committees is it possible to preserve the class character of our party and continue to strengthen the party into a revolutionary party of the working class both in name and reality.

Factory party committees are also party organizations of the relevant production units on the outpost line of socialist construction.

As the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught, the basic mission of factory party committees lies in that based on the line and policies of the party and relying on the collective strength and wisdom of the broad masses, they guide production and manage and operate factories to suit the demands of the developing socialist economy.

Factory party committees are the supreme guidance organs of factories and enterprises which are the basic units of societywide production organizations and as such, responsibly guide the overall task of the relevant units and directly organize and mobilize party members and working people in carrying through the economic policies of the party. Accordingly, without strengthening the task of factory party committees it is impossible to improve the manangement and operation of factories nor is it possible to solve in a timely manner various kinds of complex questions arising in production. Enhancing the role of factory party committees is where the basic key to successfully carrying out the production quotas assigned their factories is, where a firm guarantee for insuring the rapid development of the overall people's economy is.

To improve the task of factory party committees is an urgent demand of our developing revolution where the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology is up front.

In order to realize the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, it is imperative to turn all members of society into chuche-oriented communist social beings, revolutionizing, working classizing, intellectualizing them and remake social life in all aspects such as the economic and cultural aspects, in accordance with the demands of the chuche ideology. If such tasks arising in completely realizing the independent stand and attitude of the masses of working people are to be satisfactorily carried out, it is imperative to put great efforts into enhancing the leadership role of the revolutionary party of the working class and improving the task of factory party committees.

To improve the task of factory party committees makes it possible above all to successfully realize the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology by accelerating the revolutionization of the working class and enhancing its leadership role.

Converting the whole society to the chuche ideology is a sacred struggle to attain the revolutionary cause of the working class. The working class is the most advanced class in our society and the vanguard unit in realizing the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology. Therefore, only by thoroughly revolutionizing the working class and strengthening its leadership role and revolutionary functions is it possible to brilliantly realize the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, stepping up the task of revolutionizing and working classizing all members of society.

To thoroughly revolutionize the working class arises as an even more important question today in light of the fact that change of gneerations has taken place in the ranks of the working class. During the postliberation period of 30-plus years the younger generation has grown up and come to form the backbone of the working class ranks. They have not suffered exploitation and oppression nor have they experienced trials of the revolution. Under such conditions, unless the task is planned and coordinated to enhance the class consciousness and revolutionary character of the working class of the younger generation it is impossible to successfully carry through the policy of the party to realize the revolutionization, working classization of the whole society with the working class as a model.

An important way to step up the revolutionization of the working class to suit the demands of the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology lies in improving the task of factory party committees.

It is precisely factory party committees, party organizations at factories and enterprises which are the collective life units of the working class that push the revolutionization of the working class with a direct grip on it. Factory party committees energetically launch ideological indoctrination work among the working class, linking it closely to production practice, and temper the workers organizationally, setting in motion all party organizations and workers organizations within factories. Thus, by ceaselessly enhancing the ideological spirit and organizational character, revolutionary character of the working class they make the working class perform the vanguard role in the task of converting the whole society to the chuche ideology and acquit itself fully of its heavy responsibility before society and revolution. This bespeaks that when the functions and role of factory party committees are enhanced, it is possible to revolutionize, working classize all members of society, stepping up the revolutionization of the working class, and ultimately, brilliantly realize the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

To improve the task of factory party committees by stepping up economic construction and solidly laying the material and technical foundations of socialism, communism, also makes it possible to successfully realize the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

To step up economic construction and solidly lay the material and technical foundations of socialism, communism, is one of the important tasks to remake all aspects of social life in the image of the working class and realize the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology. Only by solidly laying the material and technical foundations of socialism, communism, is it possible to liberate the working people from backbreaking labor and completely realize the independent stand and attitude of the working people in the material aspects of life, realizing the communist principle of distribution.

In order to step up the task of laying the material and technical foundations of socialism, communism, it is imperative to develop industry rapidly. Industry is the leading branch of the people's economy and the major attack front of socialist construction. When bringing about a new leap forward on the industrial front, it is possible to quickly improve the overall standard of technical provisions of the people's economy and go forward to successfully lay the material and technical foundations of socialism, communism, strengthening the economic might of the country.

Factory party committees play a big role in developing industry quickly to suit the realistic demands of socialist construction.

In our country factories are the combat units in direct charge of executing the industrial policies of the party. Factory party committees are responsible precisely for the overall task of such units, and guide in a unified way the organizational ideological life and fulfillment of revolutionary tasks of all functionaries and working people within factories. Factory party committees, collectively discussing and deciding on the way to carry through the industrial policies of the party, organize assignments, and ennancing the vanguard role of party members, inspire the broad masses to carry through the policies of the party. Therefore, without enhancing the functions and role of factory party committees it is impossible to strengthen the basic industrial production units nor is it possible to energetically step up the task of laying the material and technical foundations of socialism, communism. Only if party committees at all factories and enterprises satisfactorily carry out their mission and duty, can they successfully conduct overall national economic construction, bringing about a ceaseless leap forward on the industrial front and go forward to brilliantly attain the cause for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, thoroughly consolidating the material and technical foundations of socialism, communism.

To improve the task of factory party committees arises as a particularly important question today when the eocnomy has grown in scope and we are faced with an enormous economic construction task.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Today's realities wherein socialist construction is leaping onto a new higher stage, the economy has grown extraordinarily in scope, and the battle is under way on an unprecedentedly awesome scale to conquer nature, urgently call for further enhancing the leadership role of the party on all fronts of socialist construction." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 7, p 89)

In recent years in our country modern, large-scale factories and enterprises have been constructed in large numbers, and with the chucheization, modernization, and scientization of the people's economy energetically stepped up, the national economic might has extraordinarily strengthened and the standard of technical provisions of the people's economy has by far improved.

Based on the achievements already scored, we must energetically launch the struggle to fulfill the Second Seven-Year Plan ahead of schedule and attain the 10 major prospective targets of socialist economic construction set forth by the Sixth Party Congress. The 10 major prospective targets of socialist economic construction are a magnificent blueprint without parallel in terms of its scope and of the enormity of the task, and an awesome economic construction program which can be successfully realized only if all branches, all units bring about new leaps forward and innovations.

In order to correctly manage and operate such developed, large-scale socialist economy and brilliantly carry out the enormous economic construction task, every factory, every enterprise which is the base-level unit of industrial production, must thoroughly plan and coordinate its work and to that end, the role of factory party committees must be enhanced. Only by strengthening the combat strength of factory party committees is it possible to successfully carry out the production quotas facing factories and enterprises, improving facilities maintenance, materials management, labor management, financial management to suit the demands of the Taean work system and step up the chucheization, modernization, and scientization of the people's economy, energetically launching the mass technological innovation movement. Again, only then is it possible to energetically push ahead with overall socialist construction, satisfactorily insuring cooperative production to suit the realiztic conditions that production linkages between branches of the people's economy have become complex and close.

all this clearly shows that improving the task of factory party committees is precisely where an important guarantee for stepping up the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology and bringing about a new upsurge in socialist construction is.

Our party, always directing keen attention tothe task of facotry party committees and energetically organizing and leading the struggle to enhance their functions and role in each stage of the developing revolution, has thoroughly organized the party ranks and firmly maintained a ceaseless high rate of speed in production and construction.

In our country, what was responsible for the epochal turnaround in improving the task of factory party committees was the establishment of the Taean work system.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, while giving his on-the-spot guidance to the Taean Electrical Factory in December 1961, defined the factory party committee as the supreme guidance organ of the factory, and founded the Taean work system holding the collective guidance of the relevant party committee as the basics. With the establishment of the Taean work system we have been able to strengthen the infrastructure of the party and enhance the leadership role of the party, improving the task of factory party committees to suit the new environment of the socialist system, and energetically step up overall national economic construction, successfully managing and operating the large-scale socialist economy.

The task of factory party committees which has been deepened and developed ceaselessly in the course of carrying through the Taean work system, has moved onto a new higher stage in recent years.

Our party, setting forth new guidelines for further strengthening party work to suit the demands of the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, has energetically led the way in decisively improving partywide guidance for socialist economic construction.

Thus all factory party committees have become militant organizations always vivaciously moving filled to overflowing with exuberant fighting spirit and vigor free from senility and stagnation and been able to positively step up socialist construction, bonding party work and economic work together and strengthening political guidance for economic work.

Under the sagacious leadership of the party, our factory party committee of the Namhung Youth Chemical Complex, too, has been able to score many successes, as a result of having energetically launched the struggle to improve party work and strengthen partywide guidance for administrative economic work.

We have planned and organized ideological indoctrination work and organizational life guidance, placing primary emphasis on carrying through the programmatic teachings of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song given in connection with the task of our factory, and positively launched the struggle to solve questions, thoroughly organizing the factory party committee and strengthening the collective guidance of the party committee in accordance with the guidelines of the party. Even under conditions that ours is a newly constructed factory with not too many core members of the party tempered amid trials of the revolution and few veteran workers, we have thoroughly planned and coordinated all tasks so as to enable the working class and technicians of the younger generation to successfully carry out their assigned tasks and energetically led the functionaries, party members, and working people in highly displaying, like the unsung heroes, their faithfulness to the party and the leader through fulfillment of their revolutionary tasks. While strengthening the struggle against flunkeyism and technological mysticism, we have also energetically launched the struggle, setting party members and technicians in motion, to improve the standards of technical skills and technological innovations, and establishing a revolutionary system and order in the factory to suit the characteristics of the produciton processes, positively pushed the administrative eocnomic functionaries to go forward to regularize, standardize enterprise management.

Thus we have been able to successfully carry out the tasks facing the factory, overcoming the barriers encountered, and increase production even as saving a lot of raw materials, completing within a short period various technological improvement projects with our own strength and technologies. Along with party organizational political work briskly launched in close linkage to production practice, our factory has reigstered a great advance in the task of stepping up the revolutionization of the working class, and all functionaries, workers, and technicians have come to be thoroughly prepared to the extent of being quite capable of carrying out on their own whatever tasks assigned themby the party.

All the successes we have scored are altogether the brilliant fruition of the sagacious leadership of our party which, concretely enunciating the mission and duty, even the direction of work and work method of factory party committees, energetically leads factory party committees in improving their work.

Indeed the sagacious leadership of our party is a source of invincible strength which makes it possible to successfully solve all questions arising in the task of factory party committees and the decisive factor which makes it possible to maximally step up socialist construction, enhancing the functions and role of factory party committees.

While consolidating the successes scored in the task of factory party committees under the sagacious leadership of the party, we must continue to energetically launch the struggle to enhance the militant functions and role of factory party committees.

Today when socialist construction is deepening and developing, factory party committees are faced with heavy yet glorious tasks indeed.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Factory party committees shoulder the heavy responsibility to drive home the policies of the party among party members and working people and carry out without fail the production quotas assigned their factories, organizing and mobilizing all workers, technicians, and office workers." ("On the Question of Socialist Economic Management," Vol 2, p 363)

If factory party committees are to successfully carry out the glorious tasks facing them, they must above all go forward to energetically launch organizational political work, placing primary emphasis on bringing up party members and working people as revolutionary soldiers inifnitely loyal to the party and the leader.

It is the most important duty of factory party committees to bring up all party members and working people within their factories and enterprises as communist revolutionaries infinitely loyal to the party and the leader. Without strengthening organizational political work aimed at bringing up party members and working people as revolutionary soldiers infinitely loyal to the party and the leader it is impossible to successfully carry out various kinds of complex tasks facing factories and enterprises. It does not necessary mean that just because he was born and has grown up in the socialist society, he comes to hold a revolutionary thought spontaneously, or just because they are the sons and daughters of the revolution-fighting working class, they become members of the working class spontaneously.

Experience shows that only through steadfast revolutionary indoctrination and organizational tempering is it possible to bring up all workers as revolutionary soldiers loyal to the party and the leader and successfully carry out any revolutionary task, however difficult, highly promoting their revolutionary fervor and creative positiveness.

In the past period the party cell of the compressor repair work team of the ammonia shop of our factory, planning and coordinating organizational political work aimed at energetically launching the movement to learn from the examples of unsung heroes, has positively led the way in making party members and working people highly display their faithfulness to the party through production practice, deeply engraving in their hearts loyalty to the party and the leader as a firm revolutionary creed and ethics. Thus, even under conditions that they were not sufficiently experienced and labor and materials were in short supply, they were able to positively contribute to insuring production, reparing the large gas compressor in a short period in accordance with the decision of the party organization. This eloquently proves that strengthening organizational political work aimed at bringing up party members and working people as revolutionary soldiers loyal to the party and the leader is precisely where the secret of all successes is.

Therefore, strengthening ideological indoctrination work among party members and working people we must continue to put great efforts into enhancing their faithfulness to the great leader and the party and making them thoroughly hold the spirit of aboslutism, uncondtiionality in carrying through the policies of the party. At the same time, strengthening the organizational life of party organizations and workers organizations, we must make all workers hold the strong organizational spirit, as befits the working class, of moving into the forefront of the rewarding struggle to realize the revolutionization, working classization of the whole society.

Today one of the important tasks arising in the work of factory party committees is correctly leading their factories and enterprises to successfully carry out the production quotas assigned them.

As enunciated by our party, there could be no party work, as party work goes, apart from economic work. The objective of planning and coordinating party organizational ideological work, too, lies in conducting socialist construction still better, in the final analysis.

If factory party committees are to successfully carry out the production quotas assigned their factories and enterprises, they must strengthen collective guidance in accordance with the demands of the Taean work system.

Factory party committees must necessarily formulate execution measures, collectively discussing important questions bearing on production, and once a matter is discussed and decided, there has to be the ethos of carrying it through to the end. More immediately, by strengthening collective guidance for economic work with primary emphasis on thoroughly carrying through the decision of the third plenary meeting of the Sixth Party Central Committee and by planning and coordinating facilities maintenance, materials management, labor management, and financial management, they must go forward to further improve factory management and operation and energetically step up production and construction.

To positively push the economic guidance functionaries so that they may satisfactorily perform their assigned duties constitutes an important way for factory party committees to successfully carry out economic work.

It is none other than the economic guidance functionaries who are in direct charge of organizing and commanding production. Therefore, factory party committees must properly lead the economic guidance functionaries to responsibly conduct economic organizational work and production command with an attitude befitting the master of revolution.

In the past period we have been able to regularize, standardize enterprise management and carry out without fail the production plan assigned our factory by establishing an orderly administrative command system and energetically pushing all administrative departments on a partywide basis to work in accordance with the prescribed functions of theirs.

Factory party committees must thoroughly carry through the guidelines of the party for pushing economic work by the partywide method, the political method through and through, instead of taking over administrative work, and must positively help the administrative economic functionaries fully perform their responsibility and role. Decisively repudiating the taking over of administrative work and strengthening political guidance is where a firm guarantee for factory party committees to successfully fulfill economic work is.

If factory party committees are to satisfactorily discharge their assigned duties, they must put great efforts into improving the work method and work style of the functionaries and raising their standards.

Only by improving the work method and work style of the functionaries and raising their standards is it possible to unite party members and working people solidly around the party and bring about ceaseless innovations in socialist construction, highly promoting their revolutionary fervor and creative positiveness.

Factory party functionaries must energetically launch political work, always going in deep among the producers in accordance with the demands of the Ch'ongsan-ri spirit, the Ch'ongsan-ri method, and taking the lead in difficult and backbreaking work, must become the standard bearer, the bugler of the ranks for assault forward. Again, by launching work in a big way and boldly pushing ahead with it, always filled to overflowing with exuberant fighting spirit and vigor and enthusiasm, they must swiftly dispose of it. At the same time, never forgetting their duty as people's faithful servants, they must always hold the people-oriented style of living simply, frugally.

Factory party committees, also thoroughly establishing a revolutionary study ethos among the functionaries and strengthening control over their study, must see to it that they acquire knowledge of politics, knowledge of economics, knowledge of science and technology, high cultural knowledge. In this manner they must make all functionaries ceaselessly improve their standards to suit the demands of the developing realities and ably inspire the masses to struggle and innovation.

The struggle to further improve the task of factory party committees is a rewarding struggle to solidly organize the party and the revolutionary ranks and bring about a new upsurge in socialist construction.

By further enhancing the militant functions and role of factory party committees to suit the demands of the developing realities wherein socialist construction is moving onto a new higher level we shall go forward to energetically accelerate the historic march toward realizing the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

BRINGING UP YOUTHS AND JUVENILES AS RELIABLE CONTINUERS OF THE CHUCHE CAUSE IS AN IMPORTANT DUTY OF PARTY ORGANIZATIONS

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 45-50

[Article by Song Kil-hwan]

[Text] Thoroughly bringing up youths and juveniles as reliable continuers of the revolutionary cause is a very important question bearing on the destinies of the party and the revolution.

Youth and juvenile work is a sacred task to unswervingly preserve the intrinsic nature and revolutionary character of the party of the working class and carry forward the revolutionary cause from generation to generation until attaining it, a rewarding task to achieve the growth and prosperity of the fatherland and the nation.

Thoroughly bringing up youths and juveniles as reliable continuers of the revolutionary cause is one of the important duties facing the party of the working class.

What makes bringing up youths and juveniles as reliable continuers of the revolutionary cause an important duty of party organizations has to do above all with the big role youths and juveniles play in remaking nature and society.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Youths and juveniles are a great revolutionary force for building a new society. Only if vibrant, hot-blooded, courageous youths positively participate in the revolutionary struggle and constructiln tasks, is it possible to achieve great social change." ("Answers to Questions Posed by Foreign Journalists," Vol 2, p 86)

Youths and juveniles are forerunners in remaking nature and society, the most positive elements in charge thereof. The destiny of the nation and the future of the revolution depend in large measure on how youths and juveniles are brought up, on how their role is enhanced.

If they are to fight revolution, they must, in addition to a high fighting spirit, have a far-reaching will and strong ambitions, progressiveness aiming for the new and strong struggle strength. Moreover, they must have knowledge, exuberant vim and vigor, and must always burn with vigor and enthusiasm. Youths possess all of this more admirably than any other generation. This bespeaks that the days of youth are the best period for fighting revolution and that only if youths vigorously launch into fighting revolution, is it possible to successfully achieve great revolutionary change and immense social progress.

Youths come to play a big role under the leadership of the leader and the party, positively participating in the revolutionary struggle to broadcast advanced thoughts, overturn the exploiting society and establish a new social system, ceaselessly consolidate and develop it. Again, because of their characteristics of being fond of struggling, fond of working, fond of creating the new, hot-blooded youths take on and do important shares of work on the labor front for building a new society. Only if youths positively participate in the revolutionary struggle and construction tasks, is it possible to victoriously move revolution and construction forward and achieve an unending prosperity of the nation. It was youths who had taken the lead in all past historic movements, and there has been no revolution that has won without the participation of youths nor have there been gains of the revolution won without the struggle of youths.

Regardless of times, regardless of nations, only if youths and juveniles are reliably prepared is it possible to enhance their role and energetically push ahead with revolution and construction and achieve an unending prosperity of their nation.

The party of the working class, always directing keen attention to youth and juvenile work and further strengthening guidance for the work, must go foward to ceaselessly enhance the role of youths and juveniles. Only then is it possible to thoroughly bring up the younger generation as reliable reserves who will be shouldering the destinities of the party and the revolution, the fatherland and the nation., and go forward to attain the revolutionary cause charted by the leader, to the end.

What makes it an important duty facing party organizations to thoroughly prepare youths and juveniles as reliable continuers of the chuche cause is also because the revolutionary cause of the working class is a historic cause which is carried forward from generation to generation before atting attained.

The revolutionary cause of the working class cannot be attained in one generation but is a long term one whose attainment requires many generations. The struggle to build communism which is the ideal of mankind is a process of continuing revolution which is carried on by a ceaseless revolutionary struggle. Therefore, it is inevitable that change of generations takes place in the process, and only if the revolutionary cause is correctly carried forward by succeeding generations is it possible to win its ultimate victory.

If, even as the revolution moves on from one phase to another and change of generations takes place, the revolutioanry cause charted by the leader is to be unswervingly defended and ultimately attained, it is imperative to thoroughly prepare succeeding generations of the revolutionary cause.

The lifeblood of the revolution is, in the final analysis, continued by succeeding generations, and the destinies of the party and the revolution depend in large measure on how succeeding generations are prepared. Only if succeeding generations are reliably brought up as continuers of the revolution is it possible to resolutely continue the bloodline of the revolution and attain the revolutionary cause to the end.

From this comes to face the party of the working class the important duty to thoroughly prepare as genuine communist revolutionaries youths and juveniles who are the younger generation of the revolution and the continuers of the revolutionary cause.

Continuers of the revolutionary cause are precisley youths and juveniles, the younger generation ceaselessly entering the arena of society and the stage of history. Just because youths and juveniles are a succeeding younger generation of the revolution, it does not mean that they will be spontaneously capable of acquitting themselves fully of their historic mission as continuers of the revolutionary cause. Inasmuch as the revolutionary struggle itself is a difficult and complex one, if members of the younger generation who are short on experience in the revolutionary struggle and who are not sufficiently tempered through practice, are to be made to carry on the revolution from generation to generation, it is imperative to thoroughly prepare them as communist revolutionaries with a revolutionary world view firmly established.

Only then is it possible for youths and juveniles to resolutely defend and correctly carry forward the revolutionary cause of the leader who has first charted the road of revolution and fight the revolution from generation to generation to the end, breaking through all kinds of barriers and trials.

The chuche revolutionary cause charted by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the Paektu forests has come far, and the struggle to attain it still continues.

With change of generations taking place ceaselessly in the course of the advancing revolution, members of the younger generation who have grown up under the post-liberation socialist system have entered the stage of the state and society forming the backbone of the revolution. Members of our younger generation have experienced neither the national humiliation at the hands of the imperialists of bygone days nor the exploitation at the hands of landlords, capitalists nor trials of the revolution. They have known only happiness in living under the socialist ststem.

Under such conditions, if we do not revolutionarily indoctrinate youths and juveniles, they cannot hold a firm class stand and heightened revolutionary spirit and ultimately, complacent with today's happy life, they could be indulging in sloth and laxity.

The heightened revolutionary consciousness of youths and juveniles is not something that is spontaneously formed. Just because his father is a revolutionary, the son does not necessarily become a revolutionary spontaneously; by the same token, just because one was born and has grown up in the socialist society, one does not necessarily become a communist social being spontaneously. Accordingly, only if we go forward to ceaselessly deepen indoctrination work for youths and juveniles, can we thoroughly bring them up as reliable continuers of the revolutionary cause.

Thus the realities of our country wherein change of generations of the revolution takes place and the younger generation enters the stage as the master of the state and society urgently call for bringing up youths and juveniles as genuine communist revolutionaries infinitely faithful to the party and the leader and thoroughly preparing them as reliable reserves for the chuche cause.

Under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and of our party the Korean youth movement has walked a road of glory resplendent with prideful victory.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, always attaching great significance to youth and juvenile work from the time he early on embarked on the road of revolution to the present, has directed his keen attention to strengthening and developing our country's youth movement.

The great leader, making the first start of the Korean communist youth movement, has established the brilliant tradition of the youth movement, and led our country's youth movement along the one road of victory.

Our party, further developing and enriching, in a manner consistent with the realistic demands of the development of our country's revolution and youth movement, the thought and theory enunciated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on the youth movement, has set forth a unique theory and guidelines relative to youth and juvenile work and is sagaciously leading the way in bringing about a new revolutionary turnaround in youth and juvenil work.

Our party has graphically enunciated that our country's youth movement is essentially a movement to embody the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary thought, a glorious movement to carry forward from generation to generation until attainment the chuche revolutionary cause charted by the leader. In our country the question of preparing reserves for the revolution is being brilliantly solved by the sagacious leadership of our party, and our youths and juveniles are going forward to admirably accomplish their historic mission before the times and the revolution.

The revolutionary enthusiasm to go forward to attain the chuche revolutionary cause to the end, loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the guidance of the party, and the lofty revolutionary awareness and infinite faithfulness to go forward to fight, offering their youth and even their lives, solely for the sake of the party and the leader, the fatherland and the people--these are precisely the ideomental features of our country's youths and juveniles and a rock-hard revolutionary creed deeply engraved in their hearts.

Our youths, who regard it the highest glory and reward to go forward to realize the farsighted plan of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the intent of the party, are admirably performing the role of shock brigade, vanguard, in socialist construciton. Today the monumental creations demonstrating the commanding appearance of the workers party era are literally permeated with the heroic feats of our youths.

Because all of our youths and juveniles are being thoroughly prepared as chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and acquitting themselves fully of their loyalty to the party and the leader, a bright future is being unfurled on the road ahead for our party and revolution and the ultimate victory of the chuche cause is being reliably guaranteed.

To thoroughly bring up all youths and juveniles as reliable continuers of the chuche cause, strengthening partywide guidance for yout and juvenile work is a crucial and responsible task to ceaselessly strengthen our party and revolutionary ranks and attain the chuche revolutionary cause to the end.

The Socialist Working Youth League is the party's reserve unit and reservoir ceaselessly supplementing the party ranks. In order to constantly expand and consolidate the party ranks and continue to glorify the party as the vanguard unit of the revolution moving forward filled to overflowing with militant vim and vigor, it is imperative to reliably bring up youths and juveniles, who are the party's reserves.

Today party organizations are faced with the glorious task to thoroughly prepare the rising generation as reliable continuers of the chuche cause by further strengthening partywide guidance for youth and juvenile work.

To thoroughly organize the SWYL into the combat ranks of chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries is a priority task facing party organizations.

Only if the SWYL ranks are thoroughly organized is it possible for us to further expand and strengthen the party ranks qualitatively and for the SWYL to fully perform its role as our party's militant reserve unit.

Party organizations, by thoroughly organizing the SWYL ranks in a manner consistent with the demands of the developing realities wherein the revolutionary struggle has moved onto a new higher stage and by strengthening revolutionary organizational life among youths and juveniles and turning SWYL organizations into vivaciously moving militant organization, must thoroughly bring up youths and juveniles as reliable continuers of the chuche cause.

To further strengthen ideological indoctrination work among youths and juveniles is an important demand for reliably bringing them up as chuche-oriented revolutionaries infinitely faithful to the party and the leader.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"... politicoideological indoctrination of the youth must become the most cardinal task of the Socialist Working Youth League.' ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 4, 2d impression, p 104)

Youth and juvenile days are a most important period in which people's world view is formed. What kind of ideological influence they receive during their youth and juvenile period is a very crucial question bearing on whether youths and juveniles will become genuine revolutionaries faithfully serving the party and the revolution or become socially useless beings. Therefore, party organizations must always direct keen attention to ideological indoctrination work for youths and juveniles.

What constitutes the basics in the ideological indoctrination of youths and juveniles is indoctrination in the chuche ideology and indoctrination in faithfulness.

Only if youths and juveniles hold infinite faithfulness to the party and the leader, thoroughly arming themselves with the immortal chuche ideology, can they thoroughly establish the chuche revolutionary world view and stoutly fight on to attain the chuche cause, following none but the respected and beloved leader and our party, whatever the adversity.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary thought is the unitary guiding thought which must be tightly grasped in going forward to attain the chuche revolutionary cause, and the revolutionary world view which continuers of the chuche cause must necessarily hold.

All party organizations and SWYL organizations must make youths and juveniles deeply research and study the immortal classical works of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and documents of the party and thoroughly arm themselves with the immortal chuche ideology, and must conduct chuche ideology indoctrination in diverse ways, in various forms and by various methods.

Indoctrination in faithfulness to the party and the leader has particularly important significance in the indoctrination of youths and juveniles.

Youths and juveniles are the glorious generation who will be going forward following the leadership of the party to attain from generation to generation to the end the chuche revolutionary cause chzrted by the great leader.

Only if youths and juveniles are infinitely faithful to the party and the leader, clearly aware that faithfulness which is carried forward from generation to generation alone is genuine faithfulness, can they go forward to attain the chuche revolutionary cause to the end.

Party organizations must see to it that faithfulness indoctrination is conducted among youths and juveniles in terms of principle, substantively with vivid examples so that they may engrave fiathfulness to the party and the leader in their hearts as a revolutionary creed and ethics.

We must energetically organize and conduct among youths and juveniles the movement to learn from the glorious youth and juvenile days of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the task to make them learn from the revolutionary achievements of our party.

At the same time, we must make all youths and juveniles go forward to acquit themselves infinitely of their loyalty to the great leader and our party, learning from the lofty examples of the young communists who, already at the dawn of the Korean revolution, had indomitably fought on, loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the sun of the nation, as the center for unity and solidarity and entrusting all their destinies completely to the respected and beloved leader.

To strengthen indoctrination in the revolutionary tradition has important significance in making youths and juveniles resolutely protect and defend the leader and his cause and go forward to continue the revolution from generation to generation.

The brilliant anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition established by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is the historical roots of our party and revolution and precious ideomental food for carrying forward the chuche revolutionary cause generation after generation until attaining it. Only by indoctrinating youths and juveniles in our party's revolutionary tradition is it possible to firmly establish the unitary ideology system of the party and revolutionary world view among them and brilliantly carry forward the revolutionary cause charted by the great leader, from generation to generation until attaining it.

Party organizations, substantively conducting revolutionary tradition indoctrination among youths and juveniles, must make them clearly understand our party's historical roots, deeply learn by experience our party's greatness, invincible might, sagacity of leadrship, and go forward to defend the party's revolutionary achievements, the purity intact, and brilliantly carry forward and develop them.

Class indoctrination, revolutionary indoctrination, is one of the important tasks which party organizations must tightly grasp in indoctrinating youths and juveniles.

Only by strengthening class indoctrination, revolutionary indoctrination among youths and juveniles is it possible to make them firmly defend the class stand of the working class, whatever the environment, and go forward to resolutely fight on the one road of revolution.

We must make youths and juveniles infinitely hate imperialism and the exploiting system, never forgetting the exploitation and oppression of bygone days by making them clearly understand the corruptness of the capitalist system and the exploiting nature of landlords, capitalists, and resolutely struggle against all kinds of enemies. Strengthening revolutionary indoctrination we must make all youths and juveniles go forward to establish the revolutionry ethos of intensely working and strulling wherever, whenever, with fiery preparedness to carry out the revolution with their own strength.

Party organizations, by energetically launching socialist patriotism indoctrination among youths and juveniles, must make them warmly love our country's socialist system and go forward to devotedly fight to enrich, strengthen, and develop the fatherland, deeply engraving in their hearts the high national pride and revolutionary self-esteem of living and fighting revolution in the fatherland of chuche loyally revering the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the leadership of the party.

In order to make youths and juveniles acquire the qualifications of fully developed chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries, it is important to strengthen chidokch'e indoctrination among them.

Only if youths and juveniles have an abundant knowledge about nature and society, communist morality, and healthy physical strength, can they go forward to satisfactorily discharge the glorious duty assigned them as continuers of the chuche cause.

Party organizations and SWYL organizations must direct keen attention to making all youths and juveniles acquire many-sided knowledge necessary for revolution and construction, observe communist morality in an exemplary manner, popularize physical training and make it a way of life.

To youths and juveniles aiming for the new, the movement to learn from the examples of unsung heroes has a great traction power.

SWYL and Juvenile Corps organizations, energetically launching the movement to learn from the examples of unsung heroes and the movement to win the red flag of three revolutions, must make still more heroes and innovators emerge from among youths and juveniles.

To energetically call youths and juveniles to socialist economic construction is one of the important tasks facing party organizations in strengthening work with youth and juveniles.

To our youths, there is no glory and reward higher than to devote all their strength and wisdom of hot-blood youth to the all-out march movement to realize the magnificent program of socialist economic construction set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Party organizations must energetically channel organizational political work to making our youths, who have grown up in the bosom of the party and armed themselves with new scientific and technological knowledge, perform a vanguard role more resolutely than anyone else in realizing the intent and plan of the party.

We must correctly lead youths so that, becoming positive protectors, thorough realizers of the economic policies of our party and deeply learning by experience amid the practical struggle of socialist construction the correctness and vitality of the teachings of the great leader and the policies of the party, they may go forward to foster stern revolutionary will and establish the revolutionary ethos of unconditionality in carrying through the policies of the party.

It is the glory and pride of the youth to perform the role of shock brigade in socialist economic construction.

Our party calls upon the youth to admirably perform the role of shock brigade in socialist construction, holding such vigor and enthusiasm as unhesitatingly stepping forward to take on any task, however difficult, if demanded by the party and the revolution and stopping at nothing until carrying out unconditionally the task at hand, jumping into fire and water.

All youths must positively advance into the battlefields seething with occupying the 10 major prospective targets of socialist economic construction ahead of schedule, energetically launch the youth shock brigade movement and score a breakthrough at every difficult and backbreaking post of socialist construction, and strive to erect even more monumental creations of the workers party era.

At the same time, we must make youths who are sensitive to the new and strong in progressive spirit, acquire scientific knowledge, improve their technical skill standards, and take the lead in realizing the chucheization, modernization, and scientization of the people's economy, ceaselessly bringing about technological innovations.

Party organizations, positively encouraging and developing various kinds of innovation movements arising among youths and juveniles such as the "youth sub-group movement" and the good deed movement, must make them accept with quick responsiveness the intent and guidelines of the party and become the vanguard in carrying them through and go forward to bring about a ceaseless upsurge in all branches of the people's economy.

Today it arises as a very important question to decisively improve the method of guidance for the SWYL work of bringing up youths and juveniles as reliable continuers of the chuche cause.

Our revolution is deepening and developing onto a new higher stage and the level of ideological consciousness of youths and juveniles is rising higher. Without improving the method of guidance for SWYL work in a manner consistent with the changed realities it is impossible to bring about a turnaround in work with youths and juveniles nor is it possible to go forward to prepare them as reliable continuers of the revolution.

Important in partywide guidance for SWYL work is boldly entrusting youth and juvenile work to SWYL organizations and SWYL functionaries and politically guiding and positively pushing them to satisfactorily discharge their duties to suit the characteristics of youths and juveniles.

Party organizations and party functionaries must correctly give assignments to SWYL functionaries in such a way as to enable them to launch work positively, creatively with an exuberant fighting spirit and a high sense of responsibility, and guide them to correctly execute their assignments. In this manner they must positively push SWYL organizations and SWYL functionaries to hit upon ingenious ideas about all matters and revolutionarily launch them, and formulate work in a big way to suit the characteristics of the youth and spiritedly push ahead with it.

Party organizations and party functionaries also must commendably lead SWYL functionaries, youths and juveniles so that they may thoroughly carry out their assigned revolutionary tasks without wavering, whatever barriers they may encounter, and once a task is begun, persistently push ahead with it until bringing it to a conclusion.

To correctly establish methodology constitutes an important demand for revolutionarily, substantively pushing ahead with all tasks. SWYL functionaries, establishing a concrete methodology in deploying and organizing but one task, must substantively organize and execute it.

Party organizations must turn around youth and juvenile work as a party committee-wide task, and in particular, responsible functionaries of party committees must guide this task with a grip on it.

The sagacious leadership of our glorious party is a firm guarantee for strengthening and developing our country's youth movement and scoring success in youth and juvenile work.

It is our party which teaches the direction and way of SWYL work in each period of the developing revolutiln and it is also our party which provides the most admirable working conditions for SWYL orgnizations and functionaries and leads them warmly by the hand.

Party organizations must make all SWYL organizations and SWYL functionaries acquit themselves fully of their loyalty to the party.

All party organizations and party functionaries, by loyally upholding the guidelines of the party for thoroughly bringing up the rising generation as reliable reserves for the chuche cause and further improving and strengthening partywide guidance for youth and juvenile work, shall bring about a new turnaround in going forward to bring up all youths and juveniles as reliable continuers of the chuche cause.

SELF-RELIANT ECONOMIC CONSTRUCTION IS A MATERIAL GUARANTEE FOR THE ULTIMATE SOLUTION TO THE NATIONAL QUESTION

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 51-55

[Article by Kim Ch'ol-sik]

[Text] Today the people of many countries of the world are positively struggling for the ultimate solution to the national question, doing away with all kinds of national inequities. The struggle of nation-states for independent national development and national dignity is becoming an energetic driving force for advancing the human liberation cause and world revolution.

Under conditions that the revolutionary struggle and construction tasks are conducted on a nation-state basis, how to solve the national question constitutes a crucial question influencing victory or defeat of the revolutionary cause.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, by deeply analyzing early on the character and content of the national question in the contemporary period and comprehensively setting forth the way of the solution, has illuminated a straight road to correctly solving the national question.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Building a self-reliant national economy is also a basic guarantee that makes it possible to eliminate economic backwardness which constitutes the practical basis of inequalities between nations, achieve national prosperity, and successfully build the socialist, communist society." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 4, 2d impression, p 538)

If socialism, communism is to be built, it is imperative to do away with national inequities together with class distinctions.

The national question is essentially a question of realizing the independent stand and attitude of a nation and as such, the question is a product of the exploiting society. The national question which has been brought into being upon the mergence of nations has arisen as a deeply rooted sociopolitical question over a long historical period.

Essentially, a nation is a solid collective of people linked together in common bloodline and language, territory and culture. Just as man holds his independent stand and attitude as dear as his life, all nations struggle to protect and defend their independent stand and attitude.

Each nation has a sacred right to its independent stand and attitude. Every nation, wanting neither to get enslaved to others nor tolerate its dignity trampled underfoot, positively struggles to protect and realize its independent stand and attitude.

Deprived of independent stand and attitude, a nation cannot enjoy genuine freedom and independence, and such people cannot escape the fate of colonial slaves nor can they save themselves from being subjected to the unbearable misfortune and suffering of a ruined people.

Therefore, the course of the formation and development of a nation and the course of the solution to the national question are, in the final analysis, closely linked to the question of realizing the independent stand and attitude of the nation.

Why a nation comes to lose its independent stand and attitude in the course of history had to do with the fact that nations violate the independent stand and attitude of other nations.

The basis on which a nation violates the independent stand and attitude of another nation lies in class exploitation and oppression. Class exploitation and oppression operates to bring forth the oppression and enslavement of a nation by another nation and constitutes the root cause of creating confrontation and hostility between nations.

With large and developed nations enslaving small and backward nations since the emergence of nations, have been spawned domination and enslavement, confrontation and inequalities between nations and so has come to arise the national question as a question of protecting the independent stand and attitude of nations.

The violation and encroachment of the independent stand and attitude of other nation-states had become even more acute in the period of capitalism and reached the apex as the national question of colonies in the period of imperialism.

Racial oppression and inequalities in the capitalist society are the products of class hostility and racial confrontation rooted in the capitalistic exploitation institutions and imperialistic aggression policies. The capitalist class, enslaving not only its own people but other peoples as well and restraining people's free development, has perpetrated exploitation and plunder freely. Especially in the period of imperialism with the imperialist powers invading and turning the backward nations into their colonies, a majority of the oppressed nations, their freedom and independence violated by an extreme minority of the imperialist powers, became enslaved colonial nations. Therefore, in order to solve the national question, it is imperative above all to do away with imperialistic enslavement and capitalistic exploitation and achieve national independence.

The national question is not something that can be fully solved by beating back the aggression of outside imperialism and achieving national independence alone. Although national independence that has been achieved constitutes a great historic victory scored in the struggle to attain the national liberation cause and the independent stand and attitude of the nation, it cannot be said, with that alone, that the independent stand and attitude of the nation has been completely realized.

If the people who have cast off imperialist colonial enslavement and achieved political independence are to attain their national liberation cause to the end and completely realize the independent stand and attitude of their nation, they must continue to move revolution and construction forward and do away with the root cause that has spawned national oppression and inequalities.

The root cause which spawns national oppression and inequalities lies mainly in the exploiting system and economic and cultural backwardness.

From this, the people who have achieved national independence, must liquidate the exploitation and oppression of man by man, carrying out the socialist revolution, and thoroughly lay material foundations for independent national development.

The socialist revolution makes it possible for many nations of the world who used to be mistreated and exploited in bygone days to embark on the road of liquidating national oppression and building a new life. Now, just because the socialist revolution has triumphed it does not mean that national inequalities disappear forthwith or their disappearance can be achieved by a union of nations by this or that means.

The nations who have been liberated from capitalistic exploitation and oppression must not only turn themselves into socialist working nations but build a highly developed self-reliant national economy for achieving their own maximal free development and comprehensive blossoming. By doing so all nations, eliminating all kinds of national inequalities, can successfully build socialism and gradually move over to communism.

Self-reliant economic construction is a sound material guarantee which makes it possible to firmly insure national independence and politically independent stand and attitude of the nation.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Any nation, only if it builds a self-reliant national economy, can insure its political independence and achieve the enrichment, strengthening, and development of the country and the prosperity of the people. Economic self-reliance is the material basis of political independence. A country depending on outside forces in economic terms becomes a state vassal to other countries in political terms as well, and a nation enslaved in economic terms can neither free itself from the status of colonial slaves in political terms." (Ibid., p 537)

To insure national independence and politically independent stand and attitude of the country is a basic question arising in solving the national question and a priority task.

National independence and politically independent stand and attitude of the country, only when relying on its own solid economic foundations, can be made the most solid and firmly defended, whatever the environment. Political independence which is not guaranteed by economic strength is no more than a nominal one without a material basis.

Any nation, only if it is self-reliant in economic terms, can firmly insure its national independence and freedom, and sustain and consolidate its genuine political sovereignty and national right to self-determination.

A nation which depends on outside forces, unable to be self-reliant in economic terms and unable to run the nation's eocnomy on its own even though it has achieved political independence, can neither be free nor escape the pressure and intervention of outside forces. If a nation depends on outside forces in economic terms, it cannot hold its dignity as an independent sovereign state and will be reduced to a vassal state in political terms. Ultimately, its independent stand and attitude as a nation will be violated and it will be unable to casst off the fate of colonial slaves.

For the nations who, casting off the colonial rule, are taking to the road of sovereignty it arises as an especially important question in firmly insuring their political sovereignty and national independence to achieve economic self-reliance.

An important cause responsible for chaining many countries of the world to the degrading imperilaist colonial system in bygone days lay in that these countries had had no practical strength to prevent the foreign imperialist aggression and plunder. Big and developed nations have mainly taken advantage of their economic might and their military power backed by it, as a means of encroaching other countries and peoples. Under such conditions, the nations backward in economic terms have suffered aggression from other countries, subjected to plunder and exploitation in economic terms and completely reduced to vassal states in political terms.

Even today the imperialists are resorting to all kinds of stratagem to put the rope of neocoloniasm on these countries, taking advantage of the fact that these countries have been unable to achieve economic self-reliance on account of the colonial afetereffects of bygone days.

The imperialists such as the U.S. imperialists are viciously scheming to enslave the developing countries in economic terms under the plausible signboard of "aid" and ultimately, even obliterate the political independence of these countries.

Under such conditions, the developing nations, the newly emerging countries must move forward in the direction of maximally mobilizing their internal resources and the strength of their peoples and building a self-reliant national economy under the banner of self-reliance. Only when doing so will they be able to protect and defend the independent stand and attitude of their nations, beating back economic plunder and political intervention in all forms of the imperialists and have solid self-reliant self-defense power capable of defending themselves.

Self-reliant national economic construction constitutes a material guarantee which makes it possible, not only internally but in politicoeconoic relations with other nations as well, to realize the principles of complete equality and independent stand and attitude, mutual respect and noninterference in others' internal affairs, and comradely cooperation.

If a nation, unable to achieve economic self-reliance, comes to be chained to others, it cannot successfully develop economic exchanges with other countries nor can it participate on an equal footing and have a practical say in solving international political questions.

Only when possessing solid economic strength can a nation cast off the exploitation and plunder of the developed nations, substantively contribute to the development of fair and just international economic relations, and go forward to develop fair and just and equitable new international economic relations, pulling down the old international economic order unilaterally established by the imperialists in bygone days.

Thus any nation, only if it builds a self-reliant economy, can go forward to thoroughly defend its national sovereignty, doing away with economic backwardness which is the practical basis of national oppression and inequalities.

Self-reliant national economic construction also constitutes a solid material guarantee which makes it possible for each nation to enjoy an affluent, civilized life and achieve national prosperity.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Unless self-reliant in economics it is impossible to satisfy the growing material needs of the people nor is it possible to materially insure their stand as the master of the state and society." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 6, p 274)

To develop the economy is to create practical strength to solve the national question once and for all, and as such, is a crucial task which must be tightly grasped at all times in order to completely realize the independent stand and attitude of the nation.

To run one's housekeeping with one's own strength constitutes the starting point for insuring the independent and creative life of a nation.

Only if each nation has solid economic foundations capable of satisfactorily filling its material needs on its own can it insure its national self-dependence in economic life and secure an independent, creative labor life and an affluent material and cultural life for the masses of people.

If a nation does not have solid economic foundations capable of running the nation's economy on its own, it cannot but look to and depend on other countries and peoples for its economic life.

If a nation depends on other countries for its economic life, it cannot solve the national question once and for all nor can it materially insure its working people their stand as the master of the country and society.

Reality shows that when a nation has failed to achieve economic self-reliance, it cannot prevent the economic penetration of outside imperialists, and playing into the hands of the imperialists for their wicked schemes, brings the result of handing over its country as a cheap labor market and sources of raw materials to foreign countries.

Only if a nation, relying on its own strength and its country's internal resources, builds a many-sided, integrated, developed self-reliant national economy, can it satisfqctorily fill on its own the diverse, ceaselessly growing material needs of its people, and maximally, effectively mobilizing and utilizing its country's natural resources and labor force in correctly insuring the productive linkages of major branches of the people's economy such as the heavy industry, light industry, and agriculture, insure a high growth of production. At the same time, it will be able to quickly develop science and technology and culture and successfully lay the material and technical foundations of socialism, communism.

Thus self-reliant economic construction, by making it possible to liberate working people from backbreaking labor and constraints of nature and realize completely independent stand and attitude in the sphere of economic life, enables the nation to fully blossom and develop.

Self-reliant economic construction also constitutes a material guarantee for liberating working people from the constraints of outdated ideas of the exploiting society and making them hold national independence consciousness.

It is a very crucial question arising in protecting and defending the independent stand and attitude of the nation to liberate working people from the constraints of outdated ideas such as flunkeyism and dogmatism and firmly establish national independence consciousness among them. No nation without the national independence spirit can correctly resolve any of the tasks arising in solving the national question once and for all.

If the national question is to be completely solved, all people must above all have warm love for their nation and their fatherland, the revolutionary spirit intent on living an independent live, and create a material guarantee for holding national independence consciousness.

The slavish, subservient thought of depending on outside forces or attending big countries, deprived of national chuche character, is the most dangerous obstacle hampering the solution to the national question. The dregs of such outdated thought, a problem though the thought itself is, take on the nature of an even greater danger because they become the stuff outside forces take advantage of and stand in the way of independent national development.

Today the imperialists, intensifying their reactionary ideoculturai offensives especially against the newborn independent states, are scheming to paralyze the national independent spirit and revolutionary consciousness of the peoples of these countries.

Under such conditions, if all nations are to thoroughly do away with outdated ideas such as flunkeyism, dogmatism, and national nihilism, they must energetically launch the ideological revolution on the one hand and build a developed self-reliant national economy which constitutes a material guarantee for eliminating the outdated ideas.

Only if a nation has modern industry and developed rural economy capable of running the nation's economy on its own and high developmental standards in all areas such as science and technology, culture, can it make its working people with national pride and self-esteem positively struggle for the growth of their country and the prosperity of their nation.

Experience proves positively that to go forward to solve the national question linking it closely to the task of laying its own strong economic foundations is the most correct way.

Our party and people, by building a sound self-reliant national economy within a short period under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, have been able to lay mighty material foundations capable of realizing self-dependence in politics, self-support in economics, and self-reliance in national defense.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song had ripened early on during the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle his farsighted plan for building a self-reliant national economy in the liberated fatherland, and from the early days of building a new society, sagaciously led the struggle to lay self-reliant national economic foundations. Thus in our country which used to be unable to produce a simple farm implement properly in bygone days we have been able to realize socialist industrialization and establish a modern self-reliant economy wherein all branches such as the heavy industry, light industry, and agriculture rapidly develop.

By building a self-reliant economy with chuche thoroughly established in revolution and construction, our party and people have been able to solve all questions based on self-dependent convictions and judgments always tightly maintaining politically independent stand and attitude and have sound self-reliant national defense might capable of resolutely crushing any act of aggression encroaching on the sovereign rights of the country and the people.

As a result of having built the self-reliant economy our people, forever casting off the plight of bygone days of humiliation and contempt of every kind brought on by economic and technological backwardness, have become able to enter the international arena in their own right as an energetic and dignified nation and exercise traction power and influencing power growing bigger with each passing day in the solution to international political questions.

That it has been possible to transform our country, which had lost its identity on the world map in bygone days, into a socialist power of self-dependence, self-support, and self-defense is altogether the result of the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Our people through their personal experience in struggle and life are firmly convinced that laying the self-reliant foundations of the national economy is the most correct road to consolidating the independent stand and attitude of the nation.

A self-reliant economy is not something that others can build on behalf of another but one that must be built with one's own rational chuche strength. Any country, any nation, if it effectively mobilizes all of its human and material resources on the principle of self-reliance, is quite capable of building a sound self-reliant economy.

Important in building a self-reliant national economy is developing the economy in a many-sided way so as to make it possible to satisfy with domestic production various kinds of products needed in economic construction and people's life. Only by evenly developing all branches of the people's economy is it possible to conduct self-dependent expanded reproduction and satisfy the people's needs with one's own production.

In order to build a self-reliant economy, it is also imperative to create its own sound raw materials bases, equip various branches of the people's economy with modern technical provisions, and organize the national cadre ranks capable of ably operating them.

Experience shows that the developing countries which used to be imperialist colonies in bygone days, only if they build a self-reliant economy developed in a many-sided way, difficult and complex though it is, can achieve the independent development of their country and people.

The self-reliant economy our people have built through arduous struggle is showing immense vitality today, firmly guaranteeing the unending development of the country and the people.

By positively struggling to even more strengthen the self-reliant national economy in the future just as in the past, we shall go forward to further hasten the ultimate victory of our revolutionary cause.

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT WORK AND THE RATIONALIZATION OF ENTERPRISE MANAGEMENT

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 56-59

[Article by Ch'oe Won-ch'ol]

[Text] In the socialist society, financial management work is an important task to use the money earned by the people, for the sake of the people.

In the socialist society, which is a transitional society, the law of value applies inasmuch as commercial commodity production remains in effect. Again, the means of production, which are not commercial commodities in the strictest sense of the word, take on commercial form. Therefore, the scoialist state comes to utilize commodity-currency relations on a planned basis and direct no small attention to forming on a centralized basis monetary funds needed in state activity and rationally allocating and utilizing them. Economic relations which are entered into in the course of forming, allocating, and utilizing monetary funds on a planned basis are precisely finances, and the task of forming greater state funds and economically using them to the optimum is none other than financial mangement.

To say to commendably conduct financial management means to correctly organize and command the task of forming state funds and effectively using them, and strengthen control over the execution. When all fronts of socialist construction commendably conduct financial management work, it is possible to make production ceaselessly grow, increasing accumulation even as the necessary funds for economic construction and people's life are amply insured.

To commendably conduct financial management constitutes an important guarantee for rationalizing enterprise management.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Finance is a very crucial question not only in the operation of factories and enterprises but also in the operation of the state." ("A Collection of Writings of Kim Il-song," Vol 2, p 558)

Financial management constitutes an important part of the content of enterprise management and performs positive functions in various aspects of enterprise management. Whether or not financial management is well conducted is manifested in the enterprise management standard, and to say that enterprise management is rationalized means none other than that financial management work is tightly organized. This shows that financial management work and enterprise management are closely linked to each other and that only if financial management is well conducted is it possible to rationalize enterprise management.

To commendably conduct financial management makes it possible above all to satisfactorily conduct production, effectively utilizing state funds.

Today in our country the state supplies to factories and enterpirses on a planned basis the funds necessary for management activity such as liquid funds and capital construction funds, major maintenance funds and operating funds for the people's economy. Factories and enterprises, purchasing raw materials and supplies with these funds, carry out production and operate the economy. Therefore, if management activity is to be well conducted, it is imperative of necessity to plan and coordinate the task of effectively utilizing the funds received from the state. Only then is it possible to successfully insure production, and the factories and enterprises can more satisfactorily discharge all duties before the state.

If factories and enterprises are to effectively use their funds, they must not only receive exactly the necessary amount of funds from the state but precisely disburse funds by the items and insure a rapid circulation of funds.

If, with financial management work well conducted, funds are earned and collected in a timely manner and reallocated where needed in eactly the necessary amount in accordance with the plan, the progress in the use is ascertained from time to time and correct countermeasures formulated, it will be possible to not only satisfactorily insure the funds necessary for production and construciton but prevent in advance the funds being diverted to unauthorized uses and quickly recover the funds disbursed for production.

If funds are secured in a timely manner, used where absolutely necessary, and reovered rapidly, it is possible to fulfill the production plan without fail with given funds and continue to score high success in management activity with less funds than planned.

To commendably conduct financial management also makes it possible to maximally increase production with existing resources, strengthening the conservation system.

To strengthen the conservation system and increase production with existing resources is the invariable policy our party tightly maintains in socialist economic construciton. One of the important questions arising in carrying through this policy of the party is eliminating all kinds of waste and systematically lowering the cost of products.

As the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught, cost is the basic indicator determining the overall quality of enterprise work.

In order to lower cost, it is imperative to bring about technological innovations, widely adopt new mechanical technologies and advanced production methods, and strengthen control and incentives aimed at preventing the phenomenon of waste.

If, with financial management work planned and coordinatdd, all producers are given a realistic, dynamic cost plan and clearly defined conservation assignments, and control over the progress in the execution is strengthened, it is possible to make them eliminate the phenomenon of waste stemming from their haphazard use of raw materials and supplies, and strive to assiduously operate their mechanical facilities with full load and extend the life of the facilities. Again, it will be possible to positively launch the task to adopt in production and construction various rationalization proposals such as technological innovations and original designs, maximally seek out and mobilize reserves and possibilities for production growth, lower the standard of material consumption per unit of product, ceaselessly improve the quality of product, and reduce all kinds of nonproductive disbursements. Thus it will be possible to produce even better products with the same materials and facilities, the same labor and funds, and further increase production with their inner accumulation without receiving any additional fund from the state.

This bespeaks that improving financial management constitutes an effective way to ceaselessly increase production with already created resources.

To commendably conduct financial management work also has important significance in realizing the regularization, standardization of enterprise management.

The regularization, standardization of enterprise management, because it makes all functionaries and working people move in unison in accordance with the standards and rules of socialist economic management, is a task to highly organize and systematize management activity, eliminating looseness in factory management and operation. When enterprise management is regularized, standardized, it is possible to thoroughly mesh all elements of production, planning and coordinating management activity, and score maximal economic success with minimal disbursement, raising the efficacy of capital investment.

One of the important ways to regularize, standardize enterprise management lies in commendably conducting financial management work.

To commendably conduct financial management work, by making functionaries and producers operate the properties and utilize the labor force of factories and enterprises strictly in accordance with the rules and standards, makes it possible to further regularize, standardize enterprise management.

If, with the financial management work planned and coordinated, the rules and standards aimed at earning more funds and effectively using them are commendably drawn up and functionaries and working people are made to strictly observe them, and facilities maintenance, materials management, and labor management are summed up closely linked to monetary control, it is possible to establish a strict system and order in state property management and labor organization and sparingly use funds to the utmost without the waste of a single penny. If all tasks of factories and enterprises are conducted under one set of rules and standards and closely bonded with financial management work, various aspects of enterprise management and operation will come to be further improved and ultimately, overall management activity will come to be organized more tightly.

All this shows that when financial management is commendably conducted, it will be possible to satisfactorily insure the funds necessary for production and increase production with existing resources, and getting managing activity organized, go forward to rationalize enterprise management.

To commendably conduct financial management work arises as an important question in further improving the overall economic management of the country to suit the reality wherein socialist construction has deepened and developed.

Today the people's economy of our country has grown unprecedentedly in scope, and production-consumption linkages between branches, between production units have become very much closer. If under such conditions the economy is to be managed and operated scientifically, rationally, it is imperative to concretely ascertain all elements of production and thoroughly mesh them, and to that end, great efforts must be put into improving financial management. Inasmuch as the movement of tangible properties such as raw materials and supplies is accompanied by the movement of funds, unless financial management is planned and coordinated it is impossible to successfully conduct the work of concretely calculating and precisely meshing all elements of production. Only by planning and coordinating financial management work is it possible to correctly establish the balance of production elements and the balance of the overall people's economy and back up the established balances in terms of finances and rationally manage and operate the socialist economy, more effectively utilizing raw materials and supplies, labor and facilities.

By more thoroughly planning and coordinating financial management work to suit the demands of the ceaselessly deepening and developing realities of socialist construction we must improve enterprise management and bring about a new upsurge in production and construction.

Most important in goging forward to commendably conduct financial management work is thoroughly establishing among functionaries and working people a correct stand and viewpoint toward financial management.

To establish among functionaries and working people a correct stand and viewpoit toward financial management constitutes a precondition for enhancing the financial functions and role and improving enterprise management.

Financial management work is a crucial task which calls for keen attention and positive efforts on the part of all functionaries and working people who operate the properties of the state and society and utilize state funds. When all functionaries and working people, preserving and loving the properties of the state and society, strive to sparingly use to the utmost every penny of state funds, it is possible to improve financial management and rationalize enterprise management and go forward to assiduously run the nation's economy as a whole. Without establishing among functionaries and working people a correct stand and viewpoint toward financial management it is impossible to prevent the waste of state funds nor is it possible to continue to energetically step up production and construction.

Substantively launching indoctrination work among functionaries and working people so that all of them may secure state funds as planned and sparingly use them to the utmost, we must make all of them participate in financial management as befits the master and make it a habit to love the properties of the state and society like the apple of the eye. In particular, we must make them prevent the waste of state funds and give still greater profits to the state by assiduously operating mechanical facilities in accordance with the demands of the technical standards and maximally conserving raw materials and supplies.

Important in improving financial management work is properly implementing the independent economic accounting system.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"In managing and operating the socialist economy, it is very important to properly implement the independent economic accounting system. Managing and operating factories and enterprises according to the principle of the independent economic accounting system is the demand of the law of the socialist economy." (Booklet "Let Us Further Hasten Socialist Construction, Properly Conducting Financial Management Work," p 7)

The independent economic accounting system is a method of managing and operating socialist state-operated enterprises rationally on a planned basis. Only by properly implementing the independent economic accounting system is it possible to further heighten the revolutionary fervor and production desire of working people and make them positively participate in enterprise management as befits the master, and overfulfill the people's economic plan by the product indicators and go forward to assiduously run the nation's economy.

What arises as a priority in even better implementing the independent economic accounting system is for all functionaries to plan and coordinate management activity, correctly understanding the intrinsic nature and significance of the independent economic accounting system and the principled demands for carrhing it through.

Functionaries must broadly acquire socialist economic management and operation knowledge, deeply studying the unique thought and guidelines enunciated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song regarding the independent economic accounting system, and have the style of work to plan and coordinate enterprise management, ascertaining income and expenditure by the items as they fulfill their production plan, overcoming the erroneous viewpoint that it will do to increase production even if excessive labor, materials, and funds have to be spent. At the same time, they must correctly utilize the auxiliary means of economic management such as cost and price and raise the demand made of application of the rules and bylaws. Only then is it possible to precisely conduct economic accounting and go forward to ceaselessly improve management activity.

Today one of the important ways to improve economic management work is strengthening the financial discipline.

The financial discipline is a didscipline of the state aimed at executing without deflection the state budget and the financial plan based thereon, and the law and order of the state which all organs, enterprises and functionaries without exception must obey and observe as a matter of duty. Only by strengthening the financial discipline is it possible to thoroughly observe the principle of unitarily managing finances, prevent the waste of funds and do away with the dregs of all kinds of outdated ideas such as individual egoism and departmentalism.

Factories and enterprises must have only an absolutely necessary amount of fund secured by the state, and even when purchasing but one kilogram of material or supply, but one item of parts, must carefully ascertain if it is projected in their plan, and eliminate the phenomenon of launching production and projects outside their plan. In this manner they must see to it that all funds be used where absolutely necessart in absolutely necessary amounts.

The financial discipline must significantly be manifested in fulfilling without fail the plan for payments to the state treasury under the state budget. It is the legal duty of factories and enterprises to thoroughly observe the plan for payments to the state treasury under the state budget.

Factories and enterprises, mobilizing all reserves and possibilities, must strive to expand financial revenue sources, and make timely payments to the state treasury, precisely counting the money received.

Also important in improving financial management work is thoroughly establishing a financial summation system.

The financial summation system strengthened, it is possible to regularize, standardize financial management and further enhance the role of the procer masses as befits the master.

In order to thoroughly establish the financial summation sytem, it is imperative above all to strengthen the daily summation of production and finances of work teams.

The daily production and financial summation system established by our party is a chuche-oriented, unique financial summation system which has firmly turned the work of running the nation's economy and financial management around as a daily task of the producers themselves.

All branches, all units of the people's economy must conduct production summation and financial summation in close combination in accordance with the demands of the daily production and financial summation system for work teams, and with primary emphasis on political evaluation, correctly combine it with material evaluation in such a way as to make the producers highly display their sense of responsibility and initiative in carrying out their assigned revolutionary tasks.

The financial summation which factory and enterprise shops conduct, along with work team's daily production and financial summation, must be systematized, turned into a way of life. At the same time, it is important to commendably conduct the work of making public the progress in the execution of the financial budget. To make public the execution of the financial budget has great significance in strengthening mass control and supervision of financial management and establishing the financial discipline.

Factories and enterprises, by substantively conducting the work of making public their finances in a timely manner every month, every quarter in various forms and by various methods to suit their specific conditions, must go forward to further improve their financial management work.

Financial management work is a responsible task to more effectively use state funds and assiduously run the nation's economy.

All functionaries and working people, by going forward to even better conduct financial management work to suit the demands of the Taean work system, shall improve factory management and operation and energetically step up socialist economic construction.

THE FIGHTING SPIRIT OF THE SOUTH KOREAN PEOPLE DISPLAYED IN THE OCTOBER POPULAR UPRISING LIVES ON

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 10 Oct 81 pp 60-64

[Article by So Ch'i-yol]

[Text] It is 35 years since the October Popular Uprising which occupies an important place in the history of the anti-U.S. national salvation struggle of the south Korean people.

In October 1946 the south Korean people staged an all-people uprising strongly opposing the U.S. imperialist policy of colonial enslavement and acts of treason against the country and the people by the reactionaries and demanding the independence and sovereignty of the fatherland and the establishment of a democratic system.

The October Popular Uprising was a clear expression of the unanimous resolve and aspiration of the south Korean people never to repeat the fate of colonial slaves but to live independently as the genuine master of their own destiny.

The October Popular Uprising, energetically demonstrating the south Korean people's fighting spirit and its might, dealt a serious blow to the U.S. imperialist colonial rule.

The south Korean people's fighting spirit demonstrated in the October Popular Uprising lives on and even today energetically encourages and inspires the struggle of the south Korean people for sovereignty, democracy, and reunification.

The October Popular Uprising of the south Korean people was an all-people anti-U.S. uprising to oppose the U.S. imperialist policy of colonial enslavement and machinations of treason against the country and the people by their lackeys and win the establishment of a democratic system and the reunification and independence of the country.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"The popular uprising which occurred in south Korea under U.S. military government was a proper answer of the south Korean people to the military rule of the U.S. imperialists and their policy of colonial enslavement." ("A Collection of Writings of Kim Il-song," Vol 4, pp 207-208)

Following liberation a wide road had opened up before the Korean people to building a new fatherland. At that time, in south Korea just as in the northern half a favorable situation had existed for achieving national independence and democratic development. Thus the south Korean people had established people's committees in all areas, organized democratic parties and launched struggle to enjoy a new life as an independent people.

In particular, the south Korean people, encouraged by the brilliant success of various democratic reforms scored in the northern half under the sagacious leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, had launched in unison into the struggle to realize their earnest wishes.

But the U.S. imperialists, who had sneaked into south Korea replacing the Japanese imperialists, had simply answered the heightened revolutionary spirit of the south Korean people with harsh repression. The U.S. imperialists, forcibly dissolving the people's committees organized by the initiative of the people, had restored the Japanese imperialist colonial rule, replacing the Japanese scoundrels' governor-general rule with the infamous "U.S. military government" rule. The U.S. imperialists, gathering up reactionary forces such as the pro-Japanese factions, national traitors, landlords, comprador capitalists, had built the base for their colonial rule, and fabricating numerous fascist evil laws such as the "decree against anti-military government acts," had brutally suppressed patriotic democratic forces and enforced harsh colonial policies. Again, the scoundrels, suppressing the unanimous demands of the people for implementing the same democratic reforms as in the northern half, had taken possession of all the factories, enterprises, lands, and forests which used to belong to the Japanese imperialists, and had deliberately preserved and sustained the colonialist, feudalistic exploitation institutions in south Korea. All these machinations of the U.S. imperialists were an outrageous act of violation, a vicious challenge against the wishes of the people to build an independent, sovereign democratic state and live as an independent people.

The U.S. imperialist occupation of south Korea and their colonial rule had sharpened the national conflicts in Korea and had intensified class confrontation between the democratic forces and reactionary forces.

As the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught, it is the law of nature that where there is oppression, there is resistance, and where there is resistance, revolution occurs. As the U.S. imperialist colonial rule had intensified unprecedentedly, the wrath of the south Korean working class and people of all strata, no longer able to live under such miseries, had at last exploded in a popular uprising.

The October Popular Uprising, touched off by the struggle of Taegu citizens on 1 October 1946, spread in no time across almost all areas of south Korea, people of all strata 2.3 million strong participating. The uprising patriotic masses, carrying slogans such as "We Oppose the U.S. Rule!" "Hand Political Power Over to the People's Committee!" "Establish a Unified Government Excluding the Pro-Japanese Factions and National Traitors!" "Implement the Same Drmocratic Reforms as in North Korea!" and "Give Us Rice" staged mass meetings, demonstrations, and strikes, and as the enemies perpetrated brutal armed suppression, the people raided police stations, county offices, and ruling organs of U.S. "military government" and executed U.S. imperialist lackeys. The struggle of the people who had launched into the anti-U.S. national slavation struggle was fierce and the uprising lasted more than a month and a half.

Thus the October Popular Uprising was a fierce class struggle, a bloody do-or-die battle between all kinds of reactionary forces such as U.S. imperialism and its lackeys on the one side and the patriotic democratic forces of all strata of south Korea on the other.

The October Popular Uprising, even though it failed to win victory on account of the bloody suppression by the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys and of the vicious sabotage and subversion machinations by the U.S. imperialist-hired mercenary spies and factional elements who had sneaked into the ranks, was nevertheless an event of tremendous significance in the developing south Korean revolutionary movement.

The October Popular Uprising, above all energetically demonstrating the indomitable fighting spirit and united might of the south Korean people, heightened the national and class awakening of the south Korean people, and solidly rallying the patriotic democratic forces, made them more courageously launch into the struggle against the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys. Again, it graphically exposed the aggressive identity and bestial nature of the U.S. imperialists who had sneaked into south Korea, and dealt a serious blow to the colonial enslavement policies of the scoundrels.

Truly, the October Popular Uprising was a sacred patriotic struggle of the south Korean people of all strata to liberate themselves fro the enslavement of foreign imperialists and win national sovereign rights.

The fighting spirit of anti-imperialist sovereignty demonstrated in the October Popular Uprising lives on and energetically inspires the struggle of the south Korean people for democratization of the society and reunification of the fatherland.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"It is the law of nature that where there is exploitation and oppression, the revolutionary struggle of the people inevitably arises, and the more intensified the harsh suppression of the oppressors, the more organized and persistent the struggle of the people resisting it." ("Answers to Questions Posed by Foreign Journalists," p 121)

The U.S. imperialists who, occupying south Korea by armed force, had been enforcing illegal "military government," clung to more cunning and vicious techniques of colonial rule as strong anti-U.S. national salvation struggle such as the October Popular Uprising was launched. The scoundrels, dividing our nation in two and extensively increasing the U.S. imperialist aggressive armed forces in occupation of south Korea and their puppet armed forces for the purpose of grasping south Korea as their permanent colonial military base, strengthened their force of harsh suppression on the one hand and fabricating their puppet regime, enforced harsh colonial fascist rule. The fascist dictatorship regime established in south Korea was a product of the U.S. imperialist colonial enslavement policies, and as such, took on the character of unprecedented tyranny and barbarity. South Korea's successive puppets, fabricating all kinds of fascist evil laws and extensively expanding their apparatuses of harsh suppression in accordance with the demands of the U.S. imperialist fascistization policies, covered the whole of south Korea with a military, police, special service network and drove it into an atmosphere of savage terrorism.

Although the U.S. imperialists have thus enforced an unprecedented rule of harsh suppression in south Korea, they have never been able to block the just struggle of the south Korean people for freedom, democracy, and reunification of the country. In south Korea, the more intensified the suppression of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys became, the more dynamic the struggle of the people became, driving the scoundrels into an even more inextricable predicament. Bearing vivid testimony to this is precisely the antifascist democratization struggle of the broad masses of people ceaselessly launched in south Korea after the October Popular Uprising. In the period immediately after the October Popular Uprising alone, the south Korean people launched mass struggle such as the 7 February 1948 national salvation struggle, the struggle against the 10 May "unilateral election," and the military riot of Yosu, and dealt serious blows to the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys bending efforts to keep our nation divided, set up a puppet regime in south Korea, and turn our people into permanent colonial slaves.

In particular, the April Popular Uprising in 1960 was a historic event occupying an important place in the struggle of the south Korean people in the post-October Popular Uprising period.

The April Popular Uprising was an explosion of the pent-up grievances and wrath of the south Korean people no longer able to put up with all the social evils and extreme hardships in living brought on by the U.S. imperialist colonial rule. The April Popular Uprising took on the character of a riot, a mass character from the beginning. It was an uprising in force that broke out in 70-plus areas including such major cities of south Korea as Seoul, Pusan, Masan, Taegu, Kwangju, Chonju, and Sunch'on. In this uprising participated the masses of all strata more than a million stong, accompanied in part by the armed struggle of the revolutionary masses. The angry masses with their persistent struggle at last struck down the Syngman Rhee puppet gang and dealt a big blow to the U.S. imperialist colonial rule.

The April Popular Uprising graphically showed that the fighting spirit of the south Korean people demonstrated in the October Popular Uprising was still living on, and energetically proved that no threats of the bayonet, no stratagems of deception could stand in the way of the people's struggle.

After the April Popular Uprising the U.S. imperialists, fabricating the infamous Pak Chong-hui military fascist "government" in south Korea, enforced an even more vicious colonial rule. The Pak Chong-hui puppet gang, a diabolical traitor gang, setting up the most harsh and barbaric "yusin system," ruthlessly suppressed and massacred the people and viciously perpetrated all kinds of criminal acts aimed at keeping the country permanently divided.

But no machinations of suppression by the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys could block the antifascist national salvation struggle growing daily among the south Korean people. The south Korean people kept up their anitfascist democratization effort by launching struggles such as the 24 March and the 3 June struggles in 1964 against the traitorous "ROK-Japan talks," the August 1965 struggle aimed at crushing the "ROK-Japan agreement," the struggle gainst the corrupt 8 June 1967 "election," and the struggle in June 1969 against an amendment of the constitution providing for "election of the same president for a third time running," and these struggles reached the climax with the Pusan and Masan riots in October 1979 as the turning point. These struggles launched by the south Korean people, striking unease and terror into the U.S. imperialists and their running dogs, further intensified the internal conflicts of the scoundrels and shook the base of the U.S. imperialist colonial rule to the foundations. On account of this, dictator Pak Chong-hui, a traitor who had made an occupation of fascism and tyranny for 18 long years, was at last removed from "political power."

The last days of the two dictators felled in south Korea by the popular uprising of the people eloquently proved once again the truth that the strength of the people who have vigorously launched into the antifascist democratization struggle is stronger than the bayonet and that if the masses of people fight with a do-or-die sacrifical spirit, they are quite capable of vanquishing any enemy, however diabolical.

Nonetheless, defying the just demands of the south Korean people arguing for democratization of the society and reunification of the fatherland, the U.S. imperialists are still scheming to sustain by hook or by crook their colonialist military fascist rule over south Korea, puttting up front the Chon Tu-hwan gang, a gang of military brigands whom they have brought up. But the scoundrels could never stand in the way of the struggle of the south Korean people.

Scared by the rising aim and demands of the south Korean people for sovereignty, democracy, and reunification following the 1979 riots in Pusan and Masan, the U.S. imperialists perpetrated their barbaric fascist supprenssion offensives against south Korea's democratic forces, inciting the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist elements into proclaiming an expanded "emergency martial law" throughout south Korea.

The Kwangju Popular Uorising which broke out in May of last year was a sacred struggle to oppose the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist dictatorship and realize democratization of the south Korean society. The Kwangju Popular Uprising was an all-people national salvation uprising in highest form without parallel in the struggle of the south Korean people, whether viewed from the number of people participating in the struggle, from the form of struggle, or from the resoluteness of the struggle. The patriotic youth and students and citizens of Kwangju, carrying slogans such as "rescission of the emergency martial law," "abolition of the yusin system," "decampment of Chon Tu-hwan," and "establishment of a democratic government," vigorously launched into the anti-"government" demonstration struggle. As brutal armed suppression by the south Korean military fascist elements was brought to bear on the peaceful demonstrators, the uprising masses went forward to resist by force and the struggle moved over to an armed resistance war. The uprising proceeded, taking on an unprecedented durability and persistence, resoluteness, consciousness and organized nature. The uprisers armed themselves with the weapons taken from the enemy, drove the "martial law enforcement army" out to the suburbs, and occupying the puppet ruling organs such as the "provincial office" and "police bureau," organized a "citizens committee" and "democratic struggle committee" and transformed the whole area of Kwangju into a "liberated district" to all intents and purposes. The fire of the antifascist democratization struggle that began burning in Kwangju spread to 17 other cities and counties, and even under conditions that the enemy attacks and sabotage machinations were being viciously perpetrated, the uprising masses fought heroically for as long as a dozen days in confrontation with the enemies.

The Keangju Popular Uprising was a mass armed riot unprecedented in the history of the people's struggle for freedom and democracy, and as such, once again eloquently demonstrated the strong aim and lofty struggle spirit of the south Korean people intent on living freely, casting off oppression and enslavement.

Indeed the struggle the south Korean people have launched against the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys from libberation to the present numbers no less than 25,000, and in them have participated tens of millions of patriotic people of all strata such as the worekrs, peasants, the youth and students, intellectuals, and religious personalities. The struggle of the south Korean people has progressed from a spontaneous struggle in early days gradually to an organized struggle, a more positive struggle, and deepened and developed from the struggle of individual strata into a broad mass struggle encompassing all strata. The struggle of the south Korean people to oppose the foreign aggressive forces and their lackeys and seek national sovereign rights is ceaselessly proceeding taking on durability and persistence, undaunted by any suppression.

All facts bespeak that the more intense the U.S. imperialist colonial enslavement policies and the puppet gang's harsh oppression of Fascism become, the more fierce the anti-U.S. national salvation struggle of the south Korean people becomes.

Some 35 years have passed since the south Korean people's October Popular Uprising but the south Korean people's wishes to realize a new politics, a new system, a new life have yet to come true.

The Chon Tu-hwan gang which seized power by a brigandish method under the manipulation of the U.S. imperialists after the "October Incident" of 1979 in south Korea, are taking to the adventurous road of intensifying machinations of dependence on outside forces, fascism, and division, creating a reign of terror in defiance of the unanimous will of the masses of people wishing democratization of the society and reunification of the country.

The Chon Tu-hwan traitor gang, continuing to flatter their U.S. master and lick their master's heels by putting "ROK-U.S. friendship" and "ROK-Japan cooperation" up front as their so-called "external policy," are even more brazenly pursuing their pro-U.S. enslavement policies, and extensively bringing in foreign monopoly capital, are driving south Korea deeper under the domination of the U.S. imperialists and Japanese militarists. The Chon Tu-hwan gang are faithfully following the filthy flunkey, traitorous policies of prior rulers on the one hand and are even more viciously creating a regin of fascist error in an attempt to remain long in the seat of power under the encouragement of the U.S. and Japanese reactionaries. Mobilizing every bit of the vast apparatuses of harsh oppression and forces of suppression, the scoundrels have tied up the south Korean people hand and foot, and enforcing various kinds of fascist evil laws such as the "national security law," "basic law for the press," and "special law for the renewal of political climate," are completely obliterating even the elementary democratic right and political freedom of the south Korean people. The 17 May 1980 violence and great Kwangju massacre atrocity, the vicious execution of patriotic people and personalities of all strata, brutal suppression of the youth and students graphically expose the Chon Tu-hwan fascist gang as the most diabolical fascist homicidal maniacs. The Chon Tu-hwan gang, opposing reunfiication of the country to the death following the U.S. imperialist policy of "two Koreas," are inciting enmity between people and North-South confrontation with an anticommunist racket, and building up armed forces and setting up reckless military exercise rackets under the pretext of "threat of aggression against the South," are stepping up their preparations for another war of aggression. All these acts of treason against the country and the people by the Chon Tu-hwan gang are a vicious challenge to the south Korean people aspiring to democracy and reunification.

The aspirations of the south Korean people opposing the colonial fascist rule and striving for the right to living, democratic freedom and fatherland reunification can be realized only by driving the U.S. imperialists out of south Korea and overturning the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist dictatorship. Freedom and democracy can ge won only through struggle. The south Korean people must even more resolutely struggle against fascism, division, and war machinations of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, the Chon Tu-hwan gang, and must mete out stern punishment to the scoundrels.

The south Korean people must resolutely fight to realize the abolition of all the fascist evil laws such as the "amended constitution" and "national security law," and the dissolution of all the apparatuses of harsh oppression such as the "security command" and "national security planning board," and must positively struggle to win the release of the arrested and imprisoned patriots and democratic perwsonalities and every democratic freedom and right.

The struggle of the south Korean people for freedom and democracy is a frontal struggle against the fascist dictatorship possessing strong forces of harsh oppression. This struggle can win victory only if it develops into a mass struggle encompassing all the revolutionary forces and the broad antifascist democratic forces of south Korea. The people of all strata of south Korea can demonstrate even greater strength when they solidly unite for the realization of the lofty idea of democratization of the society and reunification of the fatherland.

The people of all strata of south Korea such as the workers, peasants, the youth and students, must more thoroughly organize their ranks, overcoming fragmentation in their struggle, and put an antifascist democratic united front in place, marshaling all forces under the banner of democracy, and go forward to more energetically launch a mass common struggle and joint struggle. In this manner making the flames of a democratic resistance war sweep the whole area of the South, they must strike down the Chon Tu-hwan gang, a gang of traitors, and establish a genuine democratic government aiming for sovereignty, democracy, and reunification.

The antifascist democratization struggle of the south Korean people can win victory only if it is tightly bonded with the anti-U.S. struggle. The south Korean people, resolutely opposing and repudiating the U.S. imperialist machinations of aggression and intervention, must more energetically launch the anti-U.S. struggle to force the U.S. imperialist aggressive armed forces to withdraw from south Korea at the earliest possible date.

The south Korean people, who have engraved in their hearts the lofty struggle spirit of the October Popular Uprising and the 19 April spirit, the heroic vigor of the May Popluar Uprising of Kwangju, shall inevitably attain the sacred cause of fatherland reunification, sweeping away the U.S. imeprialists and the Chon Tu-hwan gang.

LET YOUTH BECOME TRUSTWORTHY INHERITORS OF CHUCHE REVOLUTION

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 11, Nov 81 pp 2-11

[Speech delivered by Kim Il-song at the Seventh Congress of the Korean Socialist Working Youth League, 24 Oct 81]

[Text] Beloved comrade youth delegates!

Honored youth delegates from foreign countries!

The Seventh Congress of the Socialist Working Youth League [SWYL], which opened amidst the great expectations and interest of all the citizens and youth of our nation, is successfully carrying out its work under the high political zeal of the comrade delegates and the warm wishes of foreign friends.

The Seventh SWYL Congress is an event of great importance in the lives of all our nation's young men and women and of all its people. The congress demonstrates the indestructible militant resolve of youth united firmly around the party, develops the Korean youth movement to a new higher stage, and spurs the youth masses to the struggle to fulfill the great program of socialist construction set forth by our Sixth Party Congress.

I look with great satisfaction on the way in which the Seventh SWYL Congress is completing its work and on the great results being achieved, and warmly congratulate all the delegates participating in the Congress as well as all of our nation's youth.

In attendance here to congratulate our youth congress are representatives of youth and student organizations from various nations of the world along with young anti-imperialist fighters. This provides great support and encouragement for our people's just revolutionary undertaking, and is an indication of their warm friendship and good will toward Korean youth.

In the name of the Central Committee of the Korean Workers Party, I embrace the friendship and goodwill toward our people and youth and welcome those delegates of various youth and student organizations who have come to our nation from countries throughout the world.

Comrades!

The Korean youth movement, which shares our nation's history of communist campaign and which has walked the road of proud struggle, possesses glorious revolutionary tradition.

Korean youth have fought a vigorous battle over a long period of time for the independence and liberation of the fatherland, and for the freedom and rights of youth. The young communists and youth vanguards of Korea built a youth organization in the dark days of Japanese colonial rule; the indoctrinated the broad spectrum of youth from all walks of life, spurring them on to the anti-Japanese struggle, and, taking up arms, fought gallantly in the armed anti-Japanese ranks. The communist youth movement grew and developed in the process of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle for restoration of the fatherland, and in the flames of the relentless anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle grew the glorious revolutionary tradition of the Korean youth movement.

Having received the glorious tradition of the anti-Japanese revolution, the Korean youth movement embarked on a path of proud development under the correct leadership of our party after liberation.

Youth from all walks of life in our nation flocked to the youth organization as one, and credibly fulfilled the important missions assigned to them at each stage of revolutionary development. Our trustworthy young men and women displayed youthful wisdom and courage after liberation in the arduous struggle to build up Korea, and in the Fatherland Liberation War [fought] to determine the destiny of the nation, as well as in the fierce struggle for post-war reconstruction and socialist construction, and forged unforgettable exploits in the annals of history of the fatherland.

The glorious struggles and precious efforts of hundreds of thousands of young men and women are part of every brilliant victory and success achieved by our people in revolution and construction, and the monumental creations of the early days of the Workers Party found throughout the nation testify to the invincible exploits of our youth who devoted their all and fought for party and revolution. Through their great achievements and brilliant exploits on behalf of fatherland and the people, our youth are the object of all the people's love and affection.

In the tremendous struggle to transform nature and society, youth have been revolutionarily joined together, and have grown into trustworthy masters of the new society.

Today the ideological spirit of our youth is extremely good. Chuche thought has been taken to heart by the youth, and they live and work at all times and places in accordance with the thought and will of the party. Today the youth of our nation are possessed with unending passion for revolution and deep faith in the future, with which they struggle vigorously for victory in fatherland unification and in the great undertakings of socialism and communism, and are continuing the revolution generation after generation. To have such excellent youth is the great pride and joy of our party and people.

We can say without hesitation that we have nurtured a new trustworthy generation which will shoulder the responsibility for the future of the fatherland and the revolution. With youth who are endlessly loyal to party and revolution, the final victory of our revolution is assured and the future of our fatherland is resplendent.

Comrades!

The Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party established a grand program for modeling the whole society after the chuche idea. The struggle to model the whole society after the chuche idea is a sacred struggle for ultimate completion of the revolutionary undertaking of chuche pioneered and developed under the banner of the chuche idea. The revolutionary undertaking of chuche is a historic undertaking which must be continued generation after generation to completion.

In the half-century that has elapsed since young Korean communists raised high the banner of the chuche idea and blazed the path of the Korean revolution, our revolution has seen epoch-making development. However, the great revolutionary undertaking is not yet complete and we have not yet achieved final victory in fatherland unification and socialism.

The noble task of continuing generation after generation to completion of the revolutionary undertaking of chuche, which has been developed through the arduous struggle of our people after having been set in motion by the young communists of Korea, is that which has been given to our generation of youth.

Continuing the revolutionary undertaking of chuche generation after generation to completion is the supreme revolutionary task confronting our generation of youth, and is the glorious mission of the SWYL. The youth are the inheritors of our revolutionary undertaking and the masters of the future. By nurturing youth to be trustworthy inheritors of the revolution, the revolutionary undertaking of chuche can be gloriously fulfilled generation after generation.

By being deeply self conscious of the fact that they are called the inheritors of the revolutionary undertaking of chuche and by thoroughly preparing themselves as chuche-type revolutionaries, youth can fully carry out their own task of preserving the future of the fatherland and the people.

Youth must be thoroughly armed with the revolutionary ideology and chuche idea of our party. The chuche idea is a revolutionary world view which our generation of youth must adhere to in struggling for independence, and is a unitary guiding ideology which must be adhered to in the struggle to continue and complete the undertaking of chuche.

Youth must strengthen their study of the chuche idea, and in so doing become so imbued with it that at all times they will live and work in accordance with the demands of the chuche idea. Youth should always have faith in the chuche idea, fiercely protect it and devote their all to the complete victory of the chuche idea.

Youth should hold high the leadership of the party and be endlessly loyal to it. In its essence, the revolutionary undertaking of the working class is the revolutionary undertaking of the party. The revolutionary undertaking of chuche in our nation has progressed along a path of victory, glory and pride under the leadership of our party, and likewise in the future it will be only through the leadership of the party that it is finally completed.

Without the leadership of the party, victory in the undertaking of chuche, in strengthening and developing the youth movement, and in [realizing] the future envisioned by youth will not be possible. Youth must adopt loyalty to the party as their revolutionary credo, and, holding high the leadership of the party, resolutely protect the party with political ideology and their lives, no matter what the difficulty or obstacle.

Youth must gloriously continue and develop the great revolutionary tradition of our party. the revolutionary tradition of our party is that of chuche. The struggle to continue and develop the revolutionary tradition of our party is a struggle to resolutely safeguard and embody to the end the chuche idea, and to tenaciously stand by the revolutionary successes achieved by our party and to continuously expand and develop them. Only by brilliantly continuing and developing the glorious revolutionary tradition of our party can the revolutionary undertaking of chuche be carried out to completion generation after generation.

The reality of today, when the generation of revolution is undergoing change, requires that youth be firmly armed with the revolutionary tradition of our party. Our youth has not been subjected to oppression or coercion, and have not experienced the trials of revolution. Indoctrination in revolutionary tradition is a necessity for everyone, but even more so for the new generation which has not experienced those trials of revolution.

Youth must deeply delve into the revolutionary tradition of our party, and in so doing become thoroughly acquainted with the historic roots of our party and revolution, and positively emulate the loyalty to revolution, self-reliance, revolutionary work methods and people-oriented work spirit of revolutionary martyrs. Youth must hod fast to the revolutionary slogan "Production, study, life--all in the manner of the anti-Japanese guerrillas," and struggle positively to thoroughly embody the revolutionary tradition of our party in all phases of social existence.

Youth must live and work in a militant manner, possessed of a deep sense of revolution. We are living in a time of revolution and a time of struggle. A fierce battle with enemies of the revolution continues unceasingly in various phases of social existence. The revolutionary situation of today requires that youth be made to increase their class consciousness and to work and live in a revolutionary manner.

Youth must not forget the bitter past experienced by our people; they must unceasingly despise capitalism and systems of exploitation, and fight resolutely in opposition to class enemies.

To like revolution and to like struggle is the proud demeanor of the youth of Korea. Youth must denounce idleness and sloth, and continuously innovate and progress in all aspects of revolution and construction.

The SWYL is the political reserve unit of our party and the school of mass political indoctrination for nurturing the inheritors of the great undertaking of chuche.

It is through SWYL organizations that youth are indoctrinated and tempered in revolution, and brought up to be members of the glorious Korean Workers Party. In order for the SWYL to fully carry out its glorious mission of tempering youth in political ideology and bringing them up as members of the Korean Workers Party, SWYL organizations must be well managed and their capabilities and roles greatly increased.

Strengthening SWYL organizational life constitutes an important guarantee for the nurturing of youth as true communist revolutionaries and for enhancing their political life. SWYL organizations must formalize SWYL organizational life and bring to bear guidance over the organizational life of SWYL members.

All SWYL members should take to heart the honor and dignity of being considered as the reserve unit of the party, and should actively participate the organizational life of the SWYL. SWYL members should appreciate the value of SWYL organizations, treat them with respect, love them, and, on such a basis, live their lives and unwaveringly carry out the organizations' directives and work assignments.

Drawing the youth masses in close to our party is a key task of the SWYL. The SWYL should draw youth from all walks of life steel-tight around the party through indoctrination, and thus get them to safeguard and adhere to the party line and policy and to fight vigorously for the victory of the great revolutionary undertaking of chuche along the way pointed out by the party.

Taking positive part in socialist construction is a key revolutionary task confronting youth today. In days past our people and youth worked hard in socialist construction and made tremendous progress. Through the high revolutionary zeal and great work struggles of our people and youth, our nation's socialist system was more firmly implanted and the strength of the socialist self-dependent national economy was incomparably strengthened. Our nation was transformed into a paradise blessed with freedom and happiness for all the people.

Before us today are unfolding even greater prospects and confronting us are rewarding tasks of struggle. Holding high the grand program of socialist construction set forth at the Sixth Party Congress, we must realize the modeling of the whole society after the chuche idea and advance vigorously forward to occupy the ten great prospective targets of socialist economic construction.

There is great pride and dignity for youth in performing the roles of vanguards and shock brigades in socialist construction. Burning with youthful vigor and creative enthusiasm, youth are the hard-core unit in building socialism. The party believes in the boundless energy and creative capacity of youth, and harbors great expectations for them.

All our young men and women should eagerly join in the struggle to build a prosperous and thriving new society, and in this valuable struggle continuously display youthful vigor and resourcefulness.

Youth should eagerly participate in socialist economic construction and achieve brilliant labor exploits. Youth should love labor and delight in work; self-consciously maintaining work discipline, they should take a real part in joint labor and commendably carry out all economic tasks assigned to them.

Launching a punch-through attack when confronted with arduous and difficult work is the hallmark of youth. In the struggle to occupy the ten great prospective targets of socialist economic construction set by the party, youth must stand at the forefront and courageously push aside bottlenecks and obstacles.

The seething battlefields of socialist construction are the arenas for youth. They should march eagerly out to the construction sites where indestructible monumental edifices are being thrown up, including electric generating stations, locks and land reclamation, and create miracles and innovations which surprise the world.

Vigorously expanding the youth shock brigade movement, SWYL organizations should take on a build new key targets and carry out the role of the shock brigades in socialist grand construction. As such, proud youth should be wherever there is difficult and arduous work of socialist construction, and they should strive at each and every work location to continuously push forward grand and monumental edifices which will highlight the era of the Workers Party.

Youth should play the role of vanguards in carrying out the technical revolution. Our party has established strategic tasks of economic construction for making the people's economy chuche-oriented, modern and scientific. They require that our nation's science and technology be developed to a new higher level. Only by vigorously waging the technical revolution so as to strengthen the self-dependence of the people's economy, increase technical proficiency and bring the economy in all areas up to a new scientific level can the people's economy by made chuche-oriented, modern and scientific.

Youth, who are progressive and responsive to new things, should stand in the van so that the technical revolution can be successfully carried out and the overall level of the nation's technological culture can be rapidly raised. Vigorously waging the mass technological innovation campaign, youth should positively mechanize and automate production processes, and continuously create new stadards and norms. Young scientists and technicians should open new fields of science and technology and become well versed in the latest scientific and technical breakthroughs, and in so doing make a positive contribution to making the people's economy chuche-oriented, modern and scientific, and liberate workers from arduous labor quickly.

Youth should strive constantly to learn modern science and technology. When all of our young men and women occupy the fortress of modern science and technology, our nation will develop all the more rapidly and an epochal turning point will be marked in socialist construction. Holding up the slogan "Learn while working and work while learning," youth should study diligently so that everyone is familiar with more than one modern technology and is well versed in the technology of the sector in which they work.

Books are silent teachers and life-long comrades. Youth should always have a book in hand, should read good books over and over again.

Youth should fully wage the campaign to do good work so as to add to the national livelihood. Possessed of the deep self-consciousness that they are considered the masters of the nation, our youth should expand various economic activities such as tree planting campaigns and the rabbit raising campaign; they should love and care for the property of the state and the people, and should take frugal care of streets and villages, schools and shops, keeping them sparkling.

Safeguarding the socialist fatherland is the sacred mission of youth. They must at all times be in a state of readiness and mobilization against the aggressive maneuvering of the enemy, and be ideologically prepared to fight when challenged by the enemy.

Youth in units of the People's Army and People's Security Forces should do well in combat and political training so that they may strengthen all facets of unit combat readiness and strength, and, possessed of high revolutionary awareness, form a steel wall of defense for the fatherland.

Unification of the divided fatherland is the most urgent task confronting our nation's youth and all its people today. Due to U.S. forced occupation of South Korea and the divisive "two Koreas" policy of the splittists, our nation's youth and people have endured the agony of national division for 36 years. Our nation's youth of today are all part of a new generation arising out of a divided fatherland, and have lived in a world divided into north and south since birth. The youth of the five continents of the world are busy coming and going and developing friendship and cooperation, buth the youth of the northern half of the republic and those of South Korea, who share the same national bloodline, can neither meet nor share their youthful hopes and aspirations, cannot send or receive even a single piece of mail.

Holding high the new fatherland unification proposal set forth at the Sixth Party Congress, all Korean youth and people should work for the establishment of the Koryo Democratic Confederal Republic and thus bring an immediate end to the long-standing tragedy of national division.

All Korean youth should vigorously launch into the struggle to drive the U.S. aggressor forces from South Korea and to achieve independent and peaceful unification of the fatherland. Standing at the forefront of the righteous struggle to bring an end to the colonial military facist rule of the U.S. imperialists and their puppets in South Korea, South Korean students and youth should continuously display a youthful spirit of valor. All Korean youth--in the north, the south and overseas--should not be concerned with differences in ideology, system, party or political stance, but should draw closely together under the banner of fatherland unification and struggle positively to form a grand national unification front.

Even under extremely difficult circumstances, the youth and people of South Korea are fighting courageously today, looking to the northern half of the republic as a beacon of hope. The youth of the northern half of the republic should take it as their sacred national mission to assist in the righteous patriotic struggle of the South Korean students and people, and should devote all their energy to supporting their struggle.

All SWYL members and youth should not forget for even a moment the South Korean students and people, and should vigorously launch into socialist construction with the spirit of helping their brothers in the south who live and struggle under such adversity.

Comrades and friends!

The new generation of youth, living in a time of independence and revolution, is indeed a glorious and worthwhile generation. It is to you, the youth, that the glorious mission of shouldering the great undertaking of anti-imperialism and independence is being given.

Valiant and courageous youth are the great revolutionary force of our time. They possess the intense militant spirit and revolutionary soul to fight, fearing neither fire nor water, for righteousness. It is these noble qualities that they possess that make youth such a powerful revolutionary force in the struggle for anti-imperialism and independence.

In times past the progressive youth of the world were deeply conscious of the sacred obligation they had to the times and to mankind, and performed magnificently in the role of shock brigades in the anti-imperialist revolutionary struggle and in the building of society. Those youth stood in the forefront of the revolutionary struggle against imperialist oppressors and spilled their blood, and, rinsing away the foul aftertaste of colonialism, dedicated their youthful wisdom and vigor to the establishment of a free and independent nation. The peoples of newly emerging nations categorize the red blood and invincible contributions of struggle of youth as precious achievements of revolution.

Youth have always supported one another and cooperated closely in the struggle for national independence and social construction. In the process of joint struggle for anti-imperialist freedom, the world's progressive youth have formed a single rank and have matured into a great revolutionary force.

Youth are a generation of struggle and a generation of progress. The world's progressive youth should not boast in victory, and should, without succumbing to obstacles, fight on with even greater intensity for completion of the great undertaking of anti-imperialism and independence.

Filled with vigor and courage, youth must play the role of advance combatants in the struggle against imperialism. Only through the struggle against imperialism can youth fulfill their sacred mission of anti-imperialism and independence and bring to flower the beautiful ideals of youth. The youth of newly emerging nations should join tightly together into militant ranks, and, drawing together under the banner of anti-imperialism, fight ferociously to remove all forms of colonialism and dominationism.

Solidifying national independence and building a prosperous new society through self-sacrificing struggle is the glorious mission of youth. With their youthful wisdom and vitality, they should stand in the forefront of the people in the struggle to build a prosperous new society. The new generation of youth should devote all their wisdom and strength to the proud struggle for a beautiful future for their fatherland, and should gallantly shove aside all manner of bottlenecks and obstacles which arise in the construction of the new society.

In order to carry out the weighty missions arising in the anti-imperialism struggle and the building of new societies, the world's progressive youth must strengthen international unity and militant solidarity.

Unity and cooperation in revolutionary struggle constitute the source of invincible power as well as a decisive guarantee for success. Only by uniting solidly together and helping and supporting each other can the world's progressive youth achieve victory in the struggle to oppose imperialism and colonialism, solidify democratic independence and establish socialist progressiveness.

The world's progressive youth should firmly unite and provide joint assistance in the struggle to block the war maneuvering of the imperialists and to preserve international peace and security. The world's progressive youth should combine their strength to shake loose the imperialists, colonialists and racists, headed by the U.S., from all places where they have aggressive designs, giving the enemy a resounding blow.

The progressive youth of the world must unite and cooperate in the struggle to build new societies. Along with supporting each other politically and becoming firmly united, the youth of progressive nations, including the non-aligned nations, must have close economic and technologic cooperation. When the newly emerging nations support each other in building new societies and cooperate economically and technologically, they can build strong and prosperous independent nations without owing any debts to the big powers.

The strengthening of ties of friendship between the various youth organizations of the world is an important guarantee for development of the world youth movement. There should be lively interchange and exchange between the youth organizations of the various nations of the world, a sharing of good experience and development of ties of friendship and cooperation. In so doing the mutual understanding of progressive youth from the various continents and regions of the world should be deepened, and the world youth movement strengthened and developed to new heights.

The Korean youth movement is a part of the world youth movement, and is developing within close association with the world youth movement.

In the past the Korean youth have worked hard to strengthen international solidarity with youth of the nations of the world, and have received the positive support and encoragement of the world's youth in the struggle to force the withdrawal of the U.S. aggressor forces from South Korea and to achieve independent unification of the fatherland.

I would like to take this opportunity to express deep appreciation to the progressive youth of the nations of the world which have positively supported and encouraged our people's great undertaking of fatherland unification.

Korean youth will, in the future as was the case in the past, devote all their efforts to strengthen militant friendship and solidarity with the progressive youth of the world's nations, and joint together with them at all times to fight in the joint struggle to oppose imperialism and dominationism and to achieve democracy, national independence and social progress.

Comrades!

Under the leadership of the party and holding high the banner of the chuche idea, Korean youth have trod a brilliant and proud revolutionary path to victory and glory, and have recorded indestructible achievements for fatherland and people.

A brilliant future is unfolding before the SWYL and our youth, and the prospects for our nation's youth movement are boundless.

All SWYL members and youth must fight courageously, as befitting the new generation and as befitting the reserve unit of the Korean Workers Party, to carry out to completion the great revolutionary undertaking of chuche.

There is only victory and glory ahead for the Korean youth who are marching determinedly toward a glorious future under the wise leadership of our party, firmly believing in the justness of their undertaking.

I firmly believe that all SWYL members and youth, holding high the banner of the chuche idea and drawing closely in around the Party Central Committee, will brilliantly fulfill the glorious mission assigned to them in the struggle to achieve final victory in modelling the whole society after the chuche idea, in fatherland unification and in our revolution.

OUR PARTY: GUIDING FORCE RESPONSIBLE FOR AND DIRECTING THE DESTINY OF THE PEOPLE

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 11, Nov 81 pp 12-19

[Article]

[Text] In days past our people became, during the course of glorious struggle to carry out the great undertaking of chuche, true masters of their own destiny and a most powerful and dignified people.

Our people, who lived lives of misery and who were weighted down with an empty destiny for so long under the oppression of corrupt feudalism and Japanese colonialism, for the first time in the several thousands of years of history of our people loudly proclaimed the great Comrade Kim Il-song as leader, and, under the leadership of the Korean Workers Party, took their destiny firmly in their own hands and were able to independently and creatively carve out their own future and to achieve brilliant victories in revolution and construction.

This proud reality in which our people accepted the age of the workers party and became true masters of their own destiny to achieve boundless national prosperity and growth vividly demonstrates just to what extent transformations can be wrought in the condition and destiny of the people when they are held in the broad bosom of the great party.

Through life's experience our people have come to firmly believe that only the party, which was created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and which is brilliantly carrying out the great undertaking of chuche, can be completely responsible for the destiny of the fatherland and the people and can lead the masses to victory, and have come to be acutely aware that only when they entrust the destinies of themselves and succeeding generations completely to our party and move forward only under the guidance of the party can a bright future and brilliant prospects be opened up for the people.

The issue of how the lives of people--their destinies--are to be preserved, made active, nurtured and brought to a close is a matter of life and death to them, and as such is one which commands their utmost concern. The questions of what will be the destiny of the people, of how the broad working masses who languish under the oppression and coercion of the privileged class in a class society can free themselves from their ill-starred destiny, and of what path of destiny should be chosen for themselves and the following generations are questions which people cannot put out of their minds. Nations too struggle to be masters of their own destinies and classes also struggle to blaze their own destinies. It has been in this context that mankind has searched for centuries for a way of correctly solving its own destiny, and that numerous advanced ideologues and progressive philosophers, poets, writers and social activists have written and debated on the problem of destiny.

However, in many instances in the past false concepts concerning the destiny of mankind have been in circulation, and scientific explanation of them has by and large been missing. The coercive class, in order to make the working class its slave, has preached that people are born to a destiny of exploitation and coercion, that such is their fate. The church has preached that only "God" can determine destiny, and that only when they die can the oppressed masses go to "heaven" and change their wretched lot. Comprehensive scientific clarification concerning the problem of people's destiny is most lucidly given in the immortal chuche idea created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows.

"In a word, the chuche idea is that the masters of revolution and construction are the popular masses, and that the power to accomplish revolution and construction also resides in the popular masses. In other words, the master of one's destiny is oneself, and the power to form one's destiny also rests with oneself." ("On the Chuche Idea," p 517)

The chuche idea is a world view which says that people possess the authority of masters in the world and play a decisive role in their own destinies and in world development. Inasmuch as people live in the world and create their own destinies through interaction with the world, it can be said that the destiny of people is formed in the context of relations with the world.

That people are concerned about the world stems at all times from their concern over their own destiny, and it is in this that the problem of world view arises. The struggle between the idealists, who argue the existence of the soul and the materialists, who given credence to the non-existence of the soul, and that between metaphysics, which claims that all things are immutable and that likewise the destiny of people cannot be changed, and the dialectic, which says that the fate of people can be changed, were ultimately in confrontation from the standpoint of the world view focused on the destiny of mankind.

The most important world view issue arising in conjunction with the destiny of people is that dealing with the position of people in the world and the role they play in world development.

The process in which people form their own destinies is one which improves the position occupied by people in the world through remolding and controlling the world. We can see that the position occupied by a people in the world is manifested by the degree to which they control the world--that is, by the degree to which they form their own destinies. From this follows the question of how large a role people have in reshaping the world, and on this is determined how rapidly people's destinies are improved.

It is the immortal chuche idea created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song which explains, for the first time in history, that, based on the chuche world view which clearly shows that the position and role of people are those of masters, the masters of their destinies are the people themselves and that the power to improve those destinies also rests with them.

In this is found a comprehensive and scientific answer to the question of people's destinies which, although long-standing and of vital concern to the people, had not been solved.

So it is that the chuche idea makes apparent that it is the popular masses themselves who are the masters of their destiny and that the power to improve their destiny rests with themselves. This does not mean, however, that the popular masses will become masters of their own destiny automatically or that the path of improving destiny will be easily found.

The chuche idea makes it clear that, if the popular masses are to correctly improve their destiny as true masters thereof, they must be correctly guided so that they possess full awareness that they are masters of revolution and construction and demonstrate to the maximum their own creative abilities.

The destiny of people is ultimately not a separate entity, but is linked to the destiny of the social whole, the class and the nation. Consequently, the struggle to solve the issue of people's destiny cannot be waged individually, but through revolutionary struggle to improve the destiny of the society, the nation and the class.

As a result, without the guidance of a great leader and a party to concentrate the revolutionary force of the oppressed working class, to represent the interests of the nation and the popular masses and to show them the direction and course of revolutionary struggle, the working masses cannot make full use of their power to improve their destiny nor can they correctly find the future course of struggle. If such is the case, the popular masses will not be able to properly fulfill their role as masters of their own destiny, and will not be able to make full use of their power.

Only under the wise leadership of the party and the leader can the popular masses fully make use of their position as masters of their own destiny and organize their power so as to concentrate on realization of a single objective.

That the working masses in exploitive societies cannot emerge from their destiny of being ill-clothed and fed regardless of how hard they work is due to the fact that they have not received the revolutionary leadership of a great leader and party of the working class which would make them aware that they are true masters of their own destiny, and would take responsibility for and guide them toward improving their destiny.

The party of the working class is the political leader responsible for and guiding their destiny.

It can be said that the process whereby the party leads revolution and construction is ultimately a process whereby it takes responsibility for and guides the destiny of the people. The prospects and destiny of the people depend completely on the guidance and support of the party.

For the party of the working class which has taken power, taking responsibility for and solving all problems associated with the destiny of the people, and all problems arising in the course of their lives, is a particularly sacred mission.

The Korean Workers Party is the revolutionary party of the working class which has adopted the immortal chuche idea as its guiding ideology, and is the guiding force of our people which makes the popular masses conscious of the fact that they themselves are masters of their destiny and that the power to improve their destiny rests with them, which continuously elemates their independence and creativity, and which leads them along the one path to victory and glory.

The Korean Workers Party is a motherly party which delves into every nook and cranny of the political, economic and cultural lives of the people, and which always adheres firmly to the revolutionary mass line and brilliantly embodies the popular work method.

As the revolutionary party and the motherly party which is fully responsible for and guides the destiny of the people, our party has become a great, powerful party which guides socialist and communist construction without faltering, draws the popular masses close in around the people and the party, and is deeply rooted in the popular masses and receives the total confidence of the masses.

The process of improving the destiny of the popular masses has become a process of struggle to vigorously launch revolution and construction and thereby achieve their independence.

That the popular masses have become true masters of their own destiny is to say that they have achieved the right to be able to improve their destiny in accordance with their own will and needs, and that it is something which can be fully solved only when all manner of restraints and fetters which limit their freedom are removed.

Consequently, if the destiny of the popular masses is to be correctly improved, their revolutionary struggle to achieve freedom must be correctly guided.

By creating the immortal chuche idea and making it known to those people who had been born into a miserable fate at the hands of foreign aggressors and exploitive classes in the past that the masters of their destiny were they themselves and that the power to improve their destiny rested with themselves, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song guided them to launch into the revolutionary struggle for free and creative lives. From that day forth the working masses entered a new historic era of improving, freely and creatively, their own destiny, and a new era of independence.

From the time that the era of freedom began our people have opened the struggle to completely solve their own fate and destiny on various levels. Since the class society had many restraints on the freedom of people and since numerous social fetters and bonds remained, it was not possible to remove them all at once; they could be eliminated gradually as revolutionary development progressed.

During the course of achieving a communist ideal society in which the problem of people's destiny is completely solved, the party of the working class must first of all eliminate ethnic and class oppression and exploitation, and then completely root out all manner of constraints and social inequities carrying over from the old society.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows.

"In order for the people of any nation to become true masters of their destiny, they must have independent political authority and independence must be thoroughly embodied in their politics." ("Responses to Questions Posed by Foreign Journalists," Vol 2 p 139)

In order for the popular masses to become true masters of their destiny, first of all ethnic and class exploitation and coercion must be eliminated and independent politics put into force which reflect the will and needs of the working masses, and in this way their social and political independence completely realized.

Ethnic and class exploitation and coercion infringe upon the freedom of people and are root causes of wretched destiny being brought down on people.

In the past, our people lost their country to foreign capitalists and, deprived of national freedom, could not escape a destiny of colonial slavery. The situation at that time for our people who had lost their country, when the whole land was bathed in a sea of blood and the language could not be spoken or rites of mourning observed, was one in which the destiny of the people was thrown into a crisis of survival.

In the midst of all his countrymen crying out for a leader, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song rose to the road of revolution, and for the first time our people were able to see the brilliant future of their own destiny.

Bringing together into one the destiny of the fatherland and the people, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song guided the 20-year anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle to victory and liberated our people from a destiny of colonial slavery, and, leading the anti-imperialist anti-feudalist democratic revolution and the socialist revolution throughout the fatherland, completed the great undertaking of class liberation.

In this manner our people became true masters of independent political authority and the means of production, were freed from all manner of exploitation and coercion, and were enabled to completely achieve social and plitical independence. This was a brilliant victory achieved during the process of a protracted and arduous struggle for our people to improve their own destiny, and marked a fundamental transformation on the path to alter the fate and destiny of our nation and people.

However, the great undertaking of the popular masses to completely solve their own fate and destiny did not end with this, and can be completed only through a struggle to completely emerge from all constraints remaining from the old society in all areas of ideology, technology and culture.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song showed that if, after establishment of a socialist system, the popular masses were to be completely freed from all manner of natural and social restraints, become genuine masters of their own destinies and then enjoy an independent and creative life, they would have to be liberated from the old ideology, from arduous labor and from cultural backwardness, and he wisely brought forward the three great revolutions in ideology, technology and culture.

With the launching of the three revolutions, remnants of the old society carrying over in the ideological, technological and cultural sectors were successfully subjugated, class differences between workers greatly reduced, and the people enabled to enjoy a more independent and creative life.

Today, under the wise leadership of our party, the destiny of our people is even more brilliantly improving.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows.

"Our party is fully responsible for all problems, large and small, of the Korean revolution, and for the present life and future destiny of our people." ("Selected Works of Kim Il-Song," Vol 7 p 77)

The history of the Korean Workers Party is a brilliant history of victory in which the party and the people tied together their destinies and weathered great trials together, and, with the leadership of the Korean Workers Party, our people became a dignified and proud people capable of improving their own destiny with their own strength.

Today all of the activities arising in the carrying out of our revolutionary undertaking are being organized and guided by our party, and the vigorous struggle and polished leadership of our party are brilliantly symbolic of the resplendent prospects for the future destiny of our people.

As a result of the Korean Workers Party having brilliantly embodied the immortal chuche idea created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, and having wisely guided our people toward brilliantly blazing the way for them to become genuine masters of their destiny, our people have been transformed into the most proud and dignified people of the world.

First of all, in taking responsibility for the political existence of all party members and protecting them, our party has made it possible for them to enjoy to the maximum the most dignified and proud way of life along the revolutionary way.

In terms of the destiny of people, the most important thing is their political destiny. Political life occupies the most important position in their enjoyment of interpersonal life as part of social existence. If a person is allowed to live but is isolated from society and deprived of political freedom, then that person is no different from a corpse to the social community and has a wretched destiny. Consequently, the question of destiny becomes even more important when framed in terms of how to maintain and make more brilliant the political existence which comes about in the course of social and political life.

In its broad bosom our party provides for the most precious political life for all workers and inculcates the highest political confidence that revolutionaries may live a dignified life.

The trust and love of the party and the leader for revolutionary soldiers on the road of revolution are most precious, and there is nothing prouder or more glorious than living and working therein. To receive the high political confidence of the party and the leader--for the individual born into revolutionary times or living and fighting for revolution, such is far more valuable and glorious than receiving some material benefit.

The great guiding stance of our party which glorifies the political existence of people is of significance in bestowing great political trust on revolutionary soldiers.

Within the great political confidence of the party, numerous people and their sons and daughters who wore the yoke of oppression of the past and who were treated with contempt have been given the precious honor of being members of the glorious Korean Workers Party, and many workers laboring in the various fronts of socialist construction have recived Labor Hero citations or honor citations, so that our revolutionary ranks have been further swelled by loyal ranks of chuche-type communist revolutionaries.

The high political trust of our party for revolutionary soldiers extends warmly even to those with complicated [pokchaphan] social and political circumstances and to those who have at one time committed errors.

As for those with complicated social and political circumstances, elements and environments of the old days, as well as their sons and daughters, to the extent that such individuals believe in the party and act accordingly our party places them justly in the glorious revolutionary ranks and persistently indoctrinates them so as to nurture them as ardent revolutionaries.

When revolutionary soldiers make mistakes, our party patiently guides them, providing fundamental indoctrination so that they won't forfeit their political life.

Our party states that a basic principle in work is not to dwell on shortcomings when evaluating a person but to search out good points, and teaches party functionaries that the important thing in working with people is to possess the viewpoint of first trusting them and loving them.

It is in the bosom of our party, which considers the present more important than people's past and which views as precious the loyalty in their hearts, that our people live and enjoy the most worthwhile and dignified life, and, even should they die, maintain an immortal political life. Our party is also responsible for and guides the people's economic and cultural life.

The question of the destiny of the people can be solved not only when the working masses are liberated from exploitation and coercion, but also when they are freed from arduous labor and when they can enjoy a more abundant and dignified existence in their material culture life. In the socialist system under conditions where people live by entrusting their social existence, from political to economic and cultural, and their own future, to the party, the party of the working class must take responsibility for and solve all problems associated with the destiny of the people in a manner that suits the essential demands of the socialist system, and it is only such a party that can fully discharge its own sacred mission to the times and the people.

Completely liberating workers, who have been freed from exploitation and coercion, from arduous labor occupies an extremely important position for the party of the working class in solving the problem of the people's destiny.

When there remains much arduous labor for the people and they have not been freed from the constraints of nature, work life cannot become more enjoyable and worthwhile, and accordingly the issue of people's destiny cannot be said to have been successfully solved.

From the very beginning of the building of a new society our party set the liberation of workers from difficult and arduous labor as a key revolutionary task confronting communists, and has vigorously organized and guided the struggle for its realization.

Specifically, the 1970's, from the time the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song brought forth at the historic Fifth Party Congress the new program of human liberation and the program for the three great revolutions, and from the time when a new era of automation emerged in this land, up through the Sixth Party Congress, has been an era of great revolutionary change which, under the wise leadership of our party, has seen epochal progress in freeing the working masses from arduous labor and from the constraints of nature.

Our party, which brilliantly embodies the lofty intent of the great leader to completely liberate our workers, already freed from exploitation and coercion, from arduous labor, has set forth substantial creative guidelines and methods for realizing the brilliant prospects of the technical revolution.

Putting people at the center of things, our party reminds functionaries that they must consider the health and welfare of our people whether or not they build a plant or make a machine, and should the work environment pose even the slightest threat to the health of the workers, positive steps are taken to responsibly correct the situation regardless of the expense required.

Under the benevolent hand of the party, automation of the Hwanghae Iron and Steel Complex was made a model for vogorously fanning the flames of widespread automation, and the long-distance belt conveyor lines at Ullyul and Komdok have taken over arduous labor. Use of industrial television is coming into being everywhere and large quantities of modern high-efficiency machine equipment are being manufactured and distributed, with the result that our people's work is becoming more enjoyable and worthwhile, and that disparities between physical labor and mental labor are gradually diminishing.

Our party is devoting all its energy not only to make the work life of our people light and enjoyable, but also to continuously increase their level of material culture.

Continuously increasing the level of the material culture of the people is a paramount principle in our party's activities. Only by striving to see to it that the people have a rich and abundant life free from worries and cares in the problems of food and clothing and in cultural life can they be assured of a happier life and the problem of people's destiny be brilliantly solved.

In order to guarantee a more abundant and civilized life to our people who have been permanently liberated from the worries of food, clothing, shelter, obtaining medical care and providing an education for children, our party has set as its basic task for the 1980's the building of a strong material and technical foundation which suits a completely victorious socialist society and an epochal enhancement of the people's material culture, and is engaged in vogorous organization and molbilization of the entire party and all the people to achieve the ten prospective targets of grand socialist economic construction.

Guiding the destiny of the people, our party is providing the popular masses not only with a blessed life for today but also with a bright prospect for the future, and is wisely guiding them so that they will continue the great revolutionary undertaking generation after generation to completion.

People are all possessed of deep concern over their life of today and tomorrow and over the destiny of succeeding generations. Under conditions of continuing the revolutionary undertaking generation after generation, the destiny of the people is at all times linked to their long-range prospects.

The fact that a resplendent future for our people is being assured and that our people can be become a noble people possessed of a brilliant tomorrow is due to our party having unfalteringly adhered to the revolutionary character of a party fulfilling the great undertaking of its founder, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, and having been strengthened and developed as an invincible revolutionary party carrying out to completion the Korean revolution under the banner of the chuche idea, and is also due to the existence of the great motherly bosom of a party which provides for the destiny of the nation and the people and their brilliant future.

The 1979's constituted an historic period which saw our party reach a new turning point in taking responsibility for and guiding the destiny of our people.

Having set forth guidelines on modeling the whole society after the chuche idea, our party provided the people with brilliant prospects, and, with all the people gazing at a communist future society embodying the chuche idea, was able to accelerate the process of tremendous historic transformation in creation and construction.

Under the guidance of a party which takes full charge and responsibility for all work with extraordinary wisdom and tremendous vitality, today our party members and workers are daily creating endless miracles and innovations on the way to fulfilling the great undertaking of modeling the whole society after the chuche idea, and are making even more brilliant the glory of the revolutionary people living in the chuche fatherland.

In the time since the historic march to model the whole society after the chuche idea began up until the present, our party has been fighting for that great objective which could not be achieved despite the passage of thousands of years, guiding our people's destiny along a proud path.

History has not witnessed a party such as ours which has guided a protracted and difficult revolutionary struggle and which takes full responsibility for and guides the destiny of the people.

By experiencing a worthwhile life in which they enjoy endless happiness in the bosom of the party, our people firmly believe that only our party should guide their destiny and be entrusted with the fate of future generations.

For our people who are enjoying a worthwhile life as genuine masters of their own destiny under the leadership of the party, their greatest glory and most sacred mission is to fully entrust their own destiny to the party, to join the joys and pains of living with the party, and to always fight under the guidance of the party.

The fact that it is possible neither to live nor wage revolution apart from the party, and that the blessed and bright future of today lays only in fighting constantly under the leadership of the party, constitutes both an iron-clad conviction deeply engrained in our people over the course of waging rigorous revolution with the party and a principle of life and struggle.

In the entrusting by all the people and workers of their destinies to the party, as well as their fiercely protecting the party and vigorously fighting under the guidance of the party, is found a firm guarantee for holding fast to the fatherland revolution and for correctly molding the destiny of our people, and a true path for communists and the people to complete the revolutionary tasks set before the fatherland and the people.

Firmly possessed of the revolutionary conviction that they must in the future as in the past serve the great leader and eternally forge their destinies along with the party, all cadre and party members must protect their integrity as chuche-type revolutionaries who at all times trust in and follow only our party.

We must firmly adhere to the work of establishing the party's unitary ideology system as the fundamental course of party construction and more thoroughly establish the unitary ideology sytem throughout the party and society, and resolutely assure party leadership over the work of revolution and construction.

The thorough and unconditional implementation of party decisions and instructions is the most important and glorious task in exhausting all means to assure the leadership authority of the party.

The struggle to mold the destiny of our people has been realized through the process of implementing the decisions and instructions of the party.

All functionaries and party members must accept the party line, guidelines, decisions and instructions as absolute truths and as supreme commands, possessed of the firm conviction that only through party decisions and instructions is there no work that cannot be done, and must carry them out unconditionally, varying them not in the slightest degree.

To accelerate the undertaking of modeling the whole society after the chuche idea--only this path is the path leading to communist paradise and the true path on which our fatherland and people achieve eternal prosperity.

Holding high the party's militant slogan on modeling the whole society after the chuche idea and with the spirit of incorporating the speed battle into chollima, we must bring about continuous upsurges in revolution and construction and more vigorously accelerate the historic advance toward the future of communism.

For party organizations and functionaries to work well with individuals and look after the political, economic and cultural lives of party members and workers, and in particular to get them to view as important their political life so as to glorify it, constitutes an extremely important problem in assuring the authority of our party in taking responsibility for and guiding the destiny of the people.

If doctors are the engineers of people's physical existence, then party functionaries are the engineers of their political life.

Party functionaries should carefully attend to problems with the people and should regard the appearance of cracks in the political life of the people as more painful than wounds to their own bodies, and should correctly guide them so that they are at all times filled with loyal zeal and devote their bodies and souls to the party and the leader.

Party functionaries must always go deep among the masses, share their joys and sorrows and care for them with deep concern about their lives today and their destiny tomorrow, struggling devotedly to thoroughly safeguard their well-being, and thereby weld them like steel to the party.

All functionaries and party members must have absolute faith that the way pointed out by the party is the way of victory and honor and fully entrust their own destiny and that of their descendents to the party, and fight vigorously forever under the guidance of the party.

THE CHUCHE-TYPE NATURE-REMAKING GUIDELINES CONSTITUTE A GRAND PROGRAM FOR BUILDING SOCIALISM AND COMMUNISM

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 11, Nov 81 pp 20-26

[Article]

[Text] At the Fouth Plenum of the Sixth Party Central Committee, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth a grand plan for a new chuche-type remaking of nature, and laid out the ways and means for the entire party, the whole nation and all the people to come together and vigorously launch nature-remaking work.

The new nature-remaking guidelines set by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song for reclaiming 300 thousand chongbo [1 chongbo = 2.45 acres] of land, finding 200 thousand chongbo of new land and constructing the Nampo Locks and the Taechon Power Station constitute creative nature-remaking guidelines which brilliantly embody the immortal chuche idea, and are programmatic guidelines which, by stepping-up the work to remake nature in accordance with the demands of the chuche idea, should be firmly adhered to in successfully carrying out socialist economic construction for the 1980s and in further advancing the march to communism.

The setting forth of these new nature-remaking guidelines at this plenum was a historic event for bringing about a revolutionary turning point in our people's struggle to remake nature.

The struggle with nature is one that began when people launched the battle to mold their own destinies and is one that continues without cease as long as mankind exists, and constitutes a key part of the work to achieve people's independence.

For a long time mankind has ceaselessly waged the struggle to bring the blind force of nature under his own control, and in so doing to become free of the constraints of nature and to enjoy an independent and creative life. However, in exploitive societies the struggle with nature has become a process of binding the working masses to the constraints of nature, and has not been correctly used to create living conditions beneficial to the workers themselves.

Only when the working massess in class societies who had been bound to hard labor threw off the yoke of the old exploitive society were they able to realize the genuine objective of remaking nature in order to attain a worthwhile manner of living.

In creating the immortal chuche idea and showing the way for people to emerge from the contraints of the old exploitive societies and thus liberating our people from ethnic and class exploitation and coercion, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has developed all the social and political conditions needed to free them from the constraints of nature.

The great leader has also developed programmatic guidelines for brilliantly embodying the chuche idea in the nature-remaking sector so as to guarantee to the working masses a free and creative life through the struggle to remake nature.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows.

"Revolutionary struggle and the work of construction are struggles to free the working masses from all manner of restraints so that they may enjoy independent and creative lives as true masters of nature and society, and are struggles to make the working masses molders of their own destiny." ("Answers to Questions Posed by Foreign Journalists" Vol 2, p 138)

Along with the process of freeing people from all manner of social constraints so that they may control their own destiny is the process of struggle to free them from the constraints of nature. Through these processes the working masses can develop a more independent, creative and self-conscious existence, a powerful existence which leads the world, and they can continuously improve their role of elevating the position occupied by peoples of the world and of making the world a better place.

Specifically, one of the key revolutionary tasks confronting the party of the working class after establishment of a socialist system is that of vigorously accelerating nature-remaking work so that the working masses who have been freed from exploitation and coercion may be liberated from the constraints of nature.

To say that people are constrained by nature has to do with the fact that work is still exhausting and laborious and that their free activities are constrained by unfavorable natural conditions. To the extent that arduous labor remains the struggle with nature cannot be completely pleasant, and to the extent that unfavorable natural conditions have not be subjugated people cannot become true masters who control nature.

By launching into technical innovations which make light work of the intensive labor involved in the struggle to remake nature, and by changing unfavorable natural conditions into favorable ones or by directing the blind force of nature so that it is useful to people, is what constitutes the struggle to free them from the constraints of nature. Through such struggle people can transform the conditions of nature into circumstances which are more conducive to living in accordance with their independent desires and needs.

The nature-remaking idea of chuche set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a revolutionary idea which scientifically identifies these as the true objectives of the struggle to remake nature.

The nature-remaking idea of chuche set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is thoroughly embodied in the nature-remaking guidelines of our party.

All nature-remaking work carried out recently in our nation under the party's chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines was completely in tune with the objective of guaranteeing an independent, creative and worthwhile life for the people, and was done under the boundless creative power of the popular masses and in a manner suited to the realities of the nation.

The chuche nature-remaking ideas revealed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song are more brilliantly embodied in the four grand construction projects laid out at the Fourth Plenum of the Sixth Party Central Committee, including the reclamation of 300 thousand chongbo of land, finding 200 thousand chongbo of new land, and building the Nampo Floodgate and the Taechon Power Plant. The four grand construction projects outlined at the plenum are our party's new chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines, and constitute a great nature-remaking program for improving the land in a manner consistent with the desires of the working masses and for more vigorously stepping up the building of socialism and communism.

In further establishing a powerful agricultural production base in our country and occupying the grain production targets set in the Sixth Party Congress, the four grand construction projects constitute a grand plan for realizing the final victory of socialism and communism, and for bringing into practical application the communist policy of distribution according to need.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows.

"In order to increase agricultural production, the work to reclaim land and find new land must be vigorously launched so as to continuously increase available land area." ("Summary Report of Central Committee Activities Delivered at the Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party," Pamphlet, p 57)

The food problem is an extremely important one, not only in the building of socialism but also in the building of communism. Consequently, it can be said that rice is socialism and rice is communism.

If the people are to enjoy a free, creative and worthwhile life, then the first priority is to satisfactorily solve the problem of food. Only when the food problem is fully taken care of can we proceed more rapidly toward communism and a communist ideal society be successfully achieved in which work is accomplished based on ability and distribution is made based on need. Consequently, the first objective that we must occupy in socialist and communist construction is that of grain.

Part and parcel of the four grand construction projects in the new chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines is our party's master plan that, continuing to hold high the slogan that rice is socialism and achieving an epochal increase in agrcultural production, it is on the basis of rice that communist policy should first be implemented.

By thoroughly implementing its policy of agriculture first and solving the food problem on our own, despite a small amount of available land area, our party recently achieved the miracle of all the people eating and living as they desired and of still putting away stockpiles. This is the proud result achieved through the farming by the entire party, the whole nation and all the people in accordance with the agrarian thesis set forth by our party, and is a great victory for our party's agricultural policy.

Nevertheless, in order to increase agricultural production another step and occupy the grain target for proceeding on toward communism, a decisive increase in available fields is more important than anything else.

The growth of agricultural production including grain production is related to field area and soil fertility. The process of agricultural production is a biological process carried out with soil as the medium, and it is not possible to expect growth in grain production apart from the fields. In the past, when the level of intense agriculture was not particularly high, we found much additional room for grain production primarily through improving farming methods. However, at this stage in time when chuche farming methods have been implemented and agricultural production intensified to a large degree, with unit yields of grain at a very high level, the problem of growth in agricultural production cannot be solved using only a single method of raising per unit yields. Only by establishing more positive measures, like those of nature-remaking, in order to get a substantial increase in field area, can grain production be increased and there be greater food reserves and a more abundant food-based existence be created for the people.

In increasing field area and developing our nation's rural economy to a new higher stage, as well as in occupying the 15 million tons of grain target ahead of time, the work to reclaim 300 thousand chongbo of land occupies an extremely important position.

In a country as mountainous as ours, land reclamation provides a basic means of securing field area and increasing agricultural production, and has become the most important objective of nature-remaking which suits the natural geographic features of our nation.

Our nation, by reclaiming 300 thousand chongbo of land and finding 200 thousand chongbo of new land, can increase the current total area for grains by one-third and thereby secure a permanent base for continued increases in agricultural production. In so doing, more grain can be produced in the future and large grain reserves be built up, and monumental progress made in solving the problems of oils and meat.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song gave deep consideration to the position occupied by the water problem in land reclamation, and came up with the great plan for nature-remaking in the form of building the Nampo Locks and the Taechon Power Station.

Construction of the Nampo Locks and the Taechon Power Station is a fundamental link in solving the tideland water problem.

Reclamation of 300 thousand chongbo of land creates an enormous area of new fields, and consequently the solving of the water problem which applies there is extremely complex and can be taken care of only through nature-remaking work which controls the rivers and streams.

With construction of the Nampo Floodgates, not only will water be provided for a portion of the reclaimed land in South Pyongan Province and South Hwanghae Province and for already existing fields, but many chongbo of farmlands in the lower basins of the Taedong and Chaeryong rivers will be freed from the threat of salt water and tidal flooding, and with the construction of the Taechon Power Plant, water will be assured for the fields in the area of North Pyongan Province, no matter how severe droughts may be, and, by controlling the waters of the Taeryong River the farmlands of Taechon, Pakchon and Unjon will be forever freed from the fear of flooding.

The construction in this manner of the Nampo Floodgates and the Taechon Power Plant along with the reclamation of 300 thousand chongbo of land and the finding of 200 thousand chongbo of new land constitute a grand program for vigorously stepping up socialist and communist construction by more firmly establishing a powerful agricultural production base.

The four grand construction projects which constitute our party's chuche-type nature-remaking program not only represent the firm building of a powerful agriculture production base, but also a resplendent plan of building socialism and communism which will transform the apperance of the land and will transform the fatherland into a more liveable people's paradise.

In contrast to exploitive societies where nature and natural resources are used to meet the plundering objectives of the dominating class and where destruction of nature is the order of the day, in our nation nature is positively safeguarded and the land is improved so that natural resources may be continuously enjoyed, and the fatherland made into a paradise of good living, a place of worthwhile place of existence--such is the fundamental principle of nature-remaking.

Our party's chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines are based on this principle, which is brilliantly embodied in the four great construction projects.

The work to reclaim 300 thousand chongbo of land is a monumental nature-remaking project for physically changing the western coastal area, which was once land, back into land and to draw a new map of the nation. When reclamation of the 300 thousand chongbo of land is complete, the islands strung along the west coast will almost all be connected by fill and portions which up to now have been shown on the map as water will be transformed into land, and there will be established new counties and numerous farms.

When the reclamation of the 300 thousand chongbo is complete, super highways will be built and traffic along the west coast facilitated, and the waters of the Yellow Sea will be clear and clean and the scenery considerably more beautiful. In addition, since the water of the western coast will be deeper numerous large ports can be built and the western fishing industry and ocean transport further developed.

Further, with the completion of the Nampo Floodgate, a large man-made lake and extensive canals will be produced at its head, and a great change will be wrought in the natural appearance along the Taedong River, including Pyongyang. With the Nampo Floodgate complete, the Taedong River and Chaeryong River will be deeper and large and small boats will be able to call at will at Nampo and Songnim ports, and with the appearance of a new railroad across the floodgate a west coast loop line will be established which will greatly develop our nation's rail transport. Finally, with construction of the Nampo Floodgate, which is the first gateway for the canal which will connect west and east coasts, the most basic problem arising in construction of the great canal linking the two coasts will be solved.

The Taechon Power Plant is the model power plant of the new water resource development plan creatively established by our party, and is the largest-scale hydro-power plant in our nation to be built across a wide span in inland mountains.

When work is completed on the Taechon Power Plant, which does away with the basic notion that large hydro-power plants can be built only by damming large rivers and which is being built using our own design to gather the waters of several small rivers, electricity will be produced safely without regard to drought and the northwest section of our country will be amply supplied with power, and in addition, the watercourses of the northwest inland areas will be collectively used and the temperature of the region raised, the banks of vast man-made lakes and resevoirs will be thickly planted with trees and the natural beauty of the region enhanced.

In these ways the four grand construction projects form a resplendent plan for socialist and communist construction which will transform the face of the land and transform our fatherland into a better place to live in accordance with the grand land transformation scheme of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The new chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines set forth by our party at this plenum constitute a perpetual and sacred nature-remaking program for passing on to succeeding generations historic creations of the era of the workers party.

The reclamation of 300 thousand chongbo of land and the finding of 200 thousand chongbo of new land, along with the building of the Nampo Floodgate and the Taechon Power Plant, are proud monuments newly constructed in our time and precious assets to be passed from generation to generation.

When the 300 thousand chongbo of land have been reclaimed and the 200 thousand chongbo of new land has been located, and after the Nampo Floodgate and the Taechon Power Plant have been constructed, we will pass on to our successors a land which we had not seen before and a newly changed map of the fatherland.

The new chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines set forth by our party at the plenum constitute a sacred nature-remaking program which will contribute greatly to the great undertaking of fatherland reunification.

Due to the anti-popular policies of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique, South Korea today has been degraded to a place where rural villages are laid waste to and where there is perpetual famine. When we vigorously launch into the work of nature-remaking and bring into reality the communist doctrine on the food problem, the South Korean people will be given great hope and they will even more vigorously wage the battle of anti-fascism and fatherland unification.

The new chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines set forth by the party are wise guidelines which represent an important investment in solving the food problem which will follow unification of the fatherland.

Indeed, the new chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines set forth by our party at the plenum will more vigorously accelerate socialist and communist construction, constitute a brilliant plan to transform the fatherland into a paradise of good living for the people, a perpetual nature-remaking program for passing on great assets to our descendents and a wise plan for advancing fatherland unification.

The setting forth of new chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines at the Fourth Plenum of the Sixth Party Central Committee was an epochal event in the history of nature-remaking in our nation.

The nature-remaking idea of chuche began unfolding when the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song formulated a grand plan for nature-remaking to build a new fatherland at the time of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, and the new era of proud struggle for nature-remaking by our people began when, after liberation, the respected and beloved leader himself broke ground for the Potong River Project.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at an early point established the work of nature-remaking as a strategic task in building a flourishing and prosperous new fatherland, and set about wisely organizing and guiding the struggle of the people, who had only experienced the harsh labor of struggle with nature in an exploitive society, to continuously manifest their own creative strength in the work of nature-remaking and to form them into true masters of nature.

Whenever in our nation's past that the entire party, the whole nation and all the people joined together and, holding high the wise leadership of the great leader and the party, vigorously launched into the work of nature-remaking, then at all times a brilliant victory was achieved.

In the process of implementing the party's chuche-type nature-remaking guidelines new man-made lakes and hydro-power plants have appeared on the face of our nation, nameless mountains have been turned into Mt. Hwanggum and Mt. Pomul, and the nation's plant and animal resources have continuously increased.

In addition, in a very short period of time irrigation of the rural economy was completed, and there was successful completion of nature-remaking projects including construction of terraces fields, land readjustment, land improvement and formation of economic forests, and our fatherland, which for so long had been barren and sterile, was transformed into a flourishing and secure agricultural production region and the land was developed and used collectively, with a sense of the future, so that changes likened to creation took place on this land.

Following the grand design of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, detailed research and investigation was being carried out on land reclamation with an eye to a resplendent future even at the time of the bitter Fatherland Liberation War, and after the war testing was carried out at various locations in order to push ahead with land reclamation on a large scale sometime in the future; this was followed on a large scale with reclamation on Sin and Tasa Inslands and in the Onchon region.

Under the wise leadership of the party, land reclamation projects were pushed ahead even more vigorously in the 1970s.

In accordance with our party's relevent planning on using the large volume of rubble coming out the Ullyul Mine to reclaim land in the ocean off Kumsan Point, the Ullyul Mine long-distance belt conveyor was completed in no more than a few years so that Nunggum Island was connected to land, and the Ung Island to Nuggum Island, and in the future Ung Island with Chollyang Island on to Kwail-kun.

Indeed, the 35 years that have elapsed since the time of the Potong River Improvement Project, which lighted the first torch of the work of remaking nature in our nation, have been a proud course of victory in which our people have brilliantly embodied the creative nature-remaking guidelines of our party and, under the wise leadership of the party and the leader, have fundamentally changed the fact of the nation and have wrought suprising miracles in national construction.

The struggle to reclaim 300 thousand chongbo of land, to find 200 thousand chongbo of new land and to build the Nampo Floodgate and the Taechon Power Plant as set forth by our party is a monumental event which will write a new chapter in the annals of the history of our nation's nature-remaking which trod such a proud course in the past.

These are monumental works of nature-remaking which are historically unprecedented in scope and speed of construction, and constitute a grand socialist construction struggle which all the more intensifies and develops the struggle to remake nature in our nation and drives it forward to even greater heights.

From the standpoint of the world's history of land reclamation more than several hundreds of years can be noted and there are numerous industrially developed nations, but there has never been a nation like ours which has established a plan and has struggled to complete in no more than 10 years the enormous reclamation of 300 thousand chongbo of land.

The reclamation of 300 thousand chongbo of land marks a significant change in the history of land reclamation and in the history of our nation's nature-remaking, and is yet another powerful demonstration of the boundless power of our people in subjugating and improving nature.

The Nampo Floodgate and Taechon Power Plant construction projects represent monumental construction struggles which will complete within a short period of time works of construction unprecedented in history in terms of scope. When we complete in 1985 the Nampo Floodgate which, extending 20 li, is of unprecedented scope in the history of floodgate construction, it will become the largest dike and watercourse system in our nation and, as a monumetal nature-remaking project like that of the Taechon Power Plant which will encompass a volume of water equivalent to that of Lake Supung, will be completed in the short time span of four years.

These are historic events in the struggle of nature-remaking to control rivers and streams.

Indeed, the reclamation of 300 thousand chongbo of land, the finding of 200 thousand chongbo of new land and the construction of the Nampo Floodgate mark an intensification and development of nature-remaking projects which have been continuously underway from the beginning of such projects up until today, and a new higher stage in the history of nature-remaking.

This grand work of nature-remaking constitutes a responsible and all-encompassing plan which can be successfully carried out only by our party which brilliantly embodies the far-reaching designs of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, and is a tremendous undertaking which can be accomplished only by our people who creatively and vigorously make grand miracles under the banner of the party.

The four grand construction projects for nature-remaking set forth at the Fourth Plenum of the Sixth Party Central Committee are extremely complex and enormous enterprises.

Irregardless of how complex or enormous these nature-remaking projects set forth at the plenum may be, as long as we have the wise leadership of our party and as long as there is the boundless energy of our people who are endlessly loyal to the party and the leader, they will be successfully carried out without fail.

The problem rests with how party organizations and functionaries organize and plan their organizational and political work for implementing the grand nature-remaking plans of our party.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows.

"Party organizations must organize and develop nature-remaking work as mass campaigns." ("Collected Works of Kim Il Song," Vol 7 p 326)

All levels of party organizations and functionaries must first of all increase party interest in nature-remaking work and firmly adhere to and push ahead with this work.

In order to vigorously promote nature-remaking work as an all-people's movement, party organizations must fully explain and inculcate the creative nature-remaking guidelines set forth by the plenum and strengthen organizational and political work in order to speed up the four grand construction projects, and must urge those doing the construction to fully display endless loyalty to the party and the revolution and at every site to launch mass heroism and brilliant labor exploits.

Party organizations must further strengthen the movement to win the red flag of the three revolutions and the movement to emulate the example of anonymous heroes and vigorously conduct economic agitation, and in so doing vigorously fan the flames of the speed battle and incite the masses to the creation of a new "Land Reclamation Speed Battle," "Nampo Floodgate Construction Speed Battle" and "Taechon Power Plant Construction Speed Battle."

Economic organizational work is a key requirement in assuring that the monumental nature-remaking involved in damming rivers and moving mountains so as to enlarge the land and transform its appearance is made a success.

By carefully laying the groundwork for economic organizational work and skillfully engineering both strategy and struggle, economic organizational functionaries can achieve brilliant victories in the proud struggle for nature-remaking.

In implementing the four grand construction projects, economic organizational functionaries should at all time set high objectives in accordance with the intent of the party, study the situation fully and plan strategy responsibly, and apply to it skillful and enlightened control and detailed economic organizational work.

Economic guidance functionaries should be fully involved in preparatory work for large-scale construction projects and should correctly set the stages for carrying out the four grand construction projects, and, based on carefully established yearly objectives, vigorously launch the projects in a planned and sequential manner.

Guidance functionaries should not only further organize and plan technical guidance, equipment management, materials supply and joint production in accordance with the industrial guidance system for implementing the Taean work system, but also strengthen backup supply work for workers mobilized for the four grand constructions and go out to the construction sites to get a good feel for the situation surrounding project development, and provide solutions to problems as needed.

The carrying out of nature-remaking by means of our own strength, technology and equipment while fully manifesting the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and arduous labor is an important problem in assisting the successful completion of this work.

We should learn from the example of those involved in days past in reclamation of land in North Pyongan Province who fully displayed the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and arduous labor and who completed construction of a harbor in no more than one year, and should move forward as one to the struggle of remaking nature possessed of the view that we can make do with our own strength, irregardless of whether or not the supply of materials and equipment improves.

All we need to carry out any enormous and difficult revolutionary task is for the strength of the working masses to be great and for the popular masses to be motivated. By positively launching the broad masses into the work of nature-remaking and continuously finding the reserves and capacities to aid in this work by mobilizing the entire party, the whole nation and all the people, we can successfully solve all manner of obstacles and associated problems which may arise. When we move forward as one in the work of carrying out the four grand construction projects in all sectors and units, just as the invincible might of our people was demonstrated in the past when, holding high the resolution of the September Plenum of 1958, the entire party, the whole nation and all the people moved to irrigate one million chongbo of land, then the invincible might of our party and our people will once again be forcefully demonstrated to the world.

POSSESSION OF THE ORGANIZATIONAL VIEW IS THE NOBLE CHARACTER OF THE PARTY MEMBER

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 11, Nov 81 pp 27-31

[Article by Ko Kap-chong]

[Text] Party members are self-conscious revolutionary combatants who devote their all to the struggle on behalf of the party and the leader, the fatherland and the people, and are ardent revolutionaries who fight vigorously to fulfill the great revolutionary undertaking of chuche set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song under the guidance of the party. The existence of party members is glorified through party organizational life.

Party organizations represent the motherly bosom which raises party members into revolutionary warriors endlessly loyal to the party and the leader and which watches over them and nurtures them to fight unfailingly on the road of revolution, and the focal point to which party members entrust their lives and on which they depend for the work and life of waging revolution. Just as one cannot survive without food and water, so is it that party members cannot live even momentarily apart from party organization, and cannot fulfill their mission as revolutionaries.

The question of one's viewpoint and attitude toward the party organization is closely tied to the question of how one lives and fights.

For the party member who is determined to devote himself to revolution and who supports party organization, possession of the party organizational view is essential for correct political life and revolutionary activity.

Possession of the party organizational view is the sacred duty of party members and the noble character which they must maintain.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows.

"The organizational view of party members must be increased in order to strengthen party life. To regard party organization as the motherly bosom and to live for the sake of party organization is the noble character which our party members must maintain." ("Summary Report on Central Committee Activities Delivered at the Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party," Pamphlet, p 114)

By party organizational view we mean the position and viewpoint of party members toward party organization. Put another way, it is the resolute position and attitude of party members who love party organization and regard it with esteem, who consider the benefit of the party to be the most precious, who conform absolutely to party organization and self-consciously observe organizational rules and regulations, and who unconditionally carry out organization decisions and work assignments.

A revolutionary organizational view is one of the hallmarks of a chuche-type revolutionary.

A true chuche-type revolutionary is one who not only is thoroughly armed with the immortal chuche idea, but also possesses a full organizational view.

Only when they struggle fiercely for realization of the freedom of the popular masses, and possess the high revolutionary spirit of devoting their all and fearing nothing on behalf of party and leader, combined with possession of the correct organizational view, can they be ardent revolutionaries and true party members.

Possessing a party organizational view first of all is that of having party members exude the noble demeanor of permanently glorifying political life.

For the party member, political life is the most precious.

Political life is that life in which people come to possess it in social and political activities and revolutionary struggle to safeguard their freedom. It gives to people in life the most valuable existence, and immortality in death. For this reason communists and true revolutionaries place greater value on social and political existence than on physical existence.

A person's true worth is not found in devoting everything to personal enjoyment, but rather in devoting everything to the revolutionary struggle on behalf of the society and the group, the prosperity of the fatherland and the well-being of the people.

For the party member who is a communist, the most valuable political life is none other than the preserving and glorifying of that existence through party organizational life.

Party organizational life is constituted of the political and revolutionary actions which define the political life of party members.

As the great leader has taught, just as a person must eat to maintain life, so must the party member engage in party organizational life to maintain political life.

Party organizational life is the school of revolutionary indoctrination which provides the revolutionary ideology that is the nutritious base of political life to party members, nurtures them as strong limbs that will not break in any difficulty, and preserves and glorifies their political life. Only through strong organizational life can party members be unified revolutionarily and they be prepared as true revolutionaries who endlessly glorify their political life no matter what the circumstances. For the party member, party organizational life is as important as life, and properly conducting party life is the most glorious and sacred mission. To be a party member is for everyone to genuinely participate in party organizational life in order to glorify their own precious political life.

Whether or not a party member properly conducts party organizational life depends on what position and viewpoint they harbor toward party organization.

When party members possess the position and attitude of viewing the party organization with respect, and advise the party organization of all problems which come up in their own work and life and accept the party organization's help so as to solve them, then party life is not interrupted for even a minute and can go on with sincerety, even though one or two meals may have been missed, and in the process revolutionary experience can be acquired and political life built and glorified.

If the organizational view is not correctly implanted in party members, party life becomes a burden, then gradually begins to fade, and in the final stages of decay political life is lost. Consequently, the position and attitude toward party organization is of fundamental importance in whether or not political life is correctly inculcated and glorified.

In the past, revolutionary combatants who had been firmly loyal to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song held revolutionary organization as precious in the effort to glorify the noble political life received from the great leader, and viewed the proper conduct of organizational life as an iron-clad rule.

The noble example of the anti-Japanese martyrs who fumed with impatience when, in those dark times that threatened life, the revolutionary tasks given by the organization could not be completed straight away, and who went to the guillotine with glory because of their conviction that even though they might die the revolutionary organization would live on perpetually, amply demonstrates the noble spiritual and moral character of communists who forever glorify political life even thought they lose physical life.

This political life of communists who maintained a lofty organizational view and fought on has been combined with the history of struggle of the fatherland and the people and lives forever in the hearts of the people.

Possessing in such a way a party organizational view is a noble characteristic which party members who are struggling to preserve and glorify political life should maintain.

The revolutionary duty of party members is that of being faithful to the end to the party and the leader, and this comes about in practical activities to carry out revolutionary tasks.

The process of implementing the party line and policy, decisions and instructions is a noble process of struggling to fulfill the revolutionary mission of party members.

The decisions and instructions of the party are conveyed to party members by party organizations, and it is in the process of fulfilling those decisions and instructions that party members carry out their own revolutionary mission.

All party members, no matter who they are, upon receiving revolutionary tasks from the party organization are to sketch out how those tasks will be carried out for the party organization. To receive work from the party organization and carry it out, and then receive new work and do it is the process that constitutes the political life of party members and their revolutionary activities. Consequently, to devote all their wisdom and resources to carry out to completion the revolutionary tasks set by the organization, no matter what the circumstances, is the noble spiritual and moral demeanor that must be maintained by party members.

The attitude of accepting and performing revolutionary tasks constitutes the position and attitude [to be adopted with regard] to the party organization.

For the party member with a firmly established organizational view, there is a single credo, an absolutism and unconditionality toward the party line and policy, and there is only a revolutionary spirit of loyally accepting the tasks handed down from the party organization and of fully carrying them out at the proper time, regardless of dificult circumstances.

In possession of the organizational view is the key to fulfilling the revolutionary mission of the party member, and is the noble character of the revolutionaries and party members who pledge endless loyalty to the party and the leader and become part of the party.

The lofty organizational view displayed by anti-Japanese guerillas in the forests of Paektu was a brilliant paragon which shows how true revolutionaries should live. Possessed of a lofty revolutionary organizational view, they fiercely guarded with their lives the strategic line and principles of the Korean revolution set down by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, and they lived and fought zealously with an adamant will that they had no right to die before carrying out the decisions and missions of the organization to implement them.

That our anonymous heroes who were nurtured in the bosom of the party fought for and achieved such glorious and grand exploits is due to the way that not a one of them lost the revolutionary spirit of carrying out to completion the revolutionary tasks set by the party, and if they fell down a hundred times they got back up a hundred times and, pushing aside obstacles and hindrances, fully implemented party policy.

The party member who holds high a party organizational view and most brilliantly carries out party decisions and instructions is the party member who is loyal to the party and the leader, and the true party member who fully discharges his own revolutionary mission.

Possession of the party organizational view is also an important characteristic in thoroughly establishing revolutionary order and discipline within the party so as to increase the militancy of the party.

If the party of the working class is to thoroughly adhere to and brilliantly continue and complete the great undertaking of revolution set in motion by the great leader, regardless of trials and tribulations, then the party must become a militant unit which moves in accordance with a single ideology and a single organizational order. Revolutionary order is the life of the party of the working class and a fundamental guarantee for increasing its militancy.

Without strict organizational order, the ideological will and unity of action of the whole party cannot be guaranteed, and the militancy of the party cannot be increased.

A party without revolutionary order and discipline is in actuality like a club, and cannot maintain even its own existence.

The militancy of the party can be guaranteed only when all party members participate self-consciously in party organizational life and when they move and act as one in accordance with the discipline and rules of behavior established within the party.

In order to make a party into a militant unit with iron-clad order, not only must each and every party member who makes up the party be nurtured in political ideology, but they must be made to move as one in accordance with a single organizational principle. When all party members take a breath at the same time, speak at the same time and take a step at the same time in accordance with a single organizational order, then the party's militancy and power will have become indestructible.

This firm revolutionary order and discipline is thoroughly established when each and every party member possesses the party organizational view and engages in party life.

The party organizational view is the motivating force for bringing party members into possession of the correct position and viewpoint concerning party organization and for getting them to move and act as one in accordance with a single revolutionary order.

When all party members, possessed of the party organizational view, have the noble characteristic of moving in accordance with the order and discipline established in the party, a strict order can be established whereby there may be ten things wanted to be done but in the party one or two of them are pointed out and they get done straight away, and the will of the party can be transmitted from the center to the fringes without delays and gets brilliantly accomplished at all times. Further, all manner of non-organizational and anti-order occurrences which conflict with party strictures and rules of party life can be kept from appearing.

This is the guarantee that holding high the party organizationa view establishes a revolutionary order which moves all party members as one under the leadership of the party, and shows that in party members possessing the party organizational view is found an important key for continuously increasing the militancy of the party.

In actuality possession of the party organizational view more solidly prepares party members to become ardent communist revolutionaries who fight zealously, devoting their all to the party and the leader, and forms the noble spirit of increasing the militancy of the party organization.

Our party has set the strengthening of party life as a key issue in the building of a revolutionary party, and has provided wise guidance toward having all party members possess the correct organizational view and continuously strengthen party life.

Under the wise leadership of our party, the organizational view is higher than ever before among party members and a revolutionary spirit of party life has been established, and a fundamental transformation has been wrought in their ideological and spiritual composition.

Today all our party members possess a revolutionary organizational view and are engaging in party life at a high level.

Our party members regard party organization with respect and consider it precious; they live and work in tune with party organization and at all times and places self-consciously observe party order. In so doing, all party members play the role of the vanguards in implementing the teachings of the great leader and the policies of the party.

With the elevation of the party organizational view and the firm establishment of a self-conscious spirit of party life among party members, the militancy of our party has been tremendously increased and the political and ideological unity of the entire party and the whole society further strengthened.

The realities of our development require that all party members possess, more than at any other time, the revolutionary organizational view and engage sincerely in party life.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows.

"For party members there is no higher glory nor no greater responsibility than participating in party life. All party members must work positively to sincerely participate in party life in full conformity with the party organization and in accordance with the rules of party organization." ("Collected Works of Kim Il-Song," Vol 5, 2nd Edition, p 515)

An important element in elevating the party organizational view is to regard the party organization with respect and consider it precious. This is the first requirement of the party organizational view and an important characteristic to be maintained by chuche-type revolutionaries.

Party members should think of the organization before thinking of themselves, and should regard the organization with love and respect.

For party members determined ot devote their lives to party and revolution, there is nothing of greater value than the benefit of the organization. Party members should at all times and in all circumstances sacrifice their own interests and give first priority to those of the organization, safeguarding them thoroughly.

The viewpoint and position of viewing the party organization with respect and considering the party interest as precious come into play in unconditionally carrying out the decisions and instructions of the party organization. Consequently, party members should give weight to the duties and work of the party organization and earnestly carry them out with a sense of will, and, when the interests and authority of the party are brought into question, should launch a sharp ideological struggle without the slightest hesitation to thoroughly bring such a situation under control.

Another important element in elevating the party organizational view is the establishment of a revolutionary spirit of executing all work strictly in tune with the party organization and of handling it under the guidance and protection of the party organization.

Only when party members are rooted in the party organization and consciously accept its guidance can they work and live in conformance with the intent of the great leader and our party, and fully discharge their revolutionary mission without making mistakes.

All functionaries and party members must thoroughly establish the revolutionary spirit whereby living and working in tune with the party organization and under its leadership and rules are immutable rules of the party organization, and, with it inscribed in their minds that a vital requirement is the absolute safeguarding of party leadership, whereby all problems arsing in work and life are properly advised to the party organization, discussed with the party organization and thereby solved.

Formalizing party life is a positive guarantee for elevating the organizational view of party members.

An elevated organizational view does not come about overnight. It is established and made noble through constant organizational tempering. When organizational life is formalized and habitualized among party members so that it becomes a natural process of living, and when party life becomes a firm position which cannot be interrupted, then an elevated organizational view is attained and party life correctly carried out.

Consequently, party members must all self-consciously and actively participate in the formalized life that has been established.

Strengthening the role of party organizations is a key requirement associated with elevating the organizational view among party members.

There is great significance in the fact that the role of party organizations is elevated to the extent that the organizational view of party members is established through party organizational life.

Party organizations at all times focus great attention on the cultivation of a revolutionary spirit among party members which adamantly observes party regulations and the strictures of party life.

Party regulations and the strictures of party life are firm guidelines for working and living by which party members at all times live and work under the leadership and control of the party. Through the process of self-consciously observing these, the organizational view of party members is furhter enhanced.

Party organizations must explain comprehensively to party members the requirements of party regulations and the strictures of party life, and thereby get them to live and work possessed of an elevated organizational view.

In addition, party organizations must increase the demands of party life on party members and vigorously launch through various methods and means ideological indoctrination and ideological struggle in order to eliminate those instances where organizational views are deficient.

The revolutionary principle set down by our party on elevating party organizational view is a fundamental problem arising in the strengthening of the party life of party members and in firmly safeguarding the leadership of the party.

All party organizations and party functionaries must full understand the revolutionary significance of our party's principle on elevating party organizational view and thoroughly implement it, and thereby firmly prepare party members as true communist revolutionaries endlessly loyal to the leader and our party, and make more brilliant their proud name and glory as members of the glorious Korean Workers Party.

STRENGTHENING PARTY-ORIENTED GUIDANCE OVER INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION IS AN IMPORTANT REQUIREMENT IN SOCIALIST ECONOMIC CONSTRUCTION

Pyongyang KULLOJA in Korean No 11, Nov 81 pp 32-37

[Article by Yi Tong-chun]

[Text] The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, in recent new measures designed to thoroughly implement the Taean work system, has set up a creative industrial guidance system which established provincial economic guidance committees through which production and enterprise management in plants and enterprises are guided. By strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production and drawing state guidance closer to reality, this carries great significance in improving socialist economic management and in vigorously launching production and construction.

By further strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production in a manner suited to the demands of developing realities, all party organizations and party functionaries should fully demonstrate the superiority of the industrial guidance system for implementing the Taean work system and bring about a new upsurge in socialist construction.

Economic construction is one of the most important revolutionary tasks confronting the party of the working class following establishment of a socialist system.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows.

"Socialist economic construction is an important revolutionary task confronting our party at the present time. Today the work of our party is directed toward the proper performance of socialist economic construction, and the success of party work must necessarily stem from success in socialist economic construction." ("Summary Report of Central Committee Activities Delivered at the Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party," Pamphlet, p 120)

The party of the working class has set as its own noble struggle objective the liberating of the working masses from all manner of natural and social constraints and the creation for them of a free and creative life of well-being. In order for the party of the working class to carry out its mission and task, it must not only transform the political system and economic system of the old society and liberate the working masses from class domination and subordination, but also, holding high the banner of the three revolutions in ideology, technology and culture, launch mankind-remolding work and economic construction. Only through vigorously launching economic construction following the establishment of the socialist system can the workers who have been freed from exploitation and coercion ultimately be liberated from ardous labor as well, and a material and cultural life of well-being be guaranteed for them, and can the historic task of completely realizing the independence of the working maases be brilliantly carried out.

Consequently, the party of the working class must at all times put great effort into socialist economic construction and constantly improve its guidance over economic work.

Industry is the foremost sector of the people's economy and the leading front of socialist construction. This stems from the fact that industry is the key material-oriented production sector which provides the means of production, including the tools of labor, as well as various consumer goods.

The modern equipment and technology necessary for rapidly developing all sectors and establishing a solid material and technical foundation for socialism and communism is produced only in the heavy industrial sector, which keys on the machine building industry, and the consumer goods which are urgently needed to improve the material culture of the people are supplied by the light industrial sector, including the textile industry and daily necessities industry. Today there is not a single sector which does not use industrial products, and accordingly, if idustry is not developed, then the people's economy cannot be equipped with modern technology and there can be no rapid development of the people's lifestyle.

Inasmuch as industry occupies such an important position in the nation's overall socialist economic construction and improvement of the people's lives, the party of the working class should as a matter of course focus deep concern on rapidly increasing industrial production, and should continue to strengthen party-oriented guidance over the industrial sector. Only by strengthening party-oriented guidance over the industrial sector can there be guaranteed the rapid development of the overall people's economy, and can there be an acceleration of the revolutionization of the working class and a strengthening of the leading role and revolutionary function of the working class so as to vigorously push forward the revolutionization and working classization of the whole society. If party-oriented guidance over the industrial sector is not strengthened, not only cannot production and construction continue at a rapid pace, but also the revolutionization of the working class cannot be pushed forward and the historic task of molding all elements of the soceity in a communist manner cannot be brilliantly achieved.

By strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production is meant that party organizations exercise constant guidance and control so that measures to implement the party's industrial plans are comprehensively discussed and the work correctly organized and party members and workers vigorously set in motion, and that party guidelines are thoroughly carried out. In other words, it means that party organizations strive to politically guide administrative and economic work so that the party's industrial policies are fully implemented.

Strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production is an important requirement in socialist economic construction.

Strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production first of all promotes revolutionary zeal and creative positivism in party members and workers, and thereby causes rapid development of production and construction.

The decisive element in spurring on development of productivity in a socialist society is the high revolutionary zeal of the workers. The working masses are the masters of socialist production. In a socialist society continued enhancement of work productivity and rapid development of technology are dependent upon the high revolutionary zeal of the workers. The revolutionary zeal of the workers does not develop of its own accord.

The basic method for positively enhancing the revolutionary zeal of the workers is for party organizations to vigorously launch political work. When party organizations fully explain to party members and workers the legitimacy and methods of carrying out our party's industrial policy, their revolutionary zeal and creative positivism can be greatly enhanced and new upsurges and continued innovations can be brought about in all units of industrial production.

Consequently, the strengthening of party-oriented guidance over industrial production is an inevitable requirement of socialist industrial construction and one of the key tasks arising in the purview of party organizations.

The strengthening of party-oriented guidance over industrial production also allows for more rapid development of socialist industry by laying the groundwork for economic organizational work and production control in a manner suited to the demands of the Taean work system.

In the socialist society, if economic management is to be rationalized and production and construction accelerated, then political work must be given priority and at the same time the groundwork must be laid for economic organizational work and production control. When economic organizational work is not properly carried out, the already established economic base and latent productivity cannot be used to their best ends and a high rate of speed in production growth as well as a positive balance in the people's economy cannot be guaranteed.

In laying the groundwork for economic organizational work and production control the role and responsibility of economic guidance functionaries must be increased. Those directly responsible for economic organizational work and production control are none other than economic guidance functionaries. However, if economic guidance functionaries are to execute economic guidance work properly and fulfill their own mission at their assigned work station, then party-oriented guidance over economic work must be strengthened.

Only when party organizations strengthen party-oriented guidance over industrial production and establish correct measures for implementing the party's industrial policies, and then maintain tight control over the process of carrying them out, can problem areas arising in economic guidance work and production control be identified in a timely manner and all economic guidance functionaries positively pushed toward responsibly guarding the sentry post assigned to them.

All of this shows that, when party-oriented guidance over industrial production is strengthened, the party's industrial policy can be thoroughly implemented and our industry continuously developed at a high rate of speed, and that the overall socialist economic construction of our nation can be vigorously accelerated.

Strengthening of party-oriented guidance over industrial production presents itself as an urgent requirement for socialist construction in our nation at this time.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows.

"The realities of today, when socialist construction is leaping to a new higher stage and the scope of the economy is becoming enormous, and when the struggle to conquer nature is being launched on an enormous scale without parallel, absolutely requires a further elevation of the leading role of the party in all fronts of socialist construction." ("Collected Works of Kim Il-Song," Vol 7 p 89)

Today the scope and productive potentiality of our nation's industry have become unprecedentedly large and its level of technical equipment has substantially increased. In our nation in recent years alone numerous modern and large-scale plants and enterprises have been built and existing plants and enterprises have been upgraded and expanded, so that industrial productivity is on the rapid rise and the infrastructure more complete, and, with the acceleration of the technical revolution, the overall industrial sector is solidly equipped with modern technology. Today our productive capacity is several hundred times what it was in 1946 right after liberation, and its material-technical foundation has been immeasurably strengthened.

The reality in which industry is developing in leaps and bounds and the scope of which has become immeasurably large requires that the guidance of party organizations over industrial production be stronger than at any other time. When party-oriented guidance over industrial production is strengthened in a manner suited to the realities of development, large-scale plants can be successfully managed and operated, and when the vanguard role of the working class is increased, they can be made to fully carry out their own heavy responsibilities confronting society and revolution.

Strengthening of party-oriented guidance over industrial production comes up as a particularly urgent problem in the context of the enormous economic construction tasks facing us.

We are faced today with the glorious tasks of carrying out ahead of schedule the Second Seven-Year Plan and successfully occupying the ten prospective targets. The ten prospective targets of socialist economic construction is a grand plan which has as its objective the building of a powerful material-technical base which suits a completely victorious socialist society, and is a broad program of economic construction which envisions a new higher speed in production and construction.

The provinces of our nation are comprised of numerous cities and counties, in which there are many factories and enterprises and hundreds of thousands of the working class. Consequently, the party organizations within the provinces should move forcefully ahead so that the militancy and role of the party are further increased, and the factories and enterprises of the provinces should carry out without fail the national plans given to them so that the nation's overall economic construction is in good shape.

This glorious task of strengthening party work and properly carrying out economic construction in the provinces belongs to our provincial party committees, which have overall responsibility for such work in the provinces.

The provincial party committee provides the guidance to see to it that all party organizations in the province correctly carry out party work and positively launch administrative economic work in accordance with the demands of party policy. Also, through provincial economic guidance organs the provincial party committee indoctrinates and guides administrative economic functionaries and workers toward taking command of and guiding the administration and control of the overall economy within their own province, including industry and agriculture, so that the economic tasks assigned to the province are responsibly carried out. Consequently, increasing the role of the provincial party committee allows industrial guidance to be planned and coordinated effectively, irregardless of conditions where the infrastructure is complex and the linkage between production units extensive, and makes it possible to fully carry out the economic tasks confronting the province.

In increasing the role of provincial party committees and strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production is found an important guarantee for moving ahead with production and construction at a rapid rate and thereby successfully occupying the ten prospective targets of socialist economic construction.

Our party has vigorously accelerated socialist economic construction by at all times paying close attention to strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production and by establishing the most appropriate guidelines for each stage of revolutionary development.

To meet the new circumstances in which historic tasks of building a socialist foundation in our nation had been brilliantly accomplished, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song created the great Chongsan-ri spirit and Chongsan-ri method during the course of on-the-spot guidance at Chongsan-ri in February of 1960, through which he brought about an epochal turning point in improving the work system and work methods of party, state and economic organs.

Of particular significance in the strengthening of party-oriented guidance over industrial production was the widespread adoption of the Taean work system created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The result of fully implementing implementing the Taean work system for organizing and carrying out all production activity under the collective guidance of the party committee was a substantial elevation of the role of party committees at all levels and the greater rationaization of socialist economic management, as well as a new upsurge in production and construction.

Party-oriented guidance over industrial production is now being further intensified and strengthened in conformity with the idustrial guidance system for implementing the Taean work system developed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song recently unveiled a striking plan for further strengthening party-oriented guidance over economic work whereby the provincial economic guidance committee, under the guidance of the provincial party committee, takes complete charge of and guides industry in the province.

With the formation of provincial economic guidance committees a reliable guidance system came into being enabling provincial party committees to improve party-oriented guidance over economic work in a manner suited to a new reality in which the industrial production base of the provinces has been firmly established. Inasmuch as provincial party committees are the masters and responsibly push forward the economic tasks placed before the provinces in this industrial guidance system, it buttresses in a party-oriented manner the work of implementing party economic policy and carrying out state planning. With such we have come to possess a firm guarantee for further strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production and for rationalizing economic management, and for maintaining a constant high rate of speed in production and construction.

We must positively step up socialist economic construction by strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production in accordance with the requirements of the industrial guidance system for implementing the Taean work system.

Of first importance in strengthening party-oriented guidance over industrial production in a manner suited to the real demands of socialist construction is that party organizations adhere to and vigorously push forward the work of implementing the party's industrial policy.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows.

"All party functionaries must set their sights on economic work and all party organizations must firmly adhere to and carry out economic work." ("Summary Report on Central Committee Activities Delivered at the Sixth Congress of the Korean Workers Party," Pamphlet, p 120)

The objective of exercising party-oriented guidance over industrial production lies in party organizations laying the groundwork for organization political work so as to thoroughly implement party industrial policies. By holding fast to the work of implementing the party's industrial policy, party organizations can in fact guarantee party-oriented guidance over industrial production and fully solve the various problems arising in socialist economic construction.

Party organizations must hold fast to the work of implementing the party's industrial policies and collectively discuss them and establish correct measures for carrying them out, strengthen the work of organizing the division of labor and of exercising control and guidance and continually intensify the work of realignment, and thereby fully implement party policy.

The important thing here is the application of priority effort in solving the issues envisioned by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and set by our party. Only in so doing can the key links be closed in socialist economic construction at the proper time and economic work be pushed forward to a higher stage.
